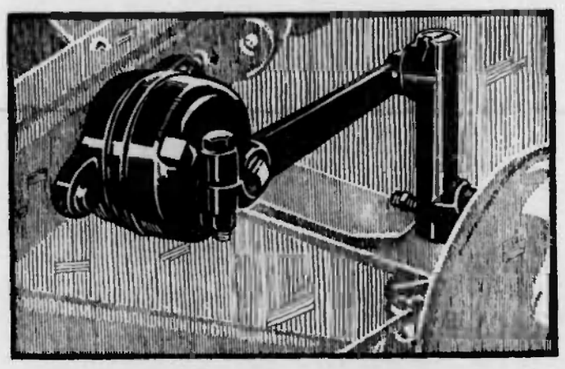
FORD COMFORT



Every new Ford is equipped with four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers

ONE of the fine things about driving the new Ford is the way it takes you over the miles without strain or fatigue. No matter how long the trip, you know it will bring you safely, quickly, comfortably to the journey's end.

The seats are generously wide, deeply cushioned and carefully designed to conform to the curves of the body. Every new Ford has specially designed springs and four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers. These work both ways — up and down. They absorb the force of road shocks and also provide a cushion against the rebound of the springs.

Other features that make the new Ford a value far above the price are the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, silent, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, more than twenty ball and roller bearings, extensive use of fine steel forgings, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves, torque-tube drive, Rustless Steel and unusual accuracy in manufacturing.

In addition, you save many dollars because of the low first cost of the new Ford, low cost of operation and up-keep, and low yearly depreciation.

The Dramatic Club had its first banquet on March 3 at the school. After the supper a business meeting was held. Various committees were appointed to look after the play to be given March 12 and 13. The committees are: Managers, Richard Glotfelty, Carroll Casteel; stage managers, Richard Roy, Donald Stemple; electrician Elvin Iman; assistant, Reginald Ford; costume directors, Virginia Giessman, Anna Mae Sowers, Helen Shaffer; prompter, Mona O'Brien. The banquet was well attended, only three members being absent. Mr. Bittle was a guest. Miss Kochenderfer is the club adviser.

Thursday afternoon, February 26, an assembly program was given by Miss Kraft's home room, consisting of a short play in pantomime. The surprises came fast to the listening audience, and then "The Lamp Went Out." The students knew that the lamp was supposed to go out, but eyes grew bigger as the table on which the lamp was sitting rose and went out. Wayne Fitzwater gave a talk on projects sponsored by his home room; Mr. Bittle gave a short talk and Roy Durst as president had charge of the program. Musical selections were rendered. An admission charge of 5 cents was made. The proceeds will be used with which to obtain good fiction for the library.

Both the boys' and girls' basketball teams lost to the Thomas dribblers on Monday night by heavy scores, the boys losing 62-24, while the girls were swamped 30 to nothing.

Tuesday night the boys' team will go to Friendsville where the Accident Independents will be played. This will be the final game of the season. Members of the Accident high school faculty will play on this team and an interesting game is expected.

MT. LAKE PARK

Death of Charles S. May

In the death of Charles Sheridan May on February 26, this community lost a good citizen.

Mr. May was born in Centerville, Pennsylvania, September 9, 1865. On December 7, 1890, he was united in marriage to Miss Mary E. Garthright, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Philip T. Garthright, of Mountain Lake Park. To this marriage were born seven children—four sons and three daughters—Harry F., Helen, Flora, Arden, Dewey, Mary and Garthright. Mrs. May and all of the children survive. Mr. May was a devout member of the Mountain Lake Park M. E. church, having united with that denomination in 1889. His genial disposition and kindly demeanor won for him a lasting remembrance among his large circle of acquaintances and friends. His last words, uttered but a brief time before his demise were, "Goodby to all and may God bless you."

The funeral of Mr. May was conducted on Saturday, Rev. Aspinall, a former pastor of the M. E. church at the Park being in charge. He was assisted by Rev. I. S. Middaugh and Rev. W. B. Brock. The pall-bearers were Robert Moomaw, Wiley W. Welling, John Stevenson, Louis Killius, H. V. Leighton and John Fitzwater. Interment was made in the Oakland cemetery.

Death of Hugh Howell Fleming

On last Monday evening Hugh Howell Fleming passed away at the home of Mr. E. C. Frame. Mr. Fleming had been in failing health for the past two years and last August came to the mountain in an endeavor to recover his health. He was the only son of Mr. Curtis B. Fleming and the late Mrs. Belle Fleming, of Fairmont, and a member of one of the old pioneer families of that community. His remains were conveyed to Fairmont on Tuesday morning and interment will be made in a cemetery at Morgantown today where his mother is buried.

Your correspondent has received a somewhat cryptic and mysterious letter, dated on March 3, which promises some interesting political activity. The letter follows:

"There was organized here last evening a political club—the Republican Esoteric Club. There are twelve members—and twelve only. The officers and members will be unknown. The object of this club will be local political issues primarily and county politics secondarily. The organization is permanent. You will hear little of it. The result of its activities will be seen eventually—unless. Secretary."

There is no use in phoning us for you know as much as we do.

The town election held in Loch Lynn on Monday resulted in the election of the following: Mayor, C. E. Hardesty; councilmen, E. C. Hutchinson, B. W. Harvey; clerk, Mildred Ford; tax collector, Floyd White; bailiff, William Simms. The hold-over members of council are H. V. Leighton and Henry Gibson. The total vote cast was 112.

At the regular meeting of the W. O. W. lodge last Monday evening in Loch Lynn there was an unusual turnout, many members from other sections of the county being present. A smoker was had and refreshments were served. Mr. John W. Ream was elected as delegate to the Head Camp, which will be held in Washington in April.

Announcement has been made that there was born to Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Leighton, on Friday, a son.

In New York, Tuesday, stocks gained from one to ten dollars a share in the most active trading of the year. Sales approximated 5,300,000 shares.

A Loving Tribute To C. S. May

Our grieving hearts are sore because no more may we see his smiling face nor have his happy counsel; no more can we go to him for aid in times of trouble, but his gain is our loss. And he has left behind such words of comfort that will sustain us through the lonely hours.

His life was like the passing of a perfect day, for in that last noontide until the close his life was filled with service and beauty and love for his friends and loved ones. He has just gone on before to a land free from sorrow and strife, and will be there to welcome us when we come.

His life will continue to paint the clouds of our earthly life so that we may see the love of Jesus more clearly.

"Be kind, the cloud, the starlight,
Through showers the sunbeams fall;
For God who loveth all His works,
Has left His hope with all."

—HIS WIFE, MRS. C. S. MAY.

BROWNING, WHORTON AND KERINS ARE COUNCILMEN

Receive Highest Number of Votes in Municipality Election on Monday—405 Votes Are Cast

VOTING IS NOT HEAVY

Cheston H. Browning, George T. Kerins and J. W. Whorton were elected as members of the Town council at the municipal election held on Monday at the Town Hall, the latter having been re-elected. Browning led the ticket with 251 votes, while Whorton was second with 227. Walter Hardesty, Arthur Lawton and Howard P. Stuck were the unsuccessful candidates, Kerins defeating Stuck by the margin of two votes.

Miss Frances Hamill, who was unopposed, was re-elected as treasurer. A total of 405 votes were cast, 168 less than last year when the election for mayor was held.

Chosen at Meeting

The candidates were all nominated at the citizens' meeting held last Thursday evening at the City Hall, and only one ticket was named. The councilmen will serve for a term of two years and the treasurer one year. The results of the election are as follows:

For Councilmen

Cheston H. Browning....251
J. William Whorton.....227
George T. Kerins.....207
Howard P. Stuck.....205
Walter Hardesty.....196
Arthur Lawton 118

For Town Treasurer

Miss Frances Hamill....287

The retiring members of the council are George Little and Howard Stuck. The additional councilmen who still have one year to serve are Ralph Thayer, Carlton McComas and Jesse J. Ashby, Jr. The latter one will be compelled to resign in April when he assumes his duties as county treasurer, and the vacancy will be filled by appointment.

The present council will organize at the next regular meeting, April 6.

Many Trout Are Distributed

During the past week several hundred brook trout were planted in different streams of Garrett county by Mr. A. M. Powell, who- is superintendent of the Bear Creek Hatchery, assisted by Wardens Elmer Haulenbeek and Richard S. Browning and a number of local anglers.

The trout were all about ten inches in length and were propagated and grown in the hatchery on Bear Creek near Kaesc's Mill, a few miles cast of Accident. The streams are being stocked in preparation for the fishing season, which opens in April.

The public has been requested and warned by the wardens not to disturb or catch any trout before the season opens on April 1. On and after that date, one warden stated, one may catch trout, not in excess of ten per day, none of which can be less than seven inches in length. There is a fine of $25 for any violation of the fish law.

Allegany High Defeats Garrett County Champs

Kitzmiller High school basketball team, winner of the championship for Garrett county, was defeated by Allegany High school, Allegany county champion, at Westernport last Saturday night, 27 to 21.

Allegany High school entered the fray a big favorite over the Garrett county team but were forced to extend themselves to win. In 1927 Allegany defeated Oakland 76-16 in the P. A. L. tournament for the State championship. The following year A. H. S. humbled Oakland 63-17, and last year Allegany swamped Friendsville High 49 to 13. This is the first year that a close score has been maintained.

Evangelistic Services to Start at St. Paul's M. E. Church

Evangelistic services begin March 22 and continue until Easter, at St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church. There will be preaching every evening except Saturday beginning at 7:30. The pastor, J. W. Dawson, will be his own evangelist. Vital themes will be discussed.

The public is cordially invited to all these services.

On Wednesday evening, March 18, the pastor wishes a general church prayer and preparatory service. All church members are urged to be at this service.

SHORT RUN AND HIGHLAND SCHOOLS WIN ATTENDANCE

Tie For First Among One-teacher Schools With 100 Percent

Short Run and Highland schools, with 100 percent, led all other one-teacher schools of the county in attendance for the month of February, according to John L. Fitzwater, attendance officer.

Strawberry Hill, with 97.6 percent, led the two-teacher schools; Crellin led the Graded schools with 97.2 per cent, and Grantsville, with 94.4, led the high schools of the county.

The average attendance was as follows: one-teacher schools, 92; two-teacher schools, 91.7; graded schools, 92.4; and high schools, 92.6. Only ten of the 83 one-teacher schools were below the standard of 88 percent set by the State Department of Educaion. Four of the two-teacher schools were below their standard of 90 percent; three of the graded schools were below their standard of 92 percent, and five high schools were below the standard of 94 percent.

Oakland was fourth among the graded schools and sixth among the high schools.

Meeting of Pomona Grange Is Held At Sunnyside

Garrett county pomona grange met last Thursday at the Sunnyside Grange hall. The regular session was held in the morning at 10:30 and the afternoon was given over to the lecturer's hour in which O. T. Graser was in charge.

The following program was given: Wickersham report by Rev. W. B. Brock, of Oakland; musie selection by Sunnyside Grange; poultry skit by Roy Durst and Lloyd Bowers, high school boys, members of the Pleasant Valley Grange; the Smith Lever Act and extension service program, by Miss Elsie Benthien; the Smith Hughes Act, O. T. Graser; reading by Mrs. Lee Shaffer; reading, "The Wants of Man," by George D. Sprague; musical selection by Sunnyside Grange.

Thirty-five grangers from Shady Dell, Sunnyside and Pleasant Valley attended. The next Pomona grange will be held June 4 at 7:30 p. m., at Shady Dell Grange hall.

War Veteran to Talk on Laws Benefiting Ex-Service Men

Mr. Charles F. Sargent, regional director of the War Veterans Bureau, will discuss the world war veterans' laws at a meeting in the City hall on Monday, March 16, at 7:30 o'clock, aaccording to A. G. Hesen, commander of the local legion post.

All world war veterans are urged to be present. Following the regular legion meeting a luncheon will be served at the Manhattan hotel for all ex-service men, and a charge of 50 cents will be made. Mr. Sargent will again speak and other entertainment will be provided.

Major George Parker, ex-service marine, will also be present at both meetings. At the regular legion meeting he will assist in forming a rifle team. All legionaires and other ex-service men are eligible to attend both the legion meeting and the luncheon.

Winchester School Band Will Bring Solo Artists Here

That the Handley High School band of Winchester, Va., would bring 47 boys here for the concert in the Maryland Theatre on April 17, was announced by Prof. McIlwee, director, in a letter to R. R. Gilbert, director of the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland, received a day or two ago.

The band will carry a drum and bugle corps, a male quartet of high school students, a xylophone player, a cornet soloist and baritone soloist.

At a meeting of the auxiliary of the local band on Tuesday a committee was appointed to make arrangements for accommodatlons for the visitors overnight. The committee includes Mrs. James Treacy, Mrs. Ralph Weber, Mrs. Harry Stemple and Mrs. Walter Iman. Walter W. Dawson and F. E. Rathbun addressed the parents and local band members at the recent meeting.

HOUSE PASSES HOME RULE BILL ON STATE BLUE LAWS

Michel Measure, Adopted Tuesday By 71-To-42 Vote, Sent To The Senate

GARRETT COUNTY EXEMPT

Annapolis, March 10—The House sent the Sunday amusement and sales question to the Senate this afternoon after approving the Michel bill, proposing local option on blue laws for the various counties, towns and cities, by a vote of 71 to 42.

Possibility that the measure, designed primarily to give Baltimore Sunday motion pictures, may be amended in the Senate was talked of immediately after the House had acted.

The House vote ended a bitter fight between opponents and proponents of the measure in which two dissentmg members of the Baltimore city delegation of thirty-six lined up with the opponents.

Validity Questioned

During the roll call on the bill Delegate Gorfine, Baltimore, who stated at the outset in explaining his vote that he was "not against any legislation which would tend to liberalize the observance of Sunday," raised the question of the measure's constitutionality.

It will be to obviate any possibility of the measure's validity being overthrown by the courts that the amendments will be made in the Senate, if such a course is pursued. Informal polls of the Senate roster, made by persons interested in the Sunday legislation and from a political standpoint, place the number of votes in favor of home rule of the question between 17 and 19. Fifteen votes are necessary to pass the bill.

Eleven Counties Exempted

The Michel measure would add a new section to the public General Laws of the State authorizing County Commissioners, the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore and the legislative bodies of cities and towns of six thousand or more population to set the regulations for Sabbath amusements and sales.

On introducing the bill the Speaker declared that home rule was the aim of the proposal and eleven counties—Baltimore, Garrett, Montgomery, Prince George's Cecil, Harford, Carroll, Washington, Frederick, Talbot and Dorchester—were exempted from its provisions by amendments. The delegation from Allegany was equally divided on the question and the House declined to sustain an amendment to grant its exemption.

Advocate Amendment

Opponents of the bill declared during hearings that the measure was not constitutional because the Constitution of the State declares that the General Assembly has not power to delegate its authority to a lesser law-making body, the exact language of Section 33 of Article 3, being in part that, "The General Assembly shall pass no special law for any case for which provision has been made by an existing law."

Those who advocate amendment of the present bill in the Senate favor the repeal and reenactment of the entire section of the law dealing with Sabbath observance and its reenactment with provisions exempting Baltimore city and any county so desiring and placing the regulations in the hands of local governing bodies, with any limitations deemed desirable by the General Assembly.

Those Who Spoke

Delegate Popp, Allegany, when the Michel bill was called up, pleaded that the measure be voted down and was supported by Delegates Conwey, Baltimore; Benson, Baltimore; Cullers, Garrett, and A. William Murphy, of Dorchester. Delegates Dawson, Montgomery; Alexander,Baltlmore county; E. W. Miller, Washington; Galbreath,

Scouts to Hold Inspection

The regular monthly inspection of Oakland Troop No. 1, Boy Scouts of America, will he held at the meeting tomorrow evening in the Scout hall. Scouts will be marked on their neatness, actlvity, attendance, and their standing in the troop in regard to dues, obedience to orders, etc.

Four boys, Lawrence Dixon, Jr., Irvin Broadwater, Jr., Percy Thayer, and Horace O'Donnell, were officially taken into the troop last Friday when an investiture ceremony was carried out.

COUNTY FOREST WARDENS END TWO-DAY CONFERENCE

More Than 40 Wardens Attend and Take Active Part in Discussion of Forest Fire Problems

REPORT IS MADE FOR 1930

The annual conference of forest wardens of Garrett county was concluded Tuesday afternoon at the Court House, Oakland, after one of the most successful meetings ever held, according to W. J. Quick, assistant forester. More than 40 wardens of the county were present and took an active part in all the discussions. The meeting lasted two days.

All sessions were held in the Court House, except Monday evening when six reels of forestry moving pictures were shown at the William-James hotel.

The program included the following: address of welcome, John H. Carter, county agent; growth and goal of the State department of forestry, F. W. Besley, State forester; Maryland forest laws and their enforcement, W. W. Dawson, State's Attorney the role of the forest warden in fire protection, W. J. Quick, assistant forester; remarks by J. W. Harvey, member of the board of county commissioners, Walter H. Haenftling, sheriff, R. B. Heberling, assistant district forester of the Forbes forest district of Pennsylvania, and L. H. Musser, district inspector of the Forbes district.

Round table discussions were held on a number of the problems of the forest warden and were led by H. C. Buckingham, district forester. Preparation of tools, crews, conveyance, etc., responsibilities of towermen, smokechasers, and wardens in detection and reporting of fires, and the method of fighting the fire were considered. Fire prevention was also stressed in the discussion.

Report Made For 1930

A report on the number of forest fires in Garrett county during 1930 showed that last year was very disastrous in number of acres burned and the cost of suppression.

Altogether 258 fires were reported last year, which burned an area of 16,454⅝ acres, or 5.8 percent of the forest area of the county. The size of the average fire was 64 acres, with a suppression cost of $7,047.14, half of which is borne by the county.

Thirty-two fires burned over 100 acres, while 103 fires burned over 10 acres and under 100. The heaviest month for forest fires was in May when 74 were reported. Forty-nine were reported in April, 40 in October, and 27 jn August.

Under causes of fires, the following figures were given: railroads, 17; incendiary; 106; brush burning, 17; smokers, 81; campfire, 4; lumber, 1; miscellaneous, 13; and unknown, 19.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mr. Mike Tasker, of Backbone Mountain, was put in charge of the new State forest recently acquired.

Dates for Graduation Are Announced

Dates for graduation exercises for the various high schools of Garrett County were announced last evening by F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent of Schools. They are as follows:

Friendsville High School, Wednesday, June 17.

Grantsville High School, Wednesday, June 17.

Accident High School, Thursday, June 18.

Oakland High School, Thursday, June 18.

Kitzmiller High School, Thursday, June 18.

The names of the speakers to appear at these graduatlon exercises and present the diplomas have not been announced, and no definite programs completed for the exercises, Mr. Rathbun said.

Snowfall Reaches Nine Inches

Snowfall in Garrett county which began last Friday afternoon has reached a depth on level ground of nine inches, according to the government station at Weber's, one mile south of Oakland.

Shifting winds, however, have piled the snow to a depth of several feet in places and have all but blocked the highways. Snow has continued to fall every day for six days, with no sign of a let-up. The temperature during the past week hovered around 20 degrees above zero.

"ARRIVAL OF KITTY" TO BE GIVEN AT HI SCHOOL

To Be Presented Friday Night—Other High School News

"The Arrival of Kitty" will be presented on the Oakland High School stage by the O. H. S. Dramatic Club, on Thursday afternoon and Friday evening.

The scene of the play is in the Halyeon House, a hotel in a secluded spot of the Catskill Mountains.

The cast of characters includes Ting whose part is successfully played by Joseph Welch. Furnishing a large part of the comedy David Walters plays the part of Sam, the Negro porter, and brings from the audience laugh after laugh. The part of Kitty is played by Olive Gnegy. Other members of the cast of no less importance are Helen Giessman and Anna Belle Stemple.

A record crowd is expected. The play is scheduled to start at 8:15 Friday night. A matinee performance is promised dfor this afternoon.

On Tuesday night our first and second teams journeyed to Friendsville where we played the first and second Accident Independent teams. The second team of O. H. S. lost 11-7 while our first team won 24-14. W. Speicher was the only O. H. S. player to score in the first game while King and R. Speicher scored nine points for Accident.

In the second game Maronie of O. H. S. and J. Speicher, of Accident, were high scorers with four field goals each.

Flashing the best brand of basketball of the season Oakland High school basketball team defeated O. H. S. alumni in the auditorium last Friday evening 23 to 13, thus evening the series.

The High boys started early and ran up a lead of nine points before the alumni registered. They led at half time 12 to 7. The alumni won from the high school quint on February 27 by the score 18 to 14, after an extra-period battle.

It is expected that the third and deciding game of the series will be played next week.

Trade Name of Garrett County Syrup Producers To Be Changed

The trade name of the Maple Products Association of Garrett county, "Crest o' the Highlands," is being changed to "Crest o' of the Alleghanies," according to County Agent Carter.

An official protest of the name used last year by the producers was made by the Cary Maple Sugar Company of Vermont through the United Staees Patent Office, and following a conference in Washington with patent office heads and members of the Maryland Forestry Extension Service, it was decided to change the trade mark name, the Vermonters protesting that the local association had infringed upon the trade mark when they adopted the name, as the word "Highland" also appears on the label used by the New Englanders.

Arrangements have been made with the printer for gummed labels bearing the newly adopted trade name and they will be ready the first of the week, Mr. Carter said.

FUNERAL RITES HELD FOR THE LATE GILMOR S. HAMILL

CAME TO OAKLAND IN 1867

Funeral services for the late Gilmor S. Hamill, 82, dean of the Garrettt County Bar, who died at his home in Oakland last Friday evening as a result of advancing years and a stroke of paralysis which he suffered about a month ago, were held Monday afternoon at two o'clock from the Garrett Memorial Presbyterian church, of which he was a member and an elder of the congregation for many years. The services were in charge of the pastor, Rev. Walter B. Brock, who was assisted by the Rev. D. C. Trimble, of the Episcopal church, and Rev. C. A. Shilke, of the Lutheran church. Interment was made in the Oakland cemetery.

Mr. Hamill had been in failing health for some time prior to his last illness.

He was born December 11, 1848, at Westernport, Allegany county, the son of Patrick and Isabelle Kight Hamill, and with his parents moved to Oakland in 1867, while Garrett county was yet a part of Allegany county.

Mr. Hamill received his education as a law student in the Virginia Law School where he studied for two years and then entered the office of Judge Gordon in Cumberland where he was a student until admitted to the bar in 1873, when he opened an office in Oakland and remained here until the day of his death.

Mr. Hamill was the first State's Attorney for Garrett county, having received a court appointment in 1874 when the county was formed. He was elected to the office in 1891 by popular vote. He was active in the Democratic party and several times held the chairmanship of the State Central Committee. He was also a delegate to that party's national convention in Baltimore when Woodrow Wilson was nominated for the Presidency. He was a member of the Oakland City Council a number of terms. When the Garrett County Bank (later the Garrett National Bank) was formed Mr. Hamill was made its vice-president, then president and resigning the latter position a year or more ago, he was chosen chairman of the board of directors.

Mr. Hamill was married in the year 1874 to Miss Elizabeth Bishop, and to this union four sons were born, two of whom, Stuart F. and Henry Byrne, survive. James, the eldest son died in infancy, and the second son, G. Semmes, died several years ago. Mrs. Hamill preceded her husband in death. Two sisters, Mrs. John T. Mitchell and Mrs. Arthur Townshend, of Oakland, and one brother, Rev. Henry Hamill, of Washington, D. C., and six grandchildren also survive.

Mr. Hamill was a member of the Knights of Pythias and of the Masonic fraternity, being Master of the lodge here a number of years ago.

Rev. W. B. Brock, in preaching the funeral sermon, said:

"Today I am listening to a voice from the past, an echo from a sermon preached in this church many years ago. Dr. J. C. Ely was one of the most revered ministers of this church and one of the best friends of Gilmor S. Hamill.

"Today, he, being dead, yet speaketh unto us from that text in the 64th chapter of Isaiah whose beauty and meaning he unfolded with inimitable power: "We all do fade as a leaf."

"Every day of our lives this sad lesson is impressed on our minds. As summer closes we gaze on its lingering roses, reluctant to give them up. The brilliant hues of autumn flame on every hillside; the vine yields her rich cluster and casts aside her green robe as if it required the sacrifice of its life to give its fruit to cheer the heart of man.

"The woods are painted gorgeously, the sky is kindled and valleys brightened by the glance of autumn's eye. The joyous song of the bird no longer fills the grove. It has sought another clime.

"The decayed foliage about us now will be succeeded by the verdure of spring. This year's decay will nourish next year's vegetation. So if we do God's will He will take us from these transient joys and fading beauties of earth only to give us the enduring riches and the exceeding great weight of glory.

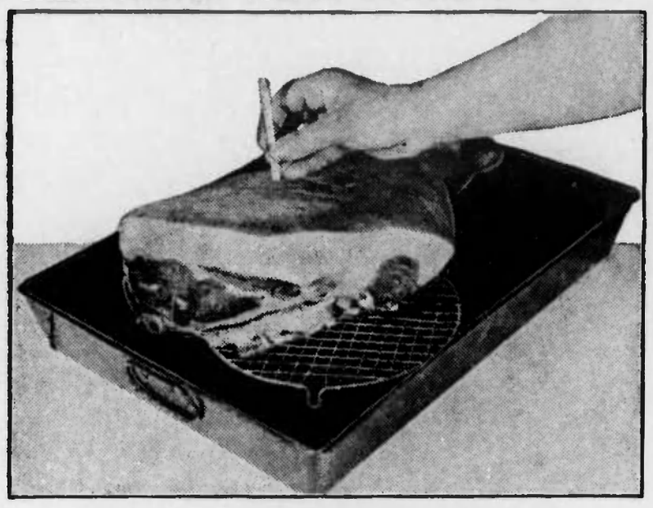
THERMOMETER USEFUL IN ROASTING HAM



Use a Thermometer to Insure Well-Done Roast Pork.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)—WNU Service.

As in cooking other roast meats, the use of a thermometer when roasting a fresh ham removes the guesswork. This is particularly important in the case of pork, which should always be served well-done. Thorough cooking is necessary, because pork sometimes contains the trichina parasite, which, if not destroyed, may cause illness. Since this organism is killed when heated to 137 degrees Fahrenheit, there is ample margin of safety when pork is cooked to the well-done stage, 182 degrees Fahrenheit.

The following directions for cooking a fresh ham are given by the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture:

Wipe the ham with a damp cloth and leave the rind on. The ham will cook more quickly and shrink less when the rind is not removed. Sprinkle the surface of the meat with salt and pepper and rub with flour. Place the ham, rind side up, on a rack in an open roasting pan, without water. Make a small incision through the rind with a sharp knife or steel skewer, cut short gashes around it with scissors, and insert a roast-ment thermometer through the opening so that its bulb reaches the center of the fleshiest portion of the ham.

Place the pan containing the ham in a hot oven (480 degrees Fahrenheit) and sear for about 20 minutes. Then reduce the oven temperature rapidly to very moderate heat (300 degrees to 325 degrees) and continue the cooking at this temperature until the roast meat thermometer in the ham registers 182 degrees. Between 25 and 30 minutes per pound will probably be required when these oven temperatures are used. Do not add water and do not cover the meat during the roasting.

When the ham is done remove it from the oven and carefully take off the rind. To remove the rind easily break through it on the fleshy side at the hock, then turn the ham over and lift the rind off in one piece. With a sharp knife score the fat covering in squares. Stick long-stemmed cloves into the intersections and sprinkle brown sugar over the fat surface. Return to a moderately hot oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) to brown over the top. Serve hot or cold.

Savory Brown Gravy.

Remove excess fat from the pan drippings. Mix two tablespoonfuls of flour with the drippings remaining in the pan, add one and one-half to two cupfuls of cold water and cook until smooth. If the pan drippings are strong in flavor, add more water, and flour in proportion. Cook one-half cupful of chopped parsley or celery leaves and one tablespoonful of chopped onion in a small quantity of the fat and add to the gravy.

CAREFULLY READ PACKAGE LABELS

Contents of Container Must Be Truthfully Told.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)—WNU Service.

When you go into a grocery store to buy the family goods, do you read carefully the labels on the bottles or packages you select? Do you trust to your eyes in estimating the quantity in each container, or do you find out from the label exactly what you are getting for your money? Do you compare articles of one brand with those of another, both in quantity and quality? Do you observe whether or not the label declares artificial coloring or flavoring?

Labels must tell truthfully what kind of material a package, bottle, or can of food contains, and what quantity. The statement on the label should not be misleading in any way to the consumer. Sometimes, however, it may be truthful and still misleading. Again, the appearance of the container may be misleading, and if the statement on the label is overlooked, the buyer gets poor value.

Bottles of Peculiar Shape.

The food and drug administration of the United States Department of Agriculture urges every housewife to scrutinize the labels on every kind of feed she buys, as well as on the drugs she needs in her household. In the case of foods, it has been found that most manufacturers and packers have shown a satisfactory disposition to meet the demands for truthful labeling, but occasionally it is evident that there is some attempt to give the consumer less value than she thinks she is getting.

Take the two bottles illustrated. Bottles of peculiar shape, with thick sides and bottoms, like the taller of these two, sometimes hold less than those which are made in an ordinary shape, like the one that seems at first glance smaller. In this instance, the fancy shaped bottle held only one fluid ounce, and the straight-sided bottle held two fluid ounces.

AVOID SHRINKAGE COOKING ROASTS

Housewife Must Consider How Much Loss Will Be.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)—WNU Service.

When a housewife cooks a rib roast of beef or a leg of lamb she must consider how much loss there is likely to be from shrinkage. Naturally she wants the meat to "go as far" as possible. Dietitians in schools, hospitals, and other institutions have the same problem on a larger scale; they must be able to estimate both the number of servings and also the nutritive value of each serving. Shrinkage of meat during cooking means a dollars and cents loss to the manager of a restaurant, cafeteria, or hotel dining room, or to a delicatessen where cooked meat is sold. The shrinkage affects the appearance, palatability and nutritive value.

In the last four years the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture has been accumulating meat-shrinkage data in connection with the nation-wide cooperative study of the factors that influence the palatability of meat. There seems to be a close relation between shrinkage and oven temperature; that is, when meat is roasted from start to finish in a very hot oven the shrinkage is greater than when the meat is first seared at a high temperature and then finished slowly with the temperature rapidly reduced. For example, if, after beef ribs have been seared in a hot oven, the temperature is rapidly reduced so as to finish the cooking very slowly, the shrinkage of the meat when rare is only about one-eighth of the fresh weight; whereas if the roasting goes on to the end in a hot oven the shrinkage is about one-fourth of the fresh weight.

Well-done beef shrinks more than rare beef, other things being equal. Well-finished, high-grade beef and lamb roasts lose more fat and less water during cooking than very thin meat of the same kind and cut.

Harvard Beets Not Only Tasty but Attractive

"Sweet-sour" beets, they are sometimes called. Harvard beets are not only tasty but colorful and attractive to look at, and because of the vinegar used in the sauce, they take the place of a relish. The bureau of home economics tells how to make them.

6 medium-sized beets
½ cup sugar
1 tsp. cornstarch
½ tsp. salt
½ cup vinegar
2 tbs. butter or other fat

Wash the beets, cook them in boiling water until tender, remove the skins, and cut the beets into thin slices or cubes. Mix the sugar and the cornstarch and salt. Add the vinegar and let the sauce boil for five minutes, stirring constantly. Add the fat. Pour the sauce over the beets. Let them stand for a few minutes to absorb the sweet-sour flavor of the sauce. For variety two tablespoonfuls freshly grated horseradish may be added just before serving.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,

Some Ornamental Shrubs Like Acid Soils

One of the secrets of successful culture of Mountain Laurel, Rhododendrons, Azaleas, and similar plants is to maintain an acid soil condition, according to W. R. Ballard, specialist in landscape gardening of the University of Maryland Extension Service. The simplest method of developing suitable quarters for them, he says, is to dig out the beds, removing the soil, particularly if it is heavy clay or has been mixed with lime or mortar from building operations. Leaf mold (half rotted leavs) from oak or pine woods, mixed with one part of sand and one part of loam, may be used to fill the beds. Each fall the plants should be mulched with oak leaves or pine needles, sawdust or pulverized peat. This mulch should not be disturbed after it is in place. The gradual decomposition maintains the acid reaction of the soil and aids materially in retaining moisture in dry seasons. A heavy mulch also aids in carrying plants through the winter season without injury.

Providing congenial conditions for growth, Mr. Ballard says, is only one of the essentials in growing thrifty shrubs. To have luxuriant growth, suitable food materials must be supplied. Here is where the amateur gardner may get into difficulties, he warns, for fertilizers which suit many of the ordinary plants may counteract the acid soil condition so carefully provided for and work serious harm to the plants.

A fertilizer recommended by this specialist consists of 10 lbs. ammonium sulphate, 35 lbs. high-grade superphosphate, 17 lbs. high-grade sluphate of potash, 28 lbs. cotton seed meal, and 10 lbs. aluminum sulphate. This mixture may be applied alone at the rate of three and one-half pounds to the 100 square feet of bed area, or a six-inch flower pot full may be mixed with a wheelbarrow load of suitable compost or pulverized peat moss.

Mr. Ballard states that the broad-leaved evergreens, such as Mountain laurel, Rhododendron and Azaleas, are often seriously scorched by winter sun in exposed places. It is usually advisable for this reason to plant them on the east or north side of the house. They should not be placed in dense shade, for although they make satisfactory growth, they will not bloom as freely as when given good light.

These flowering evergreens are so beautiful when well grown that it is well worthwhile to make special preparation of the soil where they are to be planted.

WHEN GRANDMA RULED

By FANNIE HURST

(©, 1931, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) WNU Service.

THEY said of her, those who dared, and those who dared were outside her family, that she should have been born a man. Probably she should.

She was not one to employ any of the arts and artifices that were feminine. The molding of her face was strong. The hook to her nose was virile. The tall sparse figure, bent slightly in these later years, had the stride to it of a gaunt man. One wondered in what years grandmother had ever been sufficiently appealing in a feminine way to have won herself a husband. He had died eight years after their marriage; but those who knew said that he had died a happy husband.

Gone by now were such of those graces which might have existed in the younger woman. Grandmother ruled her children, sons-in-law, daughters-in-law, grandchildren and great grandchildren with a high, hard hand.

She lived in n house with two of her married children and their families. Within a half-mile of the great gaunt red brick homestead where she had borne her family, there lived the remainder of her progeny. Clustered around the mother hen, as it were. Dominated by her grip, was the family.

Strange thing, there was almost in the attitude of this woman toward her children that of the proverbial "gold-digger." Fortunately, they were a generous, easy lot with what grandmother called their father's "spending streak." She had lived through lean and terrifying years due to their father's improvident ways. There were times when the homestead had tottered on the brink of foreclosure and plans for her children, due to untimely and madcap investments, had been in jeopardy.

Grandmother knew the dangers of that kind of improvidence and probably decided that it was just as well to let her children offer gold to her as to spend it in their more promiscuous ways.

And yet there were times when it did seem that greed and avarice came ont over the hooked old face of this sly old woman. Even from her young grandsons she demanded the homage of so little as a weekly one or two-dollar bill. Her son Wallace, the most successful member of her family, a striking, prince-like fellow who had made a fortune in a patent medicine, used laughingly to refer to her as the "pirate-parrot." She looked like a parrot, and, laughingly, the family conceded that she acted like a pirate.

In his palmy years—and Wallace was one to have good years and bad—it was nothing for him to shovel into the stern old woman's coffers thousands of dollars. When grandmother was seventy, she gleamed like a lighthouse. Jewels lay along her bony chest and burned in her strong gray hair.

Three of her sons were associated in the patent medicine business. Martin, the second and Oswald, the fifth. They were a gay brood, the owners of expensive wives and demanding children. If Grandmother was proud of them, she gave precious little evidence of her pride. She was constantly taking them to task, disciplining the grandchildren, descending in tirade upon the extravagance of her daughters and daughters-in-law, denouncing in no uncertain terms the pretenses and magnificence of their social aspirations.

Grandmother was hard. Grandmother should have been a man. Sometimes, in talking things over, the children agreed among themselves that in their faint and crumbling memories of what their father had been, he seemed to stand out as the gentle, kindly, maternal one of the two.

Of course, Grandmother had been superb, had tided them over bad places, but really, now—in her old age, she was becoming incorrigible.

It somehow was not nice for her to have accepted that thousand-dollar bill Wallace had given her for Christmas. Wallace's pretty wife Isabel did not mince matters about it. Her own Christmas gift from her husband had been a chair, which she had finally ended up by placing in his den. That thousand-dollar bill would have meant things that were actually needed in the Wallace household. Isabel loved her home, loved to deck it in finery. She was as entitled, in her opinion—and, it must be admitted, in the minds of the other children—as Grandmother was, to deck herself out with it in a square diamond ring. Wallace himself was uncommunicable, but there were hard and bitter lines around his mouth, and the family knew, without his ever taking anyone into his confidence, that the thousand dollars, hard-earned, coaxed from a business upon which the demands were many, had been maneuvered out of him by his mother.

And the old woman's contention was that, since the money would be wasted at best by a set of wastrels, she was as entitled to some of these things as these children of hers, that were the chips off the block of their improvident father.

Things reached a bad pass in the family. The sons and daughters who shared the house with the old woman were restive and talked of creating their own homes. Sons and daughters who lived within communicable distance of the homestead were chary of calling and grandchildren had rigidly to be taught the duty of their weekly bow of deference to the old patriarch of a woman who sat in a tapestry chair and who resembled the pirate-parrot.

But even the indomitable influence of this old woman was unable to cast its shadow entirely on her family. The most dominant of her children, the most endowed with the gift of personality and wit, was Wallace. At the end of the sixth year of his marriage, he was occupying one of the beautiful new houses of the town. His wife rode in imported motor cars and the pair formed the nucleus of one of the notoriously chic and gay social sets in the town.

The catastrophe which the old woman had so doggedly foreseen as inevitable came, however, sooner than ever she expected. A terrified, horrified and blasted group of her large family met one evening in the sitting room of the old homestead to confront, in their plight and terrifying dilemma, the hard, cold eyes of the grandmother.

Wallace had committed the unspeakable. Incredible as it might seem, the shades of the prison house were about to cast their ominous reflection around this impeccable family. Handcuffs hovered over the wrists of Wallace. He had defaulted and was about to abscond.

It was a grim and panic-stricken meeting of a gay clan.

The old woman in her high-backed chair presided like some menacing Fury. Bitter, indicting words rattled off the thin ridge of her lips. She took occasion to scourge, not only the stricken figure of her son, seated there before her in the limp attitude of defeat, but every member of the family.

Wastrels, spendthrifts, irresponsibles, cheats. Self-satiation had been their undoing. Lack of moral responsibility, selfishness, pretense, extravagance. Her scorn of them crackled from her old lips. And all the while her son, defeated sat before her, with his head seeming to drop down into the slot of his shoulders and his horror of the punishment of the law that was going to descend upon him creasing his face and aging him.

It was then that the Grandmother reached out her claw-like hand and touched his head lightly. It was the first gesture of affection her children had seen from her in years; a curious, hesitant, embarrassed gesture that somehow was painful. It was then that the Grandmother, also, from boxes and drawers that she ordered servants to bring to her, began to tilt upon the old family dining table the riches of her resources. Pearls. The square diamond ring. The thousand-dollar bill from Wallace, sapphire and diamond earrings, pendants, bracelets, more jewels and expensive decorations of every conceivable type. And from one drawer alone, bank notes, piles of them, that had the quality of fluttering out like live fingers unfolded, insinuatingly.

The table top might have been strewn with the yield of a pirate's chest. Thousands and tens of thousands lay in bulk there.

The moment which Grandmother had dreaded and foreseen had arrived. Her children were in need of what she had hoarded for them.

Sitting there, chastened, the shades of the prison house began to recede from the face of her son, Wallace.

Always Silver Linings to the Darkest Clouds

Father's sprained wrist gives him a good deal of pain; that is, when he uses it for lifting heavy objects such as wheelbarrows and spading forks. The doctor says that the best thing for it is rest, so that all he can do is sit in the house and read.

The destruction of the car in the fire was most unfortunate and entailed considerable loss. But, on the other hand, it settled the question of getting a new one, which is a joy to look at.

Little Johnny's breaking out with chicken pox is a nuisance, as all such contagious diseases are. However, it would never do to ask Sally Brown to come for her visit and run the risk of catching it. The only thing to do is to get her to put it off for another six months.

The cook's sudden departure has left the family in a decidedly upset condition. But with no one to watch over the children it will be virtually impossible to attend the subscription dinner in the interest of respect for the flag. The rain which beat in through the open window damaged the wall paper beyond repair. It will be imperative now to paper in the spring instead of waiting indefinitely.

The death of Mrs. Jones' mother was most distressing. And now that Mrs. Jones must go into mourning she will have to make some disposition among her friends of the lovely clothes she brought back from Paris, as they will be out of style before she gets back into colors again.

The moths have eaten large holes in father's cutaways. Poor man, he will be unable to wear it to weddings and such functions hereafter and will have to be content with a plain sack suit that does not bind him so tightly around the waist. Now, if mother could only be caught in a drenching rain while wearing the brown silk which she bought at a bargain and has never liked, life would be complete.—Baltimore Sun.

THURSDAY, MARCH 12, 1931.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Mrs. Eva C. Tasker and daughter, residents of Oakland, arrived in Baltimore on the steamer "Dorchester" from Boston after a tempestuous voyage of four days. They had been in Boston visiting Compton Tasker, a son of Mrs. Tasker, who had recently invented a breech loading and automatic closing heavy gun for marine warfare.

The public schools of the county closed for the year on Friday, after a term of about four months.

Tommy Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Nelson, of Oakland, went to Roanoke, Va., where he joined other Oakland young men in that thrifty and then booming city.

A meeting of the members of the Garrett County Bar Association was held to take suitable action upon the death of William P. Townshend, late State's Attorney for Garrett county. A. B. Gonder presided at the meeting and Mr. Tower was made secretary. A committee consisting of Attorneys J. W. Veitch, Gilmor S. Hamill, John B. Fay, John T. Mitchell and Edward H. Sincell was appolnted to draft appropriate resolutions.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

The successful candidates for municipal offices were C. Bowie Johnson and Ellsworth G. Naylor, Republicans, and Thomas A. Gonder, Democrat, for members of Council. Mr. Hart was the hold-over mayor, and Messrs. G. A. Fraley, J. A. Kelly and J. M. Stanton were the hold-over Councilmen. At the election a total of nearly 300 ballots were cast.

A. D. Naylor was having plans and specifications made for a three-story brick building to be erected on Liberty street, near the town scales.

Manager Nally had for the opening play at the Empire Theatre on March 20, Lena Rivers, with an excellent cast.

The storm which struck Garrett county on Wednesday afternoon was still prevailing with snow piled high in drifts and the thermometer registering six degrees below zero on Thursday morning.

Harry Helbig sold his residence on Alder street to G. C. Martin and purchased the Judge Jere H. Wilson property at the intersection of the Deer Park and Hooppole roads.

Unlawful To Permit Dogs To Run at Large Is Warning Issued by the State Game Warden.

To the Editor of The Republican.

We beg to call the attention of the public to the law relative to dogs running at large and pursuing game, which is very detrimental to our game supply and especially to rabbits during the propagating season. A mother rabbit does not have a chance to escape pursuing dog or dogs who catch and destroy same, thereby destroying, in a great many cases, the entire family, and the owners of dogs in this State should realize that their cooperation with this department in keeping their dogs either under leash or confined, March 1st to September 1st, will save thousands of pieces of game which will assure an adequate supply in the covers for their benefit the next hunting season.

Paragraph F of Chapter 557, Acts of 1929, provides it to be unlawful for any person to allow any dog or dogs belonging to them to run at large on other property than that owned or tenanted by them between March 1st and Sepember 1st and pursue game or destroy the eggs or nests.

Any person harboring a dog or dogs shall be termed the lawful owner of same.

The penalty for violation is found in Paragraph C of Section 22, Chapter 568, Acts of 1927, and provides a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100 and costs for each and every offense and $5.00 additional for each game bird or game animal killed or caught illegally.

We would appreciate the cooperation of not only the sportsmen but the general public in assisting us in the enforcement of this Act. The deputy game wardens have been instructed to strictly enforce this Act.

E. LEE LE'COMPTE,
State Game Warden.

HOOVER LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM WAS SUPPORTED

Practically All Measures of the Executive Passed by Congress

Washington, March 10.—Seen in retrospect the record of the Seventy-first Congress reveals a high degree of cooperation with the President despite the not infrequent controversies between the White House and Capitol Hill. Of the three-score measures recommended by Mr. Hoover only six failed to receive favorable action by the Congress, while those passed included every piece of legislation vital to the Presidential program.

Despite the war threats issued by political antagonists in the legislative branch, the Chief Executive in his two years succeeded not only in fulfilling all his pre-election pledges but also completed a vast additional legislative program.

In summary, the President's recommendations which received legislative consent make an imposing compilation. The farm rellef measures including creation of a Federal Farm Board and revision of agricultural rates in the tariff received Congressional approval along with a revision in industrial rates and reorganization of the tariff commission. The President's plea for the reapportionment in the House was upheld along with the provision for a decennial census. The Senate ratified the London Naval Treaty and the French debt settlement and the war claims and debts between the United States and the Central powers were approved by the Congress.

Upon Mr. Hoover's request for increased public building appropriations, increased rivers and harbors appropriations and power for air mail expansion, the necessary legislation was enacted. Likewise his recommendation for income tax reductions in 1929 was carried out and additional funds were appropriated for the Merchant Marine.

Approval was given for the various reorganization projects including the Federal Power Commission, the Federal Radio Commission, and the coördination of all Veterans' activities under Veterans' administration. Funds were provided for the Boulder Dam project and appropriations were made to meet the expenses of the Commission on Conservation of the Public Domain.

Appropriations for construction of Federal prisons were provided and the reorganization measures for the parole and probation systems in Federal prisons were enacted into law. Also the transfer of Prohibition enforcement to the Department of Justice was effected.

The President succeeded in putting his emergency relief program through Congress intact. Not only were the increased and augmented building plans passed, but the emergency constrcution fund and the appropriation in the Department of Agriculture bill for drought relief also reccived favorable action.

In comparison with the legislation passed upon the President's recommendation, the measures which he sponsored that did not receive legislative action are few and represent only a minor part of the entire program. The measures upon which the Congress failed to act were the World Court Protocols; the strengthening of deportation laws with a view of removing alien criminals; Federal aid to State and local services for child health; relief of congestion in the Federal courts; consolidation of border patrol and other agencies in prevention of smuggling, and the suspension of National origins clause in the Immigration Act of 1924.

SCOUTS IDEA THAT G. O. P. WOULD AID GOV. RITCHIE

Tait Says Maryland Republicans Would Oppose State Executive For President of U. S.

SENATE BACKS HOUSE

While the State Senate was backing the House in urging Governor Ritchie to become a candidate for the Presidency, Galen L. Tait was issuing a statement declaring Maryland Republicans would deny the Governor their support because of "his contempt for the Jeffersonian principle of rotation in office" and his "antagonism to the Federal Nation."

The Senate on Friday by a vote of 19 to 1 adopted the Goodman resolution urging the Governor to become a candidate. In commenting on a similar action taken by the House Thursday, Mr. Tait said the vote was viva voce, which left no record that Republican members had voted either for or against the measure.

Mr. Tait, who is chairman of the State Central Committee, said:

"We would certainly not favor for President a man whom we had opposed four times for Governor."

Makes Formal Statement

Mr. Tait made his views public in a formal statement, which follows:

"My attention has been directed to press statements to the effect that the Maryland House of Delegates had unanimously voted in favor of the resolution commending Governor Ritchie for his stand on States' rights and his opposition to centralized Federal authority and indorsing his candidacy for the Democratic nomination and election as President of the United States.

"I may say that Mr. Ritchie's own cherished reorganized administration in Maryland is a flagrant example of that overcentralization in Government from which he diverts attention by alleging its existence in the Federal Government.

Criticizes Annapolis Action

"I do not recognize the right of Governor Ritchie's friends to set up a canon governing the observance of State pride which would compel the Republican party to subordinate its own political views because a proposed candidate of the opposition party might come from our State.

"The vote taken on the resolution at Annapolis was not a recorded but a viva voce vote. The Republicans present, therefore, are not recorded as voting either for or against the resolution, which, in any event, cannot bind the Republicans of the State.

Interprets G. O. P. Views

"If I may assume to interpret the views of Maryland Republicans on the question of the support of Mr. Ritchie for the Democratic nomination for President, I would observe that we would certainly not favor for President a man whom we had opposed four times for Governor. We Republicans would oppose Mr. Ritchie for President not only by reason of his contempt for the Jeffersonian principle of rotation in high executive office, but also by reason of his attempted reincarnation of the dead principles of John C. Calhoun, as well as for Governor Ritchie's antagonism to the Federal nation, whose Constitution we respect and whose flag we revere.

"Moreover, the Democratic nomination for President is wholly a Democratic matter, to be settled by the Democrats of Maryland and the nation."

HOUSE PASSES HOME RULE BILL ON STATE BLUE LAWS

Allegany; L. P. Williams and Dorsey, St. Mary's, spoke for the bill.

State Bonus Bill Killed

Delegate Szamski's plan to create a State debt of $9,000,000 for payment of a State bonus to veterans of the World War was killed by the House today with adoption of an unfavorable committee report, by a vote of 64 to 46.

Delegate Szamski spoke for more than an hour on the merits of the bill. As soon as the motion to adopt the unfavorable report was in order, he moved that the bill be substituted for the report in order to get a roll-call vote.

Denies It Is Grab-Bag Bill

"This is not grab-bag bill like the one Congress just passed," Szamski said. "This is not a bonus for bankers, but if we pass it we can pay an honest debt the State owes to the vettrans.

"I fought for the measure in 1929 and almost had it passed by the House and I want to say to the people here today I'm fighting for it now, win or lose. I represent the doughboys who fought in the trenches, not officers and shavetails.

"The Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee has said this would be a raid on the treasury. Somebody ought to raid it and then we would not have any more trouble with it."

Only Benefits Officeholders

Delegate McKenrick, Baltimore, inquired if the Federal Government had not appropriated billions for veteran relief.

"They have appropriated all right," Szamski replied, "appropriated for the benefit of officeholders."

Delegate Lindsay, Democratic floor-leader and chairman of the committee which returned the unfavorable report, recalled that the Court of Appeals declared a referendum held on the questlon in 1930 void. Szamski said he "didn't like to say the Court of Appeals is not honest," but he believed the present bill would be all right.

Cost Would Hit Veterans

Lindsay declared also that the $9,000,000 loan over a period of fifteen years would amount to about $15 in taxes on every resident of the State, to which Szamski replied, "they ought to pay it." The floor leaders replied that the very people Szamski would help by his bill would be the ones most affected by its cost. Most veterans, he said, are now buying homes and in the next fifteen years they would pay dearly for any benefits they might derive from provisions of the measure.

Armistice Day School Closing Defeated

The proposal of Delegate Conway, Baltimore, to have the public schools of the State closed by law on Armistice Day—a legal holiday in Maryland—was voted down today by 104 to 7. The House adopted the unfavorable report of the Education Committee.

"Is that the answer of the Education Committee to the American Legion?" Conway asked when the committee's decision was announced. "I ask, is the State Superintendent of Schools opposed to this bill?"

Delegate L. P. Williams, chairman of the committee, said the Board of Education and the schools' superintendent both were opposed to the measure and pointed out that appropriate exercises in the schools are provided for by law for the day.

Status of Local Legislation

In the Senate yesterday (Wednesday), Senator McComas introduced two bills relative to Grantsville:

Increasing authority of officials of Grantsville regarding curbing assessments. Referred to Senators McComas, Baile and Byron.

Authorizing Grantsville to issue water improvement bonds. Senators McComas, Baile and Byron.

In the House a favorable report on the House bill authorizing Garrett county to contribute to the support of Kitzmillersville Fire Department. Report adopted.

RESOLUTIONS

Adopted By The Farmers Bank In Memory of J. W. McCullough

At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Farmers Bank of Oakland, the following preamble and resolutions respecting the late John W. McCullough, a director of the institution, were presented and adopted:

WHEREAS, Almighty God in His all-wise and Divine providence ha seen fit to remove from our midst our fellow director, J. W. McCullough; and

WHEREAS, In said bereavement his wife has lost a faithful husband and his children a kind father, the one whose chief aim, plasure and ambition was for the welfare and happiness of his home and all those about; and

WHEREAS, Director McCullough, by his kindly interest and gentle disposition has won for himself a last resting place in the affection of the people of the community in which he lived; and

WHEREAS, He will be missed greatly, not only by his immediate friends and loved ones, but by a host of acquaintances; and

WHEREAS, Our sincere sympathy goes out to the family in their bereavement; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Directors of The Farmers Bank, Oakland, Maryland, extend its sincere sympathy to the members of the family in this their hour of bereavement, and commend them to the all-wise and loving Father of us all for solace and comfort, knowing full well that the departed loved one has gone to be with Him and there awaits them; be it further

RESOLVED, That a copy of this resolution be spread upon the minutes of the bank, a copy printed in a local newspaper and a copy be sent to the widow, Mrs. J. W. McCullough.

The BEST Gray Hair Remedy is Home Made

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It will gradually darken streaked, faded or gray hair and make it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

VARY VEGETABLES DURING WINTER

Family Gets Tired of Repetition of Few Available.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)—WNU Service.

In our large city markets many of the best liked vegetables are to be had the year around. But this is not the case in smaller places, and sometimes the family gets very tired of the repetition of the few that are available. A little ingenuity, however, will dress some of these up so that they seem like entirely different foods, suggests the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Take carrots, for example. Carrots sliced and fried with apples are a pleasant change. Or scalloped in layers with apples. Or mashed carrots. Instead of sliced carrots or carrots in "shoestring" pieces carrots served whole with parsley butter are attractive. The flecks of green over the yellow give a pretty color combination and the lemon in the parsley butter adds a pleasing flavor.

Celery need not always be served as raw, crisp hearts, with salt. The outside stalks are often better cooked. They may be cut in inch lengths, mixed with well-seasoned meat drippings, put in a shallow pan and baked or "braised" until tender. Celery fritters are another possibility. Have plain stewed celery once in a while, either seasoned with butter, salt and pepper, or served with a white sauce or a sauce made from the liquor in which the celery is cooked. Celery and canned tomatoes are good cooked together in about equal parts, or celery and sliced or diced white turnips.

Cabbage has no end of possibilities. Try it shredded, simmered in milk for five minutes, then thickened slightly with blended flour and butter salt and a little cream added. Scalloped cabbage and apples may be new to you. Cabbage, spaghetti and cheese, covered with buttered crumbs, will appeal to everyone. If you can get red cabbage or chinese cabbage once in a while, you have what seems like a brand new vegetable. Don't forget cabbage salads. Chopped raw cabbage with cream cheese dressing is delicious and so is pineapple and cabbage salad with mayonnaise. Cabbage slaw, hot or cold, is a form of cabbage salad.

Canned corn should be kept in mind. Besides using it in corn custard and corn fritters, you can combine it with tomato and grated cheese and serve it on toast. Corn chowder is made of milk, potatoes and canned corn, with onion, salt pork and parsley for flavor and color.

Onions we have always with us—boiled, baked, creamed, french fried, stuffed, or combined with tomatoes or fried with apples. There are still other ways in which onions can be used as the main vegetable.

Salsify or oyster plant; parsnips; beets, both stored and canned; Jerusalem artichokes; mushrooms; and some of the dried legumes, such as lentils, dried limas, dried navy and kidney beans and peas are among the winter vegetables which vary monotony. Not all of these furnish vitamins in amounts comparable to the vegetables of green or yellow color, so they are better looked upon as supplements to other foods. With a raw vegetable salad, however, any of the last list may be introduced from time to time for the sake of change.

No Fried Foods

Children should not have heavy, rich foods such as rich puddings, cakes and pastries, or concentrated sweets, and fried foods. Starchy foods and sweets may be cheap and may fill the children, but lack necessary vitamins and minerals.

GETTING RID OF CARPET BEETLES

"Buffalo Moth" Is Great Nuisance in Some Parts.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)—WNU Service.

The larva of the carpet beetle or so-called "buffalo moth" is almost as great a nuisance in some parts of the country as that of the clothes moth. It feeds on much the same thing—woolen fabrics, silks, furs, feathers, and hair in upholstered furniture and mattresses. Carpet beetles are possibly less destructive than clothes moths because they reproduce only once a year and less abundantly. Nevertheless they are troublesome when they once get into a house and may even become so generally established that the only remedy is complete fumigation with a satisfactory fumigant. As fumigation should be tried only by some one experienced in handling fumigants, other ways of controlling carpet beetles are suggested by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The young woman in the picture is filling up cracks in the floor with a liquor crack filler. Carpet beetles can live in very small quantities of dust and lint in cracks and corners, and one of the first things to be done to get rid of them is to destroy their hiding places. Kerosene may also be used to drench the cracks and kill any live beetles or larvae that may be lodged in them, but it gives only temporary relief, and the filler should be used if possible to close the cracks entirely.

Rugs, clothes, blankets, and other articles likely to be attacked should be protected from damage in just the same ways as they are protected from clothes moths. They should be thoroughly cleaned and wrapped in tight packages with crystals of naphthalene or paradichlorobenzene, or stored in tight trunks or red cedar chests. Washing in hot soap suds and subsequent ironing will kill any larvae or eggs of the carpet beetle that may be present, but unfortunately this cannot be done to the woolen articles that are most likely to be infested.

Furniture which has become infested should be fumigated, either in the house when the entire house is being fumigated, or in the establishment of some firm which maintains a special room for the purpose. Hydrocyanic acid gas is the best known gas for speedily eliminating carpet beetles and other pests that may be present. Where a house has been generally troubled with them, nothing will give greater peace of mind and freedom from worry than one thorough fumigation carried on by a professional fumigator or by an intelligent, careful person capable of following directions.

BAKED ALASKA EXTRA SPECIAL DESSERT

Festive Dessert Can Be Made at Home.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)—WNU Service.

It must have been a courageous cook who first thought of putting ice cream in the oven long enough to set the crust of a meringue spread over it. At any rate, the result, which was christened "baked Alaska," has been considered an extra delicacy by the chefs who have produced it. There is no reason, however, why this festive dessert cannot be made at home.

Ice cream of any flavor may be used. Perhaps vanilla goes best with the sweet crust, or such flavors as caramel or macaroon. Any of the mousses made without stirring, frozen thoroughly to hold their shape may be used for baked Alaska. Or ice cream made in a freezer with a dasher may be packed for two hours or more in a mold of a shape that will be suitable for turning out in a compact brick. A flat oblong mold is good, or a melon mold.

Before turning the mold of ice cream out, have ready the stiffly beaten egg whites, to which sugar, vanilla, and a small amount of salt have been added. Two tablespoonfuls of sugar per egg white will give a crisp, crusty meringue. From three to six whites will be needed, according to the amount of ice cream and its shape.

Turn the ice cream quickly onto a thin layer of cake placed on a plank or board that can be put in the oven safely. Spread the meringue over the top and sides of the ice cream, and bake quickly in a hot oven until the meringue browns lightly. Slip the baked Alaska on a serving dish and use at once.

Lesson for March 15

JESUS AMONG FRIENDS AND FOES

GOLDEN TEXT—Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:38-42; 11: 14-54.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Among His Friends.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Test of Friendship.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Friendship With Jesus.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Dealing With Friend and Foe.

I. Jesus in the Home of Friends (Luke 10:38-42).

There is no place where true character is so clearly revealed as at home.

1. His reception (v. 38). Jesus was received by Martha, as she was the head of the home. Jesus must have greatly appreciated the fact that there was one home in which he was welcome.

2. Mary sitting at Jesus' feet (v. 39). She, with fine spiritual discernment, knew that sitting at the Lord's feet and hearing his word was that which would most please him. He was more concerned with opportunity to reveal himself to human hearts than with the eating of well prepared meals. Mary's way of entertaining Jesus was more acceptable than that of Martha.

3. Martha cumbered about much serving (v. 40). Both sisters loved the Lord. It would be impossible to say which loved the more, but Martha was bent on providing a fine meal for him. Because she was trying to do so many things, she was on the verge of distraction, and found fault with Jesus for permitting Mary to leave the kitchen to listen to his teaching.

4. Jesus' answer (vv. 41, 42). (a) He rebuked Martha (v. 41). He did this most tenderly for he knew that she loved him sincerely. (b.) Defends Mary (v. 42.) He declared that but one thing was needful and that Mary had chosen that good part which could not be taken away from her. The one thing needful for every member of the race is a heart for the Lord which brings the individual to Jesus to hear his teaching.

II. Jesus Among Foes (11:14-54).

1. Charged with being in league with the devil (vv. 14-23). Being unwilling to receive him as the Son of God and yet unable to account for his mighty works, they declared that he was casting out demons through Beelzebub, the chief of the demons.

2. Refusal to believe his miracles (vv. 29-32). They asked for a sign to which he replied that they would have a sign from heaven in his death and resurrection. He reminded them, however, that their request showed unbelief surpassing that of the heathen queen of the South and the wicked people of Nineveh.

3. Wickedness denounced (vv. 37-54). He pronounced six woes upon those who were opposing him and seeking his destruction: three upon the Pharisees and three upon the lawyers.

a. The Pharisees (vv. 37-41). These he denounced for:

(1) Punctiliously observing minute rites while at the same time breaking the Ten Commandments. They carefully tithed the small herbs of the garden while practicing injustice with their fellow men and withholding love from God. He pointed out to them their attending to these external acts while their hearts were filled with wickedness. It was as absurd as merely washing the outside of an unclean cup.

(2) Desire for public recognition (v. 43). This is a common sin today. Love for titles of respect and positions of prominence is a very common sin.

(3) Feigning humility (v. 44). He compared their hypocrisy to graves which are on the ground and may be stepped upon unconsciously by some one who would thus be defiled.

b. The lawyers (vv. 45-54). The strictures of Jesus on the hypocritical Pharisees aroused the lawyers, one of whom indignantly declared, "Thou reproachest us also." In reply to this Christ pronounced three woes upon them:

(1) For placing burdensome requirements upon the people to which they themselves would not submit (v. 46). Religious rites should not be made irksome. (2) For the murder of God's prophets (vv. 47-51). He showed that their attitude toward him was the same as was shown to the prophets by their fathers. Jesus declared that their guilt was the same as that of their fathers and that their generation would be held responsible for all that the fathers had done. (3) For keeping back the knowledge of God by false interpretations of the Scripture (vv. 52-54).

Take carrots, for example. Carrots sliced and fried with apples are a pleasant change. Or scalloped in layers with apples. Or mashed carrots. Instead of sliced carrots or carrots in "shoestring" pieces carrots served whole with parsley butter are attractive. The flecks of green over the yellow give a pretty color combination and the lemon in the parsley butter adds a pleasing flavor.

Celery need not always be served as raw, crisp hearts, with salt. The outside stalks are often better cooked. They may be cut in inch lengths, mixed with well-seasoned meat drippings, put in a shallow pan and baked or "braised" until tender. Celery fritters are another possibility. Have plain stewed celery once in a while, either seasoned with butter, salt and pepper, or served with a white sauce or a sauce made from the liquor in which the celery is cooked. Celery and canned tomatoes are good cooked together in about equal parts, or celery and sliced or diced white turnips.

Cabbage has no end of possibilities. Try it shredded, simmered in milk for five minutes, then thickened slightly with blended flour and butter salt and a little cream added. Scalloped cabbage and apples may be new to you. Cabbage, spaghetti and cheese, covered with buttered crumbs, will appeal to everyone. If you can get red cabbage or chinese cabbage once in a while, you have what seems like a brand new vegetable. Don't forget cabbage salads. Chopped raw cabbage with cream cheese dressing is delicious and so is pineapple and cabbage salad with mayonnaise. Cabbage slaw, hot or cold, is a form of cabbage salad.

Canned corn should be kept in mind. Besides using it in corn custard and corn fritters, you can combine it with tomato and grated cheese and serve it on toast. Corn chowder is made of milk, potatoes and canned corn, with onion, salt pork and parsley for flavor and color.

Onions we have always with us—boiled, baked, creamed, french fried, stuffed, or combined with tomatoes or fried with apples. There are still other ways in which onions can be used as the main vegetable.

Salsify or oyster plant; parsnips; beets, both stored and canned; Jerusalem artichokes; mushrooms; and some of the dried legumes, such as lentils, dried limas, dried navy and kidney beans and peas are among the winter vegetables which vary monotony. Not all of these furnish vitamins in amounts comparable to the vegetables of green or yellow color, so they are better looked upon as supplements to other foods. With a raw vegetable salad, however, any of the last list may be introduced from time to time for the sake of change.

No Fried Foods

Children should not have heavy, rich foods such as rich puddings, cakes and pastries, or concentrated sweets, and fried foods. Starchy foods and sweets may be cheap and may fill the children, but lack necessary vitamins and minerals.

GETTING RID OF CARPET BEETLES

"Buffalo Moth" Is Great Nuisance in Some Parts.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)—WNU Service.

The larva of the carpet beetle or so-called "buffalo moth" is almost as great a nuisance in some parts of the country as that of the clothes moth. It feeds on much the same thing—woolen fabrics, silks, furs, feathers, and hair in upholstered furniture and mattresses. Carpet beetles are possibly less destructive than clothes moths because they reproduce only once a year and less abundantly. Nevertheless they are troublesome when they once get into a house and may even become so generally established that the only remedy is complete fumigation with a satisfactory fumigant. As fumigation should be tried only by some one experienced in handling fumigants, other ways of controlling carpet beetles are suggested by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The young woman in the picture is filling up cracks in the floor with a liquor crack filler. Carpet beetles can live in very small quantities of dust and lint in cracks and corners, and one of the first things to be done to get rid of them is to destroy their hiding places. Kerosene may also be used to drench the cracks and kill any live beetles or larvae that may be lodged in them, but it gives only temporary relief, and the filler should be used if possible to close the cracks entirely.

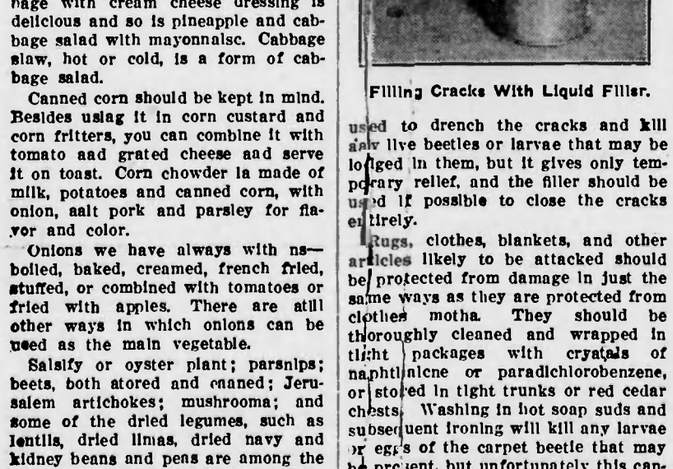
Rugs, clothes, blankets, and other articles likely to be attacked should be protected from damage in just the same ways as they are protected from clothes moths. They should be thoroughly cleaned and wrapped in tight packages with crystals of naphthalene or paradichlorobenzene, or stored in tight trunks or red cedar chests. Washing in hot soap suds and subsequent ironing will kill any larvae or eggs of the carpet beetle that may be present, but unfortunately this cannot be done to the woolen articles that are most likely to be infested.

Furniture which has become infested should be fumigated, either in the house when the entire house is being fumigated, or in the establishment of some firm which maintains a special room for the purpose. Hydrocyanic acid gas is the best known gas for speedily eliminating carpet beetles and other pests that may be present. Where a house has been generally troubled with them, nothing will give greater peace of mind and freedom from worry than one thorough fumigation carried on by a professional fumigator or by an intelligent, careful person capable of following directions.

BAKED ALASKA EXTRA SPECIAL DESSERT



Festive Dessert Can Be Made at Home.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)—WNU Service.

It must have been a courageous cook who first thought of putting ice cream in the oven long enough to set the crust of a meringue spread over it. At any rate, the result, which was christened 'baked Alaska," has been considered an extra delicacy by the chefs who have produced it. There is no reason, however, why this festive dessert cannot be made at home.

Ice cream of any flavor may be used. Perhaps vanilla goes best with the sweet crust, or such flavors as caramel or macaroon. Any of the mousses made without stirring, frozen thoroughly to hold their shape may be used for baked Alaska. Or ice cream made in a freezer with a dasher may be packed for two hours or more in a mold of a shape that will be suitable for turning out in a compact brick. A flat oblong mold is good, or a melon mold.

Before turning the mold of ice cream out, have ready the stiffly beaten egg whites, to which sugar, vanilla, and a small amount of salt have been added. Two tablespoonfuls of sugar per egg white will give a crisp, crusty meringue. From three to six whites will be needed, according to the amount of ice cream and its shape.

Turn the ice cream quickly onto a thin layer of cake placed on a plank or board that can be put in the oven safely. Spread the meringue over the top and sides of the ice cream, and bake quickly in a hot oven until the meringue browns lightly. Slip the baked Alaska on a serving dish and use at once.

Lesson for March 15

JESUS AMONG FRIENDS AND FOES

GOLDEN TEXT—Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:38-42; 11:14-54.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Among His Friends.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Test of Friendship.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Friendship With Jesus.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Dealing With Friend and Foe.

I. Jesus in the Home of Friends (Luke 10:38-42).

There is no place where true character is so clearly revealed as at home.

1. His reception (v. 38). Jesus was received by Martha, as she was the head of the home. Jesus must have greatly appreciated the fact that there was one home in which he was welcome.

2. Mary sitting at Jesus' feet (v. 39). She, with fine spiritual discernment, knew that sitting at the Lord's feet and hearing his word was that which would most please him. He was more concerned with opportunity to reveal himself to human hearts than with the eating of well prepared meals. Mary's way of entertaining Jesus was more acceptable than that of Martha.

3. Martha cumbered about much serving (v. 40). Both sisters loved the Lord. It would be impossible to say which loved the more, but Martha was bent on providing a fine meal for him. Because she was trying to do so many things, she was on the verge of distraction, and found fault with Jesus for permitting Mary to leave the kitchen to listen to his teaching.

4. Jesus' answer (vv. 41, 42). (a) He rebuked Martha (v. 41). He did this most tenderly for he knew that she loved him sincerely. (b.) Defends Mary (v. 42.) He declared that but one thing was needful and that Mary had chosen that good part which could not be taken away from her. The one thing needful for every member of the race is a heart for the Lord which brings the individual to Jesus to hear his teaching.

II. Jesus Among Foes (11:14-54).

1. Charged with being in league with the devil (vv. 14-23). Being unwilling to receive him as the Son of God and yet unable to account for his mighty works, they declared that he was casting out demons through Beelzebub, the chief of the demons.

2. Refusal to believe his miracles (vv. 29-32). They asked for a sign to which he replied that they would have a sign from heaven in his death and resurrection. He reminded them, however, that their request showed unbelief surpassing that of the heathen queen of the South and the wicked people of Nineveh.

3. Wickedness denounced (vv. 37-54). He pronounced six woes upon those who were opposing him and seeking his destruction: three upon the Pharisees and three upon the lawyers.

a. The Pharisees (vv. 37-41). These he denounced for:

(1) Punctiliously observing minute rites while at the same time breaking the Ten Commandments. They carefully tithed the small herbs of the garden while practicing injustice with their fellow men and withholding love from God. He pointed out to them their attending to these external acts while their hearts were filled with wickedness. It was as absurd as merely washing the outside of an unclean cup.

(2) Desire for public recognition (v. 43). This is a common sin today. Love for titles of respect and positions of prominence is a very common sin.

(3) Feigning humility (v. 44). He compared their hypocrisy to graves which are on the ground and may be stepped upon unconsciously by some one who would thus be defiled.

b. The lawyers (vv. 45-54). The strictures of Jesus on the hypocritical Pharisees aroused the lawyers, one of whom indignantly declared, "Thou reproachest us also." In reply to this Christ pronounced three woes upon them:

(1) For placing burdensome requirements upon the people to which they themselves would not submit (v. 46). Religious rites should not be made irksome. (2) For the murder of God's prophets (vv. 47-51). He showed that their attitude toward him was the same as was shown to the prophets by their fathers. Jesus declared that their guilt was the same as that of their fathers and that their generation would be held responsible for all that the fathers had done. (3) For keeping back the knowledge of God by false interpretations of the Scripture (vv. 52-54).

New Fillings Needed

God forbid that any of you should think that two months from now you can work in the power of the filling you receive today. A new filling is needed for each new emergency of Christian service.—R. A. Torrey.

Obedience

Obedience is the great organ of understanding Christ. When we do his will we shall understand him and when we understand him we shall become like him.—Exchange.

"How rapidly they are going. They, too, have fulfilled their mission and passed on into the great unknown from which no traveler returns. Our beloved dead, they have slipped away from us as quietly as the leaves of the trees about us. We are pilgrims passing through the wilderness. We are nearer our home today than ever before. With each flying year we seem to be quickening our speed. With some of us the day is declining, the end is almost in sight.

Dr. Ely was standing in this pulpit, his friend and loyal supporter, Gilmor Hamill, was sitting in a pew before him. 'We are passing now', said Dr. Ely in closing. 'Our places will soon be vacant. Now is work time; now is the time to shine. No matter what our attainments, the important thing will be, are we God's children? Have we sought to serve God and do good to our fellowmen?'

"It was in the autumn of the year and in the autumn of life that this beautiful sermon was preached. Since that time, first, over Dr. Ely himself, and now over his friend, winter has gently drawn the white shroud of death. What we call death, but what Christ teaches us the commencement of fuller more abundant life.

"The days of the florid funeral eulogy have passed away. Good taste as well as respect for truth protests against the fulsome flattery that used to be expected on such an occasion as this. But this can be said and ought to be said, not as a bit of manufactured flattery, but as a sober statement of fact,—Mr. Hamill was not only one of the most generous contributors to the support of his church, as he was to every good cause, but he was also one of the most cheerful givers. Giving was for him a joyous privilege. To give generously and gladly is to be like God who is the Giver of every good and perfect gift. It is a God-like quality, therefore an immortal quality. It is an expression of love, which is the essence of the nature of God. God is love, love is divine, eternal, imperishable."

The active pallbearers were Dr. W. W. Grant, Harland L. Jones, Lawrence M. Fraley, Asa T. Matthews, D. Edward Offutt and Bernard I. Gonder, while the honorary pallbearers were E. R. Jones, Joseph E. Harned, Walter W. Dawson, Judge D. Lindley Sloan, Judge Albert A. Doub, H. C. Sincell, Fred. A. Thayer, E. E. Friend, G. A. Fraley, George D. Browning, E. Z. Tower, Benj. H. Sincell, Wm. R. Offutt, Charles W. Ream, William Weber, Dr. H. W. McComas, Dr. N. I. Broadwater and Dr. M. C. Hinebaugh.

Flower bearers included W. A. Sturgiss, C. A. Tower, T. A. Gonder, J. M. Jarboe, N. C. Fraley, R. C. McComas, George Kerins, Delbert M. Davis, W. O. Davis, Paul Mitchell, David Walter, Roy Winters, Berne Teter, E. Baumgartner and H. A. Loraditch.

MT. LAKE PARK

The harmonies of a barnyard symphony are heard at the postoffice these days as baby chicks are arriving in large numbers. Evidently poultrymen are getting ready for the International Campmeeting. We believe Britton Martin was first in the field with home-hatched chicks some time ago.

We notice in the papers that a group of scientists in Chicago have announced that recurring headaches may be a sign of large brain development. That may be true, but notwithstanding that dictum, our pains in the head are caused by trying to find items for this column when none exist. Even inch snow and mid-winter weather are not conducive to much mental activity. We have a good alibi, however—the groundhog.

The Amalgamated Society for the Continuance of Unemployment still holds its daily sessions around the dazzling burnsides in the various stores. The only subject that is barred is work. They discuss nearly every other question, including the proper temperature of the mash, the proper manner in which to twist the coil, and just what brand of lye is best to aid fermentation. Then some bird brings up the question as to whether or not the bill of re-incorporating Mountain Lake Park will pass the assembly. At this point some busy who wants to retain the favor of his neighbor, moves an adjournment.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sisk, Cecil Sisk, and Mr. Joseph Callis and daughter Miss Rosanna Callis, have returned from a motor trip to Akron, Ohio, where they visited Mrs. Susan E. Welch, widow of one time commissioner of the county court, Mr. Bryson Welch. Mr. Welch died here in the year 1909. Mrs. Welch is now past 82 years of age and is in poor health.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Comerford, Mrs. Allie Haymond and Mrs. E. C. Frame motored to Fairmont to attend the funeral of Mr. Hugh Howell Fleming last Wednesday.

Mrs. Frank Murphy and Mrs. T. A. Deveny, Fairmont, who spent some days at the Murphy cottage, have returned home.

Pinto and Great Northern Beans Make Valuable Foods

Both the Pinto and the Great Northern bean belong to the group of common kidney beans (Phaesolus vulgaris). They are good foods and when properly cooked are most palatable. The Pinto bean is a dark bean and the Great Northern is light in color, quite like the Navy bean in appearance and comopsition.

Their concentrated form makes these beans cheap sources of energy. The large amount of protein contained and relatively large amount of calcium make valuable additions to the diet at any time. The presence of vitamin B in these beans makes them especially desirable in winter because during this time of the year the diet is likely to be low in these much needed vitamin. Both of these beans thrive under drought conditions so that this year there is an abundant supply of them on the market. On account of their high food value and their availability they are suggested as valuable and cheap reinforcements to the diet at this time.

Soup using Pinto or Great Northern Beans

One cup dry beans, 2 cups water, 2 ounces salt pork, (1½ X 1⅜ X 1⅞ inches), 1 medium-sized onion, 1 teaspoon salt, depending on saltiness of two cups water. Add 2 cups of water, pork, pepper.

Soak the dry beans overnight in cook the beans until tender, and put them through a sieve or colander. Cut the salt pork into ⅛ inch cubes and brown in a skillet. Add these cubes to the pulp mixture. Chop the onion fine, brown in the salt pork fat, stir into the soup mixture, and add the salt and pepper. Serve very hot.

Chopped peanuts may be added to the soup for a pleasing variation.

To make a full-meal dish, pour this soup over toast covered with tender brown slices of onions, and sprinkle grated cheese over the top.

Chili con Carne

Two cups cooked beans, ¼ pound salt pork, ½ pound ground lean beef, ¼ cup chopped onion, 2 cups tomatoes, 1 tablespoon chili powder.

Cut the salt pork into ⅛ inch cubes and brown in a skillet. Add these cubes to the beans. Brown the chopped onion in the salt pork fat. Add the ground beef and cook slowly for 5 minutes. Combine with the beans and other ingredients. Cook until meat is tender and the flavors well blended.

Extension Service Items

Mrs. H. P. Miller, member of the Grantsville Homemakers club, accompanied the Home Demonstration Agent on field trips to the New Germany and Turner communities, March 3 and 4.

The Grantsville Homemakers club met with Mrs. Hayward Broadwater, March 4.

Mr. Reuben Brigham, Extension Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., with Mr. E. I. Oswald, Extension Service, College Park, will spend Friday, March 13, in this county with the County Agent and Home Demonstration Agent. The day will be spent working on a picture story of the Maple Products Industry.

Miss Helen Shelby, Clothing Specialist, Extension Service, College Park, will spend March 19 and 20 in the county with the Home Demonstration Agent. Miss Shelby will visit club meetings at Bittinger, Oakland and Kempton.

GRANTSVILLE

High School Operetta

The Glee Club and the boys of the sophomore class of Grantsville high school, under the direction of Miss Ruth Conley, music teacher, will present the operetta, "Hearts and Primrose Blossoms," in two acts at the W. O. W. Hall, on Friday and Saturday nights, March 13-14. Rehearsals have been in progress for two weeks and it promises to be a very good production. The cast includes Clyde Bender, Ruth Brenneman, Harold Setzer, Evelyn Beachy, Allen Rodamer, Glenn Folk, Lina Custer, Fern Baker, Fern Buckle, Helen Miller, Wattle Younkin and George Murphy. A number of other students will take part in the dances which will be given between acts. The proceeds will go to the athletic fund.

Ladies' Aid Meets

The Methodist Ladies' Aid Society was entertained at the home of Mrs. C. U. Edwards last Thursday afternoon. Nine members were present and a very interesting program was led by Rev. C. A. Bell. A program committee was appointed and arrangements were made to hold a bake sale on Saturday, April 4.

Week of Prayer to be Observed

During the present week services each night in the Lutheran church are being conducted by Revs. Sigler and Kieffer. The services are being well attended by the members of the church and others of the community.

Sunday School Class Play

"Country Folks," a three-act comedy-drama, was presented in the W. O. W. Hall by the younge people's class of the local Lutheran Sunday school recently. The cast included LeRoy Shumaker, Ruth Brenneman, Henry Patton, Mary Bevans, Mildred Paul, Lawrence Miller, Helen Swauger, Donald Schaeffer, Dale Patton and Wendell Lohr.

Bridge Club Entertained

Mrs. T. O. Broadwater was hostess to the Bridge Club on Tuesday night. The prize was won by Mrs. Byron Bender.

Miss Folk Entertains

The Teachers' Bridge Club was entertained at the home of Miss Fern Folk on Thursday night. There were four sets of players, with the prize being presented to Miss Ruth Keller.

Girl Scouts Entertained

Miss Mary Margaret Blocher entertained the Girls Scout Troop on Tuesday evening. The regular course of study was contined at this meeting and afterward games were indulged in and refreshments were served by the hostess.

In connection with the Girl Scout movement in this community Miss Ruth Conley, captain of the local troop, in company with Miss Viola Broadwater and Miss Lena Custer, attended a District Girls Scout meeting in Emmanuel parish house in Cumberland.

Community Club Meeting

The Women's Community Club met at the home of Mrs. Hayward Broadwater on Wednesday afternoon when Miss Elsie Benthien, home demonstration agent, gave a talk on remodeling garments. The April meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. Lillie Younkin.

Miss Miller Entertains Bridgers

The Teachers' Bridge Club was entertained by Miss Mary Miller at the home of Mrs. Fred Livengood on last Thursday night. Four tables were in play and the prize was won by Miss Viola Broadwater.

Missionary Society Meeting

Mrs. Richard Younkin was hostess at the Tuesday evening meeting of the Missionary Society of the Lutheran church. "Teaching in India" was the topic discused, which was led by Miss Christina Winterberg.

Bridge Club Entertained

The Bridge Club was entertained by Mrs. N. R. Davis on Tuesday evening. Three tables were in play. The prize was awarded to Miss Viola Broadwater.

Durst—Bittinger

Miss Margaret Bittinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bittinger, of Jennings, and Harry Durst, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Elisha B. Durst, were married at the Methodist parsonage here on Saturday evening, the 7th inst., the pastor, Rev. A. C. Bell, performing the ceremony. Mr. Durst has been employed with the Casselman Motor Company for several years. They have taken an apartment in the home of Thomas McKenzie, where they will reside.

Grantsville P.-T. Program

The regular monthly meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of this community will be held at the school building here on Monday, March 16, beginning at 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

In connection with the business session of the Association there will be a special program as follows: "The purpose of teaching Literature in the high school," by Miss Emma Caulk; "Why we teach History in the high school," by Mr. Frank Getty. A group of both old and new songs will be sung by the members of the Association.

Everyone is urged to be present at this meeting, which promises to be very interesting.

Personal Mention

Mrs. C. A. Bender and son C. O. Bender and wife spent Sunday with Mr. C. A. Bender, who is very much improved at Airberth Manor, Towson, Md., where he has been undergoing treatment for several weeks.

Mrs. Elisha B. Durst is recovering from an attack or grippe.

Harry C. Edwards, George Edwards and Henry Durst, of the Grantsville Garage, attended a meeting and banquet of the Uniontown Automobile Club, held in Oakland a few days ago. Mr. Durst received a chest of automobile tools, he being the person holding the key to fit the chest lock.

SALE POSTPONED

The public sale of Joseph R. Keller, near Hoyes, has been postponed from March 12 to Thursday, March 19, 1931, at 12:00 o'clock noon.

The inclement weather necessitated the postponement.

BATTLING THE ELEMENTS... TO RESTORE YOUR ELECTRIC SERVICE

THE storm brought rain and lightning and wind of hurricane-like violence. It left a trail of damage . . . houses demolished . . . poles shattered . . . wires tangled and broken.

It was past quitting time when the storm broke . . . but without notice all Monongahela people reported, ready for any job. Within half an hour repair work was under way . . . line crews from other districts were enroute to the storm-damaged area . . . every effort was being made to restore service. All that night and the next day the repair work went forward.

And Monongahela girls . . . employees all . . . found a way to help too. For they established an emergency restaurant and served sandwiches and hot coffee to the men when they were able to leave their work for a few minutes.

The inconveniences you infrequently suffer when a storm interrupts your electric service would often be of much greater duration if it were not for the pride that a public service company takes in keeping interruptions at a minimum. It is this spirit that sends electric utility people out immediately, on their own initiative, to a fight of almost superhuman effort.

There are Monongahela people in your community . . . friends and neighbors of yours. Every day . . . day after day . . . they are using their skill and experience . . . their training and foresight, to make Monongahela service . . . dependable and uninterrupted . . . mean more to you.

MT. LAKE PARK

The harmonies of a barnyard symphony are heard at the postoffice these days as baby chicks are arriving in large numbers. Evidently poultrymen are getting ready for the International Campmeeting. We believe Britton Martin was first in the park with home-hatched chicks some weeks ago.

We notice in the papers that a group of scientists in Chicago have announced that recurring headaches may be a sign of large brain development. That may be true, but notwithstanding that dictum, our pains in the head are caused by trying to find items for this column when none exist. Even inch snow and mid-winter weather are not conducive to much social activity. We have a good alibi, however—the groundhog.

The Amalgamated Society for the Continuance of Unemployment still holds its daily sessions around the blazing burnsides in the various stores. The only subject that is barred is work. They discuss nearly every other question, including the proper temperature of the mash, the proper manner in which to twist the coil, and just what brand of lye is best to aid fermentation. Then some bird brings up the question as to whether or not the bill of re-incorporation of Mountain Lake Park will pass the assembly. At this point some guy who wants to retain the good will of his neighbor, moves an adjournment.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sisk, Cecil Sisk, and Mr. Joseph Callis and daughter Miss Rosanna Callis, have returned from a motor trip to Akron, Ohio, where they visited Mrs. Susan E. Welch, widow of one time commissioner of the county court, Mr. Bryson Welch. Mr. Welch died here in the year 1909. Mrs. Welch is now past 82 years of age and is in poor health.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Comerford, Mrs. Allie Haymond and Mrs. E. C. Frame motored to Fairmont to attend the funeral of Mr. Hugh Howell Fleming last Wednesday.

Mrs. Frank Murphy and Mrs. T. A. Deveny, Fairmont, who spent some days at the Murphy cottage, have returned home.

Pinto and Great Northern Beans Make Valuable Foods

Both the Pinto and the Great Northern bean belong to the group of common kidney beans (Phaesolus vulgaris). They are good foods and when properly cooked are most palatable. The Pinto bean is a dark bean and the Great Northern is light in color, quite like the Navy bean in appearance and comopsition.

Their concentrated form makes these beans cheap sources of energy. The large amount of protein contained and relatively large amount of calcium make valuable additions to the diet at any time. The presence of vitamin B in these beans makes them especially desirable in winter because during this time of the year the diet is likely to be low in these much needed vitamin. Both of these beans thrive under drought conditions so that this year there is an abundant supply of them on the market. On account of their high food value and their availability they are suggested as valuable and cheap reinforcements to the diet at this time.

Soup using Pinto or Great Northern Beans

One cup dry beans, 2 cups water, 2 ounces salt pork, (1½ X 1⅜ X 1⅞ inches), 1 medium-sized onion, 1 teaspoon salt, depending on saltiness of two cups water. Add 2 cups of water, pork, pepper.

Soak the dry beans overnight in cook the beans until tender, and put them through a sieve or colander. Cut the salt pork into ⅛ inch cubes and brown in a skillet. Add these cubes to the pulp mixture. Chop the onion fine, brown in the salt pork fat, stir into the soup mixture, and add the salt and pepper. Serve very hot.

Chopped peanuts may be added to the soup for a pleasing variation.

To make a full-meal dish, pour this soup over toast covered with tender brown slices of onions, and sprinkle grated cheese over the top.

Chili con Carne

Two cups cooked beans, ¼ pound salt pork, ½ pound ground lean beef, ¼ cup chopped onion, 2 cups tomatoes, 1 tablespoon chili powder.

Cut the salt pork into ⅛ inch cubes and brown in a skillet. Add these cubes to the beans. Brown the chopped onion in the salt pork fat. Add the ground beef and cook slowly for 5 minutes. Combine with the beans and other ingredients. Cook until meat is tender and the flavors well blended.

Durst—Bittinger

Miss Margaret Bittinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bittinger, of Jennings, and Harry Durst, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Elisha B. Durst, were married at the Methodist parsonage here on Saturday evening, the 7th inst., the pastor, Rev. A. C. Bell, performing the ceremony. Mr. Durst has been employed with the Casselman Motor Company for several years. They have taken an apartment in the home of Thomas McKenzie, where they will reside.

Grantsville P.-T. Program

The regular monthly meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of this community will be held at the school building here on Monday, March 16, beginning at 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

In connection with the business session of the Association there will be a special program as follows: "The purpose of teaching Literature in the high school," by Miss Emma Caulk; "Why we teach History in the high school," by Mr. Frank Getty. A group of both old and new songs will be sung by the members of the Association.

Everyone is urged to be present at this meeting, which promises to be very interesting.

Personal Mention

Mrs. C. A. Bender and son C. O. Bender and wife spent Sunday with Mr. C. A. Bender, who is very much improved at Airberth Manor, Towson, Md., where he has been undergoing treatment for several weeks.

Mrs. Elisha B. Durst is recovering from an attack or grippe.

Harry C. Edwards, George Edwards and Henry Durst, of the Grantsville Garage, attended a meeting and banquet of the Uniontown Automobile Club, held in Oakland a few days ago. Mr. Durst received a chest of automobile tools, he being the person holding the key to fit the chest lock.

BATTLING THE ELEMENTS... TO RESTORE YOUR ELECTRIC SERVICE

THE storm brought rain and lightning and wind of hurricane-like violence. It left a trail of damage . . . houses demolished . . . poles shattered . . . wires tangled and broken.

It was past quitting time when the storm broke . . . but without notice all Monongahela people reported, ready for any job. Within half an hour repair work was under way . . . line crews from other districts were enroute to the storm-damaged area . . . every effort was being made to restore service. All that night and the next day the repair work went forward.

And Monongahela girls . . . employees all . . . found a way to help too. For they established an emergency restaurant and served sandwiches and hot coffee to the men when they were able to leave their work for a few minutes.

The inconveniences you infrequently suffer when a storm interrupts your electric service would often be of much greater duration if it were not for the pride that a public service company takes in keeping interruptions at a minimum. It is this spirit that sends electric utility people out immediately, on their own initiative, to a night of almost superhuman effort.

There are Monongahela people in your community . . . friends and neighbors of yours. Every day . . . day after day . . . they are using their skill and experience . . . their training and foresight, to make Monongahela service . . . dependable and uninterrupted . . . mean more to you.

A MESSAGE FROM THE MONONGAHELA SYSTEM

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 55. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, MARCH 19, 1931. NUMBER 5.

STATE ALMSHOUSES ARE PROVIDED FOR IN BILLS

One Each For The Eastern and Western Shores to Replace County Institutions

GARRETT MUST PAY $22,000

Annapolis, March 18—Administration bills providing for the establishment of two centrally located State almshouses, at a total cost of $1,049,000, were filed today in the House by Miss Lavinia Engle, member of the Montgomery delegation.

The institutions would be known as the Eastern Shore Infirmary and the Western Maryland Infirmary, the former capable of accommodating 150 inmates and the latter 500. The two infirmaries will replace the present system of individual county almshouses.

The cost of construction of the unit for the Eastern Shore is estimated at $301,000 and that of the building for the Western Shore at $748,000.

Board to Have Control

Each would be administered by a board of managers, to whom would be entrusted the responsibility of issuing bonds to cover the cost of construction and equipment, and the retirement of the debt. The boards also would select sites for the institutions and engage superintendents, physicians, matrons, nurse sand necessary employes.

They would establish salaries of employes and have absolute jurisdiction over conduct of the institutions along this line. The commission would be unpaid and members would serve six-year terms.

The board of the Western Shore institution would comprise fourteen members, one from each of the counties on the west side of the Chesapeake Bay and one at large to be selected by the Governor. One member from each of the nine counties would constitute the board for the Eastern Shore Infirmary.

To Fix County Quotas

The institutions would be open to the infirm, indigent and those afflicted with chronic and incurable non-contagious diseases, who would be admitted as State charge on recommendation of County Commissioners.

The quota for inmates from the counties would be established by the boards and each county would be required to pay to the institution $250 mnually for every reservation. Private cases would be admitted when the institutions' capacities are not taxed, at a rate of $1 per day.

Sums Counties Will Pay

Counties would be charged with the responsibility for the construction and equipment debts as follows:

Western Maryland Infirmary

Allegany	$84,000
Anne Arundel	49,000
Baltimore	169,000
Calvert	6,000
Carroll	37,000
Charles	10,000
Frederick	67,000
Garrett	22,000
Harford	52,000
Howard	18,000
Montgomery	85,000
Prince George's	63,000
St. Mary's	9,000
Washington	77,000

Eastern Shore Infirmary

Caroline	$24,000
Cecil	58,000
Dorchester	36,000
Kent	26,000
Queen Anne's	27,000
Somerset	20,000
Talbot	33,000
Wicomico	42,000
Worcester	35,000

Must Pay Quarterly

The County Commissioners are directed, under the proposed legislation, to make quarterly returns to the boards of the institutions of amounts sufficient to meet the interest charges and retirement of principal of each of the loans.

Says Blue-Law War Lacks Supporters

"Who is sponsoring the Sunday Blue Law bill?" was the theme of Dr. W. W. Davis, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, and his supporters who descended on the Legislature today to oppose the measure at a hearing of the Senate Committee on Judicial Proceedings.

Dr. Davis said at the hearing, at which Senator S. Scott Beck, Kent county, presided, he could find only two backers of the measure, designed to eliminate restrictions on Sunday sales and amusements. He mentioned John G. Callan, who introduced a similar bill at the preceding Assembly two years ago, and a Seventh Day Adventist whom he did not name.

16 REQUESTS FOR RELIEF PASSED BY COMMITTEEMEN

Applications For Loans Approved and Sent to Headquarters

Sixteen applications for drought relief loans which were filed with the Garrett county committee on Farm Rellef, have been passed by that body and sent on to the National Committee at Washington, D. C., according to John H. Carter, County Agent.

The local committee, which is composed of D. Edward Offutt, Henry P. Miller and Paul Friend, met yesterday in the office of the County Agent and after passing on the applications sent them to the National Committee for that body's approval or disapproval.

The names of those requesting relief were not made known, but it was said that the applications were made by ordinarily prosperous farmers who were hard hit by the drought of last summer and are now forced to borrow in order to secure funds to finance their farm operations this coming season. The applicants were made by farmers located in all sections of the county, it was stated.

In some instances the requests came from farmers, who, while in no danger of insolvency, need the money they now have to pay off mortgages and accumulated debts and require the loans to finance this year's farm work.

Ministers' Association Holds Regular Meeting

The Mountain Top Ministers' Association met in the Masonic club room Monday morning at 10:30. There were ten ministers present.

The association again expressed its willingness to aid the unemployed in the community, if they will register with the bureau, giving their name either to Rev. Trimble, Rev. Brock or Rev. Shilke.

A telegram was authorized to be sent to Dr. McComas at the State House, Annapolis, requesting his opposition to the pending Michel bill, or all bills designed to open the Sabbath to further commercilization.

Boys' Week, April 26 to May 1, was discussed and further plans will be laid before the association at its next meeting.

President Trimble asked that some study be made of the unchurched sections of the territory covered by the association, so that it may be of help in this matter.

Rev. W. L. Dise, of Aurora, reviewed the book "They Crucified and Crucify," written by Dr. Edward Keller. He also read a short paper on the "Teachings of Jesus on War."

The association asked Rev. Waybright of Red House, to read a paper at the April meeting on "The Rural Church."

The association will meet again April 20.

Dates for Central Closing Exercises are Announced

Mr. Stuart F. Hamill Elected Director Garrett National Bank

This morning at the regular weekly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Garrett National Bank of Oakland, Mr. Stuart F. Hamill was elected a director to fill the vacancy caused by the death of his father, the late Gilmor S. Hamill, who at the time of his recent demise was chairman of the board, and prior to that president of the board of directors.

OFFER 15 SCHOLARSHIPS TO STUDENTS OF C. M. C. T.

Some Give Entire Year's Tuition and Others Partial Tuition

Fifteen scholarships in a number of Eastern schools have been offered to young men who attend the 1931 Citizens' Military Training Camps, according to a letter from Col. George Allen Smith, C. M. T. C. officer.

The scholarships in some cases offer free tuition, while others are for part tuition. Full details of what is offered can be supplied by F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent of the local schools, or from the principals of the various high schools of the county.

Scholarships are offered by the University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa.; Frankin and Marshall College, Lanaster, Pa.; William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va.; Charlotte Hall School, Charlotte Hall, Md.; George Washington University, Washington, D. C.; Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va.; Hampden-Sydney College, Hampden-Sydney, Va.; Stemple School, Washington, D. C.; University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, Pa.; Danville Military Institute, Danville, Va.; Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Loomis Radio College, Washington, D. C.; Radio Corporation of America, New York City.

Thus far Ronald Lohr is the only applicant for C. M. T. C. from Oakland. Garrett county's quota is ten. Already a total of 5,500 have applied in the Third Corps area for training this summer and exceeds all previous records, according to officers in charge.

All camps will be conducted from July 2 to 31, those from Garrett county going to Fort Eustis, Va., except in special cases.

Rev. Brock Speaker at the Lutheran Brotherhood Tuesday

Rev. Walter B. Brock, pastor of Garrett Memorial Presbyterian church in Oakland, was the principal speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the Lutheran Brotherhood on Tuesday evening. He spoke on the "Keys of the Kingdom of Heaven." Approximately forty were present to hear his address.

During the business meeting final plans were laid for the attendance of the Brotherhood in a body at the services in St. Mark's Lutheran church on Sunday morning.

Mr. T. C. Bittinger, president; Mr. Guy O. Yutzy, vice-president, and Rev. C. A. Shilke were named as representatives of the organization at a meeting of Synodical Brotherhood officers at Fairmont this evening. Wallace Bowser, George White, Leland Roth and D. E. Orendorf were named as a committee in charge of next month's program.

Fire Department Answers Two Calls During Past Week

Fire was discovered in the furnace room of the Frantz hotel on Liberty street last Friday morning about 7:30 o'clock, but was extinguished before any damage had been done.

An overheated pipe leading from the furnace had caused some of the woodwork to ignite. The Oakland Volunteer Fire department was summoned but the blaze had been extinguished before it arrived.

Answers Second Call

The local department answered a second call this week on Tuesday evening about 10 o'clock, when a flue fire was discovered at the Recreation on Second street. No damage was done.

LOCAL LEGIONAIRES JOIN STATE MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

Will Attempt to Bring Membership of Local Post to More Than 100 by March 31st

5,000 SOUGHT BY STATE

Proctor Kildow Post, No. 71, American Legion, has joined the State-wide drive for membership, which has been authorized by George Henderson, department commander of Maryland American Legion, and is now actively under way in an effort to help gain 5,000 additional members for the State by March 31. The local post is attempting to bring its membership above the 100 mark, as there are at present 71 members and a large field from which to draw the remainder.

Eligible veterans in the state not members of the legion have been estimated at more than 35,000, over 600 of whom are living in Garrett county.

"The Legion post here has never been stronger than in the past year," A. G. Hesen, post commander, said, "and we are hoping to make it one of the strongest in the State, both in membership and in activities."

The legionaires have been divided into two sections, captained by Neil Fraley and A. G. Hesen, and each will vie for honors in bringing in the most members. Joseph M. Gonder was named as a committee at large to secure members.

Legion officials want it distinctly understood that service abroad is not necessary for Legion membership as there is no distinction between exservice men who went to France and those who served on this side. Men who served in the Navy and Marine corps are equally welcome.

The Department of Maryland has recently been swamped under an avalanche of requests for assistance in the preparation of Adjusted Service Certificates on which veterans are collecting by the recent Act of Congress. To give every assistance to men who are in many cases unaware of benefits actually due them, it was decided to increase the legion membership to take care of the demands and keep the department functioning effectively.

George Henderson, State Commander of the Legion, is convinced that there are hundreds of veterans in Maryland who are not fully acquainted with the privileges to which they are entitled. He said:

"There is no doubt that many exservice men are not availing themselves of their rights under recent legislation. We feel that by becoming active members of Posts they can keep abreast of all enactments, have the benefit of expert knowledge in regard to their claims, and at the same time strengthen the united front of the Legion by their action. We extend a cordial invitation to every former soldier and sailor of the World War to join the Legion Post most convenient to him, confident that the benefits derived will more than repay him from every standpoint."

Approximately 70 were present at the regular meeting of the local post on Monday evening, at which world war veterans' laws were discussed.

Due to a sudden illness Mr. Charles F. Sargent, regional director of the War Veterans Bureau, was not able to be present, but will attend a legion meeting as soon as he is able, Mr. Hesen stated. Major George Parker who was also on the program, was unable to be present.

ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS HIGH IN STATE AVERAGE

Stand Second in Percentage of Attendance for January

Garrett county elementary schools stood second in the State in percentage of attendance for January, according to a bulletin just received from the State department by John L. Fitzwater, attendance officer. Allegany was the only county with a higher percentage, having 93.5 as compared with 92.6 for Garrett county.

The one-teacher schools ranked fourth with 92.3; two-teacher schools ranked fifth with 92.6, while the graded schools stood third with 92.9. All three were higher than for the same period last year.

High schools of the county ranked eleventh with a percentage of 94.2, which was exactly the average for the state. Allegany stood highest with 95.9.

Friendsville Future Farmers Celebrate Father and Son Night

The Annual Father and Son banquet of the Friendsville Chapter of the Future Farmers of America, was held yesterday evening in the Friendsville High school auditorium.

Mr. J. D. Blackwell, State supervisor of vocational education, was the principal speaker, centering his talk around the major objectives of F. F. A. which are promotion of agriculture in school, more interest in agriculture, inspiration for country life, promotion of thrift and recreation, strengthening of confidence in boys, development of rural leadership and promotion of scholarships in vocational agriculture.

Mr. Miller, vo-ag teacher of Friendsville High, W. J. Glenn, principal; W. D. Mullinix, principal of Grantsville High school; and John H. Carter, county agent, spoke briefly. Mr. Carter told the fathers to work and play with their sons.

Mr. Ray McCullough, Mr. Bishoff, Mr. Loraditch, and Mr. Parham, local minister, spoke upon the general subject of agriculture.

Alumni and High School to Decide Series Friday Night

The third and deciding game of the basketball series between the Oakland high school quintet and the Alumni, will be played Friday night at the O. H. S. auditorium.

The alumni won the first game of the series, 18 to 14, but the High school five came back strong the following week to down the graduates 23 to 13. This week promises to be a hard-fought contest as it will decide the championship of the two quints.

The High school as usual will depend on Rice, Graves, Sollars, Glotfelty and Captain Maroney, while the Alumni will line up with McComas, Nally, Stanton, Hanst, and Sanders, with Gonder and Hoffman substitutes.

Game on Thursday

Oakland High school will meet the Kitzmiller quint, Garrett county champions, in a post season game this evening in the local auditorium. The game will start at 8:15 o'clock with a preliminary game at 7:30 between Oakland second team and Accident second team. Admission will be 15 and 25 cents each night. Ed. Elias will referee the contest.

Mrs. Anthony Denied Freedom On Bond

Bond was refused Mrs. Lettie Anthony, charged with the murder of her father, Aaron Moyer, by the Court on Tuesday.

She applied for her freedom thru a writ of habeas corpus presented by her lawyers, W. R. Offutt and Horace Whitworth, but the court refused to release her on bond and she will be held in the Oakland jail until the June Term of Court.

DEWEY HARVEY IS AGAIN FINED BY JUDGE D. L. SLOAN

Must Pay $500 or Serve Nine Months, Regardless of Decision of Baltimore County Judge

FREED ON HABEAS CORPUS

The action of a Baltimore County Judge in releasing a Garrett County prisoner from the Maryland House of Correction, located in Anne Arundel county, met with a response from the local court on Monday morning of this week when Judge Sloan re-sentenced Dewey Harvey and ordered that he pay a fine of $500.00 and upon default in payment of the same be confined in the House of Correction for the period of nine months.

At the December term of court, Harvey was convicted on a charge of selling intoxicating liquors and was sentenced to pay a fine and undergo confinement in the House of Correction. From his conviction an appeal to the Court of Appeals was entered but later this was stricken out and Harvey was taken to the Anne Arundel institution to serve his time. Late in February he secured the services of attorneys in Howard county who applied to Judge C. Gus Grason, of Baltimore county, for a writ of habeas corpus to free Harvey and when the matter came on for hearing at Towson Judge Grason held the sentence and commitment erroneous and freed Harvey from custody. Under the status, as stated by Judge Sloan on Monday, the prisoner should have been returned to this county for further action in event the Baltimore county judge found an error in the former sentence but this was entirely ignored by Judge Grason who exercised the arbitrary powers vested under the laws relating to habeas corpus proceedings. At the hearing in Towson, Mr. Walter W. Dawson, the State's Attorney for Garrett county, contended that the sentence and commitment under which Harvey had been sent to the House of Correction were both correct and that heretofore they had been found valid in every attempt made to upset them, the same procedure having been followed in this case as in all others of similar nature, but the evidence of this was likewise ignored and Harvey turned loose.

Since his release from the House of Correction Harvey has been sought by the local officers in order that he might be brought up again before the local court but they have not been able to locate him in the county. In order, however, that he might not go entirely free it was determined to take action on Monday morning before the adjournment of the December term of court and the call of the March term deprived the court of jurisdiction, and accordingly Judge Sloan passed a new sentence as above in the absence of the prisoner, giving him the maximum sentence which could be imposed under the circumstances. This sentence will be carried out as soon as Harvey can be located and taken into custody.

Concluding Mid-Week Service to be Held Next Wednesday

A large congregation enjoyed the services and sermon of Rev. D. C. Trimble last evening in Garrett Memorial Presbyterian church at the mid-week Union Lenten service.

The concluding of these mid-week services will be held in the Lutheran church next Wendesday evening.

During Holy Week beginning with Monday, there will be a half-hour Noon-day service in the Presbyterian church. Also on Good Friday from one until three will be a special service in the M. E. church, when the Union choir will render Stainer's "Crucifixion". The merchants are again asked to co-operate by closing their stores.

Miss Ruth Conley Ill in Cumberland Hospital

Miss Ruth Conley's many friends in Oakland and other parts of the county will regret to learn that she is critically ill at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, to which institution she was admitted on Thursday night following an attack of appendicitis, which terminated prior to the operation in peritonitis. Her sister, Miss Katharine Conley, was summoned to Cumberland from her home in Boston, arriving there Saturday morning where she expects to remain until the recovery of her sister.

ALLEGED WHOOPEE PARTIES BROKEN UP WHEN MAYOR STEMPLE ORDERS TENANTS OF APARTMENT TO MOVE

Ordered by Mayor Grover Stemple to move out of town, tenants of an apartment on Second street left within twenty-four hours, taking their belonging and shaking the dust of the city from their feet at noon on Tuesday, departing for a point in the adjoining county of Preston, West Va., whence they came about two weeks ago.

The Mayor's order for the unwelcome guests to take their departure was transmitted to them through Chief of Police Nethkin and was made following a number of complaints by residents of town who stated that several fights had occurred there, one especially fierce one when the wife of one of the men came to town and visited the apartment. A second rumpus is said to have taken place Sunday night when one of the male sojourners chased a visitor down the stairway with a butcher knife, who threatened to run it through the fleeing man and clinch it on the opposite side of his anatomy.

Following Sunday night's rukus Sheriff Hacnftling was called to investigate the conduct of the tenants and guests, who warned them against further outbursts. When the warning enunciated by the Sheriff failed to have the desired effect Officer Nethkin was told Monday evening to "lay down the law" to them, which he did and the result is Oakland has several fewer undesirable citizens than were within her gates a week ago.

Lost Ten Dollar Bill Found

By RUTH DAVIS SARGENT

(©, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
(WNU Service.)

HE GAVE it to her that morning with quite a bit of gusto. It was such a lot of money, all together, to hand to anybody. Stella flushed with pride as she slipped it in her worn pocketbook.

"Well, my girl," Bill had said, "I guess now you and the young ones'll be getting some of those things you've been telling me you needed."

"Oh, Bill, honey," Stella said. "Isn't it wonderful after these four long weeks with yon wearing out shoe leather trying to find a job, to have finally gotten placed, and to be giving me ten dollars to fix np the kiddies and ourselves!"

"Don't forget yourself, Stella," Bill admonished her. "If you see some little thing you want, buy it." And then, slowly, "but go easy with it, old girl. I don't need to tell you that, I know. Bnt ten dollars is a lot of money today. Buy the things we really need."

"I'll hang on to it till I see just the right things, Bill dear," she promised, kissing him good-by at the door.

Stella's work went qnickly that morning. She whistled a little tune as she did the dishes. It had been so long since they had had money. The kiddies were a little ragged and worn in their last year's clothes. And Bill, the things he needed, and herself, too. Well, she'd bny some of them this fine morning. She'd surprise Bill tonight with just what that ten dollars could do.

It didn't seem possible on that early fall day that tragedy conld lurk around Stella, when she felt so happy and secure with that carefully folded bill in her purse. Bnt it struck her forcibly as she stood beside the stocking counter in Blakeley's big store, about to pay for some socks, her first purchase for Bill. The ten dollars was not in her pocketbook. Frantically, she searched the shabby envelope she carried, discovered the hole in the inner pocket where she had tucked the bill, retraced her steps anxiously to the very door of the store. But the ten dollars was gone.

She thought her heart wonld break as she stepped into the busy street. Bill's hard-earned ten dollars gone! How could she have been so careless. Why hadn't she noticed that hole in the pocketbook before she had placed that precions bill within it.

She paused a moment before the entrance of the great Hotel Graydon, leaning against a pillar for support. The world had gone dizzy and black before her eyes.

A car, large and shining, drove np before the Graydon, a chauffeur at the wheel. A lady, beautifully gowned and middle-aged, came down the Graydon steps to enter it. Blindly, Stella moved on. She must not make a display of herself on the pnblic street. Then something brushed her elbow. She tnrned and fonnd it, the hand of the woman who had come down the hotel steps.

"Is something the matter?" the woman asked kindly. "Yon looked as if yon were about to fall. Are yon faint?"

"Thank you; no." Stella spoke bravely, bnt there was no mistaking the tears in her eyes.

"Won't you tell me what's tronbling you?" the woman nrged. "I can see yon are bothered by something. Perhaps, it might help yon if yon knew I had a daughter once, a girl who wonld be about your nge today. I lost her."

The sympathy Stella saw in every line of the sweetly, saddened face regarding her was exactly what she needed.

"Oh, I shouldn't tell yon this," she began. "I don't even know yon. Bnt it's nearly killing me. This morning my hnsband, Bill, oh, yon can't guess how good he is to me, gave me ten dollars to buy things for the babies and myself. He worked so hard for it. And now, well, I don't know how, bnt I've lost it! And it was all Bill had to give. And I've lost it!"

Tears poured unrestrainedly down Stella's cheeks. It seemed so even more monstrous, now that she had said it, that she had lost that ten dollars. Then she was surprised by a light in the woman's eyes.

"Do yon know, my dear," the woman was saying excitedly, fumbling in her own beaded purse. "It's the most cnrious thing, but Jason, he's my chauffenr, fonnd this ten-dollar bill in front of one of the large stores. I think it was—er—"

"Blakeley's?" Stella asked engerly.

"Yes, Blakeley's," the womnn went on," "nnd, my dear, fancy finding yon just after you'd lost it!"

"Why, how wonderful," Stella exulted. "To have yon find me right after I'd lost it," she echoed like a child.

"Well, run do your errands, my dear!" The womsn smiled and gave her a kindly, msternnl push.

And it wnsn't nntil after the woman hsd departed in her great car, and Stella was on her way rejoicing with the ten-dollar bill held close in her hsnd, that it dawned npon her that she wasn't clasping the snme ten-dollar bill at all with which she had started from home. This one was new and fresh. The other had been overworked and crumpled. Bnt the woman and her car were gone. Stella had no idea who she was. And she still had ten dollars with which to bny things for the bsbies. Stella's heart gave a great bonnd of felicity. What a good old world it was after all!

Legislation

If Delegate Markley had his way: The telephone operator couldn't send in a fire alarm without a referendum; it couldn't rain without a vote of the people; one couldn't blow his nose, have dandruff or flat feet, suffer from B. O. or acid stomach without a referendum.

If Delegate Water Colors had his way there would be a one-room school at every crossroads and one within sight of every farmhouse. Bills would also be read in the House more slowly so he could get the drift.

If Delegate Fike had his way, people wouldn't know which way the way is, judging from the amount of commotion he has stirred up in the House—unless he would be on the other side of the fence.

These are Scoop's own private opinions.

In some respects this country has improved since 1789. The first Congress had one representative for each 60,000 people, which would give us at this day 2,033 members of the House. What would this country be like today with that many Congressmen?

Be a Dunker deLuxe

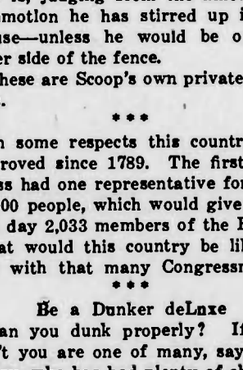
Can you dunk properly? If you can't you are one of many, says Doc Yutzy, who has had plenty of chances during the early watches of the morning to see dunkers in Glotfelty's Restaurant in the past few months. Some people can't dunk simply because they don't go at it right. But ladies and gentlemen and others of Oakland, don't despair of mastering this gentle and graceful art, indeed, accomplishment.

Scoop, by special arrangement with the "Now-don't-repeat-this" sewing circle, has fixed it for the paid-up members to give lessons in dunking.

Dunking is an old Spanish custom recently resurrected by Emily Post for those who have risen quickly in society and couldn't get out of the habit of soaking their toast and an occasional "potato-made" doughnut in their coffee and soup.

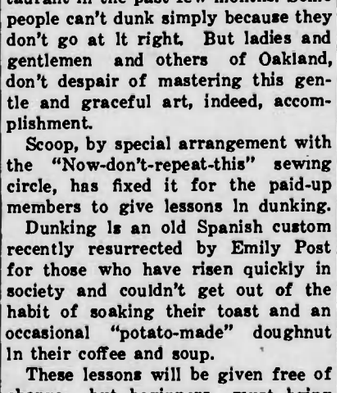
These lessons will be given free of charge, but beginners must bring their own dunkers.

How to hold the object in between the thumb and forefinger:



POSED BY CLUB MEMBER

How to dip delicately and accurately; how to curl your little finger and how to carry it from the cup to the mouth without more than three drips:



TWO OTHER CLUB MEMBERS

All this will be taught so that all may become eligible to join the Dunker society of Oakland with full and regular rights and privileges.

Although men are allowed a little more freedom in how and what they dunk, yet there are certain requirements. Each member of the town council, before being installed, will be required to give a dunking exhibition. Col. Bell got a picture of Browning in a practice session. "I'll be as good a dunker as Mayor Stemple in another week," he confided to Scoop.

THE POLITICAL WHEELS OF WASHINGTON

By James L. West

Washington, March 19—Democratic leaders, like the little boy on the lonely country road, are doing a lot of whistling these days to keep up their courage after the explosive meeting of the Democratic National Committee here recently.

Their tune is that after all the little late unpleasantness over prohibition was a good thing for the party as it brought the question out of its presumed hiding place into the open where it may be discussed dispassionately and calmly.

Well, its discussion at the committee meeting was anything but dispassionate and calm. A tenser atmosphere in a political meeting than that existing after Mr. John J. Raskob, mortgagee of the Democratic party, had thrown his state control bomb could scarcely have been imagined.

Some of the participants were lashed to the fury of chair throwing and quite a few committee men and women as well as just spectators hastily withdrew themselves from the line of possible fire. Some edged for exits and others, less strategically located, began stepping toward projecting and protecting columns in the meeting hall.

No doubt the heated argument was good for the party for if it did nothing more it revealed in all its gaping spaces the chasm that divided the dry Democrats of the South from the wet, Tammany-controlled Democrats of the East.

The Southerners were more vocal in the sharp fight, but they found that Mr. Raskob, the chairman they would like so much to get rid of, had outsmarted them for he was in undisputed control of the committee thru his friends and proxies he had been able to obtain.

And they found their candidate of 1928 and Mr. Raskob's candidate for 1932 lined up against them. Mr. Smith took the platform in the role of conciliator and proceeded to bring peace and harmony by asserting that his friend, Mr. Raskob, had been "jumped on and kicked all over the lot" by the Southern gentry.

He described Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, who led the Southerners in their protest, as his "late sparring partner", referring to Mr. Robinson as the Democratic Vice-presidential nominee in 1928, and assured the committee that the talk about the committee influencing the next national convention on the prohibition question was "so much bunk."

All of which was interesting in that the titular leader of Democracy is standing squarely behind his hand-picked chairman of the committee and with him is determined to precipitate a similar battle in the 1932 convention.

And, having found out precisely where the Southerners stand on the question, they have ample time in which to gather up friendly delegates in the western states in many of which the Democratic party is a mere shell. Of course, they count on getting wet delegations from the east.

In platform making only a majority of the delegates to the convention is necessary to adopt a wet plank. That majority can be obtained outside of the South and privately the leaders from below the Mason and Dixon Line are convinced that Mr. Raskob will leave no stone unturned to obtain that majority.

If he does there may be another political revolution in the solid South.

KEMPTON

High School News

Kempton high school students will present a minstrel show Saturday evening in the town opera house. A very interesting and entertaining program has been arranged with old man Sambo and Rastus as the star performers. No one can afford to miss this show. The admission will be 15 and 25 cents.

Personal Mention

Mrs. R. L. Hambleton is spending the week with relatives in Bayard, W. Va.

The teachers engaged in instructing in the schools here who spent the week-end at their homes were Miss Kathryn Speicher, Virginia Kalbaugh, Veronica Rafferty, DeWitt Dickey.

Mrs. H. G. Likens is spending the week with her daughter, Mrs. Wade Neil, at Bayard.

Mr. Peter Ritter, of Red House, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Warsaw.

Miss Beulah Wamsley, of Benbush, W. Va., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lantz.

Mr. Lester Culp left Monday for Detroit, Mich., where he expects to visit his brother.

Those from Kempton who spent Sunday in Henry, W. Va., were Misses Catherine Hambleton, Anna Kuski, Lucille Sowers and Julia Silsek; William Kronic and Wm. Povish, Jr.

The members of the 4-H Club met in the school house on Tuesday, the 10th inst. Many of those belonging to the club were present. A very worthwhile meeting was enjoyed, under the leadership of Virginia Duckworth.

We are very sorry to note that Mr. D. H. Eshelman has resigned his position as manager of the Buxton-Landstreet store at this place. He has purchased the Cheat River Service Station on Route 50 where he and Mrs. Eshelman expect to be located after April 1st. We regret to have them leave the community. Mr. Gilbert Smith, of Benbush, will be the new store manager.

Furnished Rooms Were Wonderful

By GENEVRA COOK

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
(WNU Service.)

CLIO THORNLEY, vivid and modish in a costume of black and white, sat in a Seventh avenue subway, wedged in between a tired mother with two pale children and a whimpering baby, and a swarthy Italian with fierce mustnch and fiercer eyes. Above ner Jimmy Burtou swayed lithely, holding to a leather strap.

Suddenly he bent his head, aud said, close to her ear, "Gee, Clio, you look so darling sitting there. Just like a flower."

In spite of the fact that her answering smile wss half a frown, he went on, bis honest brown eyes smiling into bers. "Gee, Clio, if yon'd ouly marry me—Clio?"

"Fourteenth street!" shouted the guard.

As they pushed through the crowd, Clio glsnced at Jimmy with scorn. "Marry you, Jimmy. And live in three furnished rooms and half a bath, and wear fuuny clothes, snd go to a movie once a month, ride all my life in the suhway! Why, you couldn't even afford to get a taxi to propose in!"

Jimmy was sileut. As they reached the row of dingy red brick apartments where Clio could distinguish the entrance of her home from the one where Jimmy lived with bis Auut Sally only by the number, and by a cracked red vase in Mrs. O'Shaughuesy'a window on the first floor, hc said wistfully: "Well, hut Clio, we could make a home out of even three furnished rooms—if—if we loved each other."

"Love isn't enough furniture, Jimmy," said Clio, wisely, slipping the latchkey into the door. "Good night."

It wnsn't long after that, that Clio, invited in to play bridge with Auut Sally and Jimmy, found the fourth to he s carefully pink-and-white girl with wide haby blue eyes and a slight lisp, who had a room in tbe spartment nbove. Ilcr name was Elsie Jane Wright; like Clio, she bad a position in Macy's; and her chief occupation just now was the adoratiou of Jimmy Burton.

"Jimmy's Aunt Thally thinks it's the most wonderful thing in the world to have a home," cooed Elsie Jane across the table. "I think tho, too. But Of course you don't like homes, do yon, Clio?"

Jimmy looked out of the window. Clio conld feel the eyes of Aunt Sally upon her; her opinion held weight with Jimmy, she knew. For an instant she hesitated. Then, the color mounting in her cheeks, she rallied to ber owu standards. She wasn't going to pretend what she didn't believe.

"I think," she said, "that it's perfectly marvelous to have a home when you can afford one. A real house, with an upstairs aud a downstairs all your own, and a yard with a garden, and period furniture, and oriental haugings, aud persian rugs. Something that yon could furnish beautifnlly, and really call a home!"

Elsie Jane widened her blue eyes in a sort of sorrowful wouder. "Just thiuk," she said in her soft haby voice, looking np at Aunt Sally, "how much Clio'a missing. Why, I think the tinlest little furnished apartment is the cntest thing." She turned to Jimmy, smiling up into his face. "I love them. Don't you?" Clio couldu't be sure, hnt she thought that for just an instant their eyes met.

The next few weeks lengthened for Clio into what seemed like years. There was a succcssion of bridges, with Elsie Jane often serving the lunches under the tutelage of Aunt Sally. Elsie Jane in a frilly spron.

Jimmy never repeated his error of proposing in the subway, because every night when they went home, Elsie Jane was there, too. And at last, on one poignant day when the first hreath of spring was in the air, Clio rode home alone.

Well, she thought, if Jimmy wanted Elsie Jane, he must have her. Because, of course, Jimmy must he happy. Clio was very clear on that point. And if he and Aunt Sally couldn't see through the flimsy pretense of fudge and hnudembroidered dish cloths to the soni of Elsie Jsne,who only wanted to he hnbied and supported by Jimmy—Clio fought back tears that stung at her eyes, and clenched her white hands till they hurt.

Suddenly she was aware of voices calling her usme. It was Aunt Sally aud Jimmy and Elsie Jane.

"I'm just telling them," cooed Elsie Jaue. "I'm going to work in tbe household lineus—so I can learn about them—nb—uh—sheets and pillow cases, and things. . . ." She looked up at Jimmy, hiushing.

But Jimmy was looking at Clio. He didn't eveu answer Elsie Jane. He was saying: "Gee, Clio, what you need is some air. I'm going to take you up hy the river."

Then Elsie Jane was crying: "Oh, yes; we'll all go!" And then Aunt Sally, with one brief smile at Clio and Jimmy standing there, said firmly: "Oh, no, Elsie Jane. This is the night you said yon wanted to learn how to roast beef. You're coming home with me!"

A little later, up hy the river, gray witb the soft mists of spring, Jimmy was whispering tenderly: "And you won't mind living in three furnished rooms, darling?"

Aud Clio was whispering hack: "Oh, I don't care what they're furnished with, Jimmy. I don't care whether they're furnished at all—if only they're furnished with—you!"

11 MARRIAGE LICENSES ISSUED DURING PASTWEEK

Three Couples Unmindful of Friday, The Thirteenth

Only eleven marriage licenses were issued during the week ending Monday at noon at the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court in Oakland, the total for the month being 35, a number somewhat below the average.

Three couples braved the date of Friday, the thirteenth, and procured marriage licenses on that day, almost as many as were issued on Saturday, usually the busiest day, when four applicants were furnished with the necessary papers. Two of the licenses issued were marked "don't publish."

John Clinton Corwin, 22, photographer, and Beulah Marie Davy, 18, both of Morgantown, W. Va.

Francis Bryan Simmons, 22, miner, and Goldie Marie Cowell, 18, both of Kingmont, W. Va.

Russell Howard Bell, 21, truck driver, and Blanche Anneta Jeffries, 21, both of near Oakland.

Louis Swadley, 25, oil worker, and Edith Ruddlesden, 20, both of Harrisville, W. Va.

Acid Soils For Mountain Laurel

One of the secrets of successful culture of mountain laurel, rhododendrons, azaleas and similar plants is to maintain an acid soil condition. The simplest method of developing suitable quarters for them is to dig out the beds, removing the soil, particularly, if it is heavy clay or has been mixed with lime or mortar from building operations. Leaf mold (half rotted leaves) from oak or pine woods, mixed with one part of sand and one part of loam may be used to fill the beds. Each fall the plants should be mulched with oak leaves or pine needles, sawdust or pulverized peat. This mulch should not be disturbed once it is in place. The gradual decomposition maintains the acid reaction of the soil and aids materially in retaining moisture in dry seasons. A heavy mulch aids also in carrying plants through the winter season without injury.

Providing congenial conditions for growth, however, is only one part of the story. If one would have luxuriant growth, he must add suitable food materials. Here is where the amateur gardener may get into difficulties, for fertilizers which suit many of the ordinary plants may counteract the soil conditions so carefully provided for and work serious harm to the plants.

Special formulas have been worked out to avoid this difficulty and one recently offered in Horticulture may be recommended. It is as follows:

Ten pounds ammonium sulphate, 35 lbs. high grade superphosphate, 17 lbs. high grade sulphate of potash, 28 lbs. cotton seed meal, 10 lbs. aluminum sulphate.

Thia mixture may be applied lone at the rate of three and one-half lbs. per one hundred square feet of bed area, or a six inch flower pot full may be mixed with a wheelbarrow load of a suitable compost of pulverized peat moss.

The broad-leaved evergreens such as mountain laurel, rhododendron and azalea are often seriously scorched by the winter sun in exposed places. It is usually advisable, therefore, to plant them on the east or north side of the house. They should not be placed in dense shade, for although they may make satisfactory growth, they will not bloom as freely as when given good light conditions.

These flowering evergreens are so beautiful when well-grown that it will pay to make special preparation of the soil where they are to be planted.

SAVE YOUR EYES; THEY DESERVE CONSIDERATION

The Most Overworked Organs of The Human Body

Ordinarily the power of sight is taken as a matter of course, accepted as a part of our natural right. In consequence, the eyes are the most overworked organs of sense in the human body. Few of us ever stop to think that the eyes deserve rest and consideration just as much as the other parts of the body.

Most persons are born with what is known as farsightedness. This is the more normal condition of the eye, for our ancestors had little use for close vision, rather they needed to see long distances as a matter of self protection, and it takes many generations for a change to take place in the physical proportions of any part of the body. So most eycs have kept their original structure, giving greater and clearer vision at more than a reading distance.

At first, the lack of clear vision at near point is not noticed, for there is no more adaptable organ in the body than the eye. It will exert all its energy, which is no mean power, to secure perfect sight of objects close to it. But in doing this very thing it drains such an enormous amonnt of energy from the system that many parts of the body seem to be out of order. That is why, for instance, headaches and nausea are frequently mistaken for organic disorders when the thing that is wrong is eyestrain.

Now eyestrain sounds unimportant but, when neglected, it is responsible for a considerable loss of sight. On the other hand, with proper care and barring accidents, we should keep our sight intact and in excellent working condition throughout our entire lives.

Mr. S. O. Broadwater and son Robert and Mr. and Mrs. A. H. King attended the funeral of Mrs. Ellen Tasker at Bethlehem.

Mrs. Walter Hardesty and little daughter visited Mrs. Elizabeth Friend, Friday.

Mrs. E. Knox is visiting in Morgantown, W. Va.

Mrs. Dyche Grayson, Cumberland, was a week-end visitor of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Harvey.

Mrs. A. H. King was a Wednesday visitor of Mrs. C. S. Reis.

GLADES

Mrs. John Ash and son Perry, of Greenwood, Del., and Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Schrock and son Harvey, from Farmington, Del., were visiting relatives in this community a few daya last week.

The sugar camps in this vicinity have practically all been opened and the owners are busy producing the maple sweets. The crop promises to be good, but prices are low.

Jonas Knox was shopping in Oakland on Saturday.

Simon Opel was ill as a result of an attack of quinsy several days last week.

Randall Beachy was visiting his uncle, Simon Beachy, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Alexander were in Oakland on business one day last week.

Rev. Charles Walls preached at the Glade church on Sunday morning. He was accompanied to his appointment by Mr. and Mrs. William Kilivus and Mrs. Milton Wiley.

Rev. and Mrs. Noah Brenneman were visiting relatives over the week-end. Rev. Brenneman preached at the Amish church Sunday morning.

Mabel Orendorf is confined to her home suffering with sore throat.

Mrs. C. C. Stephen, Cecil and Everett Railey were visiting at the home of Simon Beachy on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Beachy were visiting at Rock Lodge Sunday afternoon.

William Glotfelty and children and Elwood Glotfelty spent Monday in Cumberland.

Mahlon Bender and Mrs. Joseph Ash and daughter Huldah attended the funeral of Gideon W. Bender, at Niverton, on Monday.

Mrs. F. J. Glotfelty returned to her home Sunday after spending a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Harrison Wiley, near Baltimore.

Velma Bender and Simon Opel are ill at this time.

Birthday Party Given

Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Friend, Pleasant Valley, gave a surprise birthday party on Saturday evening, March 7, in honor of their daughter, Beulah. Those who enjoyed the games and music were Mr. and Mrs. Milton Riley, Mrs. Otis Riley, Dorothea, Paul and Elwood Riley, Lloyd Bowers, I. T. Riley, Virginia and William DeBerry, George Lohr, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hardesty and daughter Eva; Margaret Hardesty, Edith, Elmer, Charles, Lonnie, John and Arval Kitzmiller, Mr. H. W. Kitzmiller, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wolfe and Mrs. J. H. Sims.

SWANTON

Miss Sue Swcitzer has been ill of influenza at her home here.

Mr. J. S. Rhodes was slightly injured when he fell from the new B. and O. bridge east of Swanton.

Mr. Homer Ash, who is employed in the paper mill at Luke, spent Sunday here with friends.

A surprise birthday party was given on Saturday evening at the home of Alfred Friend.

Mrs. Truman Mosser is ill at this time.

George Rhodes, of Cumberland, spent the week-end here with friends and relatives.

Miss Violet Stickley, who has been absent from school for several weeks, will soon be able to return to her classes.

Arthur Rhodes has purchased a piano for his little granddaughter.

Mrs. Kate Shank has returned from Cumberland in which city one of her grandchildren had been ill.

At Baltimore, Mr. Joseph P. Cotton, for nearly two years under aecretary of State, died at the Johns Hopkins hospital on Tuesday.

More than 73,000 miles in a New Ford

THE substantial worth of the new Ford is reflected in its good performance, economy and reliability. Its stamina and endurance are particularly apparent in sections where bad roads and severe weather put a heavy extra burden on the automobile.

In less than a year a new Ford Tudor Sedan was driven more than seventy-three thousand miles over a difficult route. The operating cost per mile was very low and practically the only expense for repairs was for new piston rings and a new bearing for the generator.

The car carried an average load of 1200 pounds of mail and was driven 250 miles daily. "The Ford has never failed to go when I was ready," writes one of the three mail carriers operating the car. "The starter did the trick last winter even at 34 degrees below zero. The gas runs about 20 miles per gallon. At times I pull a trailer whenever I have a bulky load."

Many other Ford owners report the same satisfactory performance. Every part has been made to endure — to serve you faithfully and well for many thousands of miles.

GOOD CITIZENS—

The Mayor should be congratulated for the action he took in ordering a number of people to get ou of town on Monday evening.

The town welcomes to its citizenship everyone who is inclined to conduct himself decently, but for people who seem to have no regard for moral living she has no room, and the decent and self-respecting residents of Oakland feel that the air is purer since they took their enforced departure.

BEAUTIFUL YARDSNEEDED

Last year, through the efforts of members of the Oakland Civic club, a yard and garden contest was conducted.

Disregarding the drought in late summer which ruined gardens and yards in all parts of the country, the Oakland contest for beautification of one's personal property was a decided success in that more than 250 were instilled with ambition to improve the beauty of their city.

That ambition should be kept alive. Many citizens last fall made plans for continuing the work of growing flowers and shrubs, and are waiting only for the weather to become favorable before proceeding. In order that those who have made no definite plans will continue to improve the beauty of their property, Oakland should have a yard and garden contest again this year, with an organization and individuals behind it such as made it the success it was in 1930.

With an organization to inspire beautification work, like the Oakland Civic club, the results of the second year's contest would surpass the first. Let's continue.

VARIATION IS SPICE—

One may travel up and down Oakland or any city and find no two houses exactly alike, unless they be members of a row of dwellings.

The difference makes and models of automobiles number into the hundreds.

Women insist that their dresses, coats, and hats be exclusive, and no two men are usually found in identical habiliment.

What is true of houses, automobiles and clothes is also true of breakfast foods, furniture, shoes, and virtually all of man's possessions.

The reason is obvious. No two people have identical tastes. That whlcb one finds attractive repels another. The person whose discernment you criticise probably thinks even less of yours.

Life would be a monotonous existence but for this conflict of tastes. Nothing bores like uniformity. What interest would the world hold for humanity if every house was built alike; if the choice of the ten million was good enough for the world; if the wardrobe of the modern woman had as little variation as Eve's; if what one wanted everybody wanted?

MR. HOOVER AND THE CONGRESS

During the first half of his term, Mr. Hoover recommended three score measures to the Congress. Nearly all of them have been enacted into law. Every one of them that was included in the great program sponsored by the President received favorable action. The platform pledges were fulfilled. The great emergency program found legislative endorsement. The measures to permit administrative reorganization were passed and the proposals to expedite public works and increase efficiency were sanctioned.

Upon such items as the World Court, the tightening of deportation laws and the consolidation of border patrols the Congress failed to act, but they represent such an inconsiderable and, by comparison, unimportant part of the total legislation passed that they are completely overshadowed by the colossal work accomplished.

The recapitulation of legislative achievement is the more important when it is considered that for two years the Administration has been under a barrage of propaganda which attempted to convince the country that the government had not accomplished and was not accomplishing anything. Facts have defeated the propagandists. Their destructive criticisms crumple before the tabulation of what has been done.

One of the favorite charges of the subsidized wolf-criers and mud-slingers has been that the President was unable to obtain the cooperation of Congress in carrying out his program. The legislative record not only refutes this charge but makes it appear ridiculous. And the fact that this record has been established notwithstanding every kind of an assault including the Democratic "cooperation" gives it greater stature in the eyes of the nation.

There has been opposition to the President by members of Congress, particularly in the Senate. There have been members who have attacked the Chief Executive and his recommendations for political, personal, and, in some cases, selfish reasons. This lack of cooperation has not deterred the President, nor has it gained anything for the opposition. On more than a dozen occasions these individuals have engaged in combat only to come off second best. Outstanding instances of Presidential victories over political opposition may be seen in the outcome of the contests over the debenture, the flexible tariff provision, the attempt to provide a Federal dole in the areas affected by the drought, and the plan to put the government in the business of running Muscle Shoals.

THE HOME GARDEN—

Recently W. R. Beattie, Senior Horticulturist of the Bureau of Plant Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, in a nationally broadcast radio talk on the farm garden, stated that in every crisis through which the agriculture of any section of the country has passed the home garden and other sources of home food supply have saved the day.

When the boll weevel struck the cotton growing section, Mr. Beattie pointed out, one the the first steps taken was to start a campaign for vegetable gardens, poultry, pigs, and cows on every farm so that the land would at least provide a means of livelihood. Things haven't changed much and the same principles apply today, The farmer, however hard times may be for him, who plants and cultivates his own garden has a form of insurance against privation that is denied the city worker. In this respect he is far better off than the thousands of unemployed in the cities, many of whom left the farm at the time of industrial prosperity and are now looking wistfully back at the land.

"If everybody engaged in farming," Mr. Beattie said in his address, "will produce plenty of fruits, vegetables, miik and butter, poultry and eggs, home grown and cured pork, also fresh meats to some extent, they can at least have a good living at home and that is more than a lot of people who are out of employment have today. 'But,' says the pessimist, 'that will only increase the difficulties and reduce the market for foods that are grown in a large way for sale.' Perhaps, provided the farmer has the money with which to buy the food, but suppose he does not have the money, what then? As a matter of fact, it is good business and economy to produce most of the living for the farm family and the hired help right on the farm."

In all parts of the country there are farsighted agricultural leaders who are in agreement with Mr. Beattie in preaching the advantages of making the farm as much as possible a self-sufficient unit; not only in these times of agricultural and general economic depression, but as a permanent agricultural policy. In South Carolina, Virginia, Arkanses and other states, statewide campaigns to bring about the planting of farm gardens are being actively pushed. In these campaigns the agricultural colleges and the states' home demonstration agents are taking a leading part.

A well planted and cared for half-acre garden will produce more vegetables than the average family can eat, during the period when the crops are maturing. Carrots, late cabbage, beets, onions, parsnips, potatoes, and turnips can be grown and stored for use during the winter, thus cutting the winter food bills. One acre garden was worth as much as 65 acres of cotton on a farm in Texas last year whose owner figured that the acre yielded a profit of $400.

It is not only from the point of view of cutting the family food bills, however, that the vegetable garden deserves a place on every farm. So much has been said and written about vitamins during the last few years that practically everyone knows they are essential to good health. Fresh, green vegetables are among the best sources of these invaluable vitamins, but entirely too frequently the farmer, busy with his money crops, feels that he has no time to bother with a garden even though his wife and the older children may easily be able to take care of it once it is ploughed.

The result is that in many instances the farm diet is too much restricted to meat, potatoes and bread. Green vegetables, one of nature's best preventive medicines, have little place on the menu. The various deficiency diseases have a chance to creep in, breaking down health and stamina. Investigators have found that a large proportion of ill health in rural districts is traceable to the absence of a well balanced diet. No diet can be called well balanced that lacks an abundance of fresh, green vegetables.

A vegetable garden planted this spring will return ample dividends in health and in helping to make the farm family self-sufficing, able to weather any economic storm.

THE HAND OF ESAU

At the recent conference of "progressive" politicians in Washington, the one thing on which there seemed to be general agreement is that the remedy for unemployment and depression in the United States is a lowering of tariffs, in order that more foreign goods produced abroad by cheaper labor may displace more production and employment in the United States.

It may or may not be significant that in this theory the so-called "progressives" of this conference are sounding a cry that has been going from the biggest branches of internationalized big business, including those which have planted hundreds of factories abroad in order to procure the advantage of cheaper labor.

Oil producers of the West have discovered that in keeping a tariff off of crude oil and oil products the big international oil companies provided themselves with a weapon to stifle independent competition in the United States while flooding the American market with the output of foreign fields in which labor and production costs are cheaper. These international oil companies, along with many other branches of internationalized big business, were able to prevent adequate protective tariffs on commodities involving the employment of millions of American workmen, while at the same time subsidizing high power propaganda to lead the people to believe that to protect American enterprise and labor in these fields would be injurious to the American people.

One of the prominent figures in the conference is a Middle West millionaire who has industrial plants in many foreign cheap labor markets, desires also cheap raw materials in the United States, and who has been for years in a battle with organized labor because of his extreme antagonism to the principle of collective bargaining. This same millionarie finances much of the activity in behalf of that brand of progressivism which helps him along in his policy of seeking cheap labor markets aborad. This millionarie financed the survey made by professors of the University of Wisconsin which was liberally used in the fight against adequate tariff rates when the present law was under discussion.

These progressive leaders profess to be interested in the welfare of American labor. They would shorten the work day in the United States, they would greatly increase taxes on productive industry, and at the same time they would expose the industries whose costs have thus been raised, to the unequal and destructive competition of the cheap labor production system of Japan, Czecho-Slovakia, Soviet Russia, Germany, and other cheap labor markets.

It is not surprising that in view of these facts many Americans view with some skepticism the pofessed devotion of these leaders to the welfare of the American worker and farmer. Those who say they wish to improve conditions for workers and farmers in the United States, and at the same time help put them ont of business, as in the case of oil, by encouraging foreign and international exploiters of cheap labor in the work of creating unemployment and depression in the United States, surely must expect to have their professions taken with a grain of salt.

When so little is being said about the various departments of the Federal government it seems probable that efficiency is in full control.

Possibly the Democratic attacks upon the administration of the Nation's financial affairs will be temporarily suspended while they attempt to pay off their party's debts of more than half a million dollars which are now more than two years old.

The Federal Government, during the past year, has done handsomely by the people. Things should be better now, if the pople will do all they possibly can for themselves.

President Hoover lost his energetic fight for the limitation of bonus payments solely to the needy; but in arranging with lightning rapidity for the commencement of payment to one and all, he gave to the country a magnificent example of respect for the law and an illustration of the effectiveness of the consolidated Bureau of Veterans' Affairs.

Within a few years the public war debt of the United States will probably be reduced to the point where the foreign war debt payments to this country will gradually wipe them out. That is the sort of cancellation that we learned in the old home-town school.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Merwin McKaig, Cumberland steel manufacturer, located a plant for crushing rock on the Big Youghiogheny River, where the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad crosses that stream a mile and a half west of Oakland. A number of men, approximately 75, were expected to be employed when the plant was running full time.

Edward I. West purchased the livery barn and residence of John F. White, located on Oak street, and assumed control and operation of the property where 25 or more horses and a number of equipages were stabled and hired to those having need for such.

Persons from down in the county who attended court during the week reported that the roads were wellnigh impassable on account of the huge snow drifts blocking them.

John W. Veitch was appointed by the Court State's Attorney for Garrett county, the office having been made vacant by reason of the death of W. P. Townshend.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Ground on the west side of the Empire Theatre was being cleared preparatory to the erection of a garage and store room.

A revival in the town of Kitzmilie was in its fourth week. One hundred and seven persons had professed conversion, 84 of whom having united with the church.

Messrs. E. G. Naylor and Wm. Byrd were erecting a garage near the oid electric light station on Liberty street.

An Interesting Fact

THE MERRIMAC—FIRST IRONCLAD BATTLESHIP

A Marylander Was Her Commander

Captain Franklin Buchanan was a distinguished son of the Free State. In 1845 he was appointed the first superintendent of the United States Naval Academy, and two years later, detached at his own request, he engaged in active naval duty in the war with Mexico. In the historic expedition of 1853 he was the first American officer to set foot on the soil of Japan. Still later, in 1861, in the Civil War, he was placed in command of the historic wooden frigate Merrimac.

While Commandant of the Navy Yard at Washington he learned of the first bloodshed at Baltimore on April 19, 1861, when the Sixth Massachusetts Regiment marched through Baltimore, and believing that his native state would withdraw from the Union, resigned his commission. When he learned, however, that Maryland had not seceded as a result of the incident of April 19, he requested that his resignation, if it had not already been accepted, be withdrawn. His request and his letters were ignored by the Navy Department and he was dismissed from the service.

The Merrimac, which had been sunk by the Federal forces when they abandoned Norfolk, was raised by the Confederates and converted into an ironclad fighting ship by covering it with iron plates, some of which were fashioned from iron rails. It was renamed the "Virginian," and Captain Buchanan was placed in command.

It must have been with repressed anxiety and some misgiving that the commander of that unwieldiy and untried craft gave the order to move out of its harbor and into the sea.

Although it had an armament of only ten guns of varying size, Captain Buchanan ran the Merrimac into the midst of the Federal fleet at Fortress Monroc, where he faced the fire of more than three hundred Federal guns. He was attempting that which had never been attempted before. Under his cool leadership his strange craft had soon destroyed the Cumberland and the Congress and drove ashore the Minnesota, the St. Lawrence and the Roanoke, while the shot and shell from the Federal fleet did but little damage to his ironclad.

While Buchanan was directing the rescue of some of the crew of the disabled Congress, under a flag of truce, he was fired upon, presumably through a mistake, by Federal troops on shore and severely wounded. The Virginian had been withdrawn, after the day's destruction, in order to replenish its ammunition, intending to deal a deathblow to the Federal fleet the next day.

Owing to the serious nature of his wounds, Captain Buchanan was not in command the following day in the Virginian's historic clash with the Monitor.

Contrary to general belief the Monitor did not defeat the Merrimac (Virginian) in that notable battle.

Bible Classes Planning Convention April 11 and 12 at Elkton

Preparations are being made by the Men's Bible classes of Elkton and vicinity for working out a program in view of the convention of the Maryland Federation of Men's Bible Classes which will meet in that city on April 11-12, 1931. It is expected that a number of Garrett county delegates will attend this State conference.

The aim of the federation, which was organized in 1928 and which is affiliated with the National Federation of Men's Bible Classes, is to organize every county in an effort to weld the various isolated groups of Men's Bible classes into one cooperative body so that through an interchange of ideas and the resultant suggestions and cooperation, Christian churchmen may come stronger factors in the upbuilding of the church.

MAKE BASIC LAWS OPERATIVE

Recently Chief Magistrate Corrigan, of New York City, in a speech on anti-revolver laws, observed that taking away the gun by legislation will not cure crime and killings; the cure must be found by making crime unprofitable and by removing judicial and other official positions from politics. Certainty of sentence, he continued, rather than severity of sentence, is needed to lessen crime.

A political judiciary is a great ally of the criminal. The recent investigations in New York, where it was found that a large percentage of the judges had affiliations with gangsters and other criminals, startled the nation. It is safe to say that in many other of our large cities similar conditions exist.

Judge Corrigan's observation on the need for certainty of punishment should receive nation-wide attention. Nothing is more helpful to the underworld than our overburdened, slothful legal codes and the technicalities and red tape which often make it possible for the most hardened offenders to evade serving sentences.

Taking the crime situation by and large it would seem that reformers, instead of seeking more laws, would do weii to give their efforts to finding ways of separating crime and politics and making basic laws operative.

NEW GERMANY

A very interesting sermon was delivered at the Reformed church on last Sunday morning by the pastor, Rev. E. D. Bright, his text being "Thou art the man."

Preaching service next Sunday morning in the M. E. church at 10:30 o'clock. The theme wiil be an Easter sermon, "Four Gleams of Immortality." Everyone welcome.

ROADS IN WASHINGTON'S DAY AND PRESENT TIME

Congressman Dowell Discusses an Age-Old Subject—Improved Roadways in America

"What a satisfaction it would give George Washington," said Congressman C. G. Dowell of Iowa, "if he could return today and see what modern engineering has done to provide this country with a system of roads." Congressman Dowell is himself chairman of the House Committee on Roads, and takes immense pride in the nation's effort to provide itself with perhaps the greatest highway network ever built, according to the Division of Information and Publication of the Geo. Washington Bicentennial Commission.

"Washington, himself a tireless traveler," continued Congressman Dowell, "early saw the necessity of roads, and throughout his life encouraged improvement of these indispensable means to the country's growth. His pleasure in what we of today have accomplished would be all the greater because in his time road-building had to languish and struggle. The early Colonists were entirely too busy in fighting Indians and clearing the wilderness to think of clearing permanent highways. The only means of reaching out from their little settlements were the trails of the Indians.

"During the Revolution, Washington often found rough and backward roads one of his military difficulties, and the strain of war left the struggling nation neither time nor money for road improvement. Today we have every resource of modern engineering to aid us in a time when nothing impedes us in realizing a long-recognized need—the need of ready communication in the development of the nation. I am sure that what we have accomplished would amaze Washington as much as it would delight him.

"As one of the best informed men of his time, alert to every fact in the growth of the country about him, Washington must have borne with patience the backward state of young America's roads. Blazing the first primitive openings through the forest had been a slow and arduous task. Soon after 1620, five centers of colonization began throwing out rude paths. These were Massachusetts, the Connecticut River and Long Island regions, the territory around the mouth of the Hudson and about Delaware and Chesapeake Bays. But these were hardly more than bridle paths.

"For years white settlements were confined to a strip of territory 150 miles wide along the Atlantic seacoast, blocked off on the west by the impenetrable Alleghenies. Travel then was by horseback only, and in a generally north-and-south line. Yet it was just this primitive travel that gradually lengthened and established what we have now perpetuated as Route 1, from Boston to Baltimore, the first real main highway in the United States, a muddy and dusty trail in time to be rutted by the famous Conestoga Wagon.

"In time the barrier of the Alleghenies came to be penetrated by Gen. Forbes, then by Braddock, and later by Daniel Boone—familiar to Washington in his earliest campaigns into Western Pennsylvania. But in 1792, too late to have gladdened Washington, the first paved highway in the United States came into being. This was the road from Philadelphia to Lancaster, soon to be famed as the Lancaster Pike. By 1802, coach service had been extended from Boston as far south as Savannah, a distance of 1,200 miles, and stages were able to make this journey in 22 1-2 days, often traveling the astonishing distance of 53 miles in a day.

"In 1806 Congress defined the first approach to a national road-building policy in establishing the National Pike from Cumberland, Maryland, to Wheeling, then in Virginia. This was gradually extended to St. Louis, and as Route 40 it is to this day the principal east-west highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

"One of the points in our modern highway system that would mostgratify Washington is the fact that we have planned it on the basis laid down in his day. Now those first rude blazings of trails have become 3,000,000 miles of road. Within this mileage we have 662,435 miles of surfaced highway. Our State roads now total 314,136 miles—208,324 miles of them surfaced. And greatly as we have accomplished, it is not extravagant to say that with our policy of Federal aid, we have hardly made more than a satisfactory beginning on the network of communications first visioned by the far-seeing Washington."

GRANTSVILLE

Bender Home Burned

The frame dwelling of Norman Bender, located near Springs, Pa., was completely consumed by fire on last Thursday night. The fire had its origin from the kitchen range and was discovered by Mr. Bender as he returned to the house from his barn after completing his evening's work. He ran to his near neighbors and called for help. The Grantsville Fire Department was also notified and responded with a number of its members, but upon their arrival the house and all its contents, including clothing, furniture and provisions, had been cosumed. Mrs. Bender and her children were not at home at the time of the fire.

Missionary Meeting

Mrs. Ella Keller was hostess to the Missionary Society of the Reformed church on Wednesday evening. Mrs. Byron Bender was the leader of the meeting, the topic studied being "India on the March."

Lesson for March 22

THE USE AND ABUSE OF GOD'S GIFTS

(Temperance Lesson)

GOLDEN TEXT—And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but be filled with the Spirit.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 12:13-48.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Tells Us How to Use God's Good Gifts.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Tells Us How to Use God's Good Gifts.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Sin of Drunkenness and Gluttony.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Enslaving Power of Strong Drink.

I. Warning Against Covetousness (vv. 13-15).

1. The occasion (v. 13). The occasion of this warning was the request of one of the company that Jesus be the umpire regarding a disputed estate. Two brothers were in trouble over an inheritance.

2. Jesus' reply (v. 14). He said, "Man, who made me a judge or a divider over you?" He refused to enter the sphere of the civil law. Christ's mission was pre-eminently spiritual.

3. The warning (v. 15). The clear implication is that if due attention is given to inculcating right principles in the hearts of the people, civic and economic problems will largely adjust themselves.

II. The Parable of a Rich Fool (vv. 16-21).

1. The parable of this rich planter shows clearly that to be concerned with earthly riches while neglecting God is the height of folly. Observe:

2. The increase of his goods (v. 16). This clearly implies that his riches were rightfully obtained, for the ground brought forth plentifully.

2. His perplexity (v. 17). His land was producing more than his barns would hold. He was at a loss to know what to do. No thrifty man wants to see the legitimate fruits of his toil perish. If he had possessed right views of life and a sense of stewardship before God, he would have had the barns had enough for his needs and then have distributed the surplus to the needy.

3. A fatal choice (vv. 18, 19). He chose to enlarge his barns and give up life to ease and luxury. He reckoned without consulting God, and awful indictment (vv. 20, 21). Called him a fool. His plans were cut short by an immediate death sentence.

III. The Certain Cure for Anxiety (vv. 22-34).

1. Having shown the folly of rich men who trusted gold and lost God, Jesus encouraged the disciples to trust God and banish all anxious care.

2. The argument (vv. 22, 23). It is summed up in one brief sentence. "The life is more than meat and the body more than raiment."

3. The illustrations (vv. 24-28). (a) God's care for the fowls (vv. 24-26). The ravens do not sow nor reap. They have not storehouse nor barn yet they live for God feeds them. If God does not forget the fowls, certainly he will do more for his children. (b) God's care for the flowers of the field (vv. 27, 28). If God is so careful of the flowers which appear but for a day, how much more will he clothe his children?

4. The exhortations (vv. 29-34). (a) Eating of food and clothes should not be man's chief concern. (b) Seek the kingdom of God (v. 31). Those who make God's kingdom first shall have all their needs supplied (Phil. 4:19). (c) Be not afraid (v. 32). God's good pleasure is upon his own, and all good things he will give. (d) Practice self-denial in order to be able to give to those in need (vv. 33, 34).

IV. Be Ready for the Coming of the Lord (vv. 35-48).

1. Having warned the disciples against the acquisition of worldly goods while forgetting God, and shown them the foolishness of anxiety for food and clothing, he showed them the blessedness of being in a state of readiness when the Lord shall come. This attitude of heart he made clear by two parables:

2. That of the returning lord (vv. 35-38). The Lord will be so pleased with those who are waiting for him that he will take delight in sitting at the banquet with them and even serving them.

3. The thief in the night (vv. 39-40). This parable shows that the time of the Lord's coming is not known. The proper thing is to be ready.

4. Reward will be given to the faithful (vv. 41-48). The faithful servant will be promoted at the coming of the Lord. Awful judgment will be meted out upon the unfaithful servant.

ELEVATOR CHIVALRY.

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

HAT kind of chivalry is that
That in the lift will doff its hat
To women that you never knew,
But not the one you're married to?

What kind of chivalry, my men,
Is that that doffs its derby then,
When other ladies present are,
Except the one who runs the car?

What kind of chivalry is this
That not a painted maid will miss,
And yet whose chivalry will fail
The woman with a scrubbing-pail?

What kind of chivalry is not
For women with a harder lot.
But to the idle doffs its hat—
What kind of chivalry is that?

Your Home and You

By Betsy Callister

FOR THE KITCHEN

THE most useful clock in the house is the kitchen clock and interestingly enough it is the clock that usually keeps the best time. Probably because kitchen clocks are chosen for service anyway and are not kept around merely for ornament when they no longer tell the truth, as is often the case with more ornamental living-room clocks.

There are electric clocks made for the kitchen—very smart and simple and in various colors to go with possible kitchen color schemes—blue, green or yellow. Fastened on the wall in a prominent position in the kitchen a clock of this sort is well worth while, keeping correct time all of its own accord. A practical, useful sort of wedding present one of these clocks would make for any bride.

Once it would have been considered rather absurd to select any sort of kitchen equipment for a wedding present, but young women today are so generally interested in having attractive, well-equipped kitchens and kitchen things are so attractive that the old prejudice has ceased to exist. For the young couple who are planning to go to housekeeping in their own little bungalow, what news would be better than the fact that Uncle Bill was planning to give them a really fine electric-gas stove, and that Aunt Nellie was going to spend her wedding present quota for kitchen utensils to match—colored enamel or aluminum with colored handles?

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS

WHEN there seems to be nothing for a vegetable that appeals, cook some pork chops and serve with them:

Onions and Apples.

Slice three or four onions and cook them in a little bacon fat until transparent, then add twice as many sliced apples, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, salt and a few dashes of white pepper. Stir during the cooking and season again before serving. A sour or tart apple is best for this dish.

Salmon Macaroni.

Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter and stir in two tablespoonfuls of flour; when well mixed add two cupfuls of tomato soup and cook two minutes. Add a large can of flaked salmon, one chopped onion and salt and pepper to season; simmer five minutes. Make a border of three cupfuls of cooked macaroni on a hot platter, pour inside the salmon mixture and sprinkle the top with one-half cupful of grated cheese and garnish with two sliced hard-cooked eggs. Serve hot.

Chicken Vegetable Loaf.

Beat two eggs, add one cupful of milk, three cupfuls of cooked chicken, one and one-half cupfuls of small peas, one cupful of diced carrots, one small onion, one teaspoonful of mustard, two teaspoonfuls of salt, pepper to taste and one teaspoonful of minced parsley and two teaspoonfuls of chili sauce. Mix and make into a loaf and bake fifty minutes. Serve with Mushroom Sauce.

Melt four tablespoonfuls of butter, add four tablespoonfuls of flour; after cooking a teaspoonful of onion in the fat simmer with one and one-half cupfuls of milk, one can of mushrooms, salt, pepper and minced parsley to taste. Cook five minutes.

My Neighbor Says:

TO WASH a flannel skirt soak it in cold water overnight, so it will not shrink. Then wash it in warm water and put in a very little borax. Rinse in cold water and dry in a good wind. When almost dry, iron on the wrong side.

Left-over bacon, and pieces, etc., are all precious adjuncts in flavoring other food combinations. A plain bread stuffing is much improved by the addition of chopped bacon. Add one-half cup of the bacon to two cups of bread crumbs. Lessen the amount of salt called for in the recipe.

To clean light colored felt hats rub the entire surface with fine sandpaper and dust lightly with a white powder.

A little sugar sprinkled into the water in which potatoes are boiled will make them white and flour.

When it is necessary to iron a rough-dry garment at once, try this method: Dampen it, roll tight, wrap it in a cloth and then in paper, and put into the oven while the irons are heating. Evaporation will cause it to be thoroughly dampened in a very few minutes. But care must be taken that the oven is not hot enough to scorch the garment.

STATE ALMSHOUSES ARE PROVIDED FOR IN BILLS

chel, Speaker of the House of Delegates and author of the present bill, he asserted, and had been informed that the measure was being supported because 26,000 petitioners had requested Mr. Callan's bill two years ago.

In spite of the apparent lack of support, it was evident that pressure was being brought to bear for the passage of the act, he said. He quoted a letter which, he asserted, was from a prominent Maryland citizen whose name he would not divulge.

"I am obliged to advise you of my inability to aid you," the letter said. "I am threatened with retaliation and reprisal if I do."

Woman Gives Views

Dr. Davis was followed by Mrs. Harry Levely, president of the Anne Arundel County Parent-Teacher Association, who asserted she opposed the measure, not as an officer of the association, but as a mother. Mrs. Levely asserted there was a growing tendency to "make Sunday just another day in the week," rather than a time for wholesome family gatherings.

Mrs. Levely was followed by Philip C. Friesc, chairman of the legislative committee of the Travelers' Protective Association, who asserted he was opposed to the bill on an economic rather than religious basis.

"We talk about Continental Sundays," Mr. Friese said, "but people in Europe are not as fast-moving and hard-hitting as we are. They cannot equal our production, and our ability for mass production depends on a six-day week. The seventh day is one that is looked forward to and is of vital necessity to the industrial system of the State," he asserted.

"I am like Dr. Davis," he concluded. "I wondcr who is sponsoring this bill besides people who like to write clever newspaper stories and put funny pictures on the front page?"

Clergy's Attitude Given

Mrs. Rufus M. Gibbs, representing the Lcague for Better Motion Pictures, introduced a joint statement, signed by Archbishop Michael J. Curley, Bishop Edward T. Helferstein and the Rev. Robert Davids, asserting thcy were convinced the average motion pieture was too salacious to be shown to decent people, and they particularly were opposed to having them shown on Sunday. Sample posters used for advertising by theatres were also passed around.

"It is not a fair fight anyway," Mrs. Gibbs said. "There are men who come down here without one word to their constitutents that they are going to throw Sunday wide open and vote for the measure. Whom do they represent? Mr. Callan, perhaps, and the Evening Sun; not me, certainly."

More Opposition Listed

Armed with a eommunication from Archbishop Curley, Mrs. Harry M. Benzinger also opposed the bill on his behalf. The archbishop, the statement said, opposed the bill on five points. Recognizing the value of motion pictures as a means of education and recreation, thc statement said, the aim in public and private education should be the development in children not only of a high degree of intelligencc but also a moral sense which will cquip them for their dutics in all spheres of life. Every eitizen of the State pays taxes to this end, it was said.

The moral tempers of neither children or adults can benefit from witncssing pictures which portray actions contrary to the moral law, the statcment continued, and such pictures are all the more objectionable when shown on Sunday, a time when people are supposed to be engaged in their spiritual concerns.

It was thc sense of the archbishop, the statement concluded, that any legislation on the matter should eliminate from publication pictures detrimental to publie morality and at the same time preserve those picturcs wholesome in their effcct.

CARE SHOULD BE TAKEN WHEN TEETH ARE CUTTING

"If the interest that is shown in the cutting of baby's first tooth were continued through the cutting of the other teeth, temporary and permanent, a great deal of the suffering accompanying bad tecth in children might be escaped," Dr. Richard C. Leonard, Chief of the Division of Oral Hygiene, Maryland State Department of Health said, in pointing out the importance of early and regular dental examinations. He continued:

"The first tooth is important. But so are the other nineteen temporary and the thirty-two permanent teeth. Each tooth is a body organ with a definite funetion or purpose. The loss of even one tooth through neglect is a real loss and should be avoided by the practice of every known method of tooth preservation.

"Proper diet will make for decay-resisting teeth. Tooth-brushing, properly and regularly, will aid in preventing decay. But regular dental examinations must be had to assure healthy teeth and mouths and to discover beginning decay before it has had a chance to extend too far. Decay discovered early may be checked and the teeth somewhat insured against its return.

"At three years of age, if not before, a child should be taken to a dentist for examination. Such an examination may disclose tiny defects which may be remedied with little or no trouble or pain and a minimum of expense. Possibly no repair work will be found necessary. But, even so, two things are accomplished by the examination. First, the assurance that the teeth are sound and the mouth healthy; second, a habit of dental examinations as a regular routine is established.

"One visit at three ycars of age is not enough. Thereafter, the teeth should be examincd not less than twice yearly or at the first sign of some tooth trouble. In this way continued mouth health may be assured. And it should always be remembered that mouth health runs hand in hand with general body health."

During the past few months, 669 children in the Oakland, Grantsville, Accident and Friendsvillc grammar schools have had their teeth examined by a dentist. The result of this examination shows that all but 63 of the children are in need of dental care.

Facts and Figures on Your Telephone

Faith in the development of the telephone industry in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia, territory operated by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Companies, is emphasized by announcements made in the eompanies' annual reports of gross expenditures of approximately $56,150,000 for plant additions, betterments and replacements during the three years cnding 1933. It is estimated that $16,140,000 will he expended in 1931.

This expansion program provides for a net gain of spproximately 106,000 telephones during the next three years, which will make about 757,000 telcphones in service in these three Statcs and the District of Columbia. On Deeember 31 of this year there will be about 685,000 telephones operated by these companies, if the estimated net gain of 33,800 telephones is met. Last year 31,921 telephones were added to the system in this area.

Gross expenditures contemplated this year in Maryland will amount to approximately $4,583,000; Virginia, $3,927,000; West Virginia, $4,080,000; and the District of Columbia, $3,550,000.

Telephone users served by the Chesapeake and Potomac Companies last year made more thsn 1,036,000,000 calls. Substantial service improvements made during the year, the reports show, resulted in greater satisfaction to the users of the service on 6,000,000 ealls. This improvement was brought ahout by a reduction in calls falling of completion on the first attempt. The average time for haudling out-of-town calls was materially decreased during 1930. During the year, the qusility of voice transmission was eonsiderably improved. Tbe number of troubles affecting subscribers' telephone lines and equipment was reduced. A substantial improvement was also made in tho speed of clearing troubles on telephones.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 55. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, MARCH 26, 1931. NUMBER 6.

BILL INTRODUCED WOULD AUTHORIZE BOND ISSUE

Provides For the Borrowing By County of $150,000 For Building and Furnishing Schools

REFERENDUM IS INCLUDED

A bill authorizing the County Commissioners to borrow the sum of $150,000, issuing bonds for the same, for the support of the schools of Garrett county in the erection and equipping of school buildings and purchasing and condemning real estate for school sites, was introduced on Tuesday in the House of Delegates by the Garrett county delegation. The measure was referred to the Ways and Means Committee.

The bill provides that before the loan is negotiated and bonds are issued as an evidence of debt the question shall be submitted to the vote of the legally qualified voters of the county at the general election to be held in November, 1932, for their approval or disapproval.

According to a statement made by school authorities they felt that the best interests of the children and of the taxpayers and of all other interests involved would be furthered without submitting the question to a vote of the people, in view of the fact that if a small percentage of the voters of the county so desire that percentage could still bring the matter to a vote through petition properly drawn and submitted.

The measure introduced Tuesday specifically states that the mony derived from the issuance and sale of the bonds is to be used for the purpose of "erecting public school buildings in the county of Garrett and for the purpose of heating, furnishing and equipping the same, and for the purpose of purchasing or condemning real estate for the erection of the same, and for the purpose of repairing and heating public school buildings in said county."

The measure provides that the proposed bonds be issued in denominations of $500 and $1,000 each, dated July 1, 1933, and maturing in the amount of $10,000 on July 1, 1934, and annually thereafter until the entire amount of $150,000 is paid and discharged.

Provision is made for the levying annually by the County Commissioners of a sum sufficient to pay the interest and principal as the same shall become due. The bonds would be exempt from municipal and county taxation in Garrett county and would bear interest at the rate not exceeding five per cent per annum.

Nightingales to Sing at Church Services

Members of the Nightingale club, composed of young girls, will sing at a number of church services beginning next Sunday morning. Their schedule is as follows: St. Mark's Lutheran, Palm Sunday morning; St. Paul's M. E. church, Sunday morning after Easter; Garrett Memorial Presbyterian church, Sunday morning, April 19; St. Matthew's Episcopal church, Sunday morning, April 26; Mt. Lake Park M. E. church, Sunday morning, May 10.

Those taking part in the singing include Mary Jane Baird, Mary Sue Bell, Marjorie Davis, Ruth Fields, Bural Frazee, Byrldine Fulk, Blanche Gilbert, Beulah Kahl, Geraldine Kahl, Jane Kahl, Martha Miller, Cathérine Moon, Clara Moon, Louise Moon, Katharine Rodeheaver, Lois Sincell, Mary Grace Shirer, Helen Schlossnagle, Edith Smith, Elsie Shrout, Ruth Shrout, Margaret Tillett, Janet Tower, Geneva Winters, Alice Whorton, Hasaleah Yutzy, Mary Frances Yutzy.

The girls will be robed. They have been practicing for the past several weeks under the direction of Mrs. D. Edward Offutt and Mrs. Donald R. Sincell.

Parent-Teachers' Association Meeting

The Parent-Teachers Association of Oakland Grammar School will meet this evening at the grammar school building at 7:30 o'clock and will be addressed by Mr. Morris L. Stier, the principal of the school. The Nightingales will sing. A very interesting program has been prepared for the entertainment of the members of the association and their guests.

EASTERN SHORE COUNTIES AGAINST ALMSHOUSE PLAN

Nine Counties to Fight Measure —Bond Issue Held Snag

Unanimous opposition of the nine Eastern Shore counties to the House bill proposing construction by the counties of a central almshouse or infirmary on the Eastern and Western Shore was predicted by Kenneth Willis, of Easton, president of the Association of Eastern Shore County Commissioners.

Mr. Willis said he was consulting the various county board members to determine what form the opposition to the measure, introduced last week by Miss Lavinia Engle, Montgomery, would assume. Many members of the county boards have voiced opposition to the measure.

Shore Plan Differs

For several years the association has advocated central almshouses to replace the county-operated institutions. The scheme advanced, however, was for the State construction of the building. The various counties would then contribute toward its maintenance by paying a stipulated periodical fee for each inmate sent to the institution by that particular county.

To this proposal, it was said, the Commissioners of Queen Anne's and Cecil counties held but a lukewarm attitude. To the plan now before the Legislature they are said to have turned a deaf ear.

Calls For County Bond Issues

The Engle bill would have the counties of the Western Shore raise $748,000 and the Eastern Shore $301,000 for the two proposed institutions. This, it is maintained, would necessitate the floating of bond issues by each of the counties in addition to the maintenance charges for inmates which each county enters. Eastern Shore Legislators will be notified of this attitude, Mr. Willis stated.

The Senate on Tuesday passed unanimously and sent to the House the budget bill, calling for an appropriation of slightly more than $72,000,000, to finance State operations during the coming two fiscal years.

The bill was the first fiscal measure affecting the State government to be passed by either body and contained Governor Ritchie's budget and supplementary budget recommendations without reduction.

Provision for standard uniforms for the Maryland State Police, authorization for a $200,000 memorial hall of records at Annapolis, and recognization of the attorney general's office, were asked in bills passed by the Senate Monday before adjournment.

The state police bill, introduced by Senator Hilton, Montgomery, Democrat, specified dress, service and summer uniforms for the officers of the commissioner of motor vehicles, and penalties for any imitation of them.

Marriage Bill Killed

The House of Delegates in the longest night session of the 1931 meeting, Monday killed the civil marriage bill and advanced to third reading a measure to increase the pension of state judges to $3,600 per year.

The lower branch also killed a bill to increase from $300 to $500 the funeral expenses to be paid from estates.

Blow at Daylight Saving

The Senate on Monday evening struck a blow at daylight saving, either voluntary or by status, by passing 16 to 3 the Ensor bill making it unlawful to show in public any clock designating other than Standard time.

A bill was introduced by the Garrett county delegation authorizing Garrett county to issue $150,000 in bonds for school purposes. It was turned over to the Ways and Means committee.

The committee made a report on House Bill 183 providing county health officer for each of twenty-three counties instead of ten, as at present.

To Make Film Strips of Maple Sugar Industry

Mr. E. I. Oswell, district agent, and Mr. Brigham, U. S. Department of agriculture, will be in the county next week, according to John H. Carter, county agent, and will make pictures of the maple syrup and sugar industry for the purpose of making film strips for the department.

The strips will be distributed thruout the United States, showing the method of manufacturing the syrup and sugar, and will be loaned to many organizations through the extension service of the diferent states.

Come From Behind to Win Deciding Game of Series 24 to 23

After trailing 18 to 8 shortly after the beginning of the second half, the Oakland High Alumni rallied to defeat the High School quint 24-23 in the third and deciding game of the series last Friday evening in the school auditorium.

The High School five kept out in front until the final three minutes of play when McComas shot a field goal to give the Alumni a one-point margin. From then on until the final whistle desperate attempts were made by the players to change the scoring on both sides, and excitement was at its highest pitch among the spectators when the final whistle blew.

McComas, with seven field goals and one foul, led the scoring for the Alumni, while Sollars, with four field goals was high point man for High School.

The line-up and summary:

Alumni—24		Oakland High—23
McComas	F	Maroney
Stanton	F	Glotfelty
Sanders	C	Sollars
Nally	G	Rice
Hanst	G	Graves

Substitutions: Hoffman and Gonder for Alumni, Ray for High School. Field Goals—Glotfelty 1, Sollars 4, Ray 1, Rice 2, Graves 2, McComas 7, Stanton 1, Sanders 1, Hanst 2. Foul goals—Maroney 2-3, Glotfelty 0-1, Rice 1-3, Graves 0-2, McComas 1-2, Stanton 1-2, Hanst 0-2. Referee, Elias.

Home of Grover Browning Destroyed by Fire

The home of Grover Browning, located near King's Hill, about four miles north of Oakland, was completely destroyed by fire of undetermined origin about 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Browning came to Oakland for assistance and one fire truck was sent out from the local department, but the building was practically in ashes by the time the truck reached the scene.

A number of articles of furniture had been carried from the house and were saved from the fire.

The property was bought last Saturday at mortgagee's sale by W. R. Offutt. It is said that an insurance policy in the sum of $1,000 was carried on the house.

Dr. Aspinall To Address Stanley Coal Company's Employes

On next Tuesday night, at the Crellin town hall, recently completed by the Stanley Coal Company as a recreation center and gathering place for the employes of the coal company, Dr. "Dick" Aspinall, of the West Virginia University, will address the employes of the corporation. The hall, a well lighted room, is equipped to seat more than three hundred persons. It is fitted with a culinary department and a stage. Beneath it is the offices and the store of the coal company, the offices having just been recently completed and occupied by the clerks and officers. These rooms are also modernly equipped and afford pleasant quarters for everyone having business to transact with the concern.

GUNS ROAR AT BEAR HILL SCHOOL FOLLOWING FIGHT

Youths Said To Have Fired 3 Bullets Through School Building After Assaulting Teacher

PUPILS LIVES ENDANGERED

Warrants have been issued for the arrest of three alleged bad youths residing in the vicinity of Jennings, namely: Thomas Hoover, Cecil Wilburn and Marshall Wilburn, the two latter being brothers, following a rumpus staged by the trio at the Bear Hill school house on Tuesday. The warrant charges the trio with being drunk and disorderly and malicious destruction of public property.

From information gathered by The Republican it appears that while the Bear Hill school was in session on Tuesday the three youths named in the warrant entered the school house and are said to have started an altercation with the teacher, John Cain.

Cain armed himself with the stove poker and summarily ejected the intruders. The three are then said to have sworn that they would kill the teacher and immediately went to their respective homes and secured high powered rifles and other fircarms. Thus armed, they returned to the school house and started a bombardment, firing three bullets through the building.

One of the miscreants fired from the rear of the building, the bullet passing through the wall and also the blackboard in close proximity to the teacher's desk and into the wall on the opposite side where it was imbedded. It is said that when this bullet was fired there were three pupils working at the blackboard and passed just above their heads and those of the other children seated at their desks in the school room.

Naturally school immediately broke up in confusion, the pupils and the teacher hastening to their homes. The county and State authorities were made acquainted with the facts and warrants were issued for the arrest of the parties guilty of the outrage, but after making three trips to the section where the youths live they could not be located and are still at large. They have, presumably, crossed over the State line into Pennsylvania. Clarence T. Spear, deputy sheriff, with another deputy, made the trip to Bear Hill on Friday, while Sheriff Haenftling and his deputies were in that vicinity on Saturday and again on Monday.

Persons residing in the Jennings and Bittinger section of the county have expressed their hope that no effort will be spared to bring about the arrest and punishment of the offenders as they have long been regarded as unsafe and unfit to be permitted to be at liberty.

In New York, it is announced that "Amos 'n Andy" bar visible audiences in the studio where they broadcast because they say they would forget their big audience if any one listened to them in the studio.

THE SUNDAY BLUE LAWS ARE NOT AS STRANGE AS OTHER ENACTMENTS STILL IN FORCE IN MARYLAND

Peculiar Legislation is Unrepealed, Although Allowed to Continue Unenforced

The ancient Sunday blue laws, center of many a hot fight in the General Assembly, are not the only strange pieces of legislation on the Maryland status books, according to a story from the Associated Press.

Many laws still unrepealed, although allowed to go unenforced, are still on the books but, like forlorn street-waifs, they have no champions to support them.

It is unlawful in Maryland to utter or write profane words concerning the Trinity or any person thereof and the punishment may be up to $100 fine and six months imprisonment. For the simple "oath or curse", the law provides that transgressors "shall be fined 25 cents for the first oath or curse, and for every oath or curse after the first, 50 cents."

Other quaint laws passed from time to time by the solons of the Free State have been uncovered by A. S. Gregorius after much delving in the status and were recently published by the Baltimore Evening Sun.

Among them was one which reveals it is unlawful to give or sell any person in Garrett county under 21 years of age either cigarettes or cigarette paper. Tobacco, however, is not specified and therefore may be supplied! Fines for offenders against this law are provided and for the first offense a penalty of not less than $25 and not more than $50 may be imposed with fines of $100 to $300 for subsequent offenses.

If the fine and costs are not paid for such offenses, the law says, the culprit, male or female, "shall be required to work the same out on the public roads."

There is still a law in force which requires that every traction engine propelled by steam be preceded by at least two men, "whose duty it shall be to conduct the engine so as to cause as little alarm as possible to horses or other draft animals."

Another law requires hotels to have sufficient stable and provender for five horses at least, a requirement which might on short notice prove rather embarassing to many modern city hostelries.

Baltimore city last week passed an ordinance requiring the payment of $1000 by every band of gypsies entering the city, but that law has been in force in Allegany, Baltimore and Garrett counties since 1904.

FISHING SEASON TO BE USHERED IN WEDNESDAY

May Fish In Deep Creek Lake From April 1 to August 15

The fishing season in Garrett county will arrive on April 1, according to the State Conservation Commissioner, and will continue until June 30, except in the Youghiogheny River below Swallow Falls, where the rainbow trout season is from July 1 to November 30.

The fishing season in Deep Creek Lake will be open only from April 1 to August 15.

It is necessary that all persons over the age of 18 years procure an angler's license before being permitted to fish by means of rod, hook and line in any of the streams not closed in Garrett county, the law states.

Licenses are not required when the owner is fishing within the confines of his own property lines. Licenses, when required, may be procured at the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court. Quite a number of applicants have already secured the required permits and are thus ready when April 1 arrives.

Trout taken from the streams must be not less than 7 inches in length, according to the fish and game law, except from Deep Creek Lake, where they must be eight inches in length.

Legion Adds Ten Members During Week—Committees Active

Ten new members were added to Proctor Kildow Post, American Legion, during the past week in the drive which is being conducted in all parts of the State. The local post is divided into two sections under the leadership of Neil C. Fraley and Alex Hesen, who are competing for the most new members. A trip will be made to Kitzmiller on Saturday and to Friendsville on Tuesday for the purpose of interesting veterans in those communities in the movement for more members of the post.

Committees have been appointed by the Legion and the local fire department to arrange for the second annual Fourth of July celebration to be held under the joint auspices of the two organizations. L. M. Fraley is chairman of the fire department committee and Neil Fraley is chairman of the Legion post committee. Both committees will meet some day next week and make preliminary plans for the celebration.

A letter received from Charles F. Sargent, who was to lecture here on veterans' laws, states that he is recuperating from a recent illness and will be in Oakland as soon as his condition will permit.

Through the local post many members and ex-service men have already received checks on their service certificates.

Scouts Plan Spring and Summer Outing Program

An outline of the spring and summer program for the Oakland Troop of Boy Scouts, preparations for a hike on Saturday, will be made at the regular troop meeting tomorrow evening in the Scout hall, according to the scoutmaster.

The hike will be in charge of Bernard Gonder, Jr., assistant scoutmaster. The spring and summer program will include a number of day-hikes overnight hikes with a definite objective for each trip. At the present time each Scout has a definite goal of advancement to attain by June 1. Eight are expecting to reach the rank of Star Scout; five are expecting to reach Life Scout, and three are hoping to attain the rank of Eagle. These three are James Nordeck, Elvin Iman and Richard Davis. Providing the merit badge in lifesaving can be passed by June 1, the list of Eagles would be increased by two as Harley Dawson and Joseph Sollars have all the other requirements except this one.

The monthly inspection of the troop was won by the Beaver patrol, Robert Altstetter, patrol leader, and scouts who have been active lately in passing their tests include Harry Stemple, Percy Thayer, Eugene Showe, Horace O'Donnell, Carroll Casteel, Howard Naylor and Irvin Broadwater.

Not Yet Apprehended

Dewey Harvey, who was re-sentenced last week by Judge D. Lindley Sloan, after being freed from serving a sentence on a liquor violation by Judge Grayson of Baltimore county, has not been apprehended, according to authorities.

SCHOOL BOARD REQUESTS $470,151 FOR 1931-1932

Of this Amount County Is Asked To Furnish $263,726 The State To Pay Balance or 59 Per Cent

PRESENT ANNUAL BUDGET

A total of $350,651 for current expenses, $116,000 for capital outlay, and $3,500 for debt service, making a grand total of $470,151, was the amount estimated as necessary to run the public schools of Garrett county for the school year 1931-32 in the annual school budget presented to the Board of County Commissioners yesterday afternoon.

The amount requested from the county commissioners was $263,726. Receipts from the State to help pay for the current expenses was estimated at $206,425, or 59 percent of the total current expenses leaving only 41 percent for the county to pay. The State aid was divided as follows: $3,960 for general control; $152,965 for instructional services; $45,000 for auxiliary agencies, and $4,500 for tuition to adjoining counties.

Capital Outlay

The amount of $116,000 requested for capital outlay was divided as follows: New buildings, Grantsville, $40,000; Accident, $20,000; Red House, $5,000; Kitzmiller Grammar, $40,000. New equipment, Swanton, water and toilets, $900; Kitzmiller, toilet rooms and toilets, $3,000; for purchase of land, $7,100. No State aid is given for capital outlay.

The largest item in the estimated receipts from the State and other sources was $132,647 from the equalization fund. Garrett county is the only county to receive such a proportionately large amount through this fund, and this is due to its thinly populated area, there being only 30 people to each square mile.

Receipts from the State for salaries of county superintendents, supervising and helping teachers and attendance officers were estimated at approximately two-thirds of the entire amounts.

The estimated cost of transportation of pupils was $45,000, all of which is borne by the State.

The county is requested to levy amounts covering the operation of the school plant, including janitors' wages, janitors' supplies, fuel, water, light, power and other costs, of $19,000; maintenance of buildings, upkeep of grounds, repair and replacement of equipment, amounting to $11,000; auxiliary agencies including school libraries, health service and community activities, amounting to $2,000; and part of the total for teachers' salaries.

It is estimated that teachers in elementary schools will cost $162,000, and teachers in high schools, $63,000. Of this amount the State furnishes $143,013, while the county furnishes the remainder of $81,987.

Items covering office expenses, printing, auditing, allowance for Board members, and the balance of salaries of officials and employes, text books, etc., amounting to approximately $25,000, were requested from the county in the budget.

The budget was submitted by the County Board of Education to the Board of County Commissioners as provided by law and according to the rules and regulations of the Maryland State Board of Education. It is necessary that the budget be in the hands of the commissioners twenty days before the usual date for levying county taxes.

J. A. Kelly Injured.

Friends of J. A. Kelly, formerly of Oakland, will regret to learn of the serious injury he suffered on last Friday when he fell over a step ladder at the White Rose Filling Station on the Webster Pike, near Grafton, his present home. Mr. Kelly, proprietor of the filling station, suffered the fracture of four ribs and a broken bone in his chest. At last reports Mr. Kelly is as comfortable as circumstances will permit. His Oakland friends trust that he will have a speedy recovery.

Civic Club to Meet on Tuesday, March 31

The regular meeting of the Oakland Civic club will be held on Tuesday, March 31, at 2 o'clock p. m., at the home of Mrs. Harold H. Harned.

Election of officers will be held and a number of other business matters will be discussed. All members are urged to be present.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By SCOOP—HIMSELF

For once in my life I have seen Chralie Sprague, that rotund gentleman of Kitzmiller (Englsh born) with no inclination to laugh or tell a joke. He was mad, and when I say mad, I don't mean pretending. His pride and joy, the Kitzy high basketball quint, lost to Oakland last Thursday. Doctors say he will recover.

Knowing to what depths the curiosity of the human race will go, Col. Bell, immediately after the publication of last week's Republican, sent for special apparatus to attach to his camera which would enable him to get a picture of a referendum. As soon as the material arrived, Colonel Bell betook himself to the State House at Annapolis, where amidst bills for the support of the Friendsville Fire Department, abolition of school buses, and a realignment of fences, a close-up flashlight snap was made of a referendum.

People can now see what has held up the appropriation for the Free Public Library of Oakland and the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band.

Social Note.

Harry Mickey was in town on Saturday, probably on business.

The society editor did not see him, but the unpleasant aroma of "mountain pussy" permeating the atmosphere between The Republican building and that of Harned's Pharmacy told of the arrival of the successful hunter.

I'm glad I wasn't around when he caught it, or them.

Dan Thayer is looking for his name here this week, so I can't disappoint him, but if he is looking for a joke about him, he'll have to be sorrowful. A German police dog had him backed against the wall of his hotel building last Thursday and it would not have taken much for the animal to have attempted to see what Dan was made of and how he tasted.

When a dog gets vicious for no reason at all, he'd better be looked after. There are a lot of kids running around the streets.

Betty Dawson, one of the Gold Dust twins of Harned's Drug Store, simply delights to have people ask him whether or not a lunch room is to be opened in connection with the soda water fountain in said store, and if onions are to be served with the hot dogs. It looks suspicious since a restaurant was purchased by the boss.

Bet denies it, of course, but said that if a restaurant were opened in connection with the fountain Scoop could have the job of "dumb waiter."

Although Archibaldson hasn't gone into any scientifis research over the matter, he isn't in favor of letting them get stale, as he thinks their potential perfume properties would be too great. He says ordinary size stale eggs are bad enough.

What Next?

Berne Teter, of the Farmers Bank, said he recently reccived the following letter:

I wish to inform you that the present condition of my bank account makes it impossible for me to send you a check in response to your request.

My present financial condition is due to the effects of federal laws, state laws, county laws, corporation laws, by-laws, brother-in-laws and outlaws that have been foisted upon an unsuspecting public. Through these various laws I have been held down, held up, walked on, sat on, flattered and squeezed until I do not know where I am, what I am or why I am.

These laws compel me to pay a merchants' tax, capital stock tax, excess tax, income tax, real estate tax, property tax, auto tax, gas tax, water tax, light tax, street tax, school tax, syntax and carpet tax.

In addition to the taxes I am requested and required to contribute to every society and organization that the inventive mind of man can imagine and organize. To the Society of St. Johns, the Women's Relief, Navy League, the Children's Home, the Policemen's Benefit, the Dorcas Society, the Y. M. C. A., the Boy Scouts, the Jewish Relief, the Near East, the Gold Diggers' Home, also every hospital and every charitable institution in town and out of town, the Red Cross, the Black Cross, the White Cross, the Double Cross, the Purple Cross and the Iron Cross.

The government has so governed my business that I do not know who owns it. I am suspected, expected, inspected, disrespected, examined, re-examined, informed, required, commanded, and compelled, until all I know is that I am supposed to provide an inexhaustible supply of money for every known need, desire or hope of the human race, and because I refuse to donate to all and go out and beg, borrow and steal money to give away, I am cussed, discussed, boycotted, talked to, talked about, lied to, lied about, held up, held down and robbed until I am nearly ruined, so the only reason I am clinging to life is to see wha the hell is coming next.

How It Affects People

I have often been threatened that I would end up in a hospital for writing this column, but this is my first experience in having sent somebody else there.

Tuesday I received a letter from St. Louis, Missouri, Deaconess hospital, and it had the following to say:

"Well Scoop I am gradually recovering in a hospital from worry and over exertion from my exciting experience of two weeks ago when upon receiving The Republican, my home town paper, I found the pages uncut. Imagine my fear when I realized Scoop's column was between those uncut pages. What had Scoop done that the boss editor was ashamed to have the readers see his column?

"Well, I flew into a frenzy trying to get those pages open and the worry about you and all was too much for me, so here I am. But after receiving the paper today and reading the home news and Scoop's column, I feel much better.

"Tell the boss editor not to let those things happen again as the worry was too much for me, not to mention the drain on the old purse."

Aquicultural Experimental Farm to be Established in State

An announcement that should prove of wide interest to Maryland citizens in general and those interested in the water resources of the State in particular is that the Maryland General Assembly has granted money for the establishment of what is believed to be the first Aquicultural Experimental Farm in the world.

So that there may be no confusion between the words "aquicultural" and "agricultural", Dr. R. V. Truitt, who is Professor of Aquiculture at the University of Maryland, College Park, points out that "aquiculture" is derived from two words "aqua", which means water, and "culture", having to do with growing things. Thus "aquiculture" deals with growing things in water. The new aquicultural farm should not, therefore, be confused with the ordinary "Agricultural Farm", one or more of which may be found in every State in the Union. The new farm will be established this year on some part of the Chesapeake Bay.

It is explained that the idea behind the movement for the establishment of such a farm was to have some regularly maintained laboratory where a study of the growth of oysters, clams, crabs, and other seafoods, the annual income from which amounts to millions of dollars for the citizens of this State, could be made with a view to improving the yield and quality, and consequently, the revenue.

The establishment of such an experimental farm was due very largely to the foresight of such men as Governor Ritchie, Swepson Earle, State Conservation Commissioner, Dr. Truitt and others.

Exhibit of Garrett County Maple Products Shown In Baltimore

One of the features of the Flower Show, held at the Stadium in Baltimore last week, according to the Baltimore Sun, was an exhibition by the State Forestry Department showing old and new methods of collecting maple sugar water in Garrett county's rapidly growing maple sugar industry.

Two maple trees were shown. To one was attached an old-fashioned bucket of wood and open at the top, while to the other was attached a modern galvanized metal bucket with a cover. The advantages of the latter are chiefly in preventing rain water from polluting the sap, according to F. W. Besley, State Forester.

Mr. Besley asserted more than 100,000 gallons of maple syrup were produced in Garrett county last year, of which a large quantity was shipped to Vermont.

The material for the exhibit was collected in Garrett county by John H. Carter, County Agent, and included samples of both sugar and syrup.

Maryland Contrasted With Other of The States of the Union, On Its Position Respecting Poor Houses As Homes For The Indigent

To the Editor of The Republican.

Maryland, in contrast to several other States, which are doing away with poor houses, has just passed a bill for the establishment of two State institutions.

When Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the bill providing for old age pensions in New York State, William Shepherd, the noted magazine writer, asked him if the bill were not socialistic. Roosevelt replied, "Not socialistic; civilized."

Under the new law Garrett will be called upon to pay $22,000 toward the construction of the new building for Western Maryland, and $250 per year for every inmate sent there from the county. There are two questions to be considered: What will give the old people the most happiness and what will be the most economical for the taxpayer? We judge others by ourselves. Ask yourself, would you rather receive an old-age pension or be sent to the poor house?

Any old person in Garrett county could provide for himself with a pension of $250 per year. Maryland has a law providing for old-age pensions, but it is not compulsory. Possibly Garrett county could pension their old people if they preferred that to the poor house system. I do not know. The sick should be sent to hospitals; the imbeciles to institutions for the feeble-minded; the insane to insane asylums; the children to children's homes, and the old people given pensions instead of herding them all in one institution.

Mayview is the poor house for the city of Pittsburgh. The city is now conducting an investigation into the management of Mayview. It is claimed that there is graft in the supplies bought for Mayview. It is said that officials are reaping rich harvests, at the expense of the poor and the taxpayers.

The Post-Gazette sent a reporter there to investigate conditions. His report was printed in the Post-Gazette. He stated that he had been present at many hangings and electrocutions, and visited many jails; that the inmates of jails have better treatment than the inmates of poor houses. The food served in jails is much better than that served in poor houses. Prisoners have private rooms. It is true they are small and called cells, but for their own private use nevertheless. In jails you hear men talking, singing and playing musical instruments. In poor houses there is an atmosphere of gloom and dispondency. They have nothing to look forward to but being carried out in a wicker basket and being buried in a pauper's field. At Mayview the men stand in a long corridor and hang on an iron pipe for support on sit in a room called "the smoker." The fumes from a big gas stove make this room almost unendurable.

Sometimes a man will have a few pennies and buys a newspaper. This is passed from one to another to be read until it is worn out.

The men are not allowed to go to their sleeping rooms until 3. p. m. Here the beds are so close together that a man has hardly room enough to stand between them and dress and undress.

A neighbor of mine visited a friend who is an inmate at Mayview. She found him in a room where they keep the men who are mildly insane. There were twenty beds in the room. Each man had on an iron shackel by which he was shackcled to his bed. They served supper while she was there. A waiter brough each man a tray upon which was a piece of bread and a tin cup of water.

This is the way the City of Pittsburgh treats the old men who have worn out their bodies working in its mills and mines.

We pray every day: "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven." This prayer will not be answered so long as the American people continue to worship the almighty dollar and consider poverty a greater disgrace than crime.

MUST RENEW PERMITS FOR OPERATING SUMMER CAMPS

Sanitary Inspection Will be Made By State Health Department

Owners and others interested in summer camps have been notified by Dr. R. H. Riley, Dirctor of the State Department of Health, that the sanitary inspection of camps, in preparation for the coming season, is under way. Those who wish to obtain a renewal of permits for the operation of such camps and all who are planning to establish camps, this year, are asked to file their applications as promptly as possible, in order that the sanitary inspections—upon which the permits are based—may be completed before the season opens. Last year's permits will not hold over for this season. A new permit is required each year.

The camps will again be under the supervision of the County Health Officers of the district in which they are situated and of the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering of the State Department of Health. Camps that meet the requirements of the State Board of Health will be duly certified, after inspection, and posted with placards stating the approval of the Board.

The camp regulations apply to all places used as a camp or picnic ground for a period of six days or longer, and accommodating ten or more persons. Applicants for permits must state the exact location of the existing or proposed camp; the purpose for which it is to be operated, whether for picnic grounds, as a tourist or recreation camp; for religious exercises; as a labor camp, or whatever it may be used for, and also the approximate number of persons to be cared for. The application must also state the source of water supply, the proposed method of sewage and garbage disposal and whether or not food is to be sold.

Supervision of the tourist, recreational and labor camps, under the present regulations, was begun in 1926. The number of applications and inspections has increased from year to year, and there has been a marked willingness, Dr. Riley said, on the part of operators to carry out the sanitary requirements. In 1926, 105 camps in 19 counties were inspected, and less than half—49—met the requirements and were licensed. During the season of 1930, applications were field by 114 camps; 210 inspections were made and 94 camps were licensed.

Sixteen counties were represented by the licensed camps. Anne Arundel led with 18; Frederick was second with 16; Carroll, third, with 11, and Harford, fourth, with 10. Cecil had 7; Washington, 6; Howard and Kent each had 5; Queen Anne's county had 4; Baltimore county, 3; Charles, Garrett and St. Mary's each had 2, and Calvert, Montgomery and Dorchester each had one.

Operators or others interested may obtain application blanks, copies of the regulations governing camp sanitation and blue print plans for arrangements for the protection of springs from contamination and for the proper disposal of sewage, by writing to the State Department of Health, 2411 North Charles Street, Baltimore.

School News.

The circus was quite a success, all students in the high school having parts in the performance. The weather was fine and at 1:30 the animals and performers paraded the town, after which two exhibitions were presented. The sum of $37.40 was realized to be used in the Vo-Ag. Club. The boys take this method of thanking all who helped make the circus a success.

The operetta, "The Sunbonnet Girl," which was announced for the last week-end in March, will not be given until later owing to the illness of the director, Miss Ruth Conley.

The high school students have divided into groups and are preparing for the athletic meet to be held on May 26.

Work has been started on the junior class play, which will be presented sometime in the near future.

The freshmen and sophomore girls of the Home Ec. Club sold candy at the circus. Funds are to be used to pay for a new sink, which has been installed in the Home Ec. room.

Five-Minute Cabbage

Three cups milk, 1½ quarts shredded cabbage, 3 tablespoons melted butter or other fat, 3 tablespoons flour, salt, pepper. Heat the milk and cook the cabbage in it for 2 minutes. Add the blended fat and flour and the seasoning, cook rapidly for 3 or 4 minutes and stir constantly. The cabbage retains its crispness and is delicate in flavor and color.

Beef Stew With Vegetables

One and one-half pounds of beef, rump or round, ¼ cup flour, 2 onions chopped, 1 quart water, 3 cups diced potatoes, 2 cups diced carrots, salt, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley. Wipe the meat and cut it in inch cubes. Fry out the fat from the meat in a skillet and add the meat which has been rolled in the flour and the onion. Cook and stir until the meat has browned. Put the beef in a saucepan, add the water, using some of the water to wash out the tasty particles left in the pan. Cover and simmer the meat until almost tender, then add the vegetables and cook until they are soft. Season with salt and sprinkle the top with the parsley after it is placed in the serving dish.

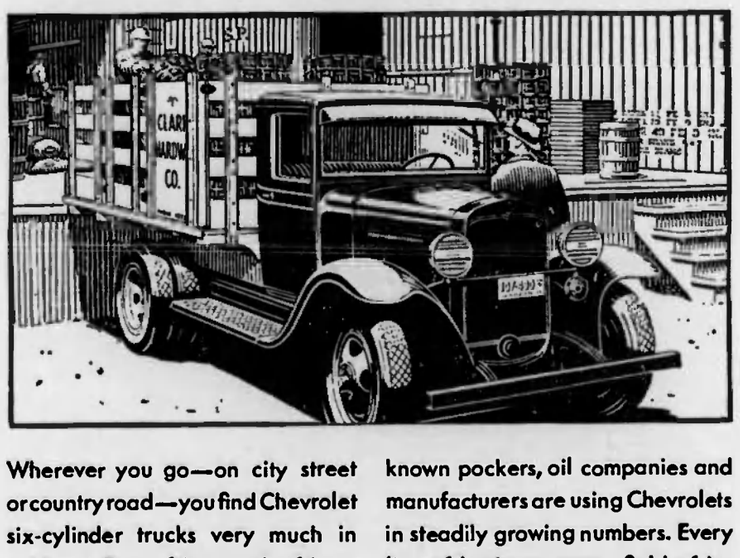
Chevrolet is the world's largest builder of six-cylinder trucks



Wherever you go—on city street or country road—you find Chevrolet six-cylinder trucks very much in evidence. Tens of thousands of these sturdy workers are on the job daily, delivering goods, moving supplies, doing all types of light and heavy hauling.

Large fleets of Chevrolets are covering the nation for prominent public utility firms. Nationally known packers, oil companies and manufacturers are using Chevrolets in steadily growing numbers. Every line of business, every field of industry is coming to rely more and more on these big, powerful Sixes.

Indeed, the demond for Chevrolet trucks during recent years has been such that Chevrolet ranks today as the world's largest builder of six-cylinder trucks and commercial cars.

THE "BACK YARD"—

In Europe they call the space in rear of a house the "garden", and they raise lovely flowers there. In most places in Ameriea they dump their tin eans and trash there. Many people who used to raise flowers and vegetables have given up the practice.

American travelers, they say, are laughed at in Europe when they refer to such spots as "back yards." It seems to those folk to stamp these rear spaces as dumping areas, where anything goes.

There are many back yards in Oakland that could be made into gardens. One can find physical health, as the spring weather arrives, in the active work of transforming a mussy spot into a scene of charm. Also the world can be told that Oakland is a fine residence town. Instead of traveling many miles and spending a wad of money to find beauty in far away scenes, why not produce it at home?

BUSINESS ISN'T SO BAD—

The other day a man came into The Republican office. As usual he was asked how business was.

"Business is fine", he said, "better than for the same period last year and prosepcts are encouraging." Then he told of a story he heard in his travels, of a dealer in meats. A customer of the dealer entered and asked for a sirloin steak. While getting the steak he bemoaned about business, depression, drought stricken areas all over the country, people in want and faced with starvation.

The customer was astonished. "I didn't know conditions were that bad," he exclaimed. "Better make that a pound of hamburg steak instead."

If people would stop talking depression, the apparent slump would be about half what it now seems. Like the women and men who delight in talking of their ailments, and "enjoying bad health", many have been bitten by the gloom bug and are suffering from depressionitis, and they refuse to try any medicine. They like to gather the fog about them, and sing, "The good old business ain't what she used to be".

What is really needed is an optimistic and constructive mental attitude.

SEVERAL MISTAKES—

A man struck a match to see if the gasoline tank in his automobile was empty. It wasn't.

A man wanted to see if he could stand on the wing of a fast-moving plane 500 feet above the ground. He couldn't.

A man looked in the end of a gun to see if it was loaded. It was.

A man patted a strange bulldog on the head to see if it was affectionate. It wasn't.

A man looked into a stovepipe and shook it to see if it was full of soot. It was.

A man stepped on the accelerator to see if he could beat the train to the crossing. He couldn't. They tied.

A man touched an electric wire to see if it was charged. It was.

A man cut out his advertising to see if he could save money. He didn't.

WHAT THE RAILROADS DO FOR THE NATION

The strong relation that exists between the railroad industry and general prosperity is shown by statistics covering operations in 1930.

In that year the lines paid about $1,086,802 in taxes each day—$755 a minute. Their bill for materials and supplies totalled $1,329,535,000. Twenty-three per cent of the nation's output of bituminous coal; 19.2 per cent of fuel oil; 20 per cent of timber cut, and 17 per cent of iron and steel were purchased by the railroads.

About 20,000,000 persons—a sixth of the total population—are directly or indirectly dependent on the lines for their livelihood. There are 1,000,000 railroad bondholders. To this must be added the vast army of persons who own insurance policies, as insurance companies are large purchasers of railroad securities.

Facts such as these vividly demonstrate the seriousness of the present railroad situation. The lines, due to overtaxation and unregulated competition from other transportation agencies, have watched their profits dwindle almost to the vanishing point. The inevitable result must be decisive retrenchment and decline in standards of service.

No other agency can yet replace the railroads in mass transportation of commodities. The time is ripe for a complete overhaul of railroad regulatory laws and an unprejudiced inquiry into the entire transportation situation. The public will be the principal sufferer if our suicidal railroad policy is maintained much longer.

SEA VOYAGE OF WASHINGTON AND HOOVER

President Hoover's visit to our island territories in the Caribbean creates an historic parallel to another voyage to those waters made 180 years ago by a young man destined also to be President of the United States and a world figure, although the young man was not then aware of it. The young man in question, then nineteen years of age, was George Washington.

Even at that early age Washington was the methodical man that he remained through life, and faithfully kept a day-to-day journal of this first and only sea voyage. Of all the voluminous papers of George Washington that have come down to us, this journal is the most cut and mutilated, says the Division of Information and Publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission. Whole pages of this priceless record are missing, and many of the surviving pages are mere shreds with but a word or a line of writing.

What the young Washington does reveal of his experiences, however, stands in dramatic contrast with this voyage of the 31st President whose day-to-day acts are radioed from the battleship that in ten days will have taken him to the Virgin Islands and Porto Rico and return.

The youthful Washington set forth on a sailing vessel from the Potomac River on September 28, 1751, and it took him a month and five days to reach Bridgetown in the Barbados. His errand was to be a companion to his half-brother Lawrence, who had been advised by medical counsel to try the climate of the West Indies as a possible cure for tuberculosis.

The United States battleship which carried President Hoover was almost as safe as dry land itself. Note the difference in this experience of Washington who, in his 19th year, was observant enough to jot down this entry for Oct. 19: "Hard squalls of wind and rain. Sea jostling in heaps occasioned by wavering wind which in 24 hours veered; the compass not remaining two hours in any point. The seamen seemed disheartened, confessing they never had seen such weather before. It was universally surmised there had been a violent hurricane not far distant. A prodigy in the west appeared toward the sun's setting about six p. m. remarkable for its extraordinary redness."

On Nov. 2 land was sighted unexpectedly and almost by accident, "when by our reckonings we should have been near 150 leagues to the windward," Had the land not been fortunately sighted, the vessel bearing Washington might have been three weeks or more in discovering the error.

On Dec. 22, 1751, young George records: "Took leave of my brother and embarked on the Industry, Capt. John Saunders for Virginia." It was March 4th before he reached Pope's Creek, Westmoreland county, near the place of his birth at "Wakefield." From there he went to Fredericksburg, and arrived at Mount Vernon, then the property of his half-brother Lawrence, with messages to Lawrence's wife. The doctors had held out hope for Lawrence's recovery.

The hope was in vain. Lawrence Washington failed to recover. And as he had always been as much father as brother to George, he left Mount Vernon to his young half-brother, who there was to nourish the mind and spirit that dominated all discouragement during the struggles of the Colonies and finally founded the nation and its line of Presidents, the present one of whom has steamed over the sailing route of the youth who was destined to be a maker of American Presidents. What a rounding of the circle, and what a mass of history and progress is enclosed within that ring of 180 years!

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Dr. Mahlon C. Hinebaugh, then a student in Baltimore, came to his home here for a visit.

A new residence was being erected by George F. Loughridge in Third street.

Snow and rain during the week not only made the country roads impassable but added handicaps to traffic on Oakland streets.

Announcement was made that the Oakland and Deer Park Hotels, under Baltimore and Ohio Railroad ownership and management would open for the season of 1891 on June 10th.

Five candidates were initiated in the order of the Iron Hall, an insurance organization. The local lodge had a membership of 46.

During the session of the General Assembly an Act was passed authorizing the Mayor and Town Council to issue bonds to the amount of $10,000 for street improvement.

The trustees of the Methodist Episcopal church of Oakland, at a meeting held during the week, determined to erect a new church edifice, to cost approximately $5,000. The building committee was composed of Rev. C. E. Clark, then pastor; George M. Mason, George L. Bosley, F. A. Thayer and Truman W. Casteel.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

A meeting of the ladies of the community was called for the purpose of organizing a Civic Club.

The contract for the erection of an addition to the Garrett National Bank building was awarded to Messrs. Holbert & Spedden, Fairmont contractors.

The marriage of Miss Sara Cornelia Laughlin, of Deer Park, and Mr. Bushrod Grimes, Pittsburgh, was announced, the ceremony having been performed at Deer Park on the 23d.

The work of tearing down the Oakland Hotel, which had been sold to a company composed of Oakland men, was under way.

Mr. Charles F. Hammond purchased the Green property located on Second street, which included four large building lots, with a house and barn.

James P. Treacy purchased from H. W. Hesen property at the corner of Railroad and Second streets.

An Interesting Fact

REAR ADMIRAL WINFIELD SCOTT SCHLEY

Many of Maryland's illustrious sons have won a lasting place on the honor roll of the history of this Republic. None is more deserving and none has been more maligned than Winfield Scott Schley, the real hero of Santiago.

It will be remembered that Admiral Sampson was Commander-in-Chief of the fleet sent by President McKinley to destroy the Spanish squadron lying at anchor in Santiago harbor. Schley was second in command of the blockading fleet. It so happened that on the 3rd day of July, 1898, the Commander-in-Chief had sailed away on his flag ship on an important mission which placed Schley, the senior officer, in command of the American fleet. A few hours after Sampson had departed, the Spanish ships steamed out of the harbor to give battle and in less than three hours were destroyed.

The people generally, and with good reason, proclaimed Schley as the hero of that naval battle, but a group of Administration factors, headed by John D. Long, then Secretary of the Navy, set about undermining him in the hope of exalting Sampson at the expense of his subordinate officer. It is only natural that Admiral Sampson should feel chagrined at being absent at such a time—a time for which he had been waiting and for which he had prepared the fleet under his command.

For three years the fight against Schley raged and he was abused and slandered, his enemies going so far as to cause to be published a book in the name of Edgar Maclay, a day laborer at the New York Navy Yard, purporting to be a history of the navy.

At last the brave old officer could no longer endure in silence the campaign of libel aimed at him and demanded that the Navy Department order a court of inquiry to determine in open court the facts in the premises. At this point, Isidore Rayner, a Marylander, lawmaker, legislatureman and statesman, tendered his services to his fellow-Marylander without a fee. An account of this memorable trial, with Admiral George Dewey as president of the court, is most vividly told by Fred J. Essary, in his "Maryland in National Politics."

The court convened on the 12th of September, 1901, and the evidence adduced before the tribunal was conclusive to an unprejudiced mind that Admiral Schley did not seek "to usurp the glory of that imperishable hour" at Santiago harbor, but had performed his whole duty as the commanding officer of the American fleet in the absence of Admiral Sampson.

The outcome of the most memorable trial in the history of the American Navy is a matter of record. The overwhelming testimony in favor of Rear Admiral Schley, however, could not influence two of the three members of the court. In their report they found Schley guilty of substantially all he had been accused of. But there was one member of that Court, Admiral Dewey, the highest naval authority in the land, who dissented. He found Schley innocent of every charge that had been made and in that judgment the American people heartily concurred. And time has not changed that verdict of Admiral Dewey and the American people.

REVISION OF TAX LAWS IS ADVOCATED BY COBLENTZ

Frederick County Senator Is Devoting Much Time To Study of Plan to Remedy Existing Evils

SEEMS FITTED FOR WORK

By Paul Winchester, Special Annapolis Correspondent of The Republican

At all times, in all lands and under all systems of government whether democratic, absolute monarchy, constitutional, parliamentary or purely and unrestrained despotic, the question of revenue and taxes has been the most difficult to solve and the most complicated, not only to the ruling powers but also to all the people—merchants, manufacturers, farmers or professional men—in all the varied walks of life.

Political economists beginning with Adam Smith, the great Scotch philosopher, who more than a century ago published his great work which he called "The Wealth of Nations," which systematized all that was known of political economy at that time, led the way for a scientific study of the subject, which has well been named the "dismal science," and even now the great work of Adam Smith is the basis of the large number of studies of this dismal science which has been taken up and elaborately treated by philosophers and statesmen in every civilized country in the world. Controversies have arisen over the subject and hardly have there ever been found more than two or three writers who have even partly agreed as to the best and fairest methods to frame laws regulating the collection of revenue from taxation for the support of government, whether local or national, in all the multitudinous needs brought on by the complicated necessities of the present day civilization.

Philosophical students of political economy in the universities of the world have devoted a large part of their lives during the last century to the questions, both old and new, which face the governments of the present day. Rules and regulations which were effective, even in a minor degree, are no longer suited to the present conditions of life. Systems of raising public revenues suited to the past generations are not now justly applicable, and methods of taxation which were just and fair in their operation even a quarter of a century ago, are no longer equitable, and political theories which were true in their time have become false and glaringly unjust, and as the great German historian and philosopher, Dr. Theodor Mommson said fifty years ago in his history of Rome, "Religious Philosophies, Rules of Government," which were true in their day and age, may become false, as times change and people change with them, and so become obstacles to the advancement of civilization."

Realizing all of this, Mr. Emory L. Coblentz, Senator from Frederick county, whose experience has led him to see the defects of the present system in Maryland, has taken up the matter and is devoting a large part of his time to discover a plan which will enable the lawmakers of the State, at a future session of the General Assembly, to provide a remedy for the existing evils.

He is admirably qualified for the work he has undertaken. His experience has brought him in contact with every class of people, with every kind of public affairs, not only in the purely agricultural sections, but in the business and financial world. As a banker as well as a successful lawyer, his work has been spread over the State and has also extended to the metropolitan cities of the country. His connection with public and political life has been varied and successful, not only in purely local matters, but also in matters affecting the State and nation. It is not exaggeration to say that no man in Maryland has a more thorough knowledge of the people of the commonwealth, not only in the counties, but also in the cities and towns, of their views on public matters, their ideals and desires in life, their methods of living, their local interests, than this remarkable product of Middletown Valley.

He is especially fitted for this arduous task, not only because of the knowledge he possesses of the necessities of these peculiar times, but because he is now in the prime of life and in vigorous health and full of hope for the future. He is an optimist and is an exemplification of that not widely known but particularly applicable verse in one of Matthew Arnold's poems: "Life without hope draws nectar in a seive, and life without an object cannot live." Mr. Coblentz is always hopeful. His life has been based on hope.

Mr. Coblentz has an object in all that he does and he never loses sight of that object. In all his connections in business, in domestic and public affairs, he has an object. A quarter of a century ago he told me what his objects were, and he has never varied in his desire to attain those objects. That he is in a fair way to do so is evident.

He said when he decided to become a candidate for the Senate that he intended to devote his time to an examination of the system of taxation, especially in connection with the burdensome levies on all classes of real estate, not only in the farming districts but also in the towns and small cities, and day after day, not only while at Annapolis but in his office at Frederick, he has done so. He is beginning to see a possible solution, based on the soundest principles of political economy, as applicable to the present day and the present condition of affairs in Maryland.

The result of this work will be presented to the General Assembly before its adjournment and before the next session in 1933 a thorough study can be made and legislation framed which will be presented for action at that time.

DIED.

MRS. MATILDA SINES.

Mrs. Matilda Sines, daughter of Samuel and Susie Wilhelm Summers, was born February 13, 1847, and departed this life March 20, 1931, aged 84 years, one month and seven days. She was married to John Sines August 31, 1866, and to this union three sons and one daughter were born, two sons preceding her in death. She is survived by her husband, a son and a daughter, 10 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

She was a member of the Brethren church, having been admitted thereto in 1879, and was one of the charter members of the Pine Grove congregation. She, with her husband, was installed in the deacon's office in 1887.

Miss Jennie Bosley, aged 90 years, died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Purnell, Mt. Lake Road, about one-half mile from Oakland, on Monday afternoon. Death was due to infirmities of old age.

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home with interment in the Oakland cemetery.

The deceased was born on January 31, 1841. She had lived with Mr. and Mrs. Purnell for about 12 years. No close relatives survive.

MISS SARAH E. POPE

Miss Sarah E. Pope, aged 84 years, died Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Friend, Mountain Lake Park. Death was due to infirmaties of advancing years. Funeral services were conducted Monday at Mt. Zion church, seven miles west of Frostburg on the National Highway, with Rev. I. S. Middaugh, pastor of the Park M. E. church, officiating. Interment was made in Mount Zion cemetery. Miss Pope was born and reared in the Mount Zion section of Garrett county but had been at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Friend for the past 21 years. Her nearest surviving relatives are Miss Rella Pope and Mrs. Friend, of the Park, both of whom are nieces.

Deer Found Entangled in Wire Fence Near Oakland

A female deer, in an attempt to jump over a fence on the Foley farm a few miles south of Oakland, was found entangled in the fence wires on Saturday of last week, its hind foot being caught in such manner that its struggles to free itself only made the wire tighter about the foot. When found the animal was almost dead and its misery was ended when it was shot. How long it had been entangled is not known.

During the past several months a weekly feature article from the pen of Mr. E. Carl Frame has been appearing in The Republican under the caption "An Interesting Fact," each individual article dealing with some historical incident connected with the Colonial and later the Revolutionary days of Maryland. These articles have been copied by other newspapers of Maryland until now a demand has been made for them in a permanent form, hence the author has arranged for their publication in a pamphlet form for the present and the first edition will appear from The Republican press in a short time. The material will be contained in a pamphlet of approximately seventy pages and will be printed on a good grade of book paper with a tough, durable paper cover.

Attention Is Called to Unemployment Bureau

The attention of all unemployed men and women and likewise of those seeking employes, is called to the existence of the Church Unemployment Bureau of Oakland. This bureau has been organized by the ministers of the vicinity to assist those out of work in locating positions and to assist those desiring workers.

Anyone out of work and desiring to work, or desiring to have some work done should register immediately with either of the following: Revs. Brock, Dawson, Shilke or Trimble.

Paul Ott's name has been turned in to the Bureau. He is anxious to obtain work of any kind.

The Church Unemployment Bureau asks the citizens of Oakland and its vicinity to aid the unemployment condition by giving work to those whose names are registered with the Bureau.

Services at Episcopal Church

The final Lenten evening service and Bible study class will be held at St. Matthew's Episcopal church tomorrow night at 7:30. The subject of Rev. Trimble's lecture will be "The Perean Ministry and Last Days of Jesus".

At the 11 o'clock service next Sunday morning the subject of the Rector's sermon will be "The Fickleness of Man". This being Palm Sunday there will be palm distribution to the congregation.

On Good Friday, April 3, a three hour service will be held at St. Matthew's, lasting from 12 noon until 3 p. m. Everyone is invited to attend all of these services.

Oakland High School News

The basketball season ended on Friday night, the school team being defeated at the hands of the alumni, 24-23.

A resume of the entire season brings out some interesting facts. Of sixteen games played, four were won and of the twelve lost seven were lost by less than five points. Total points for each player follow:

	Field Goals	Fouls	Total
J. Sollars	29	13-31	71
K. Graves	27	9-23	63
R. Glotfelty	23	7-23	53
J. Rice	17	6-20	40
E. Maroney	10	8-16	28
W. Graves	4	0- 2	8

Three of the above players will be lost to the team next year, but with the most developed player of the season, Joe Rice, along with Maroney, who is an able ball player, and others O. H. S. has a fine nucleus about which to develop a team next year.

Betty Hardesty, Reporter.

Services in St. Mark's Lutheran

Palm Sunday and Holy week will be observed with special services. Rev. Shilke will conclude his series of sermons on Sunday. In the morning "The Son of God Triumphs," and in the evening "Farewell", will be given.

The Nightengales will render special music.

Tuesday evening of Holy week Rev. W. E. Waybright will preach the sermon; Wednesday Rev. W. L. Dise; Thursday Rev. Harper, of Accident; Good Friday evening, preparatory and confirmation, with sermon by pastor Shilke.

Easter will be observed with Holy Communion at the Dawn service at 6:00 o'clock; confirmation and comcunion at 10:45. In the evening at 7:30 the choir, under the direction of Dr. J. G. Robinson, will render "The Triumphant King."

Junior 4-H Club Is Formed At Meeting Saturday

The organization of a junior 4-H club in Oakland was completed at a meeting on Saturday afternoon in the Court House, when twenty-four young girls met with Miss Elsie Benthien, home demonstration agent, and Hasaleah Yutzy, local leader. There are 27 members of the club.

Officers elected included Regina Compton, president; Mary Peddicord, vice-president; Mary Lyie Glotfelty, secretary; and Ethel Rae Welling, treasurer. Badges of the club were presented to al members present.

How to conduct meetings was explained to the girls and a number of club songs were sung. A sewing project was taken up.

Members of the club include the following:

Catherine Rodeheaver, Hilda Selders, Bural Frazee, Virginia Davis, Geraldine Kahl, Kathryn Glotfelty, Alice M. Whorton, Kathryn DeWitt, Ivadelle Paugh, Ruth Fields, Regina Compton, Mary Peddicord, Gertrude C. Castecl, Mabel Hinebaugh, Mary Virginia Bolden, Mary Lyle Glotfelty, Lucille Browning, Sara Trickett, Virginia Trickett, Oneda Johnson, Ellogeanne Aronhalt, Freda Crissinger, Daria Welch, Ethelrae Welling, Lucille Hoye, Mayville Long, Evelyn Collins.

In Berlin, Germany, when August Wilhelm, fourth son of the former Kaiser, refused to move on when commanded, a policeman used his club on the head of the prince with telling effect.

A great New Idea brings the Fashions of Youth to little women...sizes 14½ to 22½ :: to young women...sizes 14 to 20

SPRING PRINT FROCKS

A Most Significant fashion achievement that brings the outstanding fashions of youth to little women sizes 14½ to 22½ (a new size range for women five-feet-four and less, whose proportions require the half-size fashion), and smart misses sizes 14 to 20. A "REAL-FIT" development brought about by thousands of women who have long been seeking young fashions in their sizes waiting for just such an event as this.

REAL FIT DRESSES

At a price which would hardly pay for the beautiful fabrics.

The Most Important Young Fashions of 1931

We have heard women ask time and time again "Why can't the same style and spirit of youth of your Misses' sizes, be reproduced in fashions for little women who are less than five-feet-four?" And now, madam, no longer need you wear the matured fashions, for the FASHIONS OF YOUTH are now within your reach, at a most unexpected low price—presented here in a wondrous collection of new REAL-FIT FROCKS for 1931.

Flat Crepes

Not only are these the newest of the advance spring fashions, but these are the prints that embrace all the outstanding color contrasts that fashion sponsors. Large floral prints; small motifs of lively design; and a few of the ever essential plain shades. The color themes are most enticing as are the models in themselves that feature every new fashion idea. A score of fascinating young models to choose from have been developed exclusively for little women, sizes 14½ to 22½ and young women, sizes 14 to 20, guaranteed to fit, at a price that is amazingly low.

Lesson for March 29

REVIEW: JESUS THE WORLD'S SAVIOR

GOLDEN TEXT—How God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost and with power: who went about doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the devil; for God was with him.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Busy Doing Good.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Busy Doing Good.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus the World's Savior: Preparation and Popularity.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus the World's Savior: Preparation and Popularity.

Since the lessons of the quarter center in one person and have one theme; namely, the world's Savior, the best method of review for senior and adult classes will be to refresh the mind with the principal facts and leading teachings of each lesson. Assignments should be made a week ahead. The following suggestions are offered:

Lesson for January 4.

John the Baptist was a great preacher. He had a great heritage in his godly parents. Much can be expected from a son of such parents.

Lesson for January 11.

Jesus, as to personality, was divine and yet his human nature developed in the normal way. He waxed strong in body, was filled with wisdom, and God's grace was upon him. Though conscious of his deity, he lived a life of filial obedience.

Lesson for January 18.

John the Baptist came in fulfillment of prophecy, calling upon men to prepare for the coming of the Messiah by repenting of their sins. Baptism was the appointed sign of their repentance. With fine humility, John turned the attention of the people from himself to Christ.

Lesson for January 25.

Jesus was led into the wilderness by the Holy Spirit to be tempted of the Devil. His temptation was Messianic. The purpose was to demonstrate the reality of the incarnation. Jesus went from the place of anointing and heavenly recognition as the Son of God to meet and to spoil the enemy of God and man (Heb. 2:14).

Lesson for February 1.

Jesus demonstrated his power over various diseases and over demons, thus displaying his Lordship. Even while demonstrating his mighty power, he operated through benevolent channels.

Lesson for February 8.

Jesus made clear to the disciples that they would be hated and opposed as they went out into the world with his message. Those who follow Christ must expect opposition and suffering.

Lesson for February 15.

Jesus is the friend of sinners. There is no one so steeped in sin as to be shut out from him. Christ came into the world "to seek and to save that which was lost."

Lesson for February 22.

Jesus' supreme mission was to make known the good news of salvation to a lost world. In spite of the good seed sown by him, only a small portion brought forth full fruitage owing to the unfavorable condition of the soil.

Lesson for March 1.

The greatness of the harvest—man's lost condition moved Jesus to ask the disciples to pray the Lord to thrust out laborers. The real force back of missionary endeavor is prayer. When the church begins to pray about missions, there will be missionaries and money to sustain them.

Lesson for March 8.

The parable of the Good Samaritan shows who is my neighbor and what being a neighbor means. My neighbor is the man needing my help, whether next door or across the world. Being a neighbor is the most important thing for me. To be a neighbor means to be on the lookout for those in need and to give sympathetically the needed help.

Lesson for March 15.

The Bethany home was always open to the Lord. Jesus will come into such homes as will give him welcome. The inspiration of the Bethany home must have greatly helped Jesus as he went out to meet his foes. It is the inspiration of the home which gives men courage to go out and fight the battles of life.

Lesson for March 22.

The parable of the rich fool shows the peril of allowing the heart to be set upon even the fruits of legitimate toil. To seek gold and thus forget God is to play the fool.

The next quarter continues the lessons from the gospel by Luke.

Our Love to God

Our love to God brings us a gleam in earth's darkness to show us whither we are going. It keeps us in sympathy with God's work everywhere. It is our enlistment in the army of good will toward men.—Isaac Edwardson.

Men of Genius

Men of genius are often dull and inert in society, as a blazing meteor when it descends to earth, is only a stone.—Longfellow.

POSITION OF THE BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY ON HIGHWAY TRANSPORTATION COMPETITION

In order that the public in general, and its own employes in particular, may understand the position of the railroads on the subject of highway competition, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company has made the following statement:

The railroads do not urge the discontinuance of motors, nor do they complain of their competition, provided the motors operate under the same general conditions as must the railroads—and bear only their just proportion of the provision and maintenance of the highways they use—thereby avoiding the subsidization of one form of transportation as against another.

If the motor is the more economical, taking all charges into consideration, it should be used—but the public should not deceive itself by comparing rates and overlooking the additional cost it is under in sustaining the motor service.

What is the claim of the railroads?

1. That motor trucks and buses operating for hire, on the public highways, built by the people's money and for their use, should be taxed in proportion to the expense their use of the highways cost the public to build and maintain them. The railroad companies are obliged to build, maintain and pay taxes upon their roadbeds and rights-of-way, whereas the highway is built by the public and furnished to the motor-truck and bus companies.

2. That commercially-operated bus and truck lines, operating in competition with the railroads should be subjected to the same governmental regulation, State and National, as the railroads. Why should these common carriers be permitted to establish any rate they please, to take business from the railroads, deplete their revenues and cause railway employes to be idle, without being subjected to the same regulation and the same rate of taxation as the railroads?

Even were these things for which the railroads stand accomplished, the railroads would still be at a great disadvantage in many other particulars.

As an instance: Railroads are transportation companies. They are not permitted to go into the chain-store business, no matter how much profit they might think they could make out of such a venture, but a chain-store company can go into the transportation business. Many of them have gone into it on a large scale. From a central warehouse the company supplies its chain stores with its own motor trucks, over the public highways, within a radius of one hundred or more miles, instead of shipping its commodities by rail, as heretofore. They cross state lines, pay no license tax in many states into which their trucks are operated, and perhaps buy no gasoline, carrying enough from their base for a round-trip. The private passenger car owner and the farmer with his truck get no direct benefit from such operations, but there is nothing they or the railroads can do about it. It is one of the modern developments that takes business from the railroads and makes it more difficult for them to continue to exist and efficiently serve the public.

It is plain that the motor-truck and bus companies are not willing to submit to greater taxation or interstate regulation, and that they have started a vigorous campaign to prevent it, if they can, which is all right, provided the facts are given so as not to prejudice or becloud the issue.

Every person connected with the railroads in any capacity whatever, has a vital interest in this controversy. Let us understand it and see that the people do, also.

BITTINGER

Last Friday afternoon a flock of wild geese, estimated to be a hundred in number, flew over this village. The geese were flying very low and they made such a noise in their flight that the sound was heard by persons indoors. Earlier in the day a solitary goose was seen passing northward. And now we are hoping for spring weather.

Deputy Sheriff Spear, of Oakland, drove to Bittinger last Friday evening enroute to Jennings, but finding unbroken snowdrifts in the road he was forced to return without accomplishing his objective.

Mrs. Charles H. Wiley and two small daughters, Fannie and Olis, went to Baltimore one day last week where the children were to be examined by a specialist.

Mr. and Mrs. Elzy Beachy, of Akron, Ohio, accompanied by a lady friend, spent a few hours with Mr. Beachy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Beachy, at their home here a few days ago.

The local Homemakers Club held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. William Glotfelty on Thursday afternoon of last week. The meeting was well attended and was quite interesting.

Mrs. Ida Ream, who recently visited relatives here, returned to her home at Kidder, Mo., early last week.

Misses Ruth Brenneman and Ferne Buckel, of Grantsville, spent the past week-end with their parents in Bittinger.

Clark Brenneman, who has been ill for some days, was able to return to his work in Cumberland on Monday of this week.

MT. LAKE PARK

In as much as this seems to be an off-season for personal and purely local items, it might be well from time to time to pass on to those who may have the time to read the newspapers elosely, bits of information of general interest.

For instance, here is something that may open the eyes of the automobile drivers and owners.

During 1930 the total tax bill of the automobile owner in the United States was $1,000,000,000. That's one thousand million dollars. Of this, license fees accounted for 375 million, city taxes 30 million and personal property levies 130 million dollars. But the most voracious of all the items, the one that made the owner dig the deepest, was the gasoline tax, with a total of 505 million dollars. Is it strange that the ear owner is beginning to wonder if he is not being made the goat? Of course, it is generally conceded that it is only just that he should pay his proper proportion of the cost of building and maintaining the roads he uses, and he ought not to complain if the money paid into the state treasuries is spent for that purpose, but when states (as some have) force him to pay a gasoline tax of five and six cens on the gallon, then his wonder increases.

Word has been received that Mrs. Mary Busselle and Miss Myrtie Finnell, who have spent the winter in Parkersburg, will arrive at their cottage, "Allenhurst," Saturday.

Miss Sally Pope, whose death occurred at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Friend a few days ago, was buried Monday in Mt. Zion cemetery. Miss Pope was an aunt of Mrs. Friend and had reached the age of 83 years.

Mr. W. D. Grimes was a business visitor at Oakland and the Park recently.

Special services will be held in the M. E. church for two weeks, beginning on March 23 and ending April 3, with special services on Palm Sunday and Easter. The services will be conducted by the Rev. I. S. Middaugh.

Miss Elizabeth Callis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Callis, of the Park, was united in marriage to Mr. E. Walter Evans, by Rev. I. S. Middaugh, at the M. E. church on the 16th inst. Mr. and Mrs. Evans will reside at Cessna, Pa., where the groom is employed.

Oakland High Basketeers Down Kitzmiller Champs

Oakland High School basketball team won from Kitzmiller High, Garrett county champions, in a hard fought contest in the local auditorium last Thursday night, 15 to 11. It was the first game of four in which the local quint was successful in defeating the champions.

Sollars and Rice, with three and two field goals respectively, led the scoring for Oakland, while Atchison was high point man for Kitzmiller. Two of Kitzmiller's regulars were absent, both being ill of influenza. Graves played a good floor game for Oakland.

The line-up and summary:

Oakland—15		Kitzmiller—11
Maroney	F	Drappleman
Glotfelty	F	Atchison
Sollars	C	Sharpless
Rice	G	Arnold
Graves	G	A. Pritts

Field Goals: Oakland—Sollars 3, Rice 2; Kitzmiller—Atchison 3, Pritts 1. Foul Goals: Oakland—Glotfelty 2-3, Sollars 2-2, Graves 1-1, Rice 0-1; Kitzmiller—Drappleman 1-1, Sharpless 2-3, Atchison 0-1. Referee, Ed. Elias.

50 PERCENT OF MARRIAGES ARE TO BE KEPT SECRET

Eight of Eighteen Couples Request Licenses be not Printed

Eighteen marriage licenses were issued during the week ending Monday at noon from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court, eight of which, or nearly fifty per cent, for various reasons, the applicants requested not to be published. The total number of licenses issued for the month is now fifty-three. One couple was refused a permit. Six of those issued went out on Saturday, usually the most popular day of the week for marriage couples to procure their licenses.

Beyond the County

In New York, Charles F. Abbott, executive director of the American Institute of Steel Construction, declares that America's long-delayed business revival has already started, judged by the great amount of construction work contracted for and already started.

At Columbus, Ohio, guards noticed two strange faces in the line of trusties passing through the gates of the penitentiary. When asked what they meant by trying to break into prison, they declared they thought they were in a bread line, and wanted something to eat.

At Pittsburgh, Mrs. Dorothea M. Wagner, mother of six children has just been admitted to the practice of law, and has formed a partnership with her husband.

Jene Jules Verne, grandson of the novelist who in "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea", wrote about adventures of an imaginary submarine, will accompany the Wilkins expedition to the Artic where explorations will be made in a submarine traveling under the ice.

At Washington, during the past week, it was announced that there are 6,050,000 totally unemployed persons in the United States.

In New York, protected by guards with machine guns, surrounded by 125 policemen, millions of dollars were moved through the streets of the financial district last Sunday morning.

At Cape Charles, Virginia, a New York salvaging company is preparing to attempt to recover 4 million dollars in gold, silver, and jewels from the steamship Merida, which sank in 240 feet of water off the coast 11 years ago.

At Hagerstown, a woman, cleaning a hardwood floor with a pan of gasoline, was seriously burned, when the gasoline ignited, presumably from coming in contact with an electric floor socket.

At Chestertown, Spencer Biddle, leading apiarist, is of the opinion that the death of a large number of bees in Kent county can be traced to the drought last summer, the bees being without sufficient food for the making of their winter supply of honey, having been fed on artificial sweets.

In Philadelphia, a defendant on trial admitted that he was arrested with a bottle of liquor in his hands in a raided home; the judge instructed the jury to convict for possession; the foreman of the jury reported "Not Guilty".

At Akron, Ohio, a one time Austra-Hungarian army captain, employed at the Goodyear-Zeppelin plant, admitted that he was engaged in a plot to wreck the new dirigible now being constructed for the government, by leaving out of the construction important bolts, which would have caused the plane to crash. A "Red" plot.

In New York, at a dinner attended by notable writers and magazine editors, Theodore Dreiser, when accused by Sinclair Lewis, recent recipient of the Nobel Prize, of plagiarism, slapped him twice.

SHORTER SESSION WITH HIGHER PAY IS PROPOSED

Measure Approved By State Senate Would Cut General Assembly To Sixty Days

CONSTITUTION BILL KILLED

Annapolis, March 31—A reduction in the session of the General Assembly from 90 days to 60 days and an increase in pay of members of the Assembly from $5 to $10 per diem, as proposed in a House of Delegates measure asking for an amendment to the Constitution, was given the approval of the Senate with the adoption of a favorable report on the bill.

The bill, which was introduced in the House by Delegate Nicodemus of Frederick county, also provided that the salairies of the speaker of the House and president of the Senate be fixed at $15 per diem instead of $8 as at present.

Proposal to amend the Constitution to provide for the increase in the past have been defeated at the polls.

Constitution Bill Killed in Senate

The Senate tonight took definite action against the calling of a Constitutional Convention in 1932 by killing by a vote of 19 to 7 a bill providing for the machinery for such a convention.

Defeat of the measure came with the adoption of an unfavorable report of the committee on amendments to the constitution in which the Baltimore City senators on the committee did not concur.

Favorable Report on Blue Law Bill

The Michel Blue Law bill, amended until virtually unrecognizable, was placed before the Senate tonight with a favorable report of the Judicial Proceedings Committee and was received without a ripple, although that body braced itself for an expected storm tomorrow when the acceptance or rejection of the report comes up for action.

The measure is the most controversial of any put before either house of the General Assembly at this session.

Action on the report was delayed automatically for one day under the Senate rules governing bills reported by standing committees with amendments.

Limit of Judges' Terms Approved

The House gave final approval to the Coad Senate measure, which would strip the General Assembly of its powers of extending the terms of jurists beyond the constitutional age of 70. Passage of the bill, amended so that it would not apply to judges whose terms have been extended by the legislature, placed the continuance before the people, as it provided for a referendum as a constitutional amendment.

Whipping Post To Stay

Lack of a constitutional majority also paved the way to failure of the anti-whipping post bill sponsored by Delegate John Burns, Baltimore City, as it could gather but 56 votes for and had 27 cast against it, a total of 83 cast out of 119 membership.

Fifty Cents Inspection Fee

Another measure, that calling for a 50-cent fee for the annual inspection of motor vehicles, was saved from death when Delegate Lindsay, the Democratic floor leader and author of the bill, was successful in having it substituted for the unfavorable committee report.

Registration Bill Passed.

The House gave final action to the Senate bill calling for a new registration of voters in Baltimore and Allegany counties, which Democratic leaders of the Western Maryland county succeeded in having approved over the protests of the entire Allegany delegation in the Legislature.

The bill was openly admitted to be a party measure by which the Democrats sought to cut the ratio of Republican majority in Allegany and originally operated only for Baltimore county, but Allegany was put in by amendment.

Among the local measures which gained final approval by the House and sent to the Governor for his signature was that authorizing the town officials of Grantsville to issue $15,000 in certificates for street improvements. A sister bill provided for a tax levy in Grantsville for payment of the debt thus made.

Mountain Lake Park Bill Passed

Incorporation of the town of Mountain Lake Park was provided in a local bill passed by the House yesterday, which had already received the approval of the Senate. The measure had been introduced in the Senate where an amendment was added providing for a referendum permitting lot owners, their wives and children above the age of 21 years to vote at an election to be held in August of the present year.

A Free-For-All Fight.

In the House yesterday a free-for-all fight was indulged in when about fifty Communists marched upon the State House, forced their way to the Speaker's desk in the House and one of their number presented a paper and $10,000,000 be immediately appropriated for the support of the unemployed of the State.

When the Communist was ordered from the floor and he refused to leave the fight started, resulted in the arrest of eleven of the marchers. The others took to their heels.

TWO PRISONERS IN LOCAL JAIL LEAVE; RECAPTURED

Were Set to Scrubbing Basement Tuesday and Took French Leave

Two prisoners in the Garrett County Jail had short liberty Monday evening, following their escape through a basement entrance to the building.

The two men, Paul Hardin, of Cumberland, and Ernest Coddington, of Friendsville, charged with larceny, the former for stealing money from the Broadwater store at Grantsville, and Coddington, with having robbed a mill in his home town, were set to work Tuesday scrubbing the basement of the jail. Watching their opportunity they walked away and boarding an east bound freight train they left. Sheriff Haenftling immediately notified officials east of Oakland to be on the lookout for the two men and at Keyser they were picked up by the policemen of that town and returned to Oakland the following day.

They will no more scrub the basement.

CIVIC CLUB OFFICERS ARE ELECTED; REPORT GIVEN

Organization to Assume Four Major Projects During 1931

Officers for the ensuing year were elected at the regular monthly meeting of the Oakland Civic club held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harold H. Harned. Miss Lottie M. Loar was elected president; Mrs. Arthur Naylor, first vice-president; Mrs. H. A. Loraditch, second vice-president; Mrs. J. B. Littman, secretary; Mrs. H. H. Harned, assistant secretary; and Mrs. W. W. Grant, treasurer.

It was decided at this meeting to continue the work of reforestation at Herrington Manor, five miles west of Oakland, which was started last year with the aid of the district forester and the boy scouts.

The Welfare committee reported 80 dresses and 40 undergarments completed for distribution among the needy school children of the county.

Miss Loar, president, gave a report of the activities and accomplishments of the Civic club during the past year.

The four major projects which will be taken up this year are: the reforestation program, yard and garden contest, cooperation with school authorities on beautification of school grounds, and converting the old Oakland Hotel site into a public park.

West Penn Representative Gives Electric Cookery Demonstration

More than fifty women of Oakland and vicinity were present at a demonstration of electric cookery, held in the dining room of the William-James hotel yesterday afternoon from 2 until 4 o'clock, under the auspices of the service department of the Monongahela West Penn Public Service company. Miss Betty Harper, Morgantown, W. Va., was in charge of the demonstration.

Different kinds of foods, pastries, rolls, etc., were prepared and cooked by Miss Harper on the electric range, and were later given away to those who attended. The awards were as follows:

Mary C. Stanton, Telechron clock; Mrs. Pauline Johnson, Terra Alta, W. Va., lamp; Mrs. Cecil Smith, poppy seed cake; Mrs. H. L. Jones, pudding; Mrs. W. A. Sturgiss, asparagus; Mrs. W. A. Whitehair, Terra Alta, feather bed muffins; Mrs. L. M. Fraley, sandwich loaf; Mrs. Lee Shaffer, roast leg of lamb.

This is the second demonstration of the company, a three-day session having been held here last fall.

PLANS BEING MADE FOR BOYS' WEEK CELEBRATION

Rotary Club Has Invited Stanley Harris, New York, to Speak

In completing preparations for the annual Boys' Week celebration, April 26 to May 2, the Boys' Work committee of the Oakland Rotary club has invited Stanley Harris, of New York, to be present on Sunday afternoon, April 26, for the main address in the Maryland theatre.

The parade on that day will include bands, drum corps, groups and organizations from town and vicinity. In the morning it is planned to have the father with the boy at Sunday school, and the boy with his father at church.

Monday and Tuesday will be days in school when addresses will be made by members of the Rotary club.

Wednesday and Thursday will be days in industry when the boys will be privileged to visit the industries of our community.

Free moving pictures are offered Friday afternoon. Friday evening the boys will govern Oakland from 8 until 9 o'clock when they will sit in session in the city hall.

AUTOMOBILE IS STOLEN AND CONSUMED BY FIRE

Essex Sedan of David Hardesty is Found East of Loch Lynn

The Essex sedan of David Hardesty, of Oakland, which was stolen from in front of his father-in-law's home in Aurora on Saturday night, was found Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock a complete wreck from fire, about two miles beyond Mountain Lake Park, on the Loch Lynn-Gorman pike.

Saturday evening Mr. Hardesty drove from Oakland to the home of his father-in-law, Mr. Schrock, postmaster at Aurora, W. Va., 12 miles distant, to spend the night. He locked the car in front of the house. Sunday morning he found the machine had been stolen.

The thief evidently ran out of gasoline and had lifted the hood to disconnect the gas line and vacuum tank. Burnt matches indicated that he was making a light to investigate, and the gas fumes evidently ignited, destroying the machine. No clue as to the identity of the thief or thieves, has been discovered.

None of the tires were burned. The lock on the door was found to be broken off, but it is not known how the ignition switch was turned on.

The car was covered with fire and thief insurance. This is the second car belonging to Hardesty that has been destroyed by fire. On September 7, an Essex coupe was wrecked on King's Hill by William Lane, colored, who was chasing a man who failed to pay a bill for gasoline at one of the local garages.

The following Thursday, September 11, after the car had been repaired, it was consumed by flames on Bear Creek Hill, 2 miles north of Accident. No insurance was carried.

Garrett Countians Arrested in a Series of Liquor Raids

Four Garrett countians were among the 43 arrested in a series of raids conducted Friday and Saturday by Federal Prohibition enforcement officers in Cumberland and the Frostburg section.

Bryan Johnson, two brothers named Caton and Earl Minnick, all of Election District No. 9, were the four Garrett countians taken to Cumberland by the officers. Johnson had 210 gallons in his possession and the Caton brothers were placed under arrest when they attempted to deliver 600 gallons of illicit liquor to the Federal agents, thinking they were liquor runners, at a point on the public highway near the Johnson farm.

YARD AND GARDEN CONTEST AGAIN TO BE CONDUCTED

Oakland Civic Club To Sponsor Second Annual Contest For Beautification of Town

That the Oakland Civic Club would again sponsor the annual Yard and Garden Contest, was decided Tuesday at the regular meeting of the club, according to Miss Loar, president of the organization.

All residents of Oakland will be eligible to compete for prizes for the best garden and the most improvement made in their yards during the summer months, it was stated. No committee chairman has as yet been named by the Civic Club.

The contest is being continued in the hope that Oakland citizens will improve their properties by planting flowers and shrubbery and cleaning up their premises.

To make Oakland more attractive is the ultimate goal of the club. "Much good was accomplished last year, regardless of the drought," Miss Loar stated, "and it is hoped that the people will respond as heartily to this year's beautification program."

Entrants in the contest will be personally solicited, the same as last year. Judges will visit three times the places to be beautified, once before planting, once during the season and once at the end of the growing season. They will be impartial in their selection of the winners and appropriate prizes will be awarded at the conclusion of the contest.

The annonncement of the contest is made earlier than last year so that all might have plenty of time to arrange for the spring planting of shrubbery, flowers, etc. Last year more than 250 entered the contest.

Marionette and Puppet Show To Be Presented April 30.

A marionette and puppet show will be presented in the Maryland Theatre, Oakland, on Thursday afternoon and evening, April 30, under the direction of Prof. Bernard H. Paul, instructor in marionettes in the Maryland Institute of Art, Baltimore, and considered one of the great masters of the art.

Story book characters will enact their parts for the audience through this ancient form of entertainment, which is said to be increasing in popularity all over America.

At the matinee largely a children's program will be presented. A mixed program will be given in the evening.

The entertainment is being sponsored by the Pastor's Aid Society of St. Mark's Lutheran church and the price of admission will be 15 and 50 cents in the afternoon and 25 and 50 cents at night.

Chaflin Colored Quartet to Appear at Maryland April 21

The nationally known Chaflin Quartet, composed of colored students of Chaflin college, Orangeburg, South Carolina, will appear in a program of spirituals and other selections at the Maryland theatre, Oakland, on Tuesday, April 21.

These singers have appeared with success before the National Shriners of America, the Rotary International Convention and some of the leading churches in Philadelphia, Wilmington, and New York City. They have broadcast from radio stations WEAF, New York; Wanamaker's in Philadelphia; and WPG, Atlantic City.

One of the members of the quartet is Sinclair Swann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Swann, of Oakland, who has appeared at the Maryland before.

At Hagerstown, Md., plans are under way to restore Fort Frederick, erected in the time of Governor Sharp, during the Revolution, now owned by Maryland.

GARRETT COUNTY'S "KING" BOOTLEGGER IS CAUGHT

George Burkholder Picked Up at Grantsville By Local Officers

Garrett County bootleg king, locally known as "King George" Burkholder, enroute to his home in the Bear Hill section of the county from an enforced stay in the State of Pennsylvania, having gone there to escape arrest, was picked up by local officers at Grantsville Monday, but was released on bond and is now at his home in the mountains.

"King George" has becn a persistent violator for a number of years, and at a recent term of the Circuit Court he was indicted, charged with selling liquor. He left the State and it is said that a few days ago he became embroiled in a fight with some men across the State line who beat him up pretty badly and fearing arrest in that State he concluded to return home, with the above result.

AGRICULTURAL FAIR FOR THIS YEAR IS UNCERTAIN

Bill Introduced in Legislature Would Eliminate State Aid

Whether or not there will be an agricultural fair for Garrett county this year will not be definitely decided until after the General Assembly has disposed of a bill now before that body providing for the elimination of State appropriation for small fairs, according to Henry M. Speicher, manager of last year's local exhibit.

"Garrett county could not support a fair under present conditions without the annual appropriation of $1,250," Mr. Speicher stated, "unless people of the county would exhibit their products without any thought of premiums."

Under the bill now before the Assembly, only the larger fairs would receive state aid, according to Mr. Speicher. All the larger fairs are said to be on a paying basis already, largely on account of receipts from horseracing, while horseracing is prohibited in Garrett county.

"So until the disposition of the proposed new law, no dates will be set for holding the fifteenth annual Garrett county Fair, nor will any meeting be held for the election of the Board of Directors and the appointment of those in charge of the various departments," Mr. Speicher said. "If Garrett county doesn't receive any State aid this year, the probabilities are that there will be no fair."

Dance to be Given in Fraley's Hall on Easter Monday

A dance for the benefit of the American Legion Drum corps will be held in Fraley's hall on Monday evening, April 6, it has been announced.

The Drum Corps is preparing to appear on the strects of Oakland on that evening for a short parade, prior to the dance. Bill Gibson and his Mountain Tops will furnish the music, and admission will be $1.25 per couple.

The joint committees from the Legion and Fire department are arranging for the celebration to be given on July 4, and they are on the outlook for a larger carnival than last year, and are expecting more drum corps and a much larger parade than last year, according to Neil Fraley, chairman for the Legion.

In the membership drive, which closed yesterday, the local legion post gained 13 members, bringing the total membership to 83. The State fell short of its quota of 5,000 new members, the figures reaching only 3,850. Nine hundred and fifty of the new members were from Western Maryland.

Crellin Boys to Train With Cumberland Colts

When the Cumberland Colts of the Middle Atlantic League go into training, at Cumberland on April 15, for the opening of the baseball season, their squad of players will include Denver Sanders and Don Colaw, both of Crellin.

Both boys are considered good ball players, having played on the Crellin team for the past several years, which defeated a number of the best independent teams in this section.

Colaw, as a pitcher of the Oakland High school team last year, was instrumental in bringing the county championship to the local high school, and also plays at that position for Crellin. Sanders is a catcher.

COMMISSIONERS HOPE TO LOWER COUNTY TAX RATE

County Expenses to be Cut to Minimum to Overcome Decrease in Assessable Property

WILL MEET ON APRIL 13

When the County Commissioners of Garrett county meet on April 13, to make the annual county levy and fix the county tax rate, it is practically certain that the rate will not be raised, according to one of the commisioners when questioned yesterday morning. If it is at all possible the rate will be lowered, he added.

This statement was made in view of the fact that many people are expecting the rate to be raised on account of the reduction in property valuation, and the amount of assessable land.

The commissioners are all prepared to lower the existing rate of $1.80 per $100 valuation on county taxes, if it can be so arranged, it was stated, but it was not known whether this could be done as the law required certain amounts to be levied. Expenses of which the county has complete charge will be lowered to the minimum.

The commissioners were not able to state how much the assessable property would depreciate this year, and would make no estimate. However, a number of citizens have estimated the loss in property valuation this year would be between $500,000 and $1,000,000. This was considered extremely high by the president of the county commissioners.

Coal properties have decreased in value considerably, the county has purchased several large tracts of land at tax sale, and the state has purchased thousands of acres for a forest reserve. All these events figure in the loss in property valuation, as county and state lands are not taxable. The assessable basis last year was $21,304,594.

GRANTSVILLE HIGH HAS HIGHEST PERCENT OF A'S

School Board Gives Report for Semester Ending January 31

Twenty-eight percent of all grades received in Grantsville High school for the semester ending January 31, 1931, were "A's", a report from the Board of Education showed. Grantsville led all other high schools in number of "A's", second place going to Kempton High with 12.8 percent. Oakland was two-tenths of a percent above the average for number of "A's", having a mark of 7.2.

The following gives the percentages of marks in the various High schools of the county:

Friendsville: A's, 5.7; B's, 29.8; C's, 33.4; D's, 20.7; E's, 10.4.

Grantsville: A's, 28.3; B's, 24.9; C's, 22.6; D's, 14.7; E's, 9.5.

Accident: A's, 8.2; B's, 18.1; C's, 33.4; D's, 24.0; E's, 16.3.

Oakland: A's, 7.2; B's, 19.6; C's, 34.7; D's, 25.6; E's, 12.9.

Kempton: A's, 12.8; B's, 38.5; C's, 43.6; D's, 5.1; no E's.

Kitzmiller: A's, 9.9; B's, 16.9; C's, 32.5; D's, 33.4; E's, 7.3.

The normal percentages are as follows: A's, 7; B's, 24; C's, 38; D's, 24; E's, 7. Only subjects of one unit value for the year were included in the report.

Thomas Hoover Is Sent To Training School For Boys

Thomas Hoover, one of the three youths who were arrested last week charged with malicious destruction of public property following an altercation with the teacher of Bear Hill school, was sentenced on Monday by the judge to the Maryland Training school for Boys until his twenty-first birthday.

The sentence was meted out when it was found that Hoover was out on parole and had violated the terms of his freedom. Cecil Wilburn and Marshall Wilburn are being held for the action of the Grand Jury, for their part in the affair. They are now out on bond.

The three are said to have armed themselves, following a fight with the teacher in which they were driven from the school house, and fired bullets through the building, endangering the lives of the pupils.

In Kentucky, Mrs. Levi Deaton, mother of triplets, has named them Amos, Andy and Madam Queen.

WOMEN CAUGHT STEALING PAIR OF SHOES GIVEN TWO PAIRS BY LOCAL MERCHANT AFTER TALKING WITH THEM

Two women whose names aren't necessary, entered the store of a local merchant on Tuesday and asked to be shown some baby shoes. The pair of shoes displayed by the clerk did not please the women, and while his attention was directed elsewhere they left the store, taking the shoes with them.

Pursuit followed to the banks of Wilson Creek, behind the Garrett National Bank building, where the shoes were recovered and the women returned to the store.

After a number of questions as to the identity of the women, their circumstances, and whether they made a practice of running out on clerks, the merchant, instead of having them arrested for petty larceny, gave them two pairs of shoes and dismissed them with a little advice.

The merchant requested that publicity for him was not necessary, so it is impossible to give his name, but his initials are Lawrence M. Fraley.

Scandal!

During the past week and a half there has been more "dirt" uncovered in Harned's drug store than all the sewing circles of town could uncover in a month of daily meetings.

Those who have been revealing all this dirt are none other than Uncle Gum Coddington and his assistants, Bill Butt and Rol Frazee. The Amalgamates are holding meetings out on street corners until the repairs are completed.

GEN. WASHINGTON'S VISIT TO THIS SECTION IN 1784

As Compiled From Records by Mr. Charles E. Hoye, Formerly of Garrett County

WAS AT MURLEY'S GLADE

That Garrett county and the extreme section of Western Maryland, then merely outposts of civilization in the early days of the Republic, was visited by men of national importance, who passed westward through the territory for the purpose of exploring the country and inspecting their landed holdings, has been brought out in an article recently written for The Republican by Mr. Charles E. Hoye, a student of the early history of this section and a member of one of the earliest pioneer families of this portion of the country. Mr. Hoye was for many years following the Spanish-American War an instructor and later a superintendent of education in the Philippine Islands, having been retired by the National Government in recent years and is now a resident of the State of California. Mr. Hoye was born and reared at Sang Run, in this county, and being a true son of the county he has devoted much time and at considerable expense has written a history of the Hoye family of Garrett county, the subjoined article respecting General Washington's travels through this section being a portion of that history, and is printed herewith, it being of more than passing lnterest and adds to the historic phases of the county. Mr. Hoye's article follows:

"Having found it indispensably necessary to visit my landed property West of the Appalachian Mountains * * * I did, on the first day of this month (September) set out on my journey * * one object of my journey being to obtain information of the nearest and best communication between the Eastern and Western Waters; and to facilitate as much as in me lay the Inland Navigation of the Potomack."

The above appears as an entry in General Washington's diary of 1784.

He was accompanied by Dr. James Craik and son William, and by Bushrod Washington, a nephew. His equipage included three servants and six horses; three "valeses," two tents, bedding, a trunk containing "Silver Cups and Spoons, Canteens, two kegs of Spirits, Horseshoes," etc.

"In my equipage Trunk and Canteens were Port and Maderia wine, Cherry bounce, Oyl Mustard, Vinegar, and Spices of all sorts; Tea and Sugar in the Camp Kettles. * * My fishing lines are in the Canteens."

In addition to the business reasons given in his diary, Washington doubtless looked forward with pleasure to visiting again the country he had passed through with Christopher Gist in the winter of 1753, when he carried the message from the Governor of Virginia to the French commander on the Ohio, and over which he had campaigned during the ensuing French and Indian War. In the late summer he rode away from the well-ordered Mount Vernon plantation, stopped with his brother, Col. Charles Washington, who lived near Berkeley, Va., only a few miles south of our ancestor's plantation at Frog Hollow.

The next day he "arrived at the Springs, or Town of Bath, 30 miles." Here Mr. Rumsey "exhibited in private, under the injunction of Secresy, his model of a boat for ascending rapid currents by mechanism." Washington expressed himself as hopeful of the future utility of Rumsey's boat. (We note later that James Rumsey used steam as a motive power for his boat, and shares with John Fitch the credit of inventing the steamboat.)

September 8th the party crossed the Potomac into Maryland and lodged with Col. Thomas Cresap at Oldtown. Extreme heat was followed by heavy rains, which delayed the journey a day at Cresap's. Obliged to hasten in order to arrive at his destination on the day he had advertised the sale of his lands, Washington and one servant rode ahead the following day through Will's Creek (Cumberland) and lodged with Tomlinson at Little Meadows, thirty-five miles. From Will's Creek he followed the Braddock Road, which hc had traveled with that General's ill-fated army. He complains of "the Road being exceedingly bad, especially through what is called the 'Shades of Death'; crossing the Mountains I found tedious and fatieguing"—six to nine hours in the saddle "and in all parts of the road that would admit it, I endeavored to ride my usual traveling gate of 5 miles an hour. * * * I met numbers of persons and Pack Horses going in with Ginseng; and for Salt and other articles at the Markets below."

September 12, Washington arrived at the Great Meadows, where he owned 234 acres, and which inculded the site of Fort Necessity, built by him in 1754; he "viewed a tenament I have there." He dined at Thomas Gist's, on the Monongahela and arrived at Gilbert Simpson's the same day. Here the General owned a grist mill built in 1776; also land on Miller's Run, nearby; but James Scott and twelve other "religious Ceceders" had squatted on this land and refused to recognize his title or buy the land. He conferred with the squatters, but they were "determined to stand suit for the land." These were bounty lands granted to Washington and other soldiers by Virginia for services during the French and Indian War. These lands were found to be in Pennsylvania and the settlers disputed the Virginia tities. Washington left instructions with his agent, Thomas Smith, to bring suits against the settlers, and finally they were ejected from the disputed lands.

Captain David Luckett, commanding the garrison at Fort Pitt, visited Washington at Simpson's and advised him not to make his intended visit to the Great Kanawha River because the Indians were dissatisfied and dad recently murdered whites who were attempting to settle on the west side of the Ohio. Therefore the General sent his baggage back via Fort Cumberland, while he and his nephew returned by Cheat River "with a view to make a more minute inquiry into the Navigation of the Yohiogany Waters."

September 25, they crossed Cheat at Andrew Ice's Ferry, traveled up the West side of the Briery Mountains, crossed Sandy Creek, passing near the Pine Swamp, now Cranesville, W. Va. At "the entrance of the Yohiogany Glades I lodged this night with no other shelter or cover than my cloak and was unlucky enough to have a heavy shower of rain." This bivouac was six miles west of Sang Run, Md., where John Friend probably then lived. Next morning, following "McCullock's path, which owes its origin to Buffaloes * * * we started at the dawning of day, and passing along a small path, much enclosed with weeds and bushes. * * * we had an uncomfortable travel to one Chas. Friend's, about 10 miles, where we could get nothing for our horses, and only boiled corn for ourselves." (This man Charles Friend, a pioneer hunter, then lived at Murley's Glade, about three miles west of the present Oakland, Md.)

General Washington admired the Youghiogheny Glades. Here he wrote, "Part of these glades is the property of Govr. Johnson of Maryland, who has settled two or three families of Palatines (Germans) upon them. The glades have a pretty appearance, resembling cultivated Lands and improved Meadows at a distance, with woods here and there interspersed. Some of them are rich with black and lively soil—others are of a stiffer and colder nature—all of them feel, very early, the effect of frost—the growth of them, is a grass." Cattle are driven to them "to pasture in the Spring and are recalled at Autumn."

Washington obtained much information from "Friend,who is a great hunter, and well acquainted with all the Waters, as well as the hilis, having lived ln that Country and foliowed no other occupation for nine years." He was enquiring particularly about the possibility of constructing a canal to connect the Potomac and Youghiogheny Rivers, or of navigation on those streams and a connecting wagon road. Mr. Friend told him of the series of falls of the Youghiogheny, which made a canal on that stream impracticable, but which we are now beginning to use for hydro-electric projects, one being built at Hoyes Run ln 1925.

"From Friend's I passed by a spring (distance three miles) called Archy's, from a man of that name—crossed the Backbone and descended into Ryan's Glade. Thence by Thomas Logston's." (There is a fine spring at Oakland, known as Washington's Spring, where, according to legend, Washington stopped on this journey from the west.)

So our illustrious traveler crossed the North Branch of the Potomac and continued his way across Virginia to his home, which he reached "before sundown," October 4th.

General Washington's entries in diary arc usually very brief, but he sums up the results of his journey with a long discussion of his pet project, the union of the East and West by a water route from the Chesapeake Bay to the Ohio, via the Potomac.

"And tho I was disappointed in one of the objects which induced me to undertake this journey, namely, to examine into the situation, quality and advantages of the Land which I hold upon the Ohio and Great Kanawha—and to take measures for rescuing them from the hands of Land Jobbers and Speculators—who I had been informed, regardless of my legal and equitable rigghts, patents, etc., had enclosed them within other surveys and were offering them for Salt at Philadelphia and in Europe—I say, notwithstanding this disappointment, I am well plased with my journey."

CHARLES E. HOYE.

GRANTSVILLE

Publicity for Garrett Maple Products

Guy S. Stanton, president of the Garrett County Maple Sugar Produets Association, will talk from Station KDKA, Pittsburgh, Pa., on Tuesday, April 7, between 12:00 o'clock noon and 1:00 o'clock p. m., on the maple sugar industry in Garrett county.

Mr. Stanton, besides being one of the largest producers of maple products in the county, is also a most prosperous farmer in the Grantsville community. He is deeply interested in the association, which was organized during the past year, and as a result of the work of the association the producers of the products have been greatly benefitted in the proper grading and labeling of the maple sugar and syrup before it is placed upon the market, thus insuring a standard of purity.

Town Election Next Monday.

An election to choose three members of the Town Council of Grantsville will be conducted at the town hall on Monday, April 6th, from 3:00 until 8:00 o'clock, when all voters qualified under the law are expected to cast their ballots.

Meeting of Ladies' Aid Society

The Aid Society of the Methodist church was entertained at the home of Mrs. Henry F. Durst on Thursday afternoon. The devotional meeting was conducted by Mrs. Engle and following this final arrangements were made for the conducting of the bake sale to be held at the J. J. Bender store on Saturday, April 4, at which time also a quilt will be given away. At the close of the meeting delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Durst.

Girl Scout Meeting.

A taffy party was given by Ferne Buckle for the Girl Scouts one evening recently when it was decided to send a remembrance to their captain, Miss Ruth Conley, who is still in Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, recovering from an operation for appendicitis. The regular meeting of the troop was held on Tuesday evening of this week at the home of Lena Custer.

The beginners troop entertained with the following program: Song and flag drill by Rita Blocher, Florence Broadwater and Roseila Hanft; flag recitation and tap dance by Mary Helen Gnagey and others.

Miss Broadwater Entertains

One of the most attractive parties of the Teachers Bridge Club was the bridge supper given by Miss Viola Broadwater on Thursday night at 7:00 o'clock at the home of her brother, Dr. T. O. Broadwater. The tables were decorated in green and white with green candles, with the place cards, tallies and candies of the same color scheme. Four tables were in play and the prize was presented to Miss Mary Miller.

Quilting Party

Mrs. N. R. Davis entertained at an all-day quilting on Thursday. Two comforts were quilted during the day. A delicious luncheon was served at noon to the following ladies: Mrs. Noah Warnick, Mrs. Albert Warnick, Mrs. J. U. Stanton, Mrs. W. C. Loechel, Mrs. C. A. Bender, Mrs. Fred. Livengood, Mrs. Marshall Beachy, Mrs. J. W. Folk, Mrs. J. H. Folk, Miss Christina Winterberg, Mrs. Effie Parmer. A very enjoyable day was spent by all the ladies present.

Bridge Club

Mrs. C. O. Keller was hostess to the Bridge Club on Tuesday evening. The prize was won by Miss Ruth Stanton. A delicious luncheon was served.

WHO IS FREE?

We respectfully call the attention of Albert Cabell Ritchie, governor of Maryland, to the words of E. E. Roberts, mayor of Reno. On the strength of the new gambling law, Mayor Roberts publicly suggest that "Nevada is about the only free State left." Governor Ritchie can scarcely let that statement stand. Is not Maryland the haven of individual liberty and the home of State rights? We have understood so, and it is to Governor Ritchie that we look for an explanation.

Apparently there is to be a competition in this matter of freedom. The State of Maryland, for example, will not interfere with a man's freedom to make himself drunk. But the State of Nevada will not interfere with his right to squander the family fortune on games of chance. Nor will it impose any except the most nominal restrictions upon his freedom to break the marriage contract. In view of the Nevada refinements, we are beginning to wonder whether Maryland is really free. At least, we think, Mayor Roberts' boast calls for a reply.—Kansas City Star.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

James W. Leathers, engaged extensively in the harness and leather business, was remodeling his establishement then located near the south end of Second street.

A new livery barn being erected by Thomas Martin was nearly completed.

The friendship ribbon craze had struck Oakland.

The snow during the week measured eight inches in depth in Oakland. Eastward toward Gorman the snow was estimated to be fifteen inches deep, the storm coming from the east.

The Western Union telegraph office here was opened for business by J. Harry Neff, of Kingwood, who had charge of the office during the summer months. A few years later Mr. Neff enlisted in the United States Army, and following the Spanish-American War, when he obtained a commission as captain, he was stationed in the Philippines. He is now a major in the army and is located at a point in the middle west.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. A. Thayer tendered a dinner to a number of their friends at their residence on Third street.

Messrs. John T. and Harry Sincell purchased the stock of merchandise and the store fixtures in the F. and C. Felty store on Alder street.

It was reported that oil had been struck in a well being bored at Boynton, Pa., six miles north of Grantsville.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Miss Thekla Fundenburg was chosen president of the Oakland Civic Club, which had just been organized by the women of town. Other officers elected were Mrs. E. H. Sincell, vice-president; Mrs. Lou Thayer Waters, secretary; Mrs. Julius C. Renninger, treasurer. Committees were appointed with the following as their respective chairmen: Mrs. M. C. Hinebaugh, municipal affairs; Mrs. Eva Mitchell, cemetery; Mrs. C. Elwood Offutt, sanitation; Mrs. Benj. H. Sincell, publicity.

At the organization of the Town Council, Mr. G. A. Fraley was elected president of that body.

The Mountain City Band was preparing to render a program in Beckwith's opera house on April 10.

R. S. Browning, after a residence of two or three years on the Pacific coast, returned to Oakland, bringing with him a number of bear and deer skins and a quantity of curios which he had secured from various Indian tribes.

Saturday and Sunday snow fell to a depth of three or four inches, followed by rain which froze as it fell, covering the walks and ground with a heavy sleet, thus making it dangerous and hazardous for pedestrains.

The new miil of Dixon & Kelso, known as the Mountain Top Flour Mill, was to begin operations on Monday.

Dr. W. W. Grant went to Baltimore to remain a week on busiiess.

An Interesting Fact

THE NEGRO IN MARYLAND

As early as 1636, at Marblehead, in Massachusetts, the Desire, first American slave ship, set out on its career. The records do not disclose, however, whether this vessel ever brought African slaves to Maryland or not.

By way of parenthesis, it might be well to correct an erroneous impression that seems to prevail among some who have not closely followed their histories, in relation to the attitude of the Southern Colonies at the beginning of slavery. As far back as 1622 available homesteads were plentiful, but labor was scarce. This led to the importation of Negroes through intercontinental traffic under frequent protests by the Southern Colonists. But these protests were overruled in England.

The precise date when slavery was introduced in Maryland is not known, but it was certainly prior to 1639, as it is noted in a statute of the Maryland Assembly of 1639, slavery is referred to.

It has gencrally been accepted by most historians that slavery was introduced into Virginia in 1619, but an examination of the court records disclose that the institution was referred to pervious to 1661. It is probable that Maryland borrowed the institution from Virginia, as she borrowed other customs. The Act of the Assembly of 1664 fastened servitude for life and by inheritance upon all Negroes then in Maryland or to be imported to the Colony.

In 1671 another Act declared that baptism did not free the slave receiving the ordinance. This Act was passed "to the end that no one should withhold the benefits of the Christian faith from these heathen people thus brought to America."

In 1833, a quarter of a century prior to the Civil War, the colonization of the free Negro was attempted, the Maryland Legislature having appropriated nearly three-quarters of a million dollars to send them to Liberia. Many were sent thither and strange to relate the recent agitation against slavery in that portion of Africa reveals that the descendants of those very same freed Negroes practice slavery to the present day.

By 1712 it was estimated that of the 64,000 population of Maryland, 8,000 were Negroes. By the year 1810 the number of free Negrocs had rapidly increased to approximately 34,000, the total number of Negroes still in slavery being over 100,000.

From the time of the introduction of the institution of slavery into the Province, Maryland was always in favor of the emancipation of the Negro, and so fas as history discloses did not purchase any slaves from those engaged in the direct importation of the black men from Africa.

In the Constitution of 1864, among other things, it was provided "that hereafter in this State there shall be neither slavery or involuntary servitude, except in punishment of crime, whereof the party shall have been duly convicted; and all persons held to service or labor as slaves are hereby declared free."

MT. LAKE PARK

The fall of snow yesterday, while disagreeable at this time of year, was a joyous sight to the farmer. The more moisture in the ground the better the crops.

Word has been received that Mrs. L. P. Carr has been quite ill at her winter home in Orlando, Florida, but is recovering and expects to spend a portion of the summer at the Park.

Mrs. Isobel Hill will arrive from Washington Monday and open her cottage for the coming season.

"Mut" Ready, of Washington College, Chestertown, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Ready, is home for the Easter vacation.

Easter morning, at 6:30, a Sunrise meeting will be held in the U. B. church, Loch Lynn, conducted by the Christian Endeavor society.

Miss Elizabeth Gibson has accepted a position with C. P. Martin and Son.

Miss Edith Ream, of Charlotte Hall, and Miss Dorothea Welch, Alliance, Ohio, are home for the Easter vacation.

Mrs. Mary A. Bussell and Miss Myrtie Finneli, who spent the winter in Parkersburg, arrived Saturday at "Allenhurst".

Messrs. Gerald and Harlan Biggs, University of Maryland students, are home for Easter. The former will spend three weeks teaching in Agriculture in this county, to comply with a college requirement.

Miss Helen Gibson, who recently underwent an appendectomy operation, is recovering nicely at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Z. Gibson, Loch Lynn.

Oak Lodge No. 8, I. O. O. F., last Wednesday evening, at a largely attended meeting, had the pleasure of hearing addresses by Mr. W. W. Dawson, Oakland, and Rev. S. A. Jessee, Loch Lynn, after which refreshments were served.

STATE SENATE ACTS ON DEATH OF J.W. M'CULLOUGH

Resolution Relative To Late Senator Presented by Senator McComas in Upper House

In the Maryland Senate last Thursday, Senator McComas of Garrett county, presented the following resolution relative to the late Hon. John W. McCullough, who represented this county in the Senate in recent years:

The Resolution

Whereas, The Honorable John W. McCullough, formerly a member of the State Senate of Maryland from Garrett county, has died since the assembling of the present General Assembly; and

Whereas, In the death of the Honorable John W. McCullough the State of Maryland has lost a most valuable and public-spirited citizen, and Garrett county a worthy representative; therefore,

Resolved by the Senate of Maryland, That the sympathy of the Senate be and it is hereby extended to the family of the late Honorable John W. McCullough in their great bereavement; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate be directed to send a copy of these resolutions to the family of the deceased and that a page of the Journal be dedicated to the memory of our departed brother by the transcription of these resolutions thereon.

Senator McComas' Remarks

Following the reading and adoption of the resolutions above Senator McComas addressed the Senate by saying:

My thoughts are solemnized by a sense of obligation, my language is inadequate to express to you my sorrow, my melancholy attitude in this moment of the memorial service is caused by the refreshing of the thoughts and incidents of my friend, the late John W. McCullough, being called into the beyond.

A valuable man to his community, largely interested in the lumber and coal business, giving employment to many men.

In point of all around development, Senator McCuliough must stand as a foremost citizen of Garrett county and the State of Maryland. He was constantly alert to acquire knowledge and the desire of his heart was to communicate it. His manner was gracious, frank and open and such was the specific gravity of his nature that his words carried weight and his wish was suggestive. He was a kind and affectionate husband and father, a benefactor to all who associated with him. He was the average man who has trained and educated and made use of every faculty and every opportunity. A courageous and determined fighter, during a forceful debate the messenger came.

Death was to him kindly, gathering him as autumn the messenger of winter reaps the leaves. May we derive wisdom from our predecessor. To man alone has God in His divine blessing, given this privilege.

A bill has been introduced in the General Assembly of Maryland providing that the session be limited to 60 days instead of 90 days as at present and also providing that the matter be submitted in the form of a Constitutional Amendment to be voted upon two years hence.

The Republican is of the opinion, and we believe the majority of the people of Maryland are of the same opinion that even a sixty-day session is just sixty days too long.

Merit Badges Awarded At Regular Meeting of Court of Honor

Five second and four first class scouts of Oakland Troop, No. 1, Boy Scouts of America, were awarded merit badges at the regular monthly meeting of the Court of Honor held Monday evening in the Masonic club room, according to H. L. Jones, chairman.

WILL PRESENT OPERETTA LATTER PART OF APRIL

Musical Comedy to be Under the Direction of Miss Bland

Plans are being made for the production of a musical comedy, to be given under the direction of Miss Monna Bland, the latter part of April or the first of May.

The members of the cast have not been definitely chosen as yet, but will be announced ln the near future. All will be taken from the girls' and boys' glee clubs of Oakland High School.

The operetta deals with Russian people and college students and gives a chance for the students to display their talent in the musical line.

The musical productions of previous years have been greatly enjoyed and everyone is looking forward to this latest presentation.

On Friday, April 10, a dance will be given in the Oakland High school auditorium. The dance will be under the auspices of the Sophomore class, for the benefit of the Athletic Association.

The hall will be decorated to represent "Spring Time." The music will be furnished by the Marylanders and admission will be 25 and 50 cents.

The dance is to be given for the school pupils, the alumni, and the patrons of the high school. It ls the first important social function of the spring and all who can attend should be present. A good time is guaranted and it is for a good cause. The proceeds will be used for the spring expenses for the field meet and baseball team.

More interest than usual is being shown by both boys and girls in the Athletic Meet which is to be held in May. A drive is being made to have entries in each of the events besides having the entire student body trying for the physical achievement tests for which are offered the small bronze, silver, gold, and super-gold badges. It is very- important that each boy and girl qualify for one of these. These tests are also open to people outside of school and they are invited to get in touch with any public school teacher if they are interested. Several teachers in O. H. S. are planning to qualify for an additional.

On March 18, 19 and 20 Miss Monna Bland, instructor of Music in Oakland High and Grammar schools, attended the Easter Section of Music Supervisors' Conference at Syracuse, New Yark.

The fifth edition of the Acorn, the school paper, was published March 31. There will be only two more regular editions of the Acorn, the last one being devoted to the Seniors and their activities.

BETTY HARDESTY,
School Reporter.

4-H Broadcast to be Given on Saturday, April 4

GIRL DELEGATES NAMED FOR NATIONAL 4-H CAMP

Representative Also Selected for Leadership Training

Mary K. Kiser, of Allegany county, and Sarah Morris of Kent county, have been selected to represent the 4-H club girls of Maryland at the fifth annual National camp, which will be held in Washington, D. C., from June 16-23, it is announced by Miss Dorothy Emerson, Girls' Club Agent for this State.

According to Miss Emerson, the girls were selected because of very excellent records of achievement in 4-H club work in their communities, each having been outstanding leaders. Both girls have established enviable records in clothing, canning, garden and poultry projects, it is stated. Both girls are seventeen years of age, Miss Kiser having been in club work nine years and Miss Morris, six years.

The National 4-H Club Camp, which is held in the national Capitol each year, is attended by two boy and two girl delegates from each State in the Union. The boy representatives from Maryland have not been chosen as yet.

In addition to the two girls to go to National Camp, Miss Emerson also announces the selection of Sue Jones, Worcester county, to represent this State at the ninth Moses Leadership Training School, held each year in connection with Camp Vail, Springfield, Mass., September 14-26.

Miss Jones was chosen for the honor because she has exemplified herself as a leader in her county and State. She is eighteen years of age and has been in club activities for eight years.

Six representatives will be selected later to go to Camp Vail.

GUARDING THOSE IN THEIR TEENS FROM TUBERCULOSIS

Campaign To Be Started During The Coming Weeks

Means of safeguarding boys and girls in their teens from the dangers of tuberculosis will be pointed out in connection with the nation-wide campaign for the control of tuberculosis among young people entering manhood and womanhood, which will be started under the auspices of the National Tuberculosis Association, assisted by the State and local associations, during the coming weeks.

Speaking of the campaign, Dr. R. H. Riley, director of the State Department of Health, said:

"In directing attention to the menace of tuberculosis to this particular age group—the boys and girls from 12 to 20 years and the young people a few years older—the tuberculosis associations—among them our own Maryland Association—are putting up a 'Stop, Look and Listen' signal at one of the most dangerous points in a young person's life—the passing from youth to maturity.

"Very few grown-ups go through life without having been exposed at some time to tuberculosis. Those who do not devedop the disease acquire what we call an immunity to it. But that can only be brought about—and maintained—by keeping the powers of each individual at their very best. By the time most boys and girls have reached high school age it is estimated that one out of every four is harboring the germs of tuberculosis in the lungs or in some other part of the system.

"If the rules of health are carefully observed, if these boys and girls have nourishing food, plenty of sleep and rest, are dressed according to the weather, have sunshine and fresh air, with properly directed work and exercise, there is every chance for the powers of resistance to be developed so that they will serve as effective means of defense against the invading germs.

"But very few people realize that these years during which the boys and girls are growing out of boyhood and girlhood into manhood and womanhood make great demands upon the system. If the strength happens to be exhausted by severe illness, by overwork, or by worry about school work, by too strenuous exercise, improper or not enough food—as often happens in the case of girls who want to develop 'slim, boyish figures'—or if they have too little sleep and too much social life, the resistance to disease of any sort—and particularly of tuberculosis, is broken down, the immunity is destroyed and tuberculosis develops.

"In the excitement of school life there is danger from overplay as well as from overwork, to the boy or girl whose vitality is lowered. By keeping careful watch over the boys and girls in their teens, so that they have a good, healthy time, but do not burn the candle at both ends, parents and teachers will be helping to prevent the breakdowns which only too frequently open the way for tuberculosis to develop."

NEW GERMANY

Due to an error made in announcements the Easter sermon will be delivered by the pastor, Rev. A. C. Bell, this Sunday at the M. E. church. The topic will be, "Four Gleams of Immortality." Everyone is invited.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Wampler and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wampler visited at the home of Harry Wampler, at Clarysville, Sunday.

Those having perfect attendance for the month of March at school were: Mahlon and Robert Warnick, Julius, Zella, Billy, Olive, Grace, Burnice and Eileen Otto, Mabel and Freda Broadwater, Freda Bittinger.

School closed Thursday noon for the Easter holidays and will reopen April 7.

Miles Livengood, who is employed on a sawmill near Bloomington, was unable to return to work on Monday on account of a sprained wrist.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wampler spent Sunday evening at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Broadwater.

Messrs. Alfred and Wade Broadwater spent Monday in Cumberland where they visited Mr. Arch Michael, of Westernport, who is a patient at the Memorial hospital.

Mr. Joe Broadwater is visiting friends in this community.

At Cambridge, Md., The Philips Packing Company, the largest of tomato packing establishments, has announced that it would pay 22 cents for a five-eights basket of tomatoes next season, a decline of three cents from last year.

At Reno, Nevada, where one can secure a divorce decree after 42 days residence, a bill has been signed by the Governor making gambling of all kinds, poker, faro, keno, black jack, craps, legal, and open gambling houses are in full blast.

The Political Mill

By G. Gould Lincoln

Democrats who have been reviling the Hoover administration for the last two years are not unnaturally somewhat pained at the assertions of Senator Wesley L. Jones, Republican chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, that Tammany controls the National Democratic organization. Tammany is in the limelight. It is under attack for alleged corruption and no one seems to doubt that there has been wide graft and corruption in New York City, where Tammany rules. Therefore, the charge that Tammany dominates the National Democratic party comes with a dull sickening thud.

Senator Jones asserts that Tammany was in the saddle at the last Democratic National Convention, in the sunny South, when Alfred E. Smith, former Governor of New York and a Tammany Sachem, was nominated for President. He goes further and says that Tammany is still in control and that is has sent word to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, widely mentioned as a probable nominee of the party next year, that it would not "stand idly by while he sought to win support for his Democratic presidential boom 'among the bigots of the South and West.'" The Republican Senator insists that the Democrats cannot well continue to throw mud at President Hoover with one hand, "while stroking the back of the Tammany Tiger with the other."

This presents a real problem for the Democrats. A Republican Legislature in New York has ordered a legislative inquiry of the government of New York City. That government is Tammany-controlled, and Tammany is the Democratic party in New York City, in the mind of the public. Indeed, the whole Democratic party of the Empire State is linked with Tammany in the public eye. The coming inquiry, therefore, is likely to cause a lot of embarrassment to the Democrats in the State, which cast 96 votes in the party's national convention—the largest delegation by far. But the Republicans have made it even more difficult for the Democrats by selecting former Judge Samuel Seabury, an independent Democrat, who cannot be "reached" as the chief counsel for the Legislative Investigating Committee. This was a clever move. It takes away from the investigation the character of a mere partisan attack upon a Democratic city government by a Republican Legislature.

The Republican attack upon the Democratic national organization, headed by Chairman John J. Raskob and by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Executive Committee, will be declared unfair. But it is political warfare very like the warfare that has been conducted by the Democratic organization in the last two years. It is true that Gov. Al Smith made his start as a Tammany Democrat and that he has maintained connection with the organization. But Gov. Smith never allowed Tammany to "put anything over" on him while he was in the Governor's chair. That is one of the reasons that a good many of the "boys" turned against him a year or two ago and declined to go along with the "new Tammany" idea advanced by Gov. Smith and his immediate supporters. Instead they elected as head of Tammany Hall one of the old district leaders, John F. Curry. Gov. Roosevelt has not been connected with Tammany. But he is now placed in the position where he must stick by Tammany or go along with the crowd that is out to "clean up" the city government of New York. The Governor was under fire from the Democratic press in his own State last year because he declined to order more investigations of the courts in New York City. They charged at the time he was yielding to Tammany Hall.

Gov. Roosevelt's decision now in regard to the charges filed against Mayor "Jimmy" Walker by the City Affairs Committee, and to the legislative investigation, is likely to have a good deal to do not only with his own political future, but with that of his party nationally. If he strikes out boldly at corruption and graft, even though it hits the Tammany leaders, he is likely to be acclaimed throughout the country. If he pussyfoots, and the legislative inquiry turns up a lot of scandals, he will lose caste. On the other hand, if Tammany is demoralized and in any measure broke down, the chances of the Democrats carrying New York City by their usual great majority grow slimmer. It is a tough nut to crack.

There is one Democrat in New York, however, who is likely to be in the public eye, favorably, for months to come. That is Judge Samuel Seabury, the chief inquisitor into the affairs of New York City. Judge Seabury was at one time a justice of the Supreme Court of New York and later a member of the Court of Appeals of New York. In 1916 he left the bench and ran for Governor on the Democratic ticket. In that year New York went for Charles Evans Hughes for President and Seabury went down to defeat before his Republican opponent. Judge Seabury is no longer a young man, but he is vigorous and highly regarded in New York City and throughout the State. Whether he will loom up as a national figure as a result of the coming investigation remains to be seen. Other investigators in New York, among them Chief Justice Hughes, have gone far in their public careers.

The Tammany investigation not only presents a problem for the Democratic national organization, but it gives the Democrats of the South, who are dry and intent upon keeping the party dry, a weapon which they are not likely to be slow to use against the control of the party by the wet Democrats of the North and East. Senator Robinson of Arkansas led the attack on the Raskob organization in the recent meeting of the Democratic National Committee. Mr. Raskob appeared to come out of the situation. But while the Democrats nationally may swallow a wet candidate and might even make a moist gesture in their party platform, though that is a more remote prospect, they are not likely to take a candidate who is mixed up in Tammany scandals.

The Republicans see a chance to hammer their Democratic opponents in this New York situation now developing. It offers them a chance to drive home a wedge between the Democrats of the North and East and those of the South and West. Nor are the Republicans likely to be slow in this matter, as indicated by the offensive now opened by Senator Jones of Washington. The Democrats have sought to reply by picturing the conditions in Chicago, where "Big Bill" Thompson, a Republican, is mayor. But the trouble about that as a reply to the Republicans lies in the fact that Chicago plays no part in Republican national politics comparably to the part played by New York in the politics of the national Democratic party.

There have been four deaths among the members elected to the House for the Seventy-second Congress. Two of them were Tammany Democrats in New York, and their places have been filled by other Democrats. Another Democrat, the late Representative Aswell of Louisiana, recently died and his place eventually will be filled by a Democrat. The one Republican death so far was that of Representative Henry Allen Cooper, veteran Progressive Republican from the first Wisconsin district. Mr. Cooper had been elected and re-elected for so many years in his district, where he was highly regarded, that it was regarded as the Cooper district. Now however, the "regular" Republicans there are likely to make a hard fight to nominate one of their kind for Representative. The La Follette Republicans, on the other hand, will make an effort to hang on to this district. So far Gov. La Follette has not done anything about calling a special election to fill the vacancy, and it may be he will not act until after the Legislature, now in session, adjourns.

With the vote in the House in the new Congress so closely divided between Republicans and Democrats, every litle change in the personel is watched and weighed with interest. The Republicans still have the lead, with 217 to 215 for the Democrats and 1 Farm-Labor member, with two vacancies, one on the Republican and one on the Democratic side, still to be filled.

Hamill et al. are the plaintiffs and James F. Hamill et al. are the defendants, the same being No. 2538 Equity, the undersigned Trustees appointed to sell the real estate mentioned in said decrees, will on

SATURDAY, APRIL 18, 1931,

AT TEN-THIRTY O'CLOCK A. M.,

In front of the Court House in Oakland, Maryland,

offer at public sale to the highest bidders, all the following described real estate:

FIRST: All that property situated on Water street, in the town of Oakland, commonly known as the "Malette Property," which is described in a deed from Gilmor S. Hamill to Elizabeth M. Hamill, dated the 18th day of February, 1921, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County in Liber No. 79, folio 551, to which said deed special reference is hereby made.

This property fronts 38½ feet on Water Street and extends back 132 feet to Little Yough River. It is improved by a two-story, eight-room frame house, with bath and all conveniences and is in good condition.

SECOND: All that farm formerly consisting of FORTY-ONE ACRES, situated at the East End of the town of Oakland, which was conveyed to James R. Bishop by John N. Ervin et ux. by deed dated December 28, 1867, and recorded among the Land Records of Allegany County in Liber No. 29, folio 28, excepting the following parcels heretofore sold and conveyed:

A. All that property which was conveyed to Jennie Smith and James O. Smith by James R. Bishop et ux. by deed dated August 5, 1887, and recorded among said Land Records in Liber No. 12, folio 633.

B. All that property which was conveyed to Susie M. Lantz by James R. Bishop et ux. by deed dated October 31, 1896, and recorded among said Land Records in Liber No. 30, folio 550.

C. All that property which was conveyed to Claudie H. Michael by James R. Bishop et ux. by deed dated December 28, 1901, and recorded among said Land Records in Liber No. 40, folio 271, etc.

D. All that property which was conveyed to Carrie W. Fleming by James R. Bishop et ux. by deed dated August 26, 1902, and recorded among said Land Records in Liber No. 42, folio 202.

E. All that property which was conveyed to Nedia C. Harvey by James R. Bishop et ux. by deed dated November 13, 1902, and recorded among said Land Records in Liber No. 42, folio 468, etc.

F. All that property which was conveyed to Philip B. Gough by James R. Bishop et ux. by deed dated November 13, 1902, and recorded among said Land Records in Liber No. 42, folio 476, etc.,

leaving TWENTY-EIGHT ACRES, more or less, to be sold by said Trustees, special reference to all of which said deeds is hereby made.

This is one of the most valuable farms in Garrett County. It is conveniently located midway between Oakland and Mountain Lake Park, a portion of it facing on the State road. This property is splendidly situated for farming, trucking or a suburban development. There is a very good spring on the property.

THIRD: All that farm formerly consisting of SEVENTY ACRES, which is commonly known as the "Charles E. Harness Place," or the "Chicken Farm," adjoining the town of Oakland, and on the State Road, which is described in a deed from Charles E. Harness et ux., dated the 15th day of November, 1871, and recorded among said Land Records in Liber No. 35, folio 203, excepting the following parcels heretofore conveyed:

Lesson for April 5

JESUS TEACHES HUMILITY

GOLDEN TEXT—For whosoever exalteth himeelf shall be abased: and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.
LESSON TEXT—Luke 14:1-14; 18:15-17.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus and the Children.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jeeue Teachee Consideration for Others.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Giving Others the Preference.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Spiritual Democracy.

I. Jeeus Dining With a Pharisee (v. 1).

Jesus moved in all circles of human society, thus showing his divine sympathy. The Christian's influence is best when mingling with his fellows in all right relations and positions in life.

II. Jesus Healing a Man With the Dropsy (vv. 2-6).

1. Why this man was present (v. 2). While there is no way of absolutely determining, it was most likely a part of the plot of the Pharisees to trap Jesus by getting him to violate the Sabbath rules.

2. Jesus' question (v. 3). His question was an answer to the thoughts of the lawyers and Pharisees who were watching him. Before healing this man, he submitted his case to their judgment. They were free on the Sabbath to hold a feast where their selfish pride and vanity could be displayed, but they were horrified that a fellow man should he healed on that day.

3. Jesus healing the man (v. 4). While they were in a state of embarrassment, Jesus healed the man.

4. Jesus rebuked them (vv. 5, 6). He laid bare their hypocrisy by showing them that their willingness to show mercy to a beast on the Sabbath should induce them to regard as not sinful the relieving of a human being of distress on the Sabbath.

III. Jesus Rebukss Selfish Ambition (vv. 7-11).

1. The occasion (v. 7). He observed that the guests while taking their places at the table chose the best seats for themselves. This is still true of men and women in railway cars, hotels, street cars, etc.

2. Instruction given (vv. 8-11). When bidden to a feast take the lowest place lest you suffer the humiliation of being asked to take a lower seat. This is more than a lesson on courtesy or table manners. It was a severe rebuke of that selfishness which fills the human heart, causing it to seek to be ministered unto instead of ministering to others. The declaration of Jesus, "Whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted," sets forth the fundamental principle of the philosophy governing the moral world. The one who has experienced the redeeming love of Christ will gladly take the place assigned him.

IV. The True Motive in Deeds of Charity (vv. 12-14).

The Jews, like many of the rich today, made social dinners occasions for display. They invited only those whose wealth would enable them to recompense them by inviting them in return. Jesus took note of the selfishness thus displayed and set forth to them the right principle governing hospitable deeds. Such benevolent acts should be extended to the poor and afflicted. All charitable deeds should be done with unselfish motives. They should proceed from the one aim; namely, to confer benefits without expectation of a recompense. Jesus assured them, however, that recompense would be made at the resurrection of the just.

V. The Child Example (Luke 18:15-17).

1. Spiritual contact with Christ sought for children (v. 15). Presumably this was done by the parents. The time of all times to effect contact with Christ is in childhood.

2. Rebuked by the disciples (v. 15). Seeing Christ's time so completely taken up with adults, the disciples thought that bringing the children would be an instrusion.

3. Welcomed by Jesus (v.16). Mark says, "Jesus was displeased with the conduct of the disciples"; that is, was indignant. Christ called the children unto himself, thus showing their relative value.

4. What he said about children (vv. 16, 17). "Of such is the kingdom of God." Childhood is the character which proves citizenship in the kingdom. Two traits are pre-eminent in childhood: (a) Absence of self-consciousness; (b) Natural trust. The way to realize this character is through surrender to Jesus Christ.

Teachings of the Bible

The foundations of our society and our government rest so much on the teachings of the Bible that it would be difficult to support them if faith in these teachings should cease to be practically universal in our country.—Calvin Coolidge.

Encouragement

Nothing earthly will make me give up my work nor despair; I encourage myself in the Lord my God and go forward.—Livingstone.

CIVIC CLUB PRESIDENT GIVES REPORT FOR 1930

Better Homes, Better Community, Is Keynote of Club

The following report of the activities of the Oakland Civic club for 1930 was given at the regular meeting of the club on Tuesday afternoon, by Miss Lottie Loar, president:

Our key-note has always been "Better homes, better community." This year we added one word—"beautification"—beautification of the home and its surroundings.

We began by planting 1500 trees, covering two acres on State Reservation at Herrington Manor, near Oakland, the Boy Scouts, assisted by the State and district foresters, doing the work. At last report 75% of the trees were not only living but growing.

We put on a Yard and Garden contest which in spite of the drought and other handicaps was successful beyond our expectations, not alone in marked improvement throughout the town, but in the brightness it brought into many lives. There were 251 entrants, very few of whom did no work, but many working into the night. A garden pilgrimage in which 26 yards and gardens were open to inspection gave opportunity to each entrant to visit others. Tea was served at one of these stations and silver offering taken. Prizes in gold were given at end of season.

A greeting of welcome was expressed by the flower committee in the planting of a bed of brilliant blooming flowers in a vacant spot.

National Music Week was observed by an afternoon of music for the community, Boys' Band, High School Orchestra, Girls' Glee Club, and Grammar School in action songs, participating; also an address on "Ministry of Music to Human Life." This was held in the Maryland theatre, which was filled to capacity.

For our entertainment we have had vocal music by Miss Bess Hinebaugh, of Pittsburgh; Miss Jane Robinson, Mrs. Harold Harned and Mrs. Frederick Thayer; instrumental, Miss Daisy Grant, of Washington, in two short recitals; readings by Mr. Carl Emerson Williams, of Byron King School of Oratory, of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Edward Offutt.

For our instruction we have had addresses and talks by Mr. H. C. Buckingham, District Forester, at a special meeting of club members together with high school students in biology on Reforestation and Roadside planting; Mr. Bushrod Grimes, on Aims of the Allegheny Table-land Association; Miss Jean Christy, Regional Leader of the National Girl Scout Organization, on the work of this movement; Rev. D. C. Trimble spoke on the George Washington Centenial Celebration; Mr. Wm. Weber, local florist, on Perennials; Miss Alma Scherr, of Morgantown, on Accomplishments of their club; Mrs. James Willison, Importance of women attending local primaries, and on What are Federal clubs working for; Miss Martin, county nurse, Work needed and being done in county; Mrs. Fahey, county nurse, Training of Welfare Workers and need and benefit of dental clinics in schools.

Five children have received hospital care through our welfare department. Tag Day at the County Fair realized a goodly sum for this work.

Responding to an emergency call from our truant officer and county nurse for clothing for girls of school age through the county, we have made approximately 80 dresses and 40 undergarments, women out of town as well as in, helping club members in this work.

Our records show the sponsoring of the Girl Scout organization, also the discussion of many bills to be passed upon during legislative session. Many of these we endorsed—others not. Many letters were written to representatives, both as a club and individuals. One to our governor, at request of District Foresters. We endorsed action taken by, and voted to cooperate with, the Conservation committee of Federated Garden clubs in the cutting and selling of Christmas greens, according to Maryland laws.

Sent two delegates to annual meeting of Northern District, in Frederick, in April. Meeting, by invitation, with the Kitzmiller club in November, was much enjoyed by the nineteen who attended. We could not but feel the contagion of their enthusiasm.

We were glad to cooperate with the Town Council in its clean-up-campaign. Received the advice and suggestions of a landscape artist sent us from University of Maryland Extension Service. Secured from same source blue-print specifications for the "beautification" of High School grounds by the planting of trees and shrubbery.

In February arrangements were completed by which we were enabled to secure lease at nominal rental, but free of taxes and assessments, on the Oakland Hotel grounds for the purpose of "beautification".

Respectfully submitted,
Lottie M. Loar, President.

IMAGINE... NO TELEPHONES!

WHAT confusion! What chaos! One simply can't imagine a world without telephones. We are so accustomed to seeing them everywhere, to using them for every conceivable purpose, that they seem to have become a very part and parcel of the life of today.

Yet this vital public service could never have come into such universal use unless the prices charged had been so low, as to place it well within the reach of all. No service or commodity furnished the public today, when compared to it in usefulness, costs as little as telephone service.

COUNTY HIGH SCHOOLS SET RECORD DURING 1930

Number of Students Completing Fourth-Year Studies Called The Highest

BOARD PREPARES DATA

A larger percentage of white pupils enrolled in public schools in the counties completed their fourth year of high school in 1930 than in any preceding year, it was announced Saturday by the State Department of Education.

At the close of the school year last June there were 4,000 white pupils enrolled in the last year of county high schools, it was reported. The number of boys enrolled in the fourth year of high school was one-sixth that of boys in the first grade, while the number of girls was one-third of the number enrolled in the second grade, the report said. The maximum enrollment for boys and girls, 17,777, was found in the first grade. In the last three years of high school there were enrolled 700 more girls than boys.

Decreased After Fourth Grade

After the fourth grade the number of pupils enrolled decreased gradually. From the first to the seventh grades, inclusive, the number of boys exceeded the number of girls, although in the last few years there have been more girls than boys in the seventh grade.

All the counties have seven-grade elementary systems, with the exception of Allegany, Anne Arundel and Washington counties, and in Montgomery county schools adjacent to the District of Columbia, it was explained.

10,140 Graduated Last Year

White pupils graduated from county elementary schools in 1930 totaled 10,140, it was reported. Of this number, 4,857 were boys and 5,283 girls. This number represented 9 percent of the white boys enrolled in elementary schools and 10.5 percent of the girls. In the seven-grade system, assuming a stationary enrollment, the maximum percent to graduate would be 14.3.

The highest percentage of boys graduating from seven-grade elementary schools was in Talbot county, with 11 percent, while the lowest was in Dorchester, with 7.9 percent. The highest percentage of girls graduating was in Kent county, with 14 percent, while the lowest was in Howard, with 9.6 percent. In five counties, Garrett, Howard Montgomery, St. Mary's and Prince George's the boy graduates outnumbered the girl graduates, it was reported.

Homemakers' Column

By Miss ELSIE M. BENTHIEN, Home Demonstration Agent

Extension Service Items

A group of ten women met Wednesday, March 25, at the home of Mrs. George Pritts at Vindex for their first Homemakers' Club meeting with the home demonstration agent and Miss Edythe Turner, district home demonstration agent. The April meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Tyler Arnold.

The Kitzmiller Homemakers' group met at the Health Center, Wednesday evening, March 25, with the home demonstration agent and Miss Turner.

The Selbysport Homemakers Club met with Mrs. Martin Frazee Thursday, March 25. Miss Turner, district home demonstration agent, gave a series of short cuts in sewing.

The second lesson of the 1931 home flower garden project was held at the Court House, Oakland, Friday, March 27th. There was perfect attendance of the project demonstrators from the four districts. There will be a flower seed exchange at the April meeting.

The following books have been distributed in the Homemakers Clubs in the county for the new reading circle: "A Lantern in Her Hand," by Bess Streeter Aldrich; "Singing in the Rain," by Anne Shannon Monroe; "Gians in the Earth," by Rolvag.

Applications for C. M. T. C. Exceed Quota by 1,500

Applications for the 1931 citizens' military training camp for the Third Corps Area exceeds the quota, according to reports from headquarters at Baltimore, the War Department has announced.

The quota for the Third Corps Area is 4,600, and applications numbering 6,171 have been filed for the 1931 training period. Garrett county's quota is ten, and thus far Ronald Lohr is the only boy to apply.

The month's training in camp, from July 2 to July 31, is offered without expense to the participants. Railroad fare, food, shelter, medical attention, athletics, and recreation are all provided free by the government. In camp the students have regular periods for drill, instruction in first aid and personal hygiene, duties of citizenship, swimming and instruction in life saving. As part of the routine habits of punctuality, neatness, mental alertness, proper physical carriage become second nature.

Anyone from 17 to 24 years of age desiring applications may get them from Mr. F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools, from principals of the various high schools of the county, or from members of the organized reserve.

Home Demonstration Agent's Schedule, April 7 to 11

The following schedule was given out by Miss Elsie Benthien, home demonstration agent, for the week April 7 to 11 inclusive.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 55. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, APRIL 9, 1931. NUMBER 8.

LAWS AFFECTING COUNTY ENUMERATED BY MARKLEY

Garrett County Representatives Return Home Following Adjournment Monday Night

SEVERAL BILLS KILLED

Measures affecting Garrett county passed by the General Assembly in the session which closed Monday night, were explained this morning to The Republican by Assemblyman Albert Markley.

Senator McComas and Delegates Markley, Fike and Cullers all returned to their Garrett county homes following the close of the session.

A resume of the measures affecting Garrett county follows:

Bill to re-incorporate Mountain Lake Park with power to elect municipal officers to be voted upon in July, 1931, by property owners. An amendment to the bill permitting not only property owners but their wives, daughters and sons, otherwise qualified to vote, to participate in the election, was addcd in the closing days of the session. Passed.

Bill placing the County Commissioners on a salary of $1,000 annually and allowing them mileage at the rate of 10 cents per mile to and from the sessions of the body; the board to meet twice each month. Passed.

Bill allowing $750 as maximum expense for State's Attorney. Passed.

Bill amending fence law now in effect. Passed.

Bill authorizing bond issue of $15,000 for Kitzmiller. Passed.

Bill authorizing payment of sums by County Commissioners to fire departments of various county towns to inculde $200 for the town of Kitzmiller. Passed.

Bill authorizing and directing the County Commissioners to levy $400 for Friendsville fire department. Passed.

Bill authorizing bond issue of $25,000 for Grantsville, for water works.

Bill authorizing Grantsville to raise tax rate from 40 cents to $1.00.

Bills Killed

Bills introduced which were killed included a State bond issue for building McCullough highway to Pa. State line; election of school board members; prohibiting consolidation of schools; fence law for district 11 and 15; compensation bill to raise funeral benefits from $125 to $300; compensation bill raising the minimum and maximum rates of $8 and $18, to $10 and $20.

SIX RECEIVE CUTS AND BRUISES IN AUTO WRECK

Two Cars Collide Monday Morning on Youghiogheny Bridge

Six persons received several cuts, bruises, and other minor injuries when two cars collided Monday morning on the Oak street bridge crossing the Youghiogheny river, just west of Oakland.

The injured are John Hughes, Crellin, cut hands; Tom Sanders, Crellin, tongue and chin cut and chest bruised; James Mersing, Crellin, gash in head and jaw, and bruised chest; Oliver Shreve, Gormania, W. Va., head and hands cut, and knee injured; Clyde Miller, gash in top of head, temple, and hands, and knee bruised; a young boy, cousin of Shreve, injured his knee. No bones were broken. Mr. P. K. Adams, Crelling, occupant of one of the cars, was unhurt.

One of the cars, owned by Charles Mersing, of Crellin, a model A Ford, was badly damaged on the left front, and it is estimated that cost of repairs will be over $270. The model T Ford coupe, owned by Oliver Shreve, of Gormania, W. Va., who has been spending the past few months near Sand Flat, was practically a total loss. Both cars were traveling at a fair rate of speed, and, according to witnesses, both cars were on their proper side of the road until immediately before the accident.

First aid was rendered by Harold Dawson and Mrs. Walter Stevens, and later Dr. M. C. Hinebaugh dressed the wounds and took a number of stitches in the gashes about the faces and heads of the injured.

Installing Booths At Bakery

Six luncheon booths are being installed and other minor improvements are being made by Henry Lauer, proprietor of the Oakland Model Bakery. The booths will be separated from the store by a lattice work, and light lunches will be served there. The work will be completed in a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Hinebaugh, of Canton, Ohio, arrived here Saturday where Mrs. Hinebaugh is visiting relatives. Mr. Hinebaugh returned to Ohio Sunday evening.

Second Annual 4-H Rally To Be Held April 18

The second annual 4-H county rally will be held Saturday, April 18, at 2 p. m. in the Oakland High school auditorium, according to Miss Elsie Benthien, home demonstration agent.

The Oakland senior 4-H club members are in charge of the afternoon program: Elizabeth Browning and Alice Walter, registration; Mary Jane Riley, roll call of clubs; Frances Riley and Lois Ross, refreshments: Adaline Stuck, Alice Walter and Hasaleah Yutzy, recreation; Virginia Gilbert, pianist; Hasaleah Yutzy, Maxine Martin, song leaders; Mary Frances Yutzy, 4-H club exhibits.

A complete program is being arranged and will be announced next week.

MT. LAKE ACTIVITIES TO GET UNDER WAY JUNE 26

Conventions, Conferences and Other Activities Occupy Summer Until Last of August

TENNIS TOURNEY AUG. 10

An almost continuous list of conventions, conferences, and other activities covering the period from June 26 to August 16, is noted in a folder now being prepared by the Mountain Lake Park association, through the efforts of Frank E. Baker, superintendent.

The meeting includes camp meetings, Epworth league conferences, school of theology, summer school of missions, twelfth annual tennis tournament, and other planned local celebrations.

Following is a condensed program: June 26 to July 5, forty-eighth consecutive year, Mountain Lake Park Camp Meeting, interdenominational; leaders of national reputation.

July 13 to July 20, Pittsburgh conference Epworth League institute, twenty-fourth year.

July 20 to 27, Baltimore conference, Epworth League institute, sixteenth annual affair, composed of 500 young people.

July 27 to August 6, Summer School of Ministerial Training, Pittsburgh area, Methodist.

August 1 to 6, Summer School of Missions, interdenominational, Mrs. F. I. Johnson, leader.

August 9 to Sunday, August 16, inclusive, Moody Bible Institute Bible school.

August 10 to August 16, twelfth annual tennis tournament, sanctioned by the U. S. Lawn Tennis association; cups to be awarded.

Mountain Lake Park is considered an ideal place for conventions and it is claimed that the scenic beauty within a radius of 25 miles of the Park cannot be surpassed.

Plans Complete for Concert by Winchester School Band

Plans have been completed for the appearance of the Handley High School Band of Winchester, Va., at the Maryland theatre, Oakland, on the evening of April 17, according to R. R. Gilbert, director of the local band.

The band will consist of 52 members instead of 47 as originally planned, and Prof. McHwee, director, announces that a number of specialties have been prepared. The band will carry a drum and bugle corps, a male quartet, a xylophone player, cornet soloist and baritone soloist.

The members will play in Piedmont and Keyser on Thursday and will come to Oakland on Friday where a special program for school children will be presented in the afternoon, followed by the concert in the evening.

The Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland, sponsor of the concert, will go to Kitzmiller this evening to advertise the program arranged for the seventeenth.

General Pershing's Story of the World War Begins Today

General John J. Pershing's story, "My Experiences in the World War," will begin in this issue of The Republican.

He tells the story of what the American army did in the European conflict with frankness and it is a human narrative of the obstacles which he overcame.

He discloses the tremendous pressure brought to bear on him to brigade the American troops with the French, Britich, and Italian armies, and many other events of interest.

NEW COUNCIL ORGANIZES AT MEETING MONDAY NIGHT

Ralph Thayer Re-elected President—H. P. Stuck Succeeds Jesse J. Ashby as Member

APPOINTMENTS ARE MADE

The installation of the new members of the city council, and the organization of that body was effected on Monday evening at the regular monthly meeting of the Mayor and Town council, in the City Hall. Ralph Thayer was re-elected as president of the council.

H. P. Stuck was elected by the council to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Jesse J. Ashby, who assumed his new duties as treasurer of Garrett county on April 1. The council is now composed of Ralph T. Thayer, R. Carlton McComas, H. P. Stuck, Cheston H. Browning, George Kerins, and J. W. Whorton. Mr. Whorton was the only member absent at Monday's meeting.

The following committees were named: Water committee, H. P. Stuck, chairman; J. W. Whorton, George Kerins; Street committee, R. Carlton McComas, chairman, Ralph T. Thayer, C. H. Browning; Finance committee, C. H. Browning, chairman, R. C. McComas, R. T. Thayer.

Neil C. Fraley was elected tax collector over three other applicants, James O. Hinebaugh, George D. White, and Leo Helbig. Michael Maroney was named street commissioner; James Compton, water superintendent; A. G. Ross, clerk.

Mayor Grover Stemple made the following appointements: W. W. Dawson, attorney; B. B. Nethkin, chief of police; W. H. Byrd, weighmaster; E. I. West, police magistrate.

Other Business Transacted

Following the appointments short talks were given by the mayor, president of the council, and each member of the council spoke a few words, the keynote of all being co-operation for the good of the town. E. C. Lawrence was given permission to erect a brick dwelling on the State road at the north edge of town, and E. A. Browning was given permission to move a small outbuilding across Center street.

Announcement was made of an appeal session of the council on April 20, for the purpose of adjusting assessments. Monthly bills to the amount of $1,960 were passed. The next regular meeting will be held on May 4.

Electric Stove to be Awarded by Legion Auxiliary

A hot-point electric stove, on display at the West Penn Electric office, will be given away on May 4, by the American Legion auxiliary, it has been announced.

The award will be made at a benefit card party, to be held on that evening. The proceeds from the card party and stove will be used in purchasing uniforms for the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps. It is hoped that every one will take this opportunity to help the local corps.

MEN ARRESTED HAULING BIG LIQUOR LOAD HELD

Caton Brothers And William Knepp, Finzel, Caught with 300 Gallons, Must Face U. S. Court

JOHNSON PLEADS GUILTY

Harvey Caton, Earl Caton and William Knepp, all of Finzel, Garrett county, arrested in the recent raid by Federal prohibition agents staged primarily down in Allegany county, but eventually reaching out into the eastern section of this county, with the largest seizure of the raid, were given a hearing last Saturday morning before United States Commissioner Thomas J. Anderson at Cumberland and held in $1,000 bond each on the charges of conspiracy to possess and transport liquor.

The men, who were arrested as their truck, loaded with 300 gallons of whiskey, was parked on a side road leading from Finzel to the National Highway, awaiting the prohibition agents who had previously posed as big time rum runners and "ordered" the whiskey to be delivered to that spot.

William A. Gunter, attorney for the three men, contended that Harvey Caton and William Knepp were merely passengers on the truck and had no connection with the liquor, styling them as "hitch-hikers."

The men testified that they had accepted a ride to a nearby wood-sawing camp and had no connection with the load of liquor. The original bonds posted for continuance of the hearing, were extended to cover their appearance at the United States District Court.

Bryan Johnson, arrested in connection with the other major seizures of the raid, when 210 gallons of illicit spirits was found and confiscated at the Johnson farm, had previously entered a plea of guilt.

Nightingales to Sing Sunday

The Nightingales, a junior choir for girls, will sing at St. Paul's M. E. church, Oakland, on Sunday morning, April 12, it has been announced.

This is the second appearance for the choristers, they having appeared at St. Mark's Lutheran church on Palm Sunday, when they sang "The Lord is my Shepherd."

Other engagements include the Presbyterian and Episcopal churches of Oakland, and the Methodist church of Mt. Lake Park. The choir is under the direction of Mrs. D. Edward Offutt and Mrs. Donald Sincell.

Changes Are Made in Keyser Ridge Bus Schedule

Important changes in the Oakland-Keyser Ridge bus schedule were announced by Richard West, of Dotson and West, bus operators, yesterday.

The new schedule calls for busses to leave Oakland for the Ridge at 6:45 a. m. and 2:40 p. m., where connections are made with Uniontown, Pittsburgh, Baltimore and Washington busses.

For further information regarding the schedule Mr. West can be reached by calling 97-J.

"WILD FLOWERS OF THE ALLEGHANIES," BY JOSEPH E. HARNED, IS RESULT OF MANY YEARS' RESEARCH

Book, Recently Published, Contains Only Such Plants As Are Grown in Alleghany Region

HAS UNIQUE FEATURES

The ambition in early childhood to make a thorough study of the wild flowers of this section, and complete a book which would be unique in its treatment of the subject, has been realized in the publication, "Wild Flowers of the Alleghanies," by Mr. Joseph E. Harned, of Oakland, just recently off the press.

The book, which consists of 702 pages and cover, contains a description of the character and habits of the flowers, flowering season and location; a concise definition of colors, references to medicinal properties, notations of the insects that assist in their fertilization; also numerous flower legends, historical references and a fully illustrated key to the most important diagnostic characters of the families represented. A check list of ferns occurring in the area is appended.

The book is unique in that only such plants as are known to grow in the Alleghany region are included in the pages, and is the first publication to present a fully illustrated key to the families of flowers represented. The author, recognizing the importance and advantage of a knowledge of distinguishing characters of the different families of plants, found it possible to arrange the illustrated key which shows 98 families of the plant world of the Alleghanies. The drawings are made by Mr. F. Schuyler Methews, Cambridge, Mass, a noted artist.

Mr. Harned has been collecting material for more than 35 years, and all his field experience and botanical study are shown in his description of plants which are more from personal observation than from text books. The publication was prepared especially as a supplement text, for popular use, and for the student of nature.

There are eight colored plates from paintings by Miss Mary Eaton and Mr. Mathews, with over 400 other illustrations from line drawings of individual species, leaf forms, floral characters and types of inflorescence, made especially by Mr. Mathews.

Oakland City Water Is Absolutely Pure

Oakland city water is absolutely pure, according to monthly tests which are being made by the State health department, and there is no foundation to a story appearing recently in a Baltimore paper that Western Maryland cities lacked in iodine content in water.

Last month's tests of Oakland city water showed a proper percentage of this necessary element, and furthermore showed that the water was 100 percent pure. Health authorities assert that lack of iodine content in water is the cause of goitre. Mr. Shaffer of the State department of Health was in Oakland on Tuesday getting samples of water from the new wells of the city water system.

GARRETT COUNTY 4-H CLUB MEMBER GETS B. & O. PRIZE

Merle Garletts, Selbysport, Given $100 Award Because of Excellent Work in Potatoes

Merle Garletts, Selbysport, Md., has been selected as the 1930 recipient of the $100 scholarship offered each year by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company for outstanding achievements in 4-H club work in the State, according to E. G. Jenkins, State Boys' Club Agent, University of Maryland Extension Service.

Merle, who is an active boy of sixteen years, is best known for his influence on potato work in his community. His potato project in 1929 was the source of certified seed for six farmers in his section. Ever since 1929, when he first became interested in the growing of high quality potatoes, he has been winning prizes for himself at various shows in the county and State.

In that year he won first prize at the Tri-State Potato Show in Oakland, and second honors at the Farm Bureau exhibit in Baltimore. He also showed potatoes at the 4-H club congress at Chicago that fall.

In 1930 Merle enlarged his potato project to two acres and showed a net profit of $108.70 above costs at the end of the year. In addition, he won second prize at the contest put on by the Advanced Potato Club of Garrett county.

In 1930 he was elected treasurer of Friendsville 4-H Potato Club, in which he has always been very active.

Merle is very active also in high school activities, having made outstanding and enviable records in dramatics, athletics, on his school paper and in the Glee club.

"The Crucifixion" Rendered at Good Friday Service

"The Crucifixion", an oratorio by Sir John Stainer, was rendered at St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church in the union Good Friday services. The choir was composed of members of the choirs from the Presbyterian, Lutheran and Methodist churches, and was under the direction of Mrs. Frederick A. Thayer, Jr., and Dr. John G. Robinson. Mr. Julius Littman was organist.

Members of the choir included Miss Jane Robinson, Mrs. Harold Harned, Mrs. M. C. Hinebaugh, Mrs. F. A. Thayer, Jr., Miss Mary Jane Kahl, Mrs. Charles Tower, Mrs. Karl Kahl, Miss Eva Falkenstein, Miss Kathryn Menhorn, Rev. W. B. Brock, Mr. Max Jarboe, Mr. Russell Brown, Mr. Frederick Thayer, Jr., Mr. Thaddeus C. Hinebaugh, and Dr. Robinson.

Easter Cantata Presented

"King Triumphant", an Easter cantata, was presented last Sunday evening in St. Mark's Lutheran church, by the church choir, composed of 18 members.

Members of the choir included Mrs. T. C. Hinebaugh, Miss Nell Compton, Mrs. Elinor Hoye, Miss Jane Kahl, Miss Flossie Shaffer, Mrs. D. Edward Offutt, Miss Jane Robinson, sopranos; Miss Eva Falkenstein, Mrs. Karl Kahl and Mrs. Donald R. Sincell, altos; Dr. John G. Robinson, Mr. Donald R. Sincell, Mr. William Frazee, Mr. George H. Hanst, tenors; Mr. T. C. Hinebaugh, Mr. Wade H. Hinebaugh, Mr. J. M. Falkenstein and Mr. H. E. Englehart, basses.

The cantata was under the direction of Dr. Robinson, with Mrs. H. A. Loraditch, organist. Solo parts were taken by Mrs. Karl Kahl, Mr. Hanst, Mrs. Offutt, Miss Robinson, Dr. Robinson, Mr. Sincell, Miss Falkenstein, and Miss Compton.

TENTATIVE LIST OF HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES GIVEN

140 Seniors of 5 High Schools are Eligible—Number is 32 Greater Than in 1930

GIRLS OUTNUMBER BOYS

One hundred forty seniors of the five high schools of Garrett county will be graduated in June, when the schools close for the year, if the members of the classes meet the requirements still necessary for their graduation, according to a tentative list received from F. E. Rathbnn, county superintendent of schools.

The graduates this year exceed by 32 those who were graduated last year in the same schools, and is the largest number ever to be graduated in any one year. Oakland High, with 51 listed, shows an increase of 12, and leads all other high schools; Friendsville with 17, has decreased 2; Accident with 26, has gained 10; Kitzmiller with 28, has gained 11; and Grantsville with 18, remains the same as last year.

The senior girls outnumber the senior boys 87 to 53. The greatest difference is found in Accident high where there are 20 girls and 6 boys. Kitzmiller has 14 each, Friendsville 8 boys and 9 girls, Grantsville 5 boys and 13 girls, and Oakland 20 boys and 31 girls.

Sixty-eight of the 140 are completing the general course, 54 the academic; 15 the commercial; and 3 the vocational.

Including those who are expected to be graduated this year, the number of students going out from the five high schools of the county since 1912, when the first class was graduated from Oakland High school, totals 986.

Students and schools from which they will receive diplomas this year are as follows:

FRIENDSVILLE HIGH

Academic

Margaret Laura Dunham, Merle Arthur Garletts, Mary Ophelia Guard, Ethel Maria McCullough, Lelia Gertrude Rodgers, Catherine Blanche Schlossnagle, Helen Betty Statler, Kathleen Lorenna Thomas.

CIVIC CLUB IS URGING ALL TO ENTER CONTEST

Second Annual Yard and Garden Contest Is Begun Here

To have all people who took part in the Yard and Garden contest last year, and from 75 to 100 additional names, is the aim of the Oakland Civic club which is sponsoring the second annual campaign to give every home in Oakland more attractive surroundings.

Every family in the city is being invited to enter and help make this second annual contest a much bigger success than was the case last year. There is no entry fee.

The first inspection of the judges is to be made on April 20, and an entry blank is being published this week in The Republican which all are asked to fill in and mail or bring to The Republican office or any member of the Civic Club.

Those who enter will be helping to create a healthier environment and to improve and beautify in general. Small home yards and gardens will have an equal chance with the more pretentious grounds in winning one of the several prizes offered.

Planning Celebration

The Civic Club is planning to beautify the High school grounds, and a celebration will be held on the school grounds on the afternoon of April 24. The various organizations of the city will be represented and the representatives will take part in planting trees and shrubs. Plans for beautifying were secured from the University of Maryland Extension Service last year and the planting of the trees and shrubs will coincide with the blue prints.

The school children will also take part.

To Speak At Rotary Meeting

Mr. H. F. Cotterman, professor of education in the University of Maryland, College Park, will be the speaker at the weekly meeting of the Oakland Rotary club tomorrow evening at 6:15 o'clock at the William-James hotel, it has been announced.

GATHERING GARRETT CO.'S EARLY CROP, MAPLE SUGAR

Warm Spring Days Will Soon Bring To An End the Harvest Of a Most Delicious Product

By P. Stewart Maeauley, in The Baltimore Sunday Sun.

This is the time of year when in some favored sections of the Northern States and Canada the first crop of the year is being harvested. Elsewhere farmers are in the middle of their spring planting and are looking forward to the late summer or fall when most of their crops will mature. But in the maple sugar belt the harvest season already has passed its height and in some sections is practically over. Up in Garrett county the sap began to run this year during the latter part of February and is probably about over now. Farther north where the climate is colder, in maple groves of Vermont, Upper New York State and Canada, the sap still is dripping and entire neighborhoods have taken to the woods until balmy days bring out the buds and put an end to the flow.

The production of maple syrup and maple sugar is confined exclusively to the North American continent. No one knows definitely just when the industry got its start. There is considerable evidence that the first white settlers of the St. Lawrence Valley learned the secret of the sugar maple from the Indians, who had developed crude methods of evaporating the sap of the tree into a kind of syrup and who may even have known how to make sugar. Probably they boiled the sap in wooden vessels by dropping red-hot stones into it and perhaps they had learned to freeze it and throw away the sap ice which has a very low sugar content. In any event the first Freneh settlers along the St. Lawrence were using maple syrup as early as 1685, when one La Houtan described its use in New France. Strangely enough the first mention of maple syrup in New England ls dated about 1720, a hundred years after the landing of the Pilgrims. If the Indians inhabiting that region knew the value of the sugar maple they must have guarded their secret very carefully indeed.

In the Colonial period and even for some years afterward maple sugar and syrup, aside from honey, were the only swectening available for the American table. They were not luxuries as they have since become, but actual necessities, and the business of eollecting and evaporating the sap was a large and profitable one. Even after the introduction of cane sugar the maple industry did not relinquish its hold entirely as a household necessity, but as the former became cheaper and more plentiful its use became almost universal. A few efforts were made to develop a highly refined maple sugar on the order of the white sugar of today, but no great success attended the experiments and they were abandoned.

But the mere fact that they nolonger were neeessities had very little effect on the market for maple products. The elusive, woodsy flavor which has no counterpart in any of the creations of man or nature has kept the industry very much alive. And there is no danger that it will die so long as the flapjack and the waffle remain. The fragrant, mellow extract of the maple tree today is as much a part of the typically American bill of fare as is the fricd chicken or the baked bean. Indeed, it has been sanctioned by a higher authority than either of these, for did not a recent candidate for the Presidency of the United States ride into office with an overwhelming majority after a eampaign in which a Vermont sap bucket played a prominent and appropriately silent part?

But outside the field of politics the sugar maple plays no small part in contemporary affairs. The production figures for the United States and Canada reveal the fact that the manufacture of syrup and sugar, if it is not a major industry, is at least an important minor one. Figures eited for 1920 by the Department of Agriculture reveal that this country produced more than 3,500,000 gallons of syrup and nearly 10,000,000 pounds of sugar. Canada equals our output in sugar, but manufactures only about 2,000,000 gallons of syrup annually. New York leads all the other States in syrup production with more than a million gallons and Ohio and Vermont follow with approximately 700,000 and 650,000 gallons, respectively. But the Green Mountain State vindicates the reputation established for it by its eminent native son by leaving the others far behind in the production of sugar. llcr output in 1920 was 6,250,000 pounds, New York running a very poor second with 2,000,000 and Pennsylvania barely ln sight with just a half million pounds.

Maryland stands in twelfth place, according to the figures cited, with 23,155 gallons of syrup, but she jumps up to fifth place in sugar production, with 150,957 pounds. And if it were not for the counties in the extrme western end of the Stace, Maryland wouldn't be in the running at all. Only there is the climate suitable for the production of sap in quantities sufficient to make its collection commercially profitable. Some varieties of maple will grow fairly well in any temperate climate, but the "hard" maples, which produce the sweet sap in abundance are a bit more particular. And, even where they do grow, they will not produce sap in usable quantities unless the climate is just right.

This accounts for the camparatively restricted area of the sugar-maple belt. The ideal climate is one in which the transition between winter and spring is a long one—where along about the latter part of February or early in March the days begin to warm up a bit but the nights remain frost-bitten. The northeastern tier of States and the corresponding land across the St. Lawrence and the lakes in Canada are the most prolific producers of maple syrup and sugar. Farther south the industry exists only in such mountainous areas as approximate the climatic conditions of the upper States. In the warmer climes nature is too efficient; she sends the sap coursing through the trees and almost immediately they burst into bud, unimpeded by mighty frosts. When the sap is running up north the natives cast apprehensive eyes at the weather lest it beeome unseasonably warm, for without the eold nights nature would complete her work of foliation with too much dispatch and the season would come to an untimely end.

A GARRETT COUNTY MAPLE SUGAR GROVE IN WINTER

At best the sugar making season is a short one and those who work at it must be on the alert constantly lest nature steal a march. Especially they must be ready and in the field with all of their equipment the minute the sap begins to run. For the first run always is the fastest and clearest and nearly always it has the highest sugar content. Later in the season the flow becomes more and more uncertain and the sap itself becomes cloudy and takes on a yellowish tinge; still later this color becomes more pronounced, the liquid is less pleasant to the taste and the old-timer realizes that he is drawing nothing but "buddy sap," the term applied to the fluid after the buds have begun to form in the tree. When the buddy sap appears the buckets are hauled in, the spouts are drawn out of the tree trunks and the harvest is over for another year.

The actual process of collecting and refining the juices of the maple tree has changed very little with the passing years. Modern improvements have been introduceed, but they are merely refinements on the methods used when first the white man began to exploit this sweetest of nature's gifts.

The cry of "sap's running" still brings out the whole household and perhaps the entire neighborhood. Trees still must be tapped and buckets still must be tended by hand. The ancient sledge or stone-boat still glides among the trees carrying the huge tank in which the sap from individual trees is collected and hauled to the huge fires over which the evaporating process takes place. And these fires still are, as a rule, in the heart of the grove and the acrid wood smoke which they give off adds a tang to nir that already is laden with the soul-moving flavors of approaching spring.

Even the traditions of olden days have not been lost entirely. The Department of Agriculture does not hesitate to advise as to the best methods of planting and thinning trees and to the most efficient devices for collecting and refining the sap, but even this august authority equivoeates when confronted with the problem of which side of the tree is best to tap and the equally moot question of how large the hole should be. From time immemorial natives of the sugar-maple country have failed to reach any harmonious conclusions on these points. Some say the trees should be tapped on the south side where the greatest amount of sunshine falls; others contend that the longest and best flow is obtained in the north side of the trunk; a few, just to be different, hold out for the east. The department experts simply review the eontroversy and allow the prospective maple culturist to take his choice.

There are still some sugar camps where the old-fashioned iron kettle is used to evaporate the sap, but these usually are found in groves so small that the production does not warrant the purchase of more expensive and more efficient equipment. In the well-ordered modern camp the sap is hauled alongside the evaporating house on sledges and emptied by gravity into large storage tanks. Thence it goes into a modern evaporator consisting of a series of metal trays over a big wood fire. By means of ladles or siphons it progresses from one trap to another for the various stages of evaporation until it is drawn off from the last one as a finished product. But in the process it must be tended very carefully; the temperature must not be too high nor too low; sediment must be removed by skimming or settling—the latter accomplished by the addition of the white of an egg, whole milk or soda—and usually the process is topped off by filtering hot syrup thru flannel to remove the last impurities.

Old-timers used to be quite adept at determining the exact moment when the syrup had reached the proper consistency and was ready to be removed from the fire, but their methods were derived from the rule of thumb. The speed with which bubbles rose to the surface or the rate at which the syrup poured from a spoon or ladle used to be the guides, but now the modern hydrometer has taken their place and the human element has been removed entirely. The United States Food and Drug Act, which specifies that maple syrup must contain not less than sixty-five per cent of solids and must weigh eleven pounds per gallon, has removed a lot of the guesswork and has also, without doubt, resulted in a considerably improved product. For if the solid, or sugar content, rises much above sixty-five per eent there is a tendency for the sugar to crystallize and if it is much less than the standard a great deal of the flavor is lost.

The manufacture of maple sugar is simply an extension of the evaporation process to the point where a great deal more water is removed. But as one may prove the youth of an egg by poaching, so may the quality of sap be determined by attempting to reduce it to sugar. So called "sour sap" and sap which contains lmpurities can be made into syrup, of an lnferior quality to be sure, but still edible and marketable. But only the clearest and purest can be concentrated into hard sugar; the other kinds produce a soft, "mushy" product of practically no commercial value. In boiling the syrup for sugar there ls great danger that it will boil over the rim of the container and to meet this emergency various methods are employed. The newest evaporators have devices whereby small, measured quantities of butter or sweet oil are poured over the surface to still the turbulent syrup, but the Department of Agriculture still recommends, along with these, a chunk of fat meat hung so that it reaches just a bit below the surface of the vessel and so that the boiling syrup, upon reaching it, will melt the fat over the surface.

The sweet which nature provides from the heart of a tree is far from a constant quantity or quality. Early sap, as has been said, usually is clearer and has a higher sugar content than that which flows later. But there are also seasonal variations to be taken into accouut and climatic conditions in a single year may have considerable effect on the quality of the product. With sugar content ranging from one-half of one per cent to as high as ten per cent each tree annually may produce from five to forty gallons of sap, and may contribute a pint to a gallon of syrup or from one to seven pounds of sugar. From the point of view of averages it is computed that one barrel, or thirty-two gallons of sap may be turned into one gallon of syrup or seven and a half pounds of sugar, and on this basis the average tree may be expected to produce three pounds of sugar or three pints of syrup.

Government authority in both the United States and Canada has stepped in to bring about a standardization of quality in the sugar-maple industry with, on the whole, very satisfactory results. In both countries various grade classes have been set up and producers have been urged, through the agency of cooperative selling organizations, to conform to these standards.

Last year in Garrett county where practically all of Maryland's sugar-maple industry is centered, approximately half the producers banded together into the Garrett County Maple products Association. This association acts as a sales agency for the disposal of the members' erops and the various grades, as specified by the Department of Agriculture, are segregated and packed in containers bearing the labels distinctive of the Maryland growers.

Those who become poetic over the excellence of the maple syrup as a comrade of the crisp, hot waffle will be dismayed to learn of its much more prosaic fate. Whole maple groves' output goes to the tobacco companies, whieh find the syrup an ideal sweetener for chewing tobacco.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By SCOOP—HIMSELF

Scoop has received exclusively a number of amendments with the request that they be attached to the Mountain Lake Park charter bill, but it is probably too late to have the proposed amendments incorporated in the paper, the Legislature having adjourned Monday night or Tuesday morning after the clock had been set back times innumerable. The amendments provide that—

Groundhog day be changed to the 21st day of March, the date spring is officially due, and that it be a legal holiday.

The annual tennis tournament be held the first Saturday after the first full moon after the 21st of March.

That instead of Murray White being Mayor of the city that he be appointed official weather forecaster, he having predicted 23 snows for this winter, not including the one now blowing.

Each valentine or April fool card mailed at the Park bear the photo of Bob Moomaw holding a 23-inch parsnip grown by the Park gardener.

The Legion Dance

On the whole the pie-eyed and anti-freeze solutionists, hair tonickers and iron stomachists conducted themselves on the dance floor as scholars and gentlemen. They held up (or were held up) so well that if it had not been for their staggering, their dull eyes, flushed faces and unconscious actions one would never have known.

Except for a few B. & O. mallets that crossed and recrossed the floor as if they were yard engines with no brakes, and a few extra shouts from their whistles, everything was lovely.

The last piece was entitled, "The Moonlight in the dark of the Moon," a waltz, or "Who Blew Out the Electric Fuse?"

Wraps, hats, galoshes and overshoes were exchanged later at the foot of the stairway. Anybody who wants to trade an overshoe for the right foot for a left-footed one, please notify Bet. Dawson.

Forty Years Ago.

In days of old, when Oakland was young, when bathtubs were still hung up on a nail by the side of the kitchen door and bathrooms were unknown, the following was taken from a newspaper of that time. Only a few words are changed:

The first and common object of the bath is cleanliness. The hot bath will be found to be of the greatest service. Friction of the body with soap will ald in removing accumulated matter. Thls bath should be followed by a cold shower to avoid depression, which always follows (failure to observe this has caused the present depression).

Right here I wish to deprecate the pernicious practice indulged in by many of taking frequent hot baths.

A hot bath is never necessary oftener than once or at the most twice a week, provided the person takes a daily tepid or cold sponge bath and doesn't have B. O. A hot bath lowers vitality and disease resistance and may actually induce diseases, such as flat feet, halitosis or bathtub ringworm.

The Rise of Barbers

In Judge there is a story of "Why Barbers Wear White Coats," clipped by Gurney Williams and trimmed by George Lichtenstein. The story is so much like the history of Bittner & Stahl that it is being changed here and there to fit the occasion.

Dan Druff, alias Floyd Stahl, and "Ec"Zema, alias H. Bittner, have a barberous history. Dan started life as an apprentice in a blacksmith shop but he was a stropping young fellow and wanted his hone shop, so he decided to take "Ec" and go into the barber business.

He came to Shampoo (later called Oakland), thinking it would be a singe to make money. "Let's soap for some business," he said to Zema, and they worked themselves into a lather trying to brush up some customers, but things were terribly dull. The townspeople were scalptical and Dan didn't know how to salve the problem.

One day as Dan went down to Wilson's creek to drown himself in the old lotion, he saw a customer approaching. The customer was given a close shave and he was so grateful he told everybody and before long he had so much business he had to get a partner to shear it with him. People would comb for miles to get a close shave.

Then quite by accident he cut some hair off a man's chin, and he began to wonder about making a little money on the side, shaving off whiskers. "I could kill two beards with one stone," he told Zema.

In less than two years Dan had several men working for him and his barber shop was filled with the greatest collection of mugs you ever saw. If you don't believe it, go in there some day and look in the big looking glass.

Anyway, that's why barbers wear white coats. I mean, to keep the hair off their chests.

DEER PARK

Mrs. D. R. Hinebaugh gave her father, George Marley, Sr., quite a surprise on his 95th birthday, on April 1, when she invited his friends in to visit him. There were more than 50 friends who called on Mr. Marley during the day to say hello and wish him happy returns of the occasion. Mr. Marley received some nice gifts and enjoyed the day very much and would be very glad to have his friends call on him often. Those that visited him were: Mrs. E. Haulenbeek, P. J. LAST week when a Warner Brothers Theatre Manager asked the Kiddie Club members at their matinee what they would like for a treat, in unison they shouted "Imperial Ice Cream Cones."

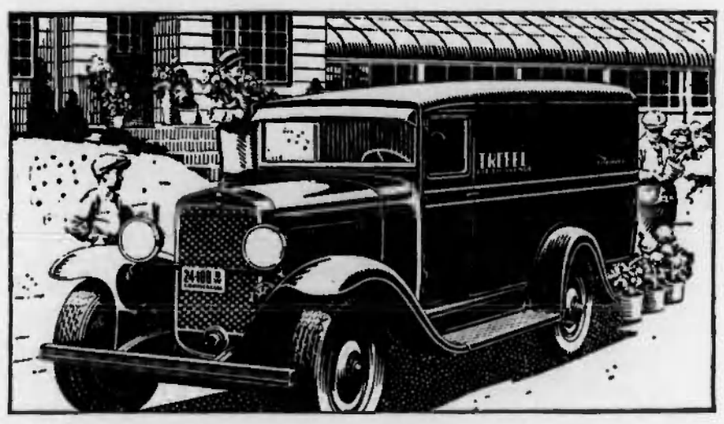
We appreciate this tribute immensely, and now for one week Imperial dealers are doing honor to the children, also the grown-ups, by featuring big Ice Cream Cones for 5c "The Nation's Biggest Buy." Thousands will enjoy the nourishing food qualities of ice cream packed into these pleasingly flavored cake cones during Cone Week.

A Suggestion to Parents:

MAY WE suggest that you treat your children to health frequently in buying these Ice Cream Cones. All children crave Ice Cream Cones.

Choose Chevrolet six-cylinder trucks for low first-cost and unsurpassed economy



The economy of using Chevrolet six-cylinder trucks is an actual dollars-and cents economy that shows up, month after month, on the balance sheet. It starts with a purchase price that is one of the lowest in the market for a complete unit. It continues throughout Chevrolet's long life with an operating cost that is unsurpassed!

Consider, for example, the cost-records of leading national organizations who use large fleets of Chevrolets. They prove (1) That no other trucks of equal capacity give any better gasoline, oil or tire mileage than Chevrolet. (2) That the cost of keeping a Chevrolet in satisfactory running order is unusually low. (3) That Chevrolet trucks are exceptionally reliable and long-lived.

Today, Chevrolet's proved economy is available to buyers in every truck-using field. For Chevrolet offers a new line of quality bodies that includes a type for every hauling requirement.

NEED SECONDARY ROADS—

There are three million miles of roads in the United States. One hundred and twenty thousand miles are high-type main highways, 600,000 miles are stone, gravel, or sand-clay. Fifty thousand miles more have been graded. And the balance is unimproved.

To produce this result more than $12,000,000,000 has been spent. Yet there are millions of Americans, principally on farms, whose business and social contracts are out of adjustment because of poor roads, impassable during several months of each year.

Only by the wisest, most cautious use of road funds can necessary secondary roads now be built without plunging communities into debt. A justifiable pride is taken in the magnificent, heavy traffic, trunk highways that go here and there throughout the nation—each mile of them represents necessary expenditure of tens of thousands of dollars. In contrast to this, full-width roads, passable at all times of the year, and adequate for tributary traffic, ean be built of local materials, bituminously treated, at a fraction of the cost.

The secondary, farm-to-market road might be called the backbone of our highway system. A million dollar highway is of small use to a farmer who lives five miles away on a dirt road, or to a merehant in a village which tourists avoid because of the bane of dangerous, semi-impassable roads. America's highway evolution will not be complete until our primary highway system is augmented by nation-wide feeder arteries of inexpensive, but weather-proof, local roads.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

The following ticket was nominated at a convention held in Oakland by delegates of the Prohibition party for county officers: Ephraim Lee and William Ryland, for members of the House of Delegates; Charles A. Wilt, Sheriff; G. V. Dixon, John Moon and G. G. C. Riley, for County Commissioners; James A. Enlow, Alex. Lower and Allen Teats, for Judges of the Orphans' Court; J. Lee Phillips, County Surveyor.

Mrs. George A. Crook, widow of General George Crook, moved to her new cottage on Crook Crest from the Manown (now Central Hotel properey) on Third street.

A considerable fall of snow occurred Sunday and Monday and the weather would pass for January or February, instead of April.

Mud twelve inches deep and in some places in the main streets of Oakland vehicles became mired down.

Rev. Thomas J. Stanton, who had been on a visit to his parents in Oakland for two weeks, returned to the Catholic University, Washington, D. C., Monday morning.

Prof. Charles Thatcher, of Moundsville, W. Va., organized a class in penmanship in Oakland. He lectured on the subject previous to the organization of the classs. The lecture was attended by a number of people.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

The population of Oakland was given in the 1910 census as 1366, indicating a gain of 196 over the previous census. The county population increased from 17,701 in 1900 to 20,105 in 1910.

A camp of Woodmen of the World was organized in Oakland by W. L. Loomis, of Crellin. Albert Ashby was elected presiding officer and W. L. Thomas, clerk, of the new fraternity.

The Oakland Construction Company was engaged in tearing down the Oakland Hotel. A small army of men and boys were engaged in the work of demolition.

Oscar Broadwater, returning to his home in the Grantsville section from Charles Frost's home at Wolf Swamp, was held up and robbed near Swauger's Mill. He was relieved of $800 in cash and several drafts.

Work of remodeling and enlarging the Garrett National Bank had been started by the contractors, Messrs. Holbert & Spedden, of Fairmont, W. Va.

State Registers 1,829 More Autos During 1930

Registration of motor vehicles in Maryland was increased by 1,829 last year, compared with 1929, according to the Bureau of Public Roads, Department of Agriculture. A total of 283,870 passenger ears, taxis and busses were registered, trucks and tractors numbering 37,832.

While the number of registered motor vehicles increased in Maryland, total registrations in the forty-eight States and District of Columbia decreased from 26,523,779 in 1929, to 26,501,443 in 1930.

Decrease is Noted

Registered automobiles, taxis and busses numbered 23,042,840 for the year, a deerease of 78,749 from the 1929 figures of 23,121,589. Registration of 3,480,939 motor trucks and road tractors showed a gain of 101,085 over 1929.

The State and the District of Columbia collected in registration fees, licenses and misccllaneous taxes last year a total of $355,704,860, which is $7,861,317 more than was collected in the previous year.

Collections from Maryland totaled $3,437,796.

New York and California each reported more than 2,000,000 passenger cars and motor trucks registered in 1930. Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Texas reported more than 1,000,000 each registered.

State Health Department to Hold Child Health Conferences

Beginning in April, child health conferences will be held throughout the counties for examination of children who will reach school age this year, according to a monthly statement of the State Department of Health.

Of those examined last year, 11 per cent of the white children or 334, were found to be free from handicapping conditions. Undernourishment was noted in 1,152; 1,825 needed dental attention; 1,518 had diseased tonsils; 185 had postural defects; 69 unfavorable heart conditions; lungs, 43. Of the totals, 1,422 whites had not been vaccinated against smallpox.

Garrett county reported 26 cases of notifiable diseases for February as follows: Whooping cough, 1; diphtheria, 3; influenza, 17; broncho pneumonia, 4; lobar pneumonia, 1.

The total number of births reported in Garrett county during February was 39. Three children under one year died in the county in February, the report also stated.

Foundation Garments

This season everyone, old or young, slim or stout, is wearing some form of corset. The new clothes demand that the figures have some support. Its aetual form depends upon the taste and individuality of the wearer. Some women prefer the one-piece garment that gives a smooth, unbroken line, but must be carefully fitted, while others insist on the girdle-and-brassier, because it allows a great deal of freedom of movement and requires less fitting.

The ehief thing to consider in purchasing a new undergarment is that it keeps you in where you are leanest and moulds the figures on natural lines. Larger skirts have caused the waist line to rise and grow smaller and the bust to be slightly aceentuated

The growing girl needs some sort of supporting garment. There are several models that eombine brevity and lightness with gentle restraint.

No matter how old or how young you are—no matter how slender or stout you may be—it is very essential that a foundation garment be worn to complete your costume.

The debutante slouch is passe; the maseulin figure is on the decline. To be up to the minute—develop those soft, pleasing curves—look feminine. Spring and summer fashions emphasize the feminine mode.

DIED.

WILLIAM GIES

William Gies, retired farmer of Garrett county, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. F. C. Diehl, in Grantsville on Saturday morning, April 4, from complications of diseases. He was born at the Cove 88 years ago and spent most of his lifetime in that community. He was well and favorably known in the county and had made many friends in the Grantsville community while a resident there. In 1865 he married Miss Catharine Duggan, of Mill Run, who died some years ago. He is survived by two sons, Newton Gies, of Accident, and John Gies, of Uniontown, Pa., and by one daughter, Mrs. F. C. "WILD FLOWERS OF THE ALLEGHANIES" PUBLISHED dent of the Wild Flower Preservation Society, Inc., states that the needs of the amateur and teacher have been constantly born in mind in the volume. Other noteworthy features, he states, are the discussions of the medical uses of many of the species, and of the legends which have grown up around them, the value of the field data, the correct identification of species, wild flower preservation, introduction to structural botany, and the key of families with verbal description and outline drawings showing the features characterizing the family.

An article, "Improving Flowers by means of Cross-Fertilization," by William Weber, of the H. Weber and Sons company, florists, of Oakland, is included in the book.

This is one of the few books of a technical nature to have been written by a local man, and it is expected that it will be very valuable to people of the whole Alleghany region.

Many leading botanists of the age have aided in proof reading the text, and in the more diffieult groups such as the composite family, the violet family and the rose family, the author has had the advantage of submitting his proof to specialists.

With the exception of the binding, and printing of the eight colored illustrations, the entire work of composition and publishing was executed by the Sincell Printing company, publishers of The Republican. The book is five and one-half by eight inches in size, and was printed on 70 lb. Cumberland Coated book paper. It is one and one-half inches thick, and the type is very legible, being somewhat larger than newspaper type.

The author is the proprietor of the Oakland Pharmacy and is a member of the American Association of Science, Botanical Society of America, American Nature Association, and Wild Flower Preservation Society.

The book is dedicated to the author's mother, "in whose garden of flowers I was taught to appreciate the beauties of nature; to await with fond expectancy the appearance of the first blossoms; to follow the marvelous development of flower-life through all stages until fruition was fully accomplished."

Life! We've been so long together,
Through pleasant and through stormy weather,
'Tis hard to part when friends are dear—
Perhaps 'twill cost a sigh, a tear;
Then steal away, give little warning,
Choose thine own time; say not "Good night,"
But in some brighter clime bid me "Good morning."

—Mrs. A. L. Barbauld.

TRUSTEES' SALE

OF

TWO VALUABLE FARMS

Near Oakland, Maryland,

AND

A VALUABLE RESIDENCE

On Water Street, In Oakland, Maryland.

Under and by virtue of a decree and supplementary decree passed by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, in Equity, on the 31st day of July, 1924, and the 19th day of March, 1931, in a cause wherein Stuart F. Hamill et al. are the plaintiffs and James F. Hamill et al. are the defendants, the same being No. 2538 Equity, the undersigned Trustees appointed to sell the real estate mentioned in said decrees, will on SATURDAY, APRIL 18, 1931,

AT TEN-THIRTY O'CLOCK A. M.,

In front of the Court House in Oakland, Maryland,

offer at public sale to the highest bidders, all the following described real estate:

FIRST: All that property situated on Water street, in the town of Oakland, commonly known as the "Malette Property," which is described in a deed from Gilmor S. Hamill to Elizabeth M. Hamiil, dated the 18th day of February, 1921, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County in Liber No. 79, folio 551, to which said deed special reference is hereby made.

This property fronts 38½ feet on Water Street and extends back 132 feet to Little Yough River. It is improved by a two-story, eight-room frame house, with bath and aii conveniences and is in good condition.

SECOND: All that farm formerly consisting of FORTY-ONE ACRES, situated at the East End of the town of Oakland, which was conveyed to James R. Bishop by John N. Ervin et ux. by deed dated December 28, 1867, and recorded among the Land Records of Allegany County in Liber No. 29, folio 28, excepting the following parcels heretofore sold and conveyed:

A. All that property which was conveyed to Jennie Smith and James O. Smith by James R. Bishop et ux. by deed dated August 5, 1887, and recorded among said Land Records in Liber No. 12, folio 633.

B. All that property which was conveyed to Susie M. Lantz by James R. Bishop et ux. by deed dated October 31, 1896, and recorded among said Land Records in Liber No. 30, folio 550.

C. All that property which was conveyed to Claudie H. Michael by James R. Bishop et ux. by deed dated December 28, 1901, and recorded among said Land Records in Liber No. 40, folio 271, etc.

D. All that property which was conveyed to Carrie W. Fleming by James R. Bishop et ux. by deed dated August 26, 1902, and recorded among said Land Records in Liber No. 42, folio 292.

E. All that property which was conveyed to Nedia C. Harvey by James R. Bishop et ux. by deed dated November 13, 1902, and recorded among said Land Records in Liber No. 42, folio 468, etc.

F. All that property which was conveyed to Philip B. Gough by James R. Bishop et ux. by deed dated November 13, 1902, and recorded among said Land Records in Liber No. 42, folio 476, etc.,

leaving TWENTY-EIGHT ACRES, more or less, to be sold by said Trustees, special reference to all of which said deeds is hereby made.

This is one of the most valuable farms in Garrett County. It is conveniently located midway between Oakland and Mountain Lake Park, a portion of it facing on the State road. This property is splendidly situated for farming, trucking or a suburban development. There is a very good spring on the property.

THIRD: All that farm formerly consisting of SEVENTY ACRES, which is commonly known as the "Charles E. Harness Place," or the "Chicken Farm," adjoining the town of Oakland, and on the State Road, which is described in a deed from Charles E. Harness et ux., dated the 15th day of November, 1871, and recorded among said Land Records in Liber No. 35, folio 203, excepting the following parcels heretofore conveyed:

A. All that property which was conveyed to John Ault by James R. Bishop et ux. by deed dated February 24, 1891, and recorded among the said Land Records in Liber No. 16, folio 472.

B. All that property which was conveyed to Thomas Wallace et ux. by James R. Bishop et ux. by deed dated July 25, 1891, and recorded among said Land Records in Liber No. 16, folio 777.

C. All that property which was conveyed to Enos Sell by James R. Bishop et ux. by deed dated June 1, 1893, and recorded among said Land Records in Liber No. 22, folio 371.

D. All that property which was conveyed to H. William Kahl by James R. Bishop et ux. by deed dated June 11, 1891, and recorded among said Land Records in Liber No. 19, folio 130.

E. All that property which was conveyed to H. William Kahl by Adeline B. Bishop et al. by deed dated July 26, 1905, and recorded among said Land Records in Liber No. 50, folio 422.

F. All that property which was conveyed to the Mayor and Town Council of the Town of Oakland by Elizabeth M. Hamill et vir. by deed dated November 23, 1919, and recorded among said Land Records in Liber No. 77, folio 125, leaving approximately FORTY-FOUR ACRES of said farm to be sold by said Trustees.

This farm is well located on the State Road near the town of Oakland. Most of the land is under cultivation. It is improved by a small dwelling, piped for running water from a good spring on the premises; a small barn and two chicken houses; all in a fair state of repair.

TERMS OF SALE—Cash on the day of sale, or one-third cash, one-third in twelve months and the balance in two years; the credit portions to bear interest from the day of sale and to be secured to the satisfaction of the Trustees.

BITTINGER

The sudden illness of the pastor, Rev. E. E. Campbell, prevented the holding of the confirmation and communion service in the Lutheran church here on Sunday morning, which service was announced to be held in last week's Republican.

A very well arranged and nicely prepared Easter service program was rendered by the young people of the Bittinger Lutheran Sunday school on Sunday evening.

Roy Hetrick and family, of Salisbury, Pa., visited Mr. Hetrick's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melchoir Hetrick, in this village, last Sunday afternoon.

Messrs. G. W. Engle, of Baltimore, and B. H. Wiley, of Reisterstown, Md., spent the week-end with friends and relatives here.

Mrs. Lydia Wiley, of Grantsville, was a week-end visitor among relatives here.

Norval Speelman, of Friendsville, spent last Saturday in this village where he was engaged in doing some engineering work.

Mrs. Columbus Oester and children, spent Sunday with Mrs. Oester's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Brenneman, at their home in the North Glade settlement.

Simon Orendorf, of near Grantsville, was a business caller in this village one day last week.

The following named pupils enrolled in the primary department of the village school, were neither absent nor tardy during the month of March: Hoyc Stanton, Kenneth Buckel, Everett Oester, Helen Brenneman, Gra... Detrick, Ruby Buckel, Evelyn Oeste... Grace Brenneman.

FIRE? . . HERE'S SERVICE THAT BRINGS THE OHIO RIVER TO QUENCH IT

Ashes had been dumped near a plant and a fill made, through which fire crept relentlessly, day by day. Closer and closer to the foundations it came. Unless its progress was arrested immediately the plant would collapse.

In this emergency officials of the industrial plant called on the public service company for a power line to connect their electric supply with pumps at the Ohio River . . . half a mile away. Without an hour's delay a line was started, and an ample supply of water assured. Pumps of sufficient capacity were put in place and connected. At the same time a pipe line was laid from the pumps to the burning ash heap. With the torrents of water now available the fire was quenched quickly . . . the plant was safe.

In emergencies like this, Monongahela people demonstrate, time after time, the tangible benefits of prompt and friendly service. For the whole organization takes pride in establishing new standards of usefulness for every one in the community.

Lesson for April 12

THE PRODIGAL SON

LESSON TEXT—Luke 15:11-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Likewise, I say unto you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth.
PRIMARY TOPIC—What to Do When We Do Wrong.
JUNIOR TOPIC—What to Do When We Do Wrong.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Father's Welcome to the Wandering Son.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Church and the Repentant Sinner.

The center of interest in this parable is not the prodigal nor his brother, but the "certain man who had two sons." He who fails to see the heart of our Father God will miss the purpose of the story.

I. The Son's Estrangement From the Father (v. 12).

There is every indication that this was a happy home, but a demon entered it and stirred up discontent in the heart of the younger son. He became tired of the restraints of home. His desire for freedom moved him willfully to choose to leave home—to throw off the restraints of a father's rule. Sin is essentially the desire to be free from the restraints of rightful authority and for selfish indulgence. At the request of the son "the father divided unto him his living."

II. The Son's Departure (v. 13).

Having made the fatal decision, he went posthaste to the enjoyment of his cherished vision. He quickly got his goods in portable shape. Having thrown off the restraints of his father's rule, he eagerly withdrew from his father's presence. This is always the way sin works. Adam and Eve after they had sinned hid themselves. The son could not now stand the presence of his father so he hastened away, having "gathered all together."

III. The Son's Degeneration (vv. 13, 14).

He had a good time while his money lasted, but the end came quickly. The indications are that his course was soon run. From plenty in his father's house to destitution in the far country was a short journey. The sinner is soon made to realize the famine when such powers as ministered to his pleasure are burned out.

IV. The Son's Degradation (vv. 15, 16).

Having no friends to help him when his money was all gone, he was driven to hire out to a citizen to feed swine. It was a tragic change from being a son in his father's house to feeding swine in the far country. It is ever so. Those who will not serve God are made slaves to the Devil to do his bidding (Romans 6:16). How vividly this portrays the history of many men and women about us, and yet it is the picture of the inevitable consequences of sin.

V. The Son's Restoration (vv. 17-24).

1. "He came to himself" (v. 17).

Upon reflection he was made conscious that though he had wronged his father and ruined himself, he was still a son of his father. In the daze of his sinning he was beside himself. The sinner continues in his sin because he is insane. The world calls the sinner who leaves off his evil ways crazy, but in reality he has just become sane.

2. His resolution (v. 18).

His reflection ripened into resolution. The picture of his home, where even the hired servants had a superabundance, moved him to make a decision to leave the far country and go home.

3. His confession (vv. 18, 19).

He acknowledged that his sin was against heaven and his father, that he had forfeited his right to be called a son, and begged to be given a place as a hired servant. The sinner not only should make a resolution—he should confess his sin.

4. His action (v. 20).

Action was needed. Resolution will not avail unless accompanied with action. When the confession is genuine, action will follow. Good intentions will not avail.

5. His reception by his father (vv. 20-24).

The father had not forgotten his son. His unchanging love followed the son all the time he was away, and longed for his return. He must often have looked for him, for he saw him when he was a great way off. So anxious was he for him that he ran to meet him and fell upon his neck and kissed him. So glad was the father that he did not even hear his confession through, but ordered the tokens of honor to be placed upon him, receiving him back into a son's position.

Boundless Resources

He is the God of boundless resources. The only limit is in us. Our asking, our thinking, our praying are too small. Our expectations are too limited. There is but one measure given for his blessing, and that is "according to the power that worketh in us."—A. B. Simpson.

FOREWORD

My primary purpose in writing this story of the American expeditionary forces in France is to render what I conceive to be an important service to my country. In that adventure there are many lessons useful to the American people, should they ever again be called to arms, and I felt it a duty to record them as I saw them.

The World war found us absorbed in the pursuits of peace and quite unconscious of possible threat to our security. We would listen to no warnings of danger. We had made small preparation for defense and none for aggression. So when war actually came upon us we had to change the very habits of our lives and minds to meet its realities. The slow processes by which we achieved these changes and applied our latent power to the problems of combat in Europe, despite our will, our numbers and our wealth, I have endeavored to describe. Therein lie the lessons of which I write.

I wish to dedicate this modest work to the men of all ranks who served with me in France, and especially to those who gave their lives to the cause for which we fought.

To my comrades of the allied armies I wish to say that I am not attempting to write a history of the World war or of the epic part they took in it. I write of our own army and for our own people, and I have not consciously magnified or minimized the effort of any army or any people. There is credit for all of us in the final triumph of our united arms. The struggle of the allies was much longer, their sacrifices very much greater, than ours.

I am grateful to President Wilson and Secretary Baker for selecting me to command our armies and for the whole-hearted and unfailing support they accorded me in France. No commander was ever privileged to lead a finer force; no commander ever derived greater inspiration from the performance of his troops.

JOHN J. PERSHING.

CHAPTER I

On May 3, 1917, four weeks after the United States had declared war on Germany, I received the following telegram from my father-in-law, the late Senator F. E. Warren, in Washington:

"Wire me today whether and how much you speak, read and write French."

At this time I was stationed at Fort Sam Houston, which adjoins San Antonio, Texas, and was in command of the southern department with the rank of major general. Naturally, Senator Warren's telegram suggested that I was to be assigned to some duty in France, but as no intimation had been given out regarding the extent of our active participation in the war, the message was somewhat puzzling.

However, I telegraphed the following reply:

"Spent several months in France nineteen-eight studying language. Spoke quite fluently; could read and write well at that time. Can easily reacquire satisfactory working knowledge."

Quotes Warren's Letter.

My reply, to be sure, was rather optimistic, yet it was comparatively accurate and perhaps was justified by the possibilities to be inferred from Senator Warren's telegram. A few days later I received from him the following letter:

"Dear Jack:

"This is what happened: Last night, about ten o'clock, the secretary of war rang me up and wanted to know if I would call in and see him this morning, and I responded that I would if I could wrench him at nine o'clock. This is the first time he has ever asked me to call for a consultation.

"When I reached him he said in the most distant and careless way: 'Oh, by the way, before I discuss the matter about which I asked you to call—do you happen to know whether Pershing speaks French? (This is the first time your name was ever mentioned between the secretary of war and me, direct.)

"I said I was not certain about that; that I knew he was a linguist along the lines of Spanish and, to some extent, Japanese, and all of the Philippine dialects (a pardonable exaggeration by one's father-in-law)—that perhaps my wife might know, as she speaks French a little and reads it readily.

"He said: 'Well, it is of no special consequence, only I happened to think of it at this moment.' I replied: 'Well, I'll ask my wife about it today and see whether she knows, and will let you know.' He then said: 'If you don't mind, do so.'

"And then he proceeded to discuss quite fully some appropriation matters on which I intended to go to work upon my arrival at the Capitol.

"I hope you will wire me promptly upon receipt of my telegram so that I may tell the secretary 'what my wife said about it (?).'

"Affectionately,
"F. E. WARREN."

Message Promises Command.

Shortly after the receipt of the private wire and before the above letter reached me, a telegram dated May 2 came from Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff, containing the opening words, "For your eye alone," followed by a message in code:

"Under plans under consideration is one which will require among other troops our infantry regiments and one artillery regiment from your department for service in France. If plans are carried out you will be in command. You will be in command of the entire force. Wire me at once designation of the regiments selected by you and their present stations."

I construed this message to mean that these troops were to form a division, which, together with such other troops as might be sent over at once, would be under my command.

Within a day or so after the receipt of Scott's telegram it was intimated to Col. M. H. Barnum, my chief of staff, that we might be called upon for a recommendation, and after consultation with him I selected the Sixteenth, Eighteenth, Twenty-sixth and Twenty-eighth regiments of infantry and the Sixth field artillery. These, together with two other artillery regiments and the necessary auxiliary units, were later organized as our first division.

Surprised by Developments.

I had scarcely given a thought to the possibility of my being selected to be in supreme command of our forces, as afterward developed, although my old friend, Maj. Gen. J. Franklin Bell, had written me that he thought my selection almost certain. After I left the Philippines, in 1913, where he was in command, he and I had kept up an intermittent correspondence in which we freely exchanged confidences on army matters.

In one of his letters early in April, 1917, General Bell spoke of the possibility of our sending an army to France and gave a list of the general officers who might be considered for the supreme command. Discussing the chances for and against each one, he predicted, much to my surprise, that all the others, including himself, would be passed over and that I would be selected.

I was the junior on the list of major generals, hence I could not fully accept General Bell's view, but he was so strongly convinced that he was right that he requested an assignment under my command.

The major generals senior to me at the time were, in order of rank: Leonard Wood, General Bell, Thomas H. Barry, Hugh L. Scott and Tasker H. Bliss.

CHAPTER II

I arrived in Washington May 9 and the next morning called at the office of the chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott. He spoke of my assignment, which, as had been my impression from his message of May 2, was to command a division, and told me that it had been made upon his recommendation.

General Scott outlined the general plans in so far as anything definite had been determined. Beginning with February 3, the war college division of the general staff presented a number of recommendations for action in the event of war with the central powers. One was for the enactment of a draft law and others referred to the size of the army to be organized and the necessity for the procurement of equipment and supplies.

Chagrined by Unpreparedness.

March 15, acting under instructions of the chief of staff, the war college division submitted a more detailed scheme for raising an army of 500,000 men. But these were all eleventh-hour suggestions and no definite action was taken on any of them until May 18, when congress passed the law authorizing the increase of military establishment through the application of the draft.

I was really more chagrined than astonished to realize that so little had been done when there were so many things that might have been done long before. It had been apparent to everybody for months that we were likely to be forced into the war and a state of war had actually existed for several weeks, yet scarcely a start had been made to prepare for it. The War department seemed to be suffering from a kind of inertia, for which it was probably not altogether responsible.

But the truth is that the general staff at Washington had never been organized along modern lines, its membership had been recently reduced by congress, and but few of its officers had the experience necessary fully to understand its functions. In this fact we no doubt find the basis of many of the difficulties that arose later in connection with the preparation of our army at home and its shipment and supply abroad.

Praise for Secretary Baker.

My next call was upon the secretary of war, Mr. Newton D. Baker. It was a much younger and considerably smaller man who greeted me than I had expected. He actually looked diminutive as he sat behind his desk, doubled up in a rather large office chair, but when he spoke my impression changed immediately. We talked of my recent experience in Mexico and of conditions on the border, which, fortunately, were quieter than they had been for several years.

Mr. Baker referred to my appointment and said that he had given the subject very careful thought and had made the choice solely upon my record. I expressed my deep appreciation of the honor, mentioned the responsibility of the position and said that I hoped he would have no reason to regret his action.

I left Mr. Baker's office with a distinctly favorable impression of the man upon whom, as head of the War department, would rest the burden of preparing for a great war to which the wholly unready nation was now committed.

Still proceeding under the assumption that I was to command only a division in France, my feelings may well be imagined when a few days later, the secretary of war called me in to say that it had been decided by the President to send me abroad as commander in chief, and that I should select my staff accordingly and prepare to sail as soon as possible.

The thought of the responsibilities that this high position carried depressed me for the moment. Here in the face of a great war I had been placed in command of a theoretical army which had yet to be constituted, equipped, trained and sent abroad. Still, there was no doubt in my mind then or at any other time of my ability to do the job, provided the government would furnish men, equipment and supplies. (To be Continued)

MT. LAKE PARK

The wording of the law recently published in The Republican was somewhat ambiguous. In a synopsis of the fish laws of Maryland it is very plainly stated "that residents of Garrett county * * * are not required to take out additional license to fish in Deep Creek Lake." But if one is a non-resident of Garrett county and a resident of the State, a Deep Creek Lake license will cost $2.75 and for a non-resident of the State, $5.25. All a Garrett countian needs in order to fish in the big lake is a $1.25 resident angler's licensc.

Mountainlakers are anxious to see a copy of the bill relative to the reincorporation of the Park. It is understood a number of amendments were made to the original measurc. These amendments may or may not be deciding factors and decide the fate of the proposition at the referendum—the election to take placc in August, we are informed. It would seem that the Act should have publicity in the press in order that all may vote intelligently. If very lengthy it could be published in installments.

Mr. James Lish, of the Bethlehem settlement, who some time ago suffered a slight stroke of paralysis, is at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Moreland, in Loch Lynn Heights, critically ill.

Mr. Elmus Ream, for the past year a teacher in the Commercial Department of a school at Keyport, N. J., has accepted a similar position at Orange, N. J., for the coming year.

Mr. Grant Hayden is spending a few days with his father, Capt. J. A. Hayden, who continues quite ill.

Mrs. Arthur Fike returned Saturday from Terra Alta where she had been visiting her mother, who is ill.

Special meetings are in progress in the U. B. church, with the pastor, Rev. J. A. Jessee, in charge. These meetings will continue the balance of the week, and possibly longer.

Rev. William Anderson preached at Crellin last Sunday evening.

Miss Adeline Dove, Miss Eva Welling, Joseph Barger and Franklin Cook, all of Cumberland, were Easter Day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley W. Welling at their home here.

Miss Edna Young, a teacher in the Duquesne schools, was an over-Easter guest of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Comerford.

Mr. and Mrs. Bushrod Grimes, Morgantown, are occupying their cottagc here for a few days.

Miss Bessie Zohn is in Fairmont, the guest of her sister, Mrs. Frank M. Murphy.

Mrs. Utterback and son Robert motored to Grafton on Wednesday.

Mr. Curtis B. Fleming, Fairmont, spent Easter Day in the Park.

GRANTSVILLE

Grantsville Residents Progressive

A step forward in municipal government and well-being of the community was registered on Monday at the municipal election when the voters of the town adopted a measure which was recently passed by the General Assembly authorizing the issuance of bonds in the sum of $25,000 for the erection of a water works system for the town. Out of a total vote of 188 the bonds were carried by 114 majority.

Town Officials Elected

At the municipal election held on Monday at the Council Chamber the largest number of voters participated in a number of years. This was by reason of the question of bonds or no bonds for a water system and also an interest in who should be the officials for the next term. The election resulted in the following being chosen as members of Council: Joseph F. Fahey, Daniel Klotz and Harry C. Edwards. The Mayor, A. C. Stanton, and two councilmen, J. W. Folk and Nevin Broadwater, are the hold-over members of the councilmanic body.

Birthday Supper

Dr. T. O. Broadwater was honored on his birthday last Friday when a "chop suey supper" was given to a number of friends by Mrs. Broadwater marking the event. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bender, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Gnagey, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Bender and son, Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Speicher; Misses Ethel and Viola Broadwater and Mr. John W. Livengood. Bridge was enjoyed during the evening.

Baker-Grosskinsky Nuptial

Miss Marie Grosskinsky, of Cove, and Mr. Clarence Baker, son of Saul Baker, of Greenville, Pa., were married Sunday, April 5, at Cove, by Rev. H. H. Firnchencher, pastor of the Cove German Lutheran church. Twenty-five guests attended the ceremony. Following the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Baker, with a number of friends, were dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Bear at the Cove.

Community Club Meeting

Mrs. Lillie Younkin was hostess at the meeting of the Women's Community Club on Wednesday afternoon. A large number of members attended. Miss Christina Winterberg conducted the business meeting, after which curtain and drapery materials and clothing were discussed by the members.

Quarterly Meeting

The third quarterly meeting of the Grantsville charge of the Methodist Episcopal church will be held at the Jennings church on Sunday morning, April 12, at 10:30 o'clock. Rev. Anderson, district superintendent, will be present and conduct the service.

Girl Scouts Meet

Miss Lena Custer entertained the girl scouts on Tuesday evening. A very entertaining program, including songs, recitations and drills were given by the Junior members of the troop.

Committee's Sale
—OF—
VALUABLE REAL ESTATE

Situate in the Town of Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland.

Under and by virtue of the powers vested in me as Committee of the person and estate of Idie T. Hayes by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, and by a decrec of said Court passed on April 2nd, 1931, in a cause standing as No. 2826 Equity on the docket of said Court, I hereby give notice that on at the hour of two o'clock P. M., in front of the Court House in the Town of Oakland, Maryland, I will offer and sell at public auction to the highest bidders all of those lots, pieces or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the said Town of Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland, as follows, to-wit:

1. All that parcel of land known as the HAYES HOME PROPERTY, and being No. 65 Green Street, in the said town of Oakland, and being the same which was conveyed to Idie T. Hayes by two deeds, the first from Mary W. Brown, conveying two acres and forty-one perches, bearing date August 26, 1908, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 58, folio 140, etc., one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and the second from James D. Hamill and wife conveying a lot 284¼ feet by 153 feet, bearing date May 1, 1920, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 77, folio 410, one of said Land Records of Garrett County.

This property is improved by a two story frame dwelling containing eleven rooms and basement, garage and small shed. This is a very excellent residence property, well situated and adapted either as a summer or all-year home.

2. All that property known as the "BULLARD PROPERTY," No. 25 High Street, in said town, containing one acre and thirty-three perches of land, and being the same which was conveyed unto Sara H. Hayes, Trustee, for the benefit of Idie T. Hayes, by deed from Agnes W. Willetts and husband dated June 22, 1924, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 95, folio 455, one of said Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

This property is improved by a large frame dwelling, garage and other outbuildings.

3. All that lot of ground known as FAIRVIEW CEMETERY in said town of Oakland, and being the same which was conveyed unto said Idie T. Hayes by deed from D. Lindley Sloan and wife bearing date September 15, 1920, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 79, folio 155, etc., one of said Land Records of Garrett County.

This lot originally contained 3 7-8 acres, but approximately one-third of the same has been sold off in cemetery lots, as will appear by reference to the conveyances recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, which said lots will be excepted in this sale.

4. LOT NO. 46 on the plat of HIGHLAND PARK in said town of Oakland, and being the same which was conveyed unto said Idie T. Hayes by deed from Webster Ravenscroft et al. dated May 17, 1920, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 77, folio 531, one of said Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

TERMS OF SALE—One-third cash on day of sale, one-third in six months and the remaining third in twelve months, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser or purchasers, the credit portions to bear interest from day of sale and to be secured to the satisfaction of the Committee. Conveyancing at the cost of the purchasers.

VOLUME 55. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, APRIL 16, 1931. NUMBER 9.

MAN KILLED WHEN HIT BY TRUCK NEAR GRANTSVILLE

Aged Man, Believed to Have Been Itinerant Preacher, Dies in Frostburg Hospital

TRUCK DRIVER NOT HELD

The aged man killed east of Grantsville Friday night, when hit by a truck, has been identified as E. I. Linn, with his last residence at Richmond, Va. He was 86 and was engaged in selling Biblical literature.

Information concerning him was secured from Mrs. John Close, nee Pearl Engle, of Sand Spring, on the west slope of Big Savage, this county. Mrs. Close stated that she had given him his breakfast Friday morning. While the aged man was seated at the table he said it was the first he had eaten for forty-eight hours and that he was weak from undernourishment. He said he had been in a hospital for two weeks at Richmond, and that he had no place to go except that he was going to try and get a job with some farmer to feed his stock for room and board. He said he had no relatives and nothing much to live for.

Burial of the man who was fatally injured Friday evening when he was struck by a truck operated by L. C. Morrison, of Keyser Ridge, 26 miles north of Oakland, will take place the latter part of the week at Grantsville.

Members of the coroner's inquest, which was called at the order of the State's Attorney, Walter W. Dawson, said the man's name was Eastern I. Linn.

Morrison was exhonorated of any criminal blame, the jury deciding that the accident was entirely unavoidable, and that the man had stepped into the path of the car.

The accident happened on the National Highway, about one and one-half miles east of Grantsville.

Officer Jesse M. Bradley, of the State Police, who investigated the case, said the man was walking along the left side of the road, toward Grantsville, and started across the highway when a horse and wagon approached him. Morrison's truck, also traveling toward Grantsville, struck the man and knocked him several feet.

Morrison summoned an ambulance and the injured man was taken to the Miner's hospital, Frostburg, where the stranger died at 9 o'clock without regaining consciousness. Dr. W. O. McLane, Jr., said the man suffered internal injuries, concussion of the brain, and fractures of the right arm and right leg.

The mishap victim appeared to be a man about 70 years old and his clothing, while rough and worn, was clean and in good repair. He wore a brown cap, light coat and blue trousers, with a dark stripe.

About seventy-five books and pamphlets, all of a religious character, and a small Bible was found in a small handbag the man carried. The name "Eastern Linn" was written in the Bible. Envelopes from publishers of religious books in Little Rock, Ark.; Fort Worth, Tex., and Takoma Park, Md., bore the words "E. I. Linn." No money was found in his pockets.

Allegany county State's Attorney William A. Huster, county investigator Terrence J. Boyle, and Sergt. Geo. P. Gearhart, of the State Police, aided Officer Bradley in the investigation. The body was taken to Grantsville, for action of Garrett county authorities. W. A. Gonder was named as coronor, and the foreman of the jury of inquest was A. C. Stanton, of Grantsville. The inquest was held on Saturday.

STRAWBERRY HILL, BOND WIN MARCH ATTENDANCE

All County High Schools are Below Standard of 94 Percent

Bond, with 99 percent, and Strawberry Hill, with 97.7, led the one-teacher schools of the county in attendance for March, 1931, according to John L. Fitzwater, attendance officer. Crellin with 96.8 led the graded schools, while Grantsville High school led all other schools with 93.4 percent. All high schools were below the standard of 94, set by the State. Oakland Grammar had a percentage of 87.6, while Oakland high was third among high schools with 91.4.

Fifty of the 81 one-teacher schools were above the standard of 88 percent, and four of the 11 two-teacher schools remained above the standard of 90 percent. In the graded schools Crellin, Kempton, Kitzmiller, and Accident were above the standard of 92.

One-teacher schools making 93 percent or above, included Bond, Short Run, Pine Swamp, Caton, Casselman, Gauer, Highland, Swan Meadow, Rich Hill, Dry Run, Broadford, Promised Land, Lynndale, Dorsey, Gorman, Green Glade, Black Hawk, Laughlin and White Rock.

FIREMEN KEPT BUSY BY 5 ALARMS IN 24 HOURS

Storage Building and Contents Destroyed at Crellin

With five fire alarms within less than twenty-four hours, the Oakland Volunteer fire department was kept busy on Monday afternoon and evening and Tuesday morning in subduing brush and grass fires, and flames which destroyed a storage house at Crellin.

A storage house, 14 X 20 feet, in rear of P. K. Adams' garage at Crellin, with its contents, was destroyed by fire on Monday afternoon. It was thought the building caught from burning brush, or from sparks from an engine. By the time the Oakland Fire department had arrived the building was enveloped in flames and it was impossible to save it, but the garage and other nearby buildings were not damaged. The building contained 18 rolls of roofing, about two thousand feet of lumber, garage tools and automobile accessories. Mr. Adams had recently rented his garage room to Clyde Mersing, and had stored his goods in the building which burned.

The brush fires occurred at the top of Columbia Hill, Mt. Lake Park; near the Deer Park hotel, and on the Paul Mitchell property, about one-half mile north of town along the State highway.

They had got beyond control of those who were burning the dry leaves and brush, and it was some time before the one at Deer Park and the one at Mitchell's were subdued.

After putting out the fire at Deer Park in the afternoon the department answered another call in the evening for the same place. The Mt. Lake brush fire occurred at one o'clock on Monday, while the one north of town occurred Tuesday morning about 10 o'clock.

The department answered another alarm this morning at 11:30 when a brush fire got beyond control in the field in rear of W. R. Offutt's home on Second street.

Mayor to Welcome Singers

Mayor Grover C. Stemple will welcome the Claflin Quartette with Miss Smith of Waycross, Ga., as accompanist, on Tuesday, April 21, when they present their program at the Maryland theatre, Oakland.

This quartette has recently had an audition at the Boston Conservatory of Music where the Conservatory director pronounced them the "Best Quartette in America," and announced his purpose of using the influence at his command to promote their projected European tour.

The leader of the quartette is Sinclair Swan, of Oakland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Swan.

Escapes Injury in Car Wreck

Guy O. Yutzy narrowly escaped serious injury last Wednesday evening on the Deer Park-Kitzmiller highway near Wilson, when he was crowded from the road by another car, completely wrecking the Whippet sedan which he was driving. He turned over several times but received no more than slight bruises. The car was owned by James Treacy.

MAPLE SUGAR PRODUCERS ENJOY SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Fifteen Producers of Maple Products Association Have Yield Federal-State Inspected

SEASON ABOVE AVERAGE

The Garrett County Maple Products association has just closed its second year operations successfully, according to John H. Carter, county agent, as well as the season for the other producers in the maple sugar and syrup industry in Garrett county.

Some difficulties were encountered at the beginning of the season in establishing a trade name, Mr. Carter stated. The Cary Maple Sugar company of Vermont filed an official protest at the Patent office, Washington, D. C., against the Garrett county producers using the name of "Highland" on their labels, and after an investigation the association decided to change its trade name to "Crest O' The Alleghanies."

Members of the association are marketing their products under the trade name "Crest O' The Alleghanies," and "Altamont Grove." The association has a total of 15 members who applied for inspection of Federal and State authorities and had a total of 2,148 gallons of syrup inspected and labeled.

Syrup this year was above the average in quantity and quality, Mr. Carter stated. Of the 2,149 gallons inspected 1,282 gallon cans were labeled "Maryland Fancy," 305 half gallon cans labeled "Maryland Fancy", 285 gallon cans and 81 gallon cans labeled "Maryland Prime", and 388 gallon cans labcled "Maryland Standard." Six hundred gallons of syrup was inspected in drums and passed as Fancy but was not labeled because of the lack of sale.

The association is making a special effort to develop market for all syrup that was labeled.

It is estimated that there are over 120 maple syrup producers in the county, practically all of whom experienced a season which was average or above.

The Garrett County Maple Products association was organized in December, 1929, with the assistance of the Maryland department of forestry and the University of Maryland extension service, and was formed for the purpose of encouraging production of a better quality of products and aiding the producers to find a better market.

TREE PLANTING ACTIVITY IN COUNTY BEGINS SOON

State to Plant 25,000 at Herrington Manor, near Oakland

The planting of approximately 25,000 trees on the State forest reserve at Herrington Manor, about five miles west of Oakland, will be taken up by members of the department within the next two or three weeks, according to H. C. Buckingham, district forester, who is spending several days of this week in Garrett county.

Among the 25,000 will be 8,000 red pine, 4,000 white pine, 4,000 spruce, 1,200 chestnut, and the balance in miscellaneous species. The chestnut trees will be planted as an experiment. They are from Japan and are said to withstand the blight that is killing the American chestnut trees, and the wood is said to be better grade. Some of the trees were planted last spring, but a frost in August and the extreme dry weather of the late summer and fall caused most of them to die.

The Civic club of Oakland has decided to continue its tree planting project on Herrington Manor. This work will be done by the local troop of Boy Scouts on April 25. Last year approximately 1,200 trees were planted by the scouts.

A tract of 1,200 acres, known as "Piney", between Cranesville and Swallow Falls, is now being surveyed by C. M. Sincell. A. L. Sines, district warden, is representing the State in the work, which is expected to be completed in about two weeks. The tract just recently purchased on Backbone mountain consisting of 6,000 acres, will be surveyed in the near future, Mr. Buckingham stated.

The district forester cautioned people about setting fire to brush piles. "The ground is still extremely dry in spite of the rains," he stated, "and much care must be taken in burning brush piles.

While in Oakland, the band members will be guests of the parents of the boys in the local band, and other members of the Band auxiliary.

TRUMAN WILT CAPTURED FOLLOWING LONG CHASE

Is Being Held on Series of Charges Committed Recently

Truman Wilt, Jr., about 30 years old, of Bear Hill section, is being held in the Garrett county jail on a number of charges, some of which were heard yesterday before E. I. West, justice of the peace, and some of which will be heard the latter part of this week.

Wilt was captured only after a chase which led from Bear Hill to Meyersdale, Pa. Sheriff W. H. Haenftling, Constable Andrew Shartzer, and Alfred and Ralph Bittinger, of near Bear Hill, who were after Wilt, were within sight of him many times, but were not able to bring him to a halt until two of the tires had blown out.

On the charge of stealing a hog from Ralph Bittinger Wilt was held for the action of the Grand Jury. He was fined $25 and costs on the charge of reckless driving. On the charge of stealing an automobile tire and rim from Alfred Bittinger, the case was continued until the tire was brought to the justice for evidence.

Another charge pending is one for writing a bad check.

COUNTY AGENT ADVISES IMPROVING PRACTICES

More Careful Survey of Farm Management Must Be Made to Compete in Industry

WILL DISCUSS PROBLEMS

With a low cost of production and improved quality of produce necessary for the realization of any profit for the farmers, John H. Carter, county agent, pointed out the advisability of improving practices during the coming year, in an interview with The Republican yesterday.

"Farmers individually and collectively must make a more careful survey of their farm management layout in order to successfully compete in all branches of the industry," he emphasized.

"Indications are that agricultural prices will continue at a low level for some time, and therefore producers will have plenty of time to adopt improved practices before relief will come."

He continued: "Now is the best time the dairyman has had in years to cull his dairy herds and feed properly. Follow the Healtby Grow Chick Program which has shown conclusively that broilers and pullets can be produced at a lower cost if all practices recommended are followed.

"Lambs and wool are likely to sell for less than last year. The man who produces quality will be the man whose lambs and wool are the most attractive to buyers. Lambs should be marketed young and fat. Therefore, it is necessary that they be fed grain just as soon as they will eat. Treat sheep for stomach worms, castrate and dock your lambs.

"Treat farm seeds for diseases before planting time and money will be the reward at harvest time. I will be glad to discuss any problem with any farmer who will get in touch with me at my office," Mr. Carter concluded.

Harry Mosser Being Held In Kingwood Jail

Harry Mosser, 40, Swanton, and L. L. Compton, 38, Morgantown, W. Va., are in the Preston county jail, Kingwood, following a near collission near Masontown.

Mosser had purchased a Buick roadster and was enroute to his home with Compton driving. Near Masontown he ran an approaching machine, driven by A. F. Stump, Masontown, from the highway and a serious wreck was narrowly averted.

A pint of moonshine liquor was found in the possession of Mosser, and Corp. J. W. Wooddell said both men were under the influence of intoxicants.

To Elect Rotary Directors

The annual Board of Directors for the Oakland Rotary club will be elected at the regular weekly meeting of the club at the William-James hotel tomorrow evening. Following the election of the directors, they will name the officers for the ensuing term.

A number of directors were nominated at the meeting last week.

COMMISSIONERS REDUCE TAX RATE THREE CENTS

Marks Fourth Reduction In As Many Years—County Rate Is $1.77 And State Rate 25 Cents

RATE THE SAME AS IN 1926

The fourth reduction in as many years in the tax rate for Garrett county was made yesterday evening by the Board of County Commissioners who declared a county tax rate of $1.77 on each one hundred dollars of assessed property in the county for 1931 as the body closed the annual levy for the present year.

The reduction this year amounts to three cents, the same as the reduction made in the rate last year and a total reduction of 22 cents within the past four years, for which the board is to be congratulated. The rate for 1931 is the same as that of 1926.

Tax rate, 1927.....$1.99
Tax rate, 1928..... 1.90
Tax rate, 1929..... 1.83
Tax rate, 1930..... 1.80
Tax rate, 1931..... 1.77

The State tax rate this year, fixed by the General Assembly, is 25 cents per $100, which is the same as last year.

The assessable basis of the county is $20,769,186, a loss of $535,408 in taxable valuation, and the total appropriation amounted to $376,610.25, being $6,872.44 less than last year.

The amount set aside this year in the general road fund is $26,415, the same as that of last year, and this, added to the special road levy of $30,000, makes the total road levy $56,415, which is $10,000 less than last year's figures. The contingent fund for the present year is $25,000.

Public schools of the county will receive from the county $139,153.55 for the general running expenses. In addition to this sum the schools will receive $8,500 for capital outlay, or for new buildings. The amount for general running expenses is $5,073,75 less than was requested by the Board of Education several weeks ago, and the figure for capital outlay is $16,500 less than was received last year and $110,500 less than was requested by the education board.

The balance of the money necessary for the operation of the public schools of the county is furnished by the State Treasury.

TREE PLANTING CEREMONY TO TAKE PLACE APRIL 24

Civic Club Urges All To Be Present at Oakland High School.

All parents, pupils in the school and others are invited to attend the tree planting at the high school grounds on the afternoon of Friday, April 24, under direction and sponsored by the members of the Oakland Civic Club.

Various organizations of the city are contributing a number of trees and shrubs and will be represented at the ceremonies. H. C. Buckingham, district forester, is expected to be in attendance and direct the setting of the trees, etc.

The Civic Club will follow plans which were secured last fall from the University of Maryland Extension Service as to planting and selection of the trees and shrubs. The beautification of the school premises is in keeping with the summer activity program of the Civic Club.

A ceremony is also being planned for Oakland's new park on the site of the old Oakland Hotel, in the very near future. Plans have also been made for the beautifying and improvement of this spot, and calls for the planting a number of trees and shrubs, a baseball park and a place for ice skating during the winter.

Unemployment Bureau Urges Unemployed to Give Names

The Church Unemployment bureau urges all who are anxious to work to give their names to Rev. W. B. Brock, Rev. J. W. Dawson, Rev. C. A. Shilke, or Rev. D. C. Trimble. These names will not be published unless desired.

The Bureau is asking the public to employ when possible those listed in the files of the organization. Paul Ott, Oakland, and Loyal Barnard, of Bloomington desire work of any kind, and Albert Kahl, Oakland, desires carpentry and cabinet work.

Miss Jane Robinson has been appointed instructor in music in the Grantsville unit, taking the place of Miss Ruth Conley, who is now recuperating from an appendicitis operation at Emmittsburgh. Miss Conley, when she returns, will have charge of the music at the Grantsville school while Miss Robinson will instruct at Accident and Friendsville.

VOLUME 55. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, APRIL 16, 1931. NUMBER 9.

MAN KILLED WHEN HIT BY TRUCK NEAR GRANTSVILLE

Aged Man, Believed to Have Been Itinerant Preacher, Dies in Frostburg Hospital

TRUCK DRIVER NOT HELD

The aged man killed east of Grantsville Friday night, when hit by a truck, has been identified as E. I. Linn, with his last residence at Richmond, Va. He was 86 and was engaged in selling Biblical literature.

Information concerning him was secured from Mrs. John Close, nee Pearl Engle, of Sand Spring, on the west slope of Big Savage, this county. Mrs. Close stated that she had given him his breakfast Friday morning. While the aged man was seated at the table he said it was the first he had eaten for forty-eight hours and that he was weak from undernourishment. He said he had been in a hospital for two weeks at Richmond, and that he had no place to go except that he was going to try and get a job with some farmer to feed his stock for room and board. He said he had no relatives and nothing much to live for.

Burial of the man who was fatally injured Friday evening when he was struck by a truck operated by L. C. Morrison, of Keyser Ridge, 26 miles north of Oakland, will take place the latter part of the week at Grantsville.

Members of the coroner's inquest, which was called at the order of the State's Attorney, Walter W. Dawson, said the man's name was Eastern I. Linn.

Morrison was exhonorated of any criminal blame, the jury deciding that the accident was entirely unavoidable, and that the man had stepped into the path of the car.

The accident happened on the National Highway, about one and one-half miles east of Grantsville.

Officer Jesse M. Bradley, of the State Police, who investigated the case, said the man was walking along the left side of the road, toward Grantsville, and started across the highway when a horse and wagon approached him. Morrison's truck, also traveling toward Grantsville, struck the man and knocked him several feet.

Morrison summoned an ambulance and the injured man was taken to the Miner's hospital, Frostburg, where the stranger died at 9 o'clock without regaining consciousness. Dr. W. O. McLane, Jr., said the man suffered internal injuries, concussion of the brain, and fractures of the right arm and right leg.

The mishap victim appeared to be a man about 70 years old and his clothing, while rough and worn, was clean and in good repair. He wore a brown cap, light coat and blue trousers, with a dark stripe.

About seventy-five books and pamphlets, all of a religious character, and a small Bible was found in a small handbag the man carried. The name "Eastern Linn" was written in the Bible. Envelopes from publishers of religious books in Little Rock, Ark.; Fort Worth, Tex., and Takoma Park, Md., bore the words "E. I. Linn." No money was found in his pockets.

Allegany county State's Attorney William A. Huster, county investigator Terrence J. Boyle, and Sergt. Geo. P. Gearhart, of the State Police, aided Officer Bradley in the investigation. The body was taken to Grantsville, for action of Garrett county authorities. W. A. Gonder was named as coronor, and the foreman of the jury of inquest was A. C. Stanton, of Grantsville. The inquest was held on Saturday.

While in Oakland, the band members will be guests of the parents of the boys in the local band, and other members of the Band auxiliary.

TRUMAN WILT CAPTURED FOLLOWING LONG CHASE

Is Being Held on Series of Charges Committed Recently

Truman Wilt, Jr., about 30 years old, of Bear Hill section, is being held in the Garrett county jail on a number of charges, some of which were heard yesterday before E. I. West, justice of the peace, and some of which will be heard the latter part of this week.

Wilt was captured only after a chase which led from Bear Hill to Meyersdale, Pa. Sheriff W. H. Haenftling, Constable Andrew Shartzer, and Alfred and Ralph Bittinger, of near Bear Hill, who were after Wilt, were within sight of him many times, but were not able to bring him to a halt until two of the tires had blown out.

On the charge of stealing a hog from Ralph Bittinger Wilt was held for the action of the Grand Jury. He was fined $25 and costs on the charge of reckless driving. On the charge of stealing an automobile tire and rim from Alfred Bittinger, the case was continued until the tire was brought to the justice for evidence.

Another charge pending is one for writing a bad check.

COUNTY AGENT ADVISES IMPROVING PRACTICES

More Careful Survey of Farm Management Must Be Made to Compete in Industry

WILL DISCUSS PROBLEMS

With a low cost of production and improved quality of produce necessary for the realization of any profit for the farmers, John H. Carter, county agent, pointed out the advisability of improving practices during the coming year, in an interview with The Republican yesterday.

"Farmers individually and collectively must make a more careful survey of their farm management layout in order to successfully compete in all branches of the industry," he emphasized.

"Indications are that agricultural prices will continue at a low level for some time, and therefore producers will have plenty of time to adopt improved practices before relief will come."

He continued: "Now is the best time the dairyman has had in years to cull his dairy herds and feed properly. Follow the Healthy Grow Chick Program which has shown conclusively that broilers and pullets can be produced at a lower cost if all practices recommended are followed.

"Lambs and wool are likely to sell for less than last year. The man who produces quality will be the man whose lambs and wool are the most attractive to buyers. Lambs should be marketed young and fat. Therefore, it is necessary that they be fed grain just as soon as they will eat. Treat sheep for stomach worms, castrate and dock your lambs.

"Treat farm seeds for diseases before planting time and money will be the reward at harvest time. I will be glad to discuss any problem with any farmer who will get in touch with me at my office," Mr. Carter concluded.

Harry Mosser Being Held In Kingwood Jail

Harry Mosser, 40, Swanton, and L. L. Compton, 38, Morgantown, W. Va., are in the Preston county jail, Kingwood, following a near collission near Masontown.

Mosser had purchased a Buick roadster and was enroute to his home with Compton driving. Near Masontown he ran an approaching machine, driven by A. F. Stump, Masontown, from the highway and a serious wreck was narrowly averted.

A pint of moonshine liquor was found in the possession of Mosser, and Corp. J. W. Wooddell said both men were under the influence of intoxicants.

To Elect Rotary Directors

The annual Board of Directors for the Oakland Rotary club will be elected at the regular weekly meeting of the club at the William-James hotel tomorrow evening. Following the election of the directors, they will name the officers for the ensuing term.

A number of directors were nominated at the meeting last week.

COMMISSIONERS REDUCE TAX RATE THREE CENTS

Marks Fourth Reduction In As Many Years—County Rate Is $1.77 And State Rate 25 Cents

RATE THE SAME AS IN 1926

The fourth reduction in as many years in the tax rate for Garrett county was made yesterday evening by the Board of County Commissioners who declared a county tax rate of $1.77 on each one hundred dollars of assessed property in the county for 1931 as the body closed the annual levy for the present year.

The reduction this year amounts to three cents, the same as the reduction made in the rate last year and a total reduction of 22 cents within the past four years, for which the board is to be congratulated. The rate for 1931 is the same as that of 1926.

Tax rate, 1927	$1.99
Tax rate, 1928	1.90
Tax rate, 1929	1.83
Tax rate, 1930	1.80
Tax rate, 1931	1.77

The State tax rate this year, fixed by the General Assembly, is 25 cents per $100, which is the same as last year.

The assessable basis of the county is $20,769,186, a loss of $535,408 in taxable valuation, and the total appropriation amounted to $376,610.25, being $6,872.44 less than last year.

The amount set aside this year in the general road fund is $26,415, the same as that of last year, and this, added to the special road levy of $30,000, makes the total road levy $56,415, which is $10,000 less than last year's figures. The contingent fund for the present year is $25,000.

Public schools of the county will receive from the county $139,153.55 for the general running expenses. In addition to this sum the schools will receive $8,500 for capital outlay, or for new buildings. The amount for general running expenses is $5,073,75 less than was requested by the Board of Education several weeks ago, and the figure for capital outlay is $16,500 less than was received last year and $110,500 less than was requested by the education board.

The balance of the money necessary for the operation of the public schools of the county is furnished by the State Treasury.

TREE PLANTING CEREMONY TO TAKE PLACE APRIL 24

Civic Club Urges All To Be Present at Oakland High School.

All parents, pupils in the school and others are invited to attend the tree planting at the high school grounds on the afternoon of Friday, April 24, under direction and sponsored by the members of the Oakland Civic Club.

Various organizations of the city are contributing a number of trees and shrubs and will be represented at the ceremonies. H. C. Buckingham, district forester, is expected to be in attendance and direct the setting of the trees, etc.

The Civic Club will follow plans which were secured last fall from the University of Maryland Extension Service as to planting and selection of the trees and shrubs. The beautification of the school premises is in keeping with the summer activity program of the Civic Club.

A ceremony is also being planned for Oakland's new park on the site of the old Oakland Hotel, in the very near future. Plans have also been made for the beautifying and improvement of this spot, and calls for the planting a number of trees and shrubs, a baseball park and a place for ice skating during the winter.

Unemployment Bureau Urges Unemployed to Give Names

The Church Unemployment bureau urges all who are anxious to work to give their names to Rev. W. B. Brock, Rev. J. W. Dawson, Rev. C. A. Shilke, or Rev. D. C. Trimble. These names will not be published unless desired.

The Bureau is asking the public to employ when possible those listed in the files of the organization. Paul Ott, Oakland, and Loyal Barnard, of Bloomington desire work of any kind, and Albert Kahl, Oakland, desires carpentry and cabinet work.

Miss Jane Robinson has been appointed instructor in music in the Grantsville unit, taking the place of Miss Ruth Conley, who is now recuperating from an appendicitis operation at Emmittsburgh. Miss Conley, when she returns, will have charge of the music at the Grantsville school while Miss Robinson will instruct at Accident and Friendsville.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 55. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, APRIL 16, 1931. NUMBER 9.

MAN KILLED WHEN HIT BY TRUCK NEAR GRANTSVILLE

Aged Man, Believed to Have Been Itinerant Preacher, Dies in Frostburg Hospital

TRUCK DRIVER NOT HELD

The aged man killed east of Grantsville Frlday night, when hit by a truck, has been identified as E. I. Linn, with his last residence at Richmond, Va. He was 86 and was engaged in selling Biblical literature.

Informatlon concerning him was secured from Mrs. John Close, nee Pearl Engle, of Sand Spring, on the west slope of Big Savage, this county. Mrs. Close stated that she had given him his breakfast Friday morning. While the aged man was seated at the table he said it was the first he had eaten for forty-eight hours and that he was weak from undernourishment. He said he had been in a hospital for two weeks at Richmond, and that he had no place to go except that he was going to try and get a job with some farmer to feed his stock for room and board. He said he had no relatives and nothing much to live for.

Burial of the man who was fatally injured Friday evenlng when he was struck by a truck operated by L. C. Morrison, of Keyser Ridge, 26 miles north of Oakland, will take place the latter part of the week at Grantsville.

Members of the coroner's inquest, which was called at the order of the State's Attorney, Walter W. Dawson, said the man's name was Eastern I. Linn.

Morrison was exhonorated of any criminal blame, the jury deciding that the accident was entirely unavoidable, and that the man had stepped into the path of the car.

The accident happened on the National Highway, about one and one-half miles east of Grantsville.

Officer Jesse M. Bradley, of the State Police, who investigated the case, said the man was walking along the left side of the road, toward Grantsville, and started across the highway when a horse and wagon approached him. Morrison's truck, also traveling toward Grantsville, struck the man and knocked him several feet.

Morrison summoned an ambulance and the lnjured man was taken to the Miner's hospital, Frostburg, where the stranger died at 9 o'clock without regaining consciousness. Dr. W. O. McLane, Jr., said the man suffered internal injuries, concussion of the brain, and fractures of the right arm and right leg.

The mishap victim appeared to be a man about 70 years old and his clothing, while rough and worn, was clean and in good repair. He wore a brown cap, light coat and blue trousers, with a dark stripe.

About seventy-five books and pamphlets, all of a religious character, and a small Bible was found in a small handbag the man carried. The name "Eastern Linn" was written in the Bible. Envelopes from publishers of rellgious books in Little Rock, Ark.; Fort Worth, Tex., and Takoma Park, Md., bore the words "E. I. Linn." No money was found in his pockets.

Allegany county State's Attorney William A. Huster, county investigator Terrence J. Boyle, and Sergt. Geo. P. Gearhart, of the State Police, aided Officer Bradley in the investigation. The body was taken to Grantsville, for action of Garrett county authorities. W. A. Gonder was named as coronor, and the foreman of the jury of inquest was A. C. Stanton, of Grantsville. The inquest was held on Saturday.

Oakland Homemakers to Meet

STRAWBERRY HILL, BOND WIN MARCH ATTENDANCE

All County High Schools are Below Standard of 94 Percent

Bond, with 99 percent, and Strawberry Hill, with 97.7, led the one-teacher schools of the county in attendance for March, 1931, according to John L. Fitzwater, attendance officer. Crellin with 96.8 led the graded schools, while Grantsville Hlgh school led all other schools with 93.4 percent. All high schools were below the standard of 94, set by the State. Oakland Grammar had a percentage of 87.6, while Oakland high was third among high schools with 91.4.

Fifty of the 81 one-teacher schools were above the standard of 88 percent, and four of the 11 two-teacher schools remained above the standard of 90 percent. In the graded schools Crellin, Kempton, Kitzmiller, and Accident were above the standard of 92.

One-teacher schools making 93 percent or above, included Bond, Short Run, Pine Swamp, Caton, Casselman, Gauer, Highland, Swan Meadow, Rich Hill, Dry Run, Broadford, Promised Land, Lynndale, Dorsey, Gorman, Green Glade, Black Hawk, Laughlin and White Rock.

FIREMEN KEPT BUSY BY 5 ALARMS IN 24 HOURS

Storage Building and Contents Destroyed at Crellin

With five fire alarms within less than twenty-four hours, the Oakland Volunteer fire department was kept busy on Monday afternoon and evening and Tuesday mornmg m subdumg brush and grass fires, and flames which destroyed a storage house at Crellin.

A storage house, 14 X 20 feet, in rear of P. K. Adams' garage at Crellin, with its contents, was destroyed by fire on Monday afternoon. It was thought the buildmg caught from burnmg brush, or from sparks from an engine. By the time the Oakland Fire department had arrived the buildmg was enveloped m flames and it was impossible to save it, but the garage and other nearby buildings were not damaged. The building contained 18 rolls of roofing, about two thousand feet of lumber, garage tools and automobile accessories. Mr. Adams had recently rented his garage room to Clyde Mersing, and had stored his goods in the building which burned.

The brush fires occurred at the top of Columbia Hill, Mt. Lake Park; near the Deer Park hotel, and on the Paul Mitchell property, about one-half mile north of town along the State highway.

They had got beyond control of those who were burning the dry leaves and brush, and it was some time before the one at Deer Park and the one at Mitchell's were subdued.

After putting out the fire at Deer Park in the afternoon the department answered another call in the evening for the same place. The Mt. Lake brush fire occurred at one o'clock on Monday, while the one north of town occurred Tuesday morning about 10 o'clock.

The department answered another alarm this morning at 11:30 when a brush fire got beyond control in the field in rear of W. R. Offutt's home on Second street.

Mayor to Welcome Singers

Mayor Grover C. Stemple will welcome the Claflin Quartette with Miss Smith of Waycross, Ga., as accompanist, on Tuesday, April 21, when they present their program at the Maryland theatre, Oakland.

This quartette has recently had an audition at the Boston Conservatory of Music where the Conservatory director pronounced them the "Best Quartette in America," and announced his purpose of using the influence at his command to promote their projected European tour.

The leader of the quartette is Sinclair Swan, of Oakland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Swan.

Escapes Injury in Car Wreck

Guy O. Yutzy narrowly escaped serious injury last Wednesday evening on the Deer Park-Kitzmiller highway near Wilson, when he was crowded from the road by another car, completely wrecking the Whippet sedan which he was driving. He turned over several times but received no more than slight brulses. The car was owned by James Treacy.

MAPLE SUGAR PRODUCERS ENJOY SUCCESSFUL YEAR

SEASON ABOVE AVERAGE

The Garrett County Maple Products association has just closed its second year operations successfully, according to John H. Carter, county agent, as well as the season for the other producers in the maple sugar and syrup industry in Garrett county.

Some difficulties were encountered at the beginning of the season in establishing a trade name, Mr. Carter stated. The Cary Maple Sugar company of Vermont filed an official protest at the Patent office, Washington, D. C., against the Garrett county producers using the name of "Highland" on their labels, and after an investigation the association decided to change its trade name to "Crest O' The Alleghanies."

Members of the association are marketing their products under the trade name "Crest O' The Alleghanies," and "Altamont Grove." The association has a total of 15 members who applied for inspection of Federal and State authorities and had a total of 2,148 gallons of syrup inspected and labeled.

Syrup this year was above the average in quantity and quality, Mr. Carter stated. Of the 2,149 gallons inspected 1,282 gallon cans were labeled "Maryland Fancy," 305 half gallon cans labeled "Maryland Fancy". 285 gallon cans and 81 gallon cans labeled "Maryland Prime", and 388 gallon cans labeled "Maryland Standard." Six hundred gallons of syrup was inspected in drums and passed as Fancy but was not labeled because of the lack of sale.

The association is making a special effort to develop market for all syrup that was labeled.

It is estimated that there are over 120 maple syrup producers in the county, practically all of whom experienced a season which was average or above.

The Garrett County Maple Products association was organized in December. 1929. with the assistance of the Maryland department of forestry and the University of Maryland extension service. and was formed for the purpose of encouraging production of a better quality of products and aiding the producers to find a better market.

TREE PLANTING ACTIVITY IN COUNTY BEGINS SOON

State to Plant 25,000 at Herrington Manor, near Oakland

The planting of approximately 25,000 trees on the State forest reserve at Herrington Manor, about five miles west of Oakland, will be taken up by members of the department within the next two or three weeks, according to H. C. Buckingham, district forester, who is spending several days of this week in Garrett county.

Among the 25,000 will be 8,000 red pine, 4,000 white pine, 4,000 spruce, 1,200 chestnut, and the balance in miscellaneous species. The chestnut trees will be planted as an experiment. They are from Japan and are said to withstand the blight that is killing the American chestnut trees, and the wood is said to be better grade. Some of the trees were planted last spring, but a frost in August and the extreme dry weather of the late summer and fall caused most of them to die.

The Civic club of Oakland has decided to continue its tree planting project on Herrington Manor. This work will be done by the local troop of Boy Scouts on April 25. Last year approximately 1,200 trees were planted by the scouts.

A tract of 1.200 acres. known as "Piney", between Cranesville and Swallow Falls, is now being surveyed by C. M. Sincell. A. L. Sines, district warden, is representing the State in the work, which is expected to be completed in about two weeks. The tract just recently purchased on Backbone mountain consisting of 6,000 acres, will be surveyed in the near future, Mr. Buckingham stated.

The district forester cautioned people about setting fire to brush piles. "The ground is still extremely dry in spite of the rains," he stated, "and much care must be taken in burning brush piles.

Lesson for April 19

THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 16:19-31.
GOLDEN TEXT—And yet I say unto you, That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaches Sharing.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Teaches Sharing.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Curse of Selfishness.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Right and Wrong Uses of Wealth.

In this lesson we are afforded a look into two worlds where we see extremes of character and conditions. In this present world we see a rich man reveling in luxury and a poor man in sore affliction, begging at the rich man's gate. In the other world we see the same men with reversed positions—the erstwhile beggar enjoying the richest blessings of heaven while the former rich man suffers the torments of hell. These lives were intended to be representative. The rich man descends from the highest pinnacle of worldly enjoyment to the depths of endless misery. The poor beggar ascends from utter wretchedness and misery to the loftiest heights of blessing.

I. Contrasted Lives (vv. 19-21).

1. The rich man (v. 19).

He lived in a mansion secluded from the common people. He was clothed in costly raiment. He fed upon the richest food that could be provided. It should be borne in mind that this man is not accused of having unlawfully gained his riches. His sin was selfishly to indulge his appetites without consideration of others.

2. The beggar (vv. 20, 21).

He was laid at the rich man's gate in the hope of getting at least the crumbs from his table. No consideration was given him by the rich man, and even the dogs of the street were more kind to him. Lazarus means "God is a help," indicating that a godly life showed through his poverty.

II. Contrasted Deaths and Burials (v. 22).

1. The beggar.

He was found dead and his body hurried off to a pauper's grave. No notice was taken of it by the world, but that he was no longer to be seen at the gate of the rich man.

2. The rich man.

He also died. His gold could not bribe the messenger of death. Doubtless a costly funeral was held.

III. The Contrasted Destinies (vv. 22, 23).

1. The beggar.

He was at once carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom. The souls of believers are especially cared for at the hour of death. They go immediately to be with the Lord. Destinies are determined in this life.

2. The rich man.

Though he had an elaborate burial, he lifted up his eyes in hell "being in torments." The positions of these men are now reversed—the poor man is in the company of "just men made perfect," and the rich man is stripped of his purple and fine linen and cast into hell.

IV. The Reality and Fixedness of Life Beyond the Grave (vv. 24-31).

1. The cry for mercy (v. 24).

Dives, which is the Latin name for "rich man," was now willing to claim relationship to Abraham. He is keenly conscious, and the appetites which controlled him while on earth were still with him.

2. Abraham's reply (v. 25).

This reply cast the matter back upon the man's memory. He said: "Son, remember." The lashings of a guilty conscience will be most real in hell. The one supreme thing to remember will be the cause which led to the awful destiny. Then, too, it will be remembered that the doom is just.

3. The fixedness of life beyond the grave (v. 26).

Human destiny is fixed by the choices made during the earthly life. When one passes out of this life he enters into a state and condition which is unchangeable.

4. God's Word the all-sufficient light (vv. 27-31).

Dives requested that Lazarus go on an errand of mercy to his brethren. He regarded the testimony of a spirit of more value than the Word of God. Many today are more willing to trust the rappings of a ghost than the sure Word of God. Abraham declared that God's Word is sufficient—that those who reject Moses and the prophets would not repent though visited by one who had risen from the dead. The greatest miracles will not affect the hearts of men who reject the Bible. Lost men will learn too late the value of the soul.

Search the Bible

If the people who are perpetually running about to meetings for crumbs of help and comfort, would only stay at home and search their Bibles, there would be more happiness in the church, and more blessing in the world.—F. B. Meyer.

Most Sacred Channels

I begin to suspect that the common transactions of life are the most sacred channels for the spread of the heavenly leaven.—G. MacDonald.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By SCOOP—HIMSELF

Quite a revelation when I sat down to my desk this morning. Di-di Jim, the office devil, had washed the front windows, and I could actually see who all was passing.

There goes Ern Gortner looking happy because he is through work until 3:30; Dick West, also happy, and he hasn't started on his trip to the Ridge, yet. Two high school girls are amused about something, but it can't be because they are going to school. Somebody is in an awful big hurry to get to the second floor of the G. N. B—and he came out just as quickly.

Pearce is delivering his daily quarts and pints. I can see through the window to the second floor of the G. N. B. building, the first time in ages, but no action on the inside—office hours begin there at 9:30 or 10:00.

Why doesn't somebody come along? There's Slim Shaw—can't see him there, his dirty window in the back of his car, but I can tell the rattles as he turns in Fraley's alley. Terrence Tamburini is going to work a little late. Boss Ray is in Baltimore. Neil Fraley isn't down yet—too early. And now Olin Hardesty. Looks like he is going horseback riding from his getup. There goes Neil Fraley—my mistake—something special this morning, I guess. If the boss came in here now he wouldn't think I am working, but I am.

Ed Offutt just strolled by in his usual cigar and straight-backed walk. Went into the bank; everything lovely there as he did not tarey long. Upstairs to clip coupons. There goes Betty Harper, of the West Penn home service department. I am heartily in favor of electric cooking demonstrations—as long as Betty makes something extra.

Some man is walking on eggs—and eggs so cheap, too. Mr. Sharps is on his way somewhere. He hasn't been here long but is a good citizen to have and to hold.

Saw Bob Stewart in Peetsburgh on Saturday. Looks good. Said he never sees much in this column since he left Oakland. Maybe he'll like this one.

Lots of paper and dirt in the street. Looks like we ought to clean up a little. The train is in. Two Van-Sickles came around the bend. There's a man with a hat and overcoat and another one with neither. Which one gets pneumonia?

A man's coming out of the bank smiling. I'd smile, too, if I had what he just put into his pocketbook. Wade Hinebaugh in overalls—now ain't that somgin'? Mr. Pollock's on his way—somewhere. Neil Fraley is actually sweeping out his office. Call the Amalgamated Society for the Prevention of Work!

Here comes Max Jarboe across the street for his morning's coco cola or what not—and Rev. Shilke in a hurry and in deep concentration on some subject for the moral uplift of the community. Bruce Collins; I wonder can he still play that alto or baritone.

Olin Hardesty again and no riding breeches—he must have changed his mind. Lightnin' Bill Butt is dispensing information and wise cracks as he holds up the telephone pole across the street. Bill Gibson, of the Joe E. Brown type of beauty, is whistling "Here I Come." A. D. Naylor, sunburned and spry—must have just returned from the South. I expect to winter there sometime next summer. There is ex-Mayor Fraley; wonder if he has any more shoes to give away?

Where is Hen McComas' overcoat and his pipe?

Dr. Hinebaugh and his medicine chest. He has had a little sleep since Doctor Henry and Doctor Broady returned—one from the Senate, the other from the hospital. Stuart Hamill looks like he wants to give somebody the devil about something. He can't though, as there's a brakeman with a red flag. There's Ed Pendergast. What's he doing down on Second street? H. C. Sincell's chew is on fire. Come on back to work and don't bother the bank so much.

Who is that six foot two with a piccadilly collar and distinguished look? He can't be from Oakland, Lloyd Shaffer is going northward, but not in a hurry. Turn about—Max is back, and now comes Harland Jones for his daily fizz at Harned's drug store. Never saw Bert Welch smoke before. Coral McRobie goes down and back. Boss Ray must have told her to hurry both ways.

Andy Shartzer must have passed—didn't see him, but heard him laugh and there's no mistaking that. Now who can that fellow be who just came out of the barber shop and went into the West Penn office with a towel still about his neck?

There goes the fire whistle again—another brush fire. Why doesn't someone offer to buy the firemen some wide and long shoes so they can bent the fire out as they walk around giving orders?

Mountain Lake grass fires have started again. Who said experience is the best teacher? Nothing but personal experience will do any good.

It's a wonderful day—for boating and fishing—but a darn poor one for chauffeuring a typewriter. I believe it has got me.

Well, so long; I'll be suing you.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,

Returns From Sheep

Lambs and wool are likely to sell for less this year than in many recent years, but, whatever the prices, the man who has his lambs and wool in good shape is the man whose product will be most attractive and should sell best. For more than one good reason, lambs should be fat and young when sold. Such lambs please the consumer and thus create an added demand for lambs. Moreover, they are relatively light in weight and do not contribute unnecessarily to a glut of an already well-supplied market.

One other point that the producer should not overlook is the fact that production costs are higher on the heavy weights, even though it is often true that the over-weight lamb sells for much less per pound and often actually less per pound than does the light, young, fat, attractive lamb.

Maryland sheepmen have an attractive market at their very doors. This demand should be given careful thought, and it should be supplied with early lambs that will so well meet market requirements that the preference of buyers will continue to be for the fine, fresh, fat, early Maryland lambs that for years have been an important source of income to many Maryland sheepmen. Early lambs should be made good and sold while young this year. To carry them to heavy weights is to invite loss or reduced profits. Sheepmen should breed, feed, and sell their lambs in a way that will make it possible to realize a good profit from their operations. Maryland lambs should not be excelled by lambs from any other state. It is for Maryland sheepmen to say whether or not lambs from Maryland will deserve and hold a top place in the markets to which they go.

"Young and fat" should apply to market lambs in Maryland whatever the date of their birth; lambs that are not young and fat at time of marketing cannot be expected to yield results that will be most satisfactory to producer, dealer, and consumer. A little feed will do much for a little lamb, but without feed enough he will stay little for a long time.

Maryland Dairymen Urged to Cull Herds and Feed Properly

Dairymen of the State are faced with the possibility of relatively low prices for their products for the coming year, according to the annual Maryland Agricultural Outlook, which has just been released by the Extension Service of the University of Maryland. Copies of the new Outlook may be secured by writing Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the Extension Service, College Park, Md.

Production, it is pointed out in the Outlook, will probably be large during the coming year and demand at a relatively low level. Satisfactory returns can, therefore, be assured for 1931 only by the close culling of herds and proper feeding of the known higher producing cows.

In spite of the serious drought affecting all parts of Maryland, the quantity of milk produced and marketed during 1930 exceeded that of any year in the history of the State. At the same time, the per capita consumption of milk and dairy products has declined due to the decreased purchasing power of the consumer.

The average price of 92 score butter at New York during 1930 was 8.5 cents per pound lower than in 1929 and 9.4 cents lower than the five-year average. Fluid milk prices to producers were lower than a year ago and retail milk prices in most important centers of consumption have declined.

On January 1, 1931, the number of milk cows and heifers, two years old and over, in the State was greater by one per cent and the number of milk heifers, one to two years old, was greater by three per cent than on the same date the year previous. There are within the state a greater number of cows of productive age. Should 1931 be a normal crop year, production of milk will probably exceed that of 1930. Due to the general economic depression, consumption of dairy products will probably be below normal most of 1931 and, therefore, the general outlook would seem to indicate continued low milk prices for the year.

HEALTH DEPARTMENTSAYS MEASLES ARE INCREASING

Illness Is Especially Dangerous For Young Children

From the State Department of Health there comes a warning that measles is on the increase throughout the State. As the disease is particularly dangerous for young children and as it is very easily caught, mothers are urged to keep the babies and their older brothers and sisters away from children who are ill with it, or who show signs of coming down with it. The possibility of preventing serious illnesses among children who have been in contact with the disease, through vaccination with convalescent measles serum is also pointed out. Here is the message which comes from Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the Department:

"Measles," Dr. Riley said, "like certain other diseases, tends to flare up in epidemic form every two or three years. The last time we had a serious outbreak in Maryland was in 1928, when 17,332 cases were reported. In 1929, 2,024 cases occurred and last year the number went down to 1,255 for the entire year. But this winter there has been a marked increase During January, February and March, 7,814 cases have been reported thruout the State—1,366 of which have occurred in the counties.

"Because of the complications which so often accompany measles, it is a mistake to say, 'Oh, it is only measles. Let them have it and get over it!' Measles is one of the diseases that is particularly dangerous for the babies and young children. Like whooping cough and scarlet fever, it is a veritable wolf in sheep's clothing. It should be avoided and the children should be protected against it, as far as possible, quite as they would be against a destrucive animal.

"Like many other diseases, measles usually starts in with what may seem to be 'only a cold.' But the careful mother has learned that a cold may be more than it seems, and that the best place for a child who has a cold is in bed. Knowing also that the best person to advise her is the family doctor, she sends for the doctor. And if she can possibly do so she will keep her children away from those who are sick.

"It has also been found that children who have been exposed to measles but who have not developed the disease, can be protected against it if promptly vaccinated with convalescent serum, that is, with serum taken from a person who is recovering from measles or who has had the disease. In some cases, this protection has prevented the disease from developing; in other instances, the disease has developed, but in a light form and with less tendency toward serious complications, Mothers who are interested in having the convalescent serum used should consult the family doctor."

SWANTON

The farmers of this section are making good use of this pretty weather by preparing the soil for the summer crops.

The school here is progressing splendidly under the able principalship of Miss Rosalie Glick, of Lonaconing, who has as her assistant Miss Virginia Lam, of Cumberland.

The U. B. Sunday school is getting along nicely. There are approximately 75 pupils on the roll and each one shows great interest in trying to make the school a success. A very nice Easter service was rendered in the school on Easter. Special music was rendered by Mrs. Robert Sheckells, organist, accompanied by H. R. Shank, cornetist and Millard Sweitzer, guitarist. Rev. E. C. Cuppett delivered the sermon, which was enjoyed very much by all present.

Rev. David Trimble conducted an Easter service in the Episcopal chapel on Easter Sunday at 3:30. After the service he presented each family with a bunch of Madonna Easter lilies, which were highly appreciated by the recipicnts.

The members of the Senior Willing Workers and the Junior Busy Bee 4-H Clubs are making great progress in their club work this year. The Willing Workers club was organized by Miss Lola Belle Green in 1926, and the members have completed the first, second and third years requirements and have started the fourth year project, which is Room Improvement. Along with improving their own sleeping apartments they are improving the club house by making window curtains, etc. The members of the Junior Willing Workers are Nine Sweitzer, local leader; Gladys Baker, president; Ildra Friend, vice-president; Nellie Johnston, secretary; Evelyn Glass, chairman of program committee; Idella Johnston and Maude Sweitzer, assistants; Rosie Wright, Clara Baker, Mary Murphy, Mary Sweitzer, Juanita Rhodes and Ileen Friend.

The Busy Bee club was organized by the local leader, Nina Sweitzer, in March, 1931. The Busy Bee members are making aprons. Their next project will be an equipped sewing box. The members have met three times. At each meeting they have had a program and learned new songs and additional games along with their sewing period. The officers and members are as follows: Florence Friend, president; Amy Harvey, vice-president; Gertrude Landis, secretary; Helen Glass, treasurer; Betty Simons, chairman of program committee; Glenna Harvey and Nancy Sheckells, assistants; Elizabeth Shaffer, Moreva Rhodes.

The people of this community regret very much to learn of the illness of Mr. Milford Glass.

Billy Burk has returned to his home here after having spent five months with relatives in Winslow, Arizona, where he also attended school.

Mr. Homer Ash, of Piedmont, spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Sweitzer.

Daniel Sweitzer, of Corinth, W. Va., is visiting relatives here.

Miss Sarah Sharpless, of Vindex, Md., is visiting relatives here.

Albert Baker rccently purchased a new Ford coach.

Hayes Friend and Daniel Sweitzer were callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Sweitzer on Sunday.

BOYS' WEEK IS FOR ALL—

So that grown-ups will not forget what growing-up boys think and do, extensive plans are under way in the Oakland Rotary club for observance of Boys' Week, April 25 to May 2. Each of the seven days will be devoted to constructive elements in citizenship training.

Boys haven't changed much. According to the elderly people of Oakland they are still about as bad, just about as good as when they were kids. And boys still like to chum with other boys. They are incurable little gangsters, the same as they always were.

Adults, however, have changed. The gang impulse is accepted where formerly it was frowned upon. Now they encourage it, try intelligently to supply an outlet for its normal expression through such organizations as boy scouts, 4-H clubs, boys' clubs, sea scouts, boys' bands, etc.

An attempt is being made to fill the youngsters' waking hours with wholesome activities, so that it seems natural to do those things which make for good citizenship.

All citizens should take an active part in making Boys' Week a real celebration in Oakland.

A lot of people want to have compulsory military training abolished in our state schools. Members of the American Legion who saw the serious effects of lack of training in wartime, think compulsory training in the colleges is a good thing. They know something about the matter of adjusting a gas mask or digging in to protect themselves. Compulsory training in our colleges isn't going to get us into war.

Suggest a Macadam Road Be Built to Eagle Rock, South of Altamont.

To the Editor of The Republican.

Dear Sir:—Before the days of the automobile, Eagle Rock, reached by buckboard, was visited by thousands of people every year. It is considered one of the greatest scenic wonders in this part of the country. It could be restored to the people of Garrett county and to their summer visitors by building a short macadam road with easy grades from the Deer Park, Kitzmiller concrete road, just below Altamont, at very slight expense.

I hope you will take note of this and bring it to the attention of the people of Garrett county.

Sincerely yours,
GEO. STEWART BROWN.
Brooklyn, N. Y., April 14, 1931.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Rain, hail and sunshine on Sunday.

A new postoffice in Garrett county, named Kearney, on tbe mountain road between Mountain Lake Park and Gormania, W. Va., was opened with Sanford Thompson as the postmaster.

Dr. J. Lee McComas, father of the present State Senator from this county, was in receipt from the White House at Washington of a handsome china cup and saucer, beautifully hand painted by the President's wife, Mrs. Benj. Harrison. Dr. McComas was physician to the President's family during their stay at the Deer Park Hotel in the summer of 1889, and attended Dr. Scott, the venerable father of Mrs. Harrison, through a long and severe illness. The gift to the local physician was in appreciation of his faithful attention to the sick man.

W. A. Sturgiss returned from a school in Washington where he had been taking a course in pharmacy.

Abraham Meeks was arrested and sentenced to serve 40 days in jail for violating the local option law in Garrett county. The prosecuting witness testified that he had purchased a half pint of liquor from Meeks for which he had paid 25 cents. Illicit liquor in those days was cheaper than now—but it may have been better—or worse.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

The tax rate for the year 1911 was fixed by the County Commissioners at $1.02, as against $1.16 for the previous year. That was the day, however, before the day of the automobile and the high cost of living.

At an entertainment of the Luther League a musical program was rendered by members of the Junior Choral Society, an organization under the direction of Dr. John G. Robinson. Julius and Louis Littman gave a piano and violin duet at the entertainment.

Sparks emitted from a chimney of the Wm. Merril property on Center street, which was occupied by a family named Decker, set fire to the roof of the building. The fire department responded quickly and the fire was extinguished without material damage being done.

Mrs. Herman Creutzburg was hostess at a flinch party when forty or more guests were present.

Former Senator W. McCulloh Brown was here from Baltimore for a few days looking after some business interests.

DIED.

Marshall Wesley Durst, aged 69, died at his home in the Grantsville community Wednesday night, April 8, of pneumonia. He was born January 3, 1862, at Shade Mills, Garrett county, and was a well known farmer of his section. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Sarah Layman, and the following named sons and daughters: Marshall R. Durst and Ira G. Durst, Chicago, Ill.; Harry O. Durst, Johnstown, Pa.; Charles F. Durst, Cumberland; Miss Zola, Perry B., George C., W. Sherman and Norman B. Durst, all at home. Funeral services were held from his late home near Avilton on Saturday morning at ten o'clock, the Rev. A. C. Bell officiating. Interment was made in the Mount Zion Methodist church cemetery.

MRS. LEAH LININGER

Funeral services for Mrs. Leah Lininger, who died on Wednesday, April 8, 1931, at her home at Accident, were held last Saturday in St. Paul's Lutheran church, Accident, Rev. A. B. Harper officiating. Interment was made in Bittinger cemetery.

The deceased was aged 68 years and 23 days and was born March 16, 1863. She spent the greater part of her life in the Bittinger and Accident communities, and was a life-lang member of the English Lutheran church, having been a member of St. Paul's Lutheran church at Accident since October 1, 1916. She was a member of both the Ladies' Aid and the Missionary socicties.

She is survived by three sons and three daughters: Clara, of Akron, O.; Mrs. Maude Timmons, Baltimore; Mrs. Mura Barnett, Wadsworth, O.; Adam Lininger, Friendsville; Arthur Lininger, Champion, Pa.; and Ralph Lininger, of Cuyahoga Falls, O.; also eighteen grandchildren and three sisters, Mrs. James Speicher, Accident; Mrs. Elizabeth Duckworth, Bloomington; and Mrs. Catherine Bittinger, Cumberland.

MRS. WESLEY WHITE

Funeral services for Mrs. Wesley White, of Fairsweep, who died in Memorial hospital, Cumberland, on Thursday, were held Sunday at 2 p. m. from the residence, Rev. J. W. Dawson, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church, officiating. Interment was in Oakland cemetery.

She was 52 years of age. She is survived by her husband, two daughters, Elinor and Alma, both at home, and her father, Mr. Buncutter; also four sisters, Mrs. Strawser, Cumberland; Mrs. George Fulk, Oakland; Mrs. Nell Feathers, Cumberland; and Mrs. G. Sanders, of near Oakland.

She had been ill for several months, but it was not thought to be serious. She was at the hospital one day.

WILLIAM MATTINGLY

William Mattingly, aged 53, of Hoyes, son of the late Meshack and Mollie Mattingly, died Friday, April 10, 1931, in Allegany hospital, Cumberland, of complications. Funeral services were conducted on Monday morning from the Catholic church at Hoyes, Rev. W. J. McVeigh, of St. Peter's Catholic church, Oakland, in charge. Interment was in the church cemetery at Hoyes.

The deceased is survived by his wife and five children, Mrs. Irene Johnson, Wilkinsburg, Pa.; Catherine, in training at Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore; Owen, of Hoyes; and Theresa and William Jr., both at home; also a sister, Mrs. Bernadette Rousch, of Duquesne, Pa.

Mr. Mattingly was born at Hoyes, and except for 12 or 15 years in Uniontown, Pa., spent his entire life in that section.

MRS MARY C. LOHR

Mrs. Mary Catherine Lohr, aged 90 years, widow of the late P. P. Lohr, of Oakland, died at 4:15 a. m. yesterday at her home. She would have been 91 years of age on May 25. Death was due to complications. She had been ill since last Saturday.

Funeral serviccs will be held at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon from the home, with interment at Bittinger.

The deceased was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jesse J. Ashby, of Crellin. Mr. Lohr, her husband, died 17 years ago. She is survived by three sons, Wade H. Lohr, Swanton; Jefferson T. Lohr, Washington, D. C., and P. Young Lohr, of Oakland.

JAMES LISH

Funeral services for James Lish, of the Bethlehem settlement, who died last Thursday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Moreland, Loch Lynn Heights, were held on Saturday morning at White Church, with interment nearby.

Death was due to a second stroke of paralysis. He was aged about 65. Surviving are his wife and several grown children.

JOSEPH W. COGLEY

Funcral services for Joseph W. Cogley, who died at his home near Oakland on Saturday, April 11, 1931, were held from the home on Monday afternoon at 2:30, Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church officiating. Interment was in the Oakland cemetery.

Mr. Cogley was born in Rockingham county, Va., July 14, 1852, and was aged 78 years, 8 months and 28 days. He came to Garrett county 59 years ago. He was a stone mason by trade and claimed the distinction of building the first cement foundation for a house in Oakland.

He married Miss Rebecca Layman, of Virginia, in 1871, who preceded him in death 41 years ago. To this union seven children were born, six of whom survive, Mrs. William Tusing, New Kensington, Pa.; Mrs. William Rice, Mrs. Howard Johnson, Mrs. Edward Miller, and Joseph Jr., of Oakland; and Mrs. Jack Ferrier, Philadelphia, Pa.

He was remarried in 1892 to Miss Carrie B. Tusing, of Garrett county, who survives. To this union eight children were born, seven of whom survive, Mrs. W. B. Heckrotte and Miss Frances, of Baltimore; and Frederick, Arthur, Ray, Harry and Frank, all of Oakland. He is also survived by 44 grandchildren and 28 great grandchildren.

Mr. Cogley was a member of the Lutheran church, having joined when the church was first founded here. He shared to some extent in building each of the three structures housing the Lutheran congregation.

His six sons acted as pallbearers.

STATE ROADS GROUP IS FACING FUND SHORTAGE

Will Have Less To Spend During Coming Two Years Than During 1929 and 1930

STATE BOND ISSUE FAILED

The State Roads Commission, balked in its efforts to have the recent Legislature bond the State for an additional $5,130,000 to carry out its projected program, will have less to spend during the coming two years than in either 1929 or 1930, officials said yesterday.

With the passing of the Assembly went hopes of the commission to match Federal highway aid for the coming two years through a bond issue of $2,630,000, a bill which died in the Senate on the final day of the session. With this bonded indebtedness past hope, the Federal funds will be matched from gasoline tax receipts as planned by Governor Ritchie.

Administration Ignored It

Failure of the administration to support plans of the roads body came from reluctance to increase the tax rate of 25 cents per $100, and resulted in only those funds provided for in the budget.

The executive did, however, foster a bond issue for $2,000,000 to aid in reconstruction of State bridges, many of which were held by the commission to be in a "distressingly dangerous" condition. To this $2,000,000 will be added $1,500,000 available from a surplus in the grade crossing elimination fund, raised from a half cent gasoline tax, making the total for the bridge work $3,500,000. The commission sought $4,000,000 for this program.

One of the most important projects, in the eyes of the road commission, that of widening a road between Baltimore and Philadelphia, to 40 feet also went by the boards in failure of the Legislature to pass a bond issue for a start on this program.

Total cost of his poject, it was estimated by Howard Bruce, member of the commission, would be $4,000,000, and he sought, at a hearing before the finance body of the Senate, $1,000,000 for each of the coming two fiscal years, to make a start on the work. His plea was refused with other bonds sought by the commission.

It was maintained by the commission that the need for this widening was proven, and that with it being carried out, a 40-foot highway would be provided through Maryland from Philadelphia to Washington.

Wonder what one extra pancake for every American on Sunday morning would do for the wheat surplus?

MT. LAKE PARK

Coming back from a visit to the local postoffice Mr. J. A. Enlow and Mr. Wiley Welling were in a reminiscent mood this morning. Mr. Enlow recalled that just 49 years ago he cut the timbers with which the first boardwalk was laid across the glade from the present bowling alley site to the Little Youghiogheny River, and hauled them in from the then nearby forest, and both recalled nailing down the plank. At that time the ground on which the Park is situated was covered with scrub oak and larger growth of timber and the lots on which the house stands in which the writer resides was cleared at that time, the father of Mr. Welling doing the first cutting. Up until that time herds of cows were driven out from Oakland and other points to graze and roam at will over the Park area.

We have on our desk some very interesting notes made by Mr. Enlow in regard to the roads leading into the Park at that time, as well as other interesting items, which we hope to have published soon. We are sure conditions existed a half century ago, as seen by a liying eye-witness, will be read with pleasure by many of our older as well as younger residents.

It is noted that much hitherto waste land is being cleared of brush and undergrowth in the nearby community of the Park. On the Jack Stevenson farm the entire bottom acreage has been grubbed out and burned. Just at the west end of Loch Lynn a tract of about forty acres, purchased by Mr. H. M. Weeks from Mrs. John Shaffer in recent months, is being cleared. All this makes for vast improvement.

It is not often that a town has a saw mill located within the corporate limits, but such has been the case with Loch Lynn Heights. On the A. L. Callis lots the mill of I. L. Beckman has just completed cutting in the neighborhood of thirty thousand feet of lumber from timber hewn down in the immediate vicinity of the town.

The special meetings at the United Brethren church, with Rev. Jessee in charge, are still in progress and will continue all of this week, in the evenings, at least.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson L. Camden have returned to the Park after having spent some weeks in the east.

Mr. and Mrs. McClelland Clayton, after spending the winter in Fairmont, have returned to their cottage

Mr. D. M. Lower will leave here on Sunday for Baltimore where he will attend the Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. of Maryland, which opens in that city on Monday. Mr. Lower goes as the representative of Oak Lodge, No. 8, of Loch Lynn.

Word has just been received here of the death of Miss Thomas, sister of Mrs. C. W. Baldwin, which occurred in Baltimore recently. Miss Thomas was a summer resident of the Park for a great number of years

Mrs. R. L. Hamill's sixty-eighth anniversary was observed on Friday evening, April 10, when a surprise party was tendered her at her home. Refreshments were served at a suitable hour. There were more than sixty persons present and the evening was most delightfully spent.

Mr. and Mrs. George Nelson and Mrs. Frank Murphy, of Fairmont, accompanied by Mrs. Bessie Zohn, who is a guest of friends there, motored to the Park one day last week.

Mr. F. R. Utterback has installed a new low-wave radio at his home in the Park through which we had the pleasure of listening to delightful music and other programs from London and Rome, which he secured direct without having the same relayed thru low-wave stations in Pittsburgh or elsewhere.

Mr. Taylor, of Virginia, is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Timothy J. Moon.

Mrs. E. L. Winchell was at her cottage here for a few days the past week.

Capt. James A. Hayden's condition is quite serious. He has been confined to his bed for many months.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Friend have moved to Deer Park.

Mrs. R. L. Cunningham and son Lawrence M., motored here from Fairmont on Sunday.

Bobbie Utterback, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Utterback, is ill at the home of his parents in the Park.

Billy Burch, who spent a part of the winter in Washington, D. C., with Mrs. William Thompson Burch, arrived in the Park Monday for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Fike have returned from a short visit at the home of the latter's mother at Terra Alta, W. Va.

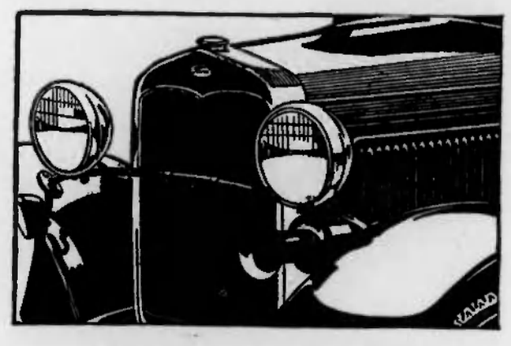
ANOTHER EXAMPLE OF FORD VALUE



Bright, enduring RUSTLESS STEEL is used for many exposed bright metal parts of the Ford

WHEN YOU BUY a Ford you buy enduring beauty. The body finish is made to last for the life of the car and practically all exposed bright metal parts except the bumpers are made of enduring Rustless Steel.

This Rustless Steel has great tensile strength. It is the same bright metal all the way through. A salt test equivalent to forty years' service under the severest weather conditions failed to have any effect on its brilliance. It never requires polishing. All you do is wipe it with a damp cloth, as you do your windshield.

This is just one of many features that show the substantial worth of the Ford. In speed, comfort, safety, economy and long life — in the richness of its finish and upholstery — it brings you everything you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.

Call or phone for demonstration.

LENGTH OF SCHOOL TERM IN GARRETT IS AVERAGE

No County in State Fell Below the 180 Days Required

The average length of session in the county elementary schools for the school year ending in June, 1930, was 186.9 days, according to the annual report of the State board of Education. In the white high schools the average session was 186.7, which is .2 of a day lower than in 1928-29. Garrett county stood approximately between the highest and lowest in both high schools and elementary schools.

No county fell below the 180 days required. In white schools the number of days open varied from just over 180 days in Worcester county to 194 days in Allegany.

County	High	Elem.
Allegany	194.1	193.9
Baltimore	190	193.6

Home Demonstration Agent

Baked Cheese Tamale

Three large onions, cut fine; 3 tablespoons drippings, 3 teaspoons salt, 1½ cups cornmeal, pepper, 5 cups boiling water, 1 cup grated cheese.

Cook the onion in the drippings for 10 minutes. Add the tomatoes, 1 teaspoon of salt and a little pepper, and cook 10 minutes longer. Sprinkle the corn meal slowly into the boiling water, add the 2 teaspoons salt, stir constantly and cook for 15 minutes. Into a greased baking dish place alternate layers of the mixtures and sprinkle each layer with the cheese, reserving some of the cheese for the top layer. Bake about 25 minutes in a moderate oven 350 degrees F. Serve from the dish.

Fish Chowder

One-fourth pound salt pork, 1 onion sliced; 2 cups carrots cut in pieces, 9 potatoes, peeled and cut in small pieces, pepper, 3 tablespoons flour, 3 cups milk, 1½ pounds fish (fresh, salt. or canned.)

Cut pork in small pieces and fry with the chopped onion for five minutes. Put pork, onions, carrots, and potatoes and pepper in kettle and cover with boiling water. Cook until vegetables are tender. Mix three tablespoons of flour with one-half cup of the cold milk and stir in the liquid in the pot to thicken. Add the rest of the milk and the fish which has been removed from the bones and cut in small pieces. Cook until the fish is tender, about 10 minutes. Serve hot. You can omit salt pork and use a tablespoon of other fat.

EASTER INCREASES TOTAL FOR MARRIAGE LICENSES

Forty-One Are Issued During Two Weeks at Clerk's Office

Forty-one marriage licenses were issued during the past two weeks at the office of the Circuit Court clerk for Garrett county, according to the records there. This number is above the average for this season of the year, it was stated at the issuing office. The number of licenses issued on Tuesday, Mareh 31, totaled ten, bringing that month's number up to 72, ten less than for the same month last year.

The total for the first three months of 1931 is 210, just eight more than for the same period last year. Thirty-five have been issued thus far in the month of April, while the record for that month is 112, made in 1930. Ten licenses issued were marked "don't publish," while one applieant was refused a permit.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

The Progressive Labor World, an American Federation of Labor publication, recently carried the following brief and interesting editorial comment under the caption "Socialism or Not?"

Those who advocate having the government do this and that, plunge into this field and that, take over this and that, had better say right out where they intend to go. Have they any terminal facilities? It is even more important that the people in general should know.

If socialism is the objective, let us find out about it. If it is, then do we want all of it, or only half of it? And if we want only half, can we take only half without taking all of it? And is that the direction in which we want to go anyway? It is unwise to start without knowing what is to be the direction and what is to be the finish.

There has been too much lack of definition already. It is time to take stock and get onto some basic philosophy and then to lay down some definite policy. Which way go we hence?

It would seem to the easual observer that here is a list of questions and suggestions which deserve more than passing attention. There has never been a time in our history, at least not within the memory of living man, when so many patent political nostrums and finespun and elusive theories were being offered to the public in an effort to solve some of our economic and political difficulties. During our days of prosperity we did not hear so much about them, although their germs were of course there. But as soon as depression struck us the seeds of radicalism blossomed into full flower.

A great many of the remedies offered us are called new by their vendors, but as a matter of fact they are old fallacies, elad in new clothing, and have been with us more or less in some form, since the days of the Athenian democracy. Why isn't it about time, then, to stop for a moment to consider seriously what it is all about, and to inquire of these busy brethren of ours just what they are trying to do? They represent every cult from pseudo-liberalism to communism. Many of them are either too timid or too modest to say that what they are advocating is out and out socialism, and many of them shudder at the thought of communism, or worse yet, try to laught it out of existence as something not to be considered dangerous. But all of their doctrines and all of their activities move toward the "left," as they put it in Europe.

Especially noisy are those which are seeking government control thru the creation of additional bulwarks of bureaucracy at Washington. They seem to be a little hazy on the subject of just how far they are going. If they desire out and out government ownership, if they want to make the citizen the ward of the state and take away from him the right to better insure himself by his own individual efforts, why don't they say so? If one is an out and out government ownership man, a theoretical socialist, why not acknowledge the corn, and not seek to hide the light of his intentions under some basket with an innocuous label.

Either the government will eventually run private business or business will be left to private enterprise. The more undue government regulation we have the more we tend toward the "left", toward government ownership and the inevitable socialist state. Isn't it about time, as the editorial quoted above suggests, that we take an inventory of our faddists, and our teachers of "new political" principles to see just where they stand and where they intend to take us, if given the opportunity? The theoretical gentlemen in the twilight zone seem to evade the situation. Either they don't know where they are going of they are afraid to tell us. The second possibility is the more likely. For they must know that there is enough sound Amcricanism in the great body of the American people to cast their socialist teachings into the depths of the occan, once these principles come to be recognized in their true light. And then what would becomc of the politieal fortunes and lecture value of the purveyors of these unmasked principles?

Committee's Sale

—OF—

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE

Situate in the Town of Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland.

Under and by virtue of the powers vested in me as Committee of the person and estate of Idie T. Hayes by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, and by a decree of said Court passed on April 2nd, 1931, in a cause standing as No. 2826 Equity on the docket of said Court, I hereby give notice that on at the hour of two o'elock P. M., in front of the Court House in the Town of Oakland, Maryland, I will offer and sell at public auction to the highest bidders all of those lots, pieces or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the said Town of Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland, as follows, to-wit:

1. All that parcel of land known as the HAYES HOME PROPERTY, and being No. 65 Green Street, in the said town of Oakland, and being the same which was conveyed to Idie T. Hayes by two deeds, the first from Mary W. Brown, conveying two acres and forty-one perches, bearing date August 26, 1908, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 58, folio 140, etc., one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and the second from James D. Hamill and wife conveying a lot 284¼ feet by 153 feet, bearing date May 1, 1920, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 77, folio 410, one of said Land Records of Garrett County.

This property is improved by a two story frame dwelling containing eleven rooms and basement, garage and small shed. This is a very excellent residence property, well situated and adapted either as a summer or all-year home.

2. All that property known as the "BULLARD PROPERTY," No. 25 High Street, in said town, containing one aere and thirty-three perches of land, and being the same which was conveyed unto Sara H. MARYLAND PLANNING FOR HEALTH DAY CELEBRATION

Health and Happiness is Inherent Right of Every Child

In every section of the country nrrangements are under way for the celebration of the first day of May as Child Health Day. Maryland will join with other states in the nationwide observance of the day. In addition to special exercises for fathers and mothers and other grownups, the children, as usual, will celebrate the day with plays and games and with other exercises typifying health and growth.

The purpose of the observance is to direct the attention of every grownup to the inherent right of every child to health and happiness; to protection from diseases; to intelligent care; and to opportunities for normal growth and development, physical, mental and spiritual. In all of the plans, emphasis is laid on community responsibility, as well as on that of fathers and mothers, teachers and public officials, for the health and well-being of children of the nation.

The Maryland Child Health Day Committee is composed of representatives of state, county and city departments of health and education; of parent-teacher associations; state and county medical societies; service clubs; organizations concerned with the care of the handicapped; recreational groups and of other organizations helping to further the health and welfare of the children in the state. Dr. J. H. M. Knox, chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, is chairman of the State committee.

"May Day with its festivals, has always been associated" Dr. Knox said, in outlining the plans for the day, "with the out-of-doors, the coming spring, and with growth and development. The idea of applying that thought to the children of the country, originnted with the American Child Health Association. State after state adopted the plan of letting this particular day symbolize the hopes of all for health and opportunity for every child, and finally, by Congressional action, Child Health Day was placed where it is now, on the calendar of "national" days.

"Recently, the attention of all thoughtful men and women has been directed to the findings of the White House Conference Committee on Child Health and Protection and to the great need shown for more adequate measures for the care of all children in order that they may grow to manhood and womanhood free from physical and mental handicaps and safeguarded so that they may develop physically, mentally and spiritually.

"The aims of the White House Conference have been embodied in the Children's Charter which stresses the right of every mother and every child to such care. Wherever Child Health Day celebrations are held, their purpose will be to bring about the ultimate realization of these declarations in the Children's Charter, not for one day only but every day."

Due to the late season in Garrett county, Health Day will be celebrated here the latter part of May. Programs are being arranged by Mrs. Joseph F. Fahey, public health nurse, and Mrs. Samuel J. Cole, health nurse for the Kitzmiller section. These will be announced next week.

SAVE YOUR EYES

By

Dr. J. F. Andrae, Secretary Maryland State Board of Optometry

Automobile Accidents

Last year the death rate from automobile accidents in the United States totalled more than 30,000. At that speed it won't take us long to equal the number which were lost by us in the recent war. Those deaths aroused a great sense of national loss, but what about the thousands of men, women and children who pay with their lives each year due to automobile accidents? These figures do not include the hordes who are crippel and incapacitated for life.

In this State where an eye test is given to all applicants for a driver's license, the fatalities are much lower than in the States where no attention is given to the condition of the eye. You may say that all these deaths cannot be laid to poor eyesight, but on the other hand, only a small percentage can be laid to faulty mechanism of the auto. It is the human element that does not keep pace. The eyes are still shaped as when our forefathers spied another moving object far down the road, coming slowly towards them. Then there was plenty of time to speak to the oxen and in the inter generations, to rein in the faster horses, so there would be plenty of room for both vehicles on the narrow road. But now an automobile is no sooner in sight than it is upon you. If your eyes are not equipped to judge distance with the necessary fine distinction for time, where are you? In the ditch, most likely.

Beyond the County

In Spain, after the electorate had turned in crushing Republican victories, King Alfonso abdicated Tuesdny and fled the province; being a millionaire it is rumored he may come to the United States and enter the automobile industry.

In Nicaragua, it is reported that 11 Americans and an undetermined number of British subjects have been killed by insurgents in the interior.

At Battle Creek, Mich., Kellogg Co., cereal manufacturers, have announced that a six-hour working day will be adopted as a permanent working policy, the employes working four shifts of six hours each.

In Los Angeles, Estelle Taylor announced that she had made up her mind to file suit for divorce against her husband, Jack Dempsey very soon.

In Washington, the champion Philadelphia Athletics went 11 innings to defeat the Washington Senators before an opening-day crowd of 32,000 baseball fans, President Hoover pitching the first ball.

In New York, after being arrested 22 times in 22 years, Edward J. Cunneen was sentenced to life imprisonment under the Baumes law for his fifth felony conviction, his last robery, of which he was convicted, netting him 22 dollars.

At Butler, Pa., the first recorded live stock damage suit against an airplane company netted a farmer $80 when it was proven that the horns of a valuable cow were knocked off by a plane as it took the air.

In Wisconsin, the department of agriculture has announced that forest fires this year have already caused damage to the estimated amount of five million dollars, and that unless rain soon falls the damage will be the greatest in history.

At Charlottesville, Va., the 188th birthday of Thomas Jefferson, the author of the Declaration of Independence and the founder of the University of Virginia 112 years ago, was celebrated at Monticello, his home, on April 13.

At Upper Marlboro, Claude H. Owen, 52-year old assistant cashier, opened fire, shot and killed one of three bandits when they attempted to hold up and rob the First National Bank.

At Cincinnati, the funeral of Nicholas Longworth, Speaker of the U. S. House of Representatives, able and talented, husband of Alice Roosevelt Longworth, daughter of President Roosevelt, took place from his former home last week.

From London it is announced that by the use of a new amplifier London orators can now speak from one bank of the Thames to an audience on the other side, the voices carrying for at least one mile.

At Passaic, N. J., speeding trains and other out-door scenes have been seen via radio television tests under way there, with no other aid than the light of the sun and a television "camera.."

From London it is announced by a noted surgeon that the large blood vessel springing from the heart of Pharaoh showed that the hardening of Pharaoh's heart recorded in the Bible was actually true.

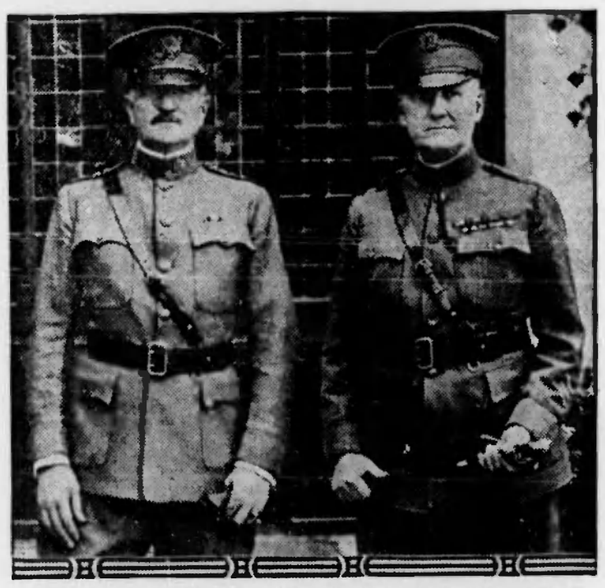
Harbord Chief of Staff.

Obviously it was advisable to choose my staff as soon as practicable. After studying the records of several officers of my acquaintance and of others who were recommended for the position, I chose Maj. James G. Harbord. His efficiency in every grade from the day of his enlistment as a private in the army in January, 1889, was not only of record but was well known to those with whom he had served.

Throughout the war Harbord never hesitated a moment to express his opinion with the utmost frankness, no matter how radically it might differ from my own, nor did he ever fail to carry out instructions faithfully even when they were not in accord with his views. Entirely unselfish, he labored incessantly for what he believed to be the best interests of our armies. His ability, his resourcefulness, his fnenity for orgnnizntion, and, above all, his loyalty, were outstnnding qualities, and these, together with a compelling personality, made him invaluable to the nation in this important position.



General Pershing With Gen. James G. Harbord, His Chief of Staff.

After consultation with the permanent heads of staff and supply departments, and with no little insistence on my part in more than one instance, the corresponding representatives to accompany me were designated, and they in turn chose their assistants. Although the list did not include all I would have selected, as some were not available, yet all rose to important places in the final organization, except one or two who failed in health.

The total number in my party that sailed on the Baltic was as follows:

Regular army officers	40
Marine corps officers	2
ORC officers in active service	17
Enlisted men	67
Field clerks	36
Civilian clerks	20
Civilian interpreters	5
Civilians (correspondents)	3
Total on Baltic	190

Draft Act Passed May 18.

The method of raising our armies by conscription was based on studies made by the war college under instructions from General Scott. President Wilson recommended the plan to congress April 7, 1917, but the draft act was not passed until May 18, forty-two days after the declaration of war.

Roosevelt Offer Rejected.

The appeal of Col. Theodore Roosevelt at this time for permission to raise a volunteer division aroused popular sentiment throughout the country in his favor, but approval would have opened the door for many other applications and the policy would have interfered materially with the orderly and businesslike application of the draft law.

Moreover, the regular establishment would have suffered from the loss of an undue proportion of the best officers, who inevitably would have been selected for important positions in these special units at a time when their services were urgently needed in building more largely.

Another important reason for disapproving Colonel Roosevelt's application was that in such a war it was necessary that officers, especially those in high command, should be thoroughly trained and disciplined. Furthermore, Colonel Roosevelt was not in the best of health and could not have withstood the hard work and exposure of training camps and trenches.

The secretary of war, much to the disappointment of Colonel Roosevelt, wisely made an adverse decision in his case, which was confirmed by the President. It was evident that both Mr. Wilson and Secretary Baker were looking for trained leaders and were determined to avoid the embarrassment President Lincoln experienced in the Civil war, when he was more or less driven to fill many high positions with political appointees who, in the end, had to be replaced by men trained in the military profession.

Roosevelt's Plea for Sons.

The following letter from Colonel Roosevelt, dated May 17, 1917, will show his own fine attitude:

"My Dear General Pershing:

"I very heartily congratulate you, and especially the people of the United States, upon your selection to lead the expeditionary force to the front. When I was endeavoring to persuade the secretary of war to permit me to raise a division or two of volunteers, I stated that if you, or some men like you, were to command the expeditionary force I could raise the divisions without trouble.

"I write you now to request that my two sons, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., aged twenty-seven, and Archibald B. Roosevelt, aged twenty-three, both of Harvard, be allowed to enlist as privates with you, to go over with the first troops. The former is a major and the latter a captain in the officers' reserve corps. They are at Plattsburg for their third summer.

"My own belief is that competent men of their standing and rank can gain very little from a third summer at Plattsburg and that they should be utilized as officers, even if only as second lieutenants. But they are keenly desirous to see service; and if they serve under you at the front, and are not killed, they will be far better able to instruct the draft army next fall or next winter, or whenever they are sent home, than they will be after spending the summer at Plattsburg.

"The President has announced that only regular officers are to go with you, and if this is to be the invariable rule then I apply on behalf of my two sons that they may serve under you as enlisted men, to go to the front with the first troops sent over.

"Trusting to hear that this request has been granted, I am, with great respect,

"Very sincerely yours,

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

"P. S.—If I were physically fit, instead of old and heavy and stiff, I should myself ask to go under you in any capacity down to and including a sergeant; but at my age, and condition, I suppose that I could not do work you would consider worth while in the fighting line (my only line) in a lower grade than brigade commander."

CHAPTER III

Our diplomatic situation as to munitions was fully discussed at a conference called by Secretary of War Baker May 10. It was brought out that we had for issue, not in the hands of troops, fewer than 285,000 Springfield rifles, caliber .30; only a few more than 400 light field guns, three-inch, and 150 heavy field guns.

As it was impossible because of manufacturing difficulties for our factories to turn out enough Springfield rifles within a reasonable time, the secretary decided to adopt the Enfield rifle for our infantry. It was then being manufactured for the British in large quantities at private factories in our country, and a slight modification of the chamber only was necessary to make it fit our ammunition. The total production of this rifle exceeded 2,000,000 during the war.

As to machine guns, it was reported to the conference that we had a few less than 1,500, and these were of four types. Congress in 1916 had appropriated $12,000,000 for machine guns, but the War department had not decided definitely to adopt any particular one for our army, although an order had been placed late in 1916 for a quantity of the heavy Vickers-Maxims.

Short on Ammunition.

Of artillery ammunition, except for the three-inch, we did not have enough to provide more than nine hours' supply, even for the limited number of guns on hand, firing at the rate ordinarily used in laying down barrage for an infantry attack.

The situation at that time as to aviation was such that every American ought to feel deeply chagrined to hear it mentioned. Of 65 officers and about 1,000 men in the air service section of the signal corps there were 35 officers who could fly.

With the exception of five or six officers, none of them could have met the requirements of modern battle conditions and none had any technical experience with aircraft guns, bombs, or bombing devices.

We had some fifty-five training planes in various conditions of usefulness, all entirely without war equipment. Of these planes it is amusing now to recall that the national advisory committee for aeronautics, which had been conducting an alleged scientific study of the problem of flight, advised that fifty-one were obsolete and four others obsolescent.

We could not have put a single squadron in the field, although it was estimated that we should eventually need at least 300 squadrons, each to be composed on the average of some 24 officers, 180 men and 18 planes, besides a large reserve of planes for replacements.

Among other subjects considered with the secretary was the assembly for training of the National Guard and the men to come in under the draft.

In lieu of any previous plans, the secretary contemplated the construction of cantonments in different parts of the country, and May 7 the commanding generals of the several departments were directed to select sites.

The actual construction of cantonments was not begun until nearly three months after we were in the war, and so great was the task of erecting buildings and putting in water works and sewers that some ninety days more elapsed by the time these centers of instruction were ready to receive troops. Thus it was, with some exceptions, practically six months before the training of our army was under way. Even then several of these camps were not favorably located, and training was seriously handicapped during the fall and winter months.

Rivalry for Our Troops.

About this time the allies brought up the question of utilizing our men to build up their armies. As we shall see, the subject arose from time to time in one form or another, and we had to fight against it until the end of the war.

Both the French and British missions, under M. Rene Viviani and Arthur G. Balfour, respectively, then in our country, were very keen to have us consent to fill up the ranks of their armies with Americans.

for service in any capacity by my old friend, Robert Bacon, who had been ambassador to France. He had already given valuable aid to the allied cause, and because of his intimate knowledge of the French people and his tact and discretion I was glad to have him.

A few days before my departure, while at lunch at the Metropolitan club with Charles E. Magoon, ex-governor of Cuba, Charles G. Dawes joined us. The three of us had been friends in the days when we were together at Lincoln, Neb. Magoon and Dawes as young lawyers, the latter with a decided talent for business, and I as military instructor at the state university.

Dawes was an applicant for a commission in one of the engineer regiments then being organized under the direction of Samuel Felton, from volunteers with experience in railroading, and wanted me to help him get the appointment. I asked him whether he knew anything about engineering, and he said that when a youth he had carried a chain a month or so for a surveyor in Ohio.

In was not much impressed with his pretentions as an engineer or as a prospective military possibility, but I did have knowledge of his business ability and experience, and knew that he would be valuable in some position requiring his qualifications, so I spoke to the secretary of war in his behalf.

Requests from National Guard officers and from governors for the early acceptance of their state units literally poured into the War department. The clamor became so general and so insistent that the secretary of war happily conceived the idea of forming a composite division to include troops from every state in the Union. I thought the suggestion a good one and gave it my hearty indorsement. This was the origin of the Forty-second (Rainbow) division, which was later to distinguish itself in several engagements.

I was decidedly against our becoming a recruiting agency for either the French or British, and at that time this was the attitude of the War department also. While fully realizing the difficulties, it was definitely understood between the secretary of war and me that we should proceed to organize our own units from top to bottom and build a distinctive army of our own as rapidly as possible.

The evident rivalry between the British and French for control and use of our forces, even before we had an army in the field, confirmed my impression that those two governments were not working entirely in harmony. As to their armies, it had been apparent for some time that there was a lack of co-operation between them. Their efforts were often separate and distinct—that is, first one and then the other would attack.

Friends Sought to Go Along.

Although it was not generally known that I was to go abroad, there was a flood of applications to accompany me. One of them was a personal appeal

CRELLIN RIFLE TEAM IS WINNER AT CUMBERLAND

Victory Recalls Feats of "Haymakes" of Half Century Ago —Return Match April 20

.22 CALIBRE RIFLES USED

Forty years ago nationwide attention was given the record-breaking performances of a great rifle team from Garrett County, better known as "The Haymakers," who were in a class by themselves in this section of the country.

Old-timers who recall the feats accomplished by that great team of sharpshooters on the range should no doubt be interested to learn that Garrett county has another crack aggregation of rifle shots in the Youghiogheny Rifle Club, of Crellin, Md., which made its debut in Cumberland on Thursday night and carried off highest honors in a four-team match with Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion, Company G, National Guard, both of Cumberland, and Keyser, West Va., shot on the State Armory range in Cumberland.

Inherited From Ancestors

The result of this match should be of interest since it is presumed that the keen markmanship of the Crellin artists can be traced back to their ancestors who had an enviable reputation in bygone days. The "Haymakers" team was composed of natives from Oakland, Crellin and nearby Garrett county towns and they won numerous trophies in state, regional and national rifle meets almost half a century ago.

The four-team match resulted in a victory for Crellin over American Legion with Company G, third, and Keyser, fourth. The match was shot with .22 calibre rifles from fifty feet, each man taking three shots from the prone, sitting and standing positions.

The results were as follows:

CRELLIN—R. Welch 131, Yutzy 128, A. Welch 127, Sisler 126, Ford 121, C. Welch 117. Total 750.

LEGION—Copeland 133, Jones 132, Barncs 125, Loughrie 125, Carter 121, Vogel 113. Total—749.

COMPANY G—Spciche 131, Clayton 128, Millholland 124, Reitz 115, Rice 112, Dickey 104. Total—714.

KEYSER—Jackson 127, Emmart 127, Wildeman 125, Mott 113, Pierce 101, Arnold 96. Total—689.

At Crellin April 20

Three of the teams, namely: American Legion, Company G and Crellin will stage a return match on the Youghiogheny Rifle Club range in Crellin on Monday, April 20.

The Cumberland Legion team's scores in that match will count in the Maryland State match for the Parker cup, a three-year trophy, being offered to the outstanding Legion rifle team in the State by Major Parker, who has charge of American Legion rifle activities. Seven local men will compete but only the scores of six will be counted in the official total.

Mrs. V. L. Blocher has returned home from a week's visit with her father and family at Swissvale, Pa.

Mrs. Ruth Smouse and son Thomas, of Cumberland, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fay Miller.

Brief History of Marionettes Given by Prof. Paul

Prof. Bernard H. Paul, instructor of marionettes or puppets in Maryland Institute of Art, Baltimore, who will stage the first puppet show for Oakland in Maryland Theatre, Thursday, April 30, with matinee and evening performances, has compiled the following brief history of marionettes:

A marionette is an articulated doll whose movements are controlled by strings in the hands of the manipulator. However, when more carefully studied, is more than that. It becomes almost human, so that one could almost sense the soul of the character performing.

The story of the first marionette runs far back into history. Archeologists have unearthed small stages made of ivory and inlaid with precious stones that are thought to be private marionette stages of the little Egyptian princesses which they tried to take with them into the unknown world.

The Egyptian priests also used a form of marionette to amaze their people. The priests of India connected their puppets with their gods. Puppets of gold were fashioned in the image of their god, trained birds with split tongues were placed in the mouth of the puppet to furnish speech for them.

In China today the traveler is likely to come upon children standing before the booth of an itinerant puppet showman who travels about the country, stopping wherever he can.

In ancient Greece the puppets performed for the children in the public square, in the theatre and the adults presented religious plays where the gods came to life in these little actors and were thus kept alive by the myths of the ancient people.

Rome improved her puppet by her best authors writing plays. Roman emperors invited these players with their puppets dressed in costly cloth and bedecked with jewels into their palaces and built expensive theatres just for this art alone.

With the decline of Rome, went the marionette, to return with the early Christians who used the art of telling the story of Christ and the characters of the Bible. This art was banished, because it ceased to be religious but merely entertaining by the Council of Trent in 1550.

In France, Spain and in Italy we find traces of renown won by these artists.

Puppets are not new in America. Long before the white man came, the marionettes had a sacred duty to perform in the ceremonials of the North American Indian life. However, during the building of this new empire the marionette found no time to amuse the busy white settler. During President Lincoln's sojourn at the White House they had a marionette theatre for his son Ted. At present there are many marionette producers in this country.

You will enjoy the first puppet show to be given in the Maryland Theatre on Thursday afternoon and evening, April 30.

NEW GERMANY

Mr. Arthur Broadwater and family and Miss Jennie Jenkins spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Galloway at Uniontown, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Warnick and daughter, of Jenners, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Austin Kamp, of Grantsville, were Sunday guests at the Lewis Warnick home.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 55. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, APRIL 23, 1931. NUMBER 10.

TWO COUNTY POSITIONS NOT PROVIDED FOR IN LEVY

No Appropriation Is Made For Public Health Nurse and Home Demonstration Agent

DETAILED REPORT GIVEN

That no appropriations have been made for the offices of Public Health Nurse, and Home Demonstration Agent, and that these positions automatically cease to exist about June 1, is shown in a detailed report of the Garrett county levy for Garrett county for the year 1931, which is printed in another section of The Republican.

The expenses for the county agent were also cut to a minimum, the levy for the cooperative laboratory at Cumberland entirely eliminated, and other reductions made. The levy for county commissioners incressed from $2,950 to $4,000, and an additional $750 was levied for expenses for the State's attorney, making the total levy for his office $2,250.

With the elimination of public health service and extension service among the women and girls of the county, the county brings to a close a period of development among the rural communities, the attempt to raise the standard of health, and it is said will hinder to a very great extent the social service work among the needy of this vicinity.

Health Work Began in 1922

Health work began in the county in 1922, and the records during the ensuing years including the present year shows the amount and character of work that has been done including decrease in communicable diseases, and increasing of school attendance. The work included free child welfare clinics, dental clinics, pre-school clinics, mental clinics, eye clinics, crippled children's clinics, tuberculosis clinics, and health classes, visits to schools, visits to homes, where information necessary to health was dispensed free of charge to hundreds of people, hospital care for sufferers, and placing of orphans in a number of homes at no cost to the taxpayers.

Since health work began 89 have been treated for tuberculosis, 1,483 received the toxin-antitoxin treatment for diphtheria, which makes those receiving the treatment immune for life; 214 have been examined in orthopedic clinics for cripples, thirty percent of whom received surgical corrections of the county and the Maryland League for Crippled children; and hundreds have had free examinations at the various other clinics where they were informed of their defects and suggestions made as to their correction.

A report for the past year shows that the health nurse at Kitzmiller made 1,352 home visits and 74 school visits, while the nurse at Oakland made 1,314 home visits and 113 school visits. During the past winter 44 families were furnished food and clothing, donated by organizations, and distributed by the health nurse to deserving ones after a close investigation of her part.

Demonstration Agent

The home demonstation agent began work in the county about 1924 and her work during this time consisted in the formation of homemakers clubs, girls' 4-H clubs, etc., and the development of the home in teaching planning of homes, furnishing of homes, dessmaking, canning, cooking, sewing, and other project work. Work of this nature has given women of the county trips to College Park, Md.; Springfield, Mass., Washington, D. C., and the winning of other honors.

Special Program Prepared For Tree Planting Ceremoy

A special program for the tree planting ceremony at the high school grounds tomorrow afternoon has been arranged and will precede the planting of the various trees and shrubs which have been supplid by organizations and individuals of the city. The ceremony is being sponsored by the local Civic Club.

The program will include the following numbers: March, Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band; song, America; opening remarks, Prof. F. D. Bittle; special number by a quartet; "Trees," Olive Gnegy; care and planting of trees, John H. Carter, county agent; value of trees, H. A. Loradlich, member of the school board; reading, Mona O'Brien; song, to tune of "America the Beautiful."

RECORD AUCTION SALE IS HELD AT EVANS' GARAGE

Transactions For Week Total $16,757.15—4000 Attend Sale

A record auction sale was held Saturday, April 18, by E. S. Evans, at Terra Alta, West Va., when between three thousand and four thousand people attended and purchased used cars, trucks, tractors, farming implements, horses and cattle.

Not only was the crowd larger thsn was expected, but results showed that they came to buy. Due to extensive advertising much interest was created and during the week of the sale the figures of the business transacted were as follows: Sales of cattle, $1,149; horses, $3,250; farming implements, $684.45; used cars, trucks and tractors, $5,380; new cars, $6,293.70; a total volume of business for the week of $16,757.15.

The sale of new cars and used cars was made up of 19 trucks, 2 tractors and 54 passenger cars, a total of 75 for the week.

Mr. Evans was his own auctioncer. He was assisted by Foster DeWitt, Ira Mahaffey, Mason Glotfelty and Lawrence Collins. Charles Reckard, manager of Mr. Evans's Oakland garage, was clerk at the sale.

RAIN AND SNOW HELP TO STOP FOREST FIRES HERE

Seven Alarms Have Been Answered by Department in Week

Rain and snow came yesterday to quench the earth and end the worst series of forest fires of tbe season, not only in Garrett county, but throughout Western Maryland.

To the six alarms which were sounded the first part of last week seven others have been added, three of which were considered serious and which burned over considerable territory.

The following alarms were answered by members of the Oakland Fire department and quite a number of citizens:

Friday, vacant lot on corner of Oak and Third streets, brush fire; Friday afternoon, a call to Rock Lodge which was almost immediately canceled.

Saturday, King's Hill, about four miles north of Oakland, serious.

Sunday, Crystal Spring vicinlty, about one mile east of Mt. Lake Park, brush fire.

Monday, Crystal Spring vicinity, serious; near Breedlove's on the Crellin- Oakland highway, brush fire; and brush fire at Altamont, about six miles east of Oakland, serious.

Puppet Show Scheduled in Maryland Theatre Next Thursday

A marionette or puppet show will be presented in the Maryland Theatre next Thursday, April 30, with matinee and evening performance.

Prof. Bernard Paul, instructor in the Maryland Institute of Art, Baltimore, will be in charge of this show.

Oakland people will have the pleasure of seeing at the matinee Cinderella, the Three Bears, Jsck and the Bean Stalk and other sketches.

In the evening, Prof. Paul will put on Cinderella, the Butterfly that Stamped, Jack and the Bean Stalk and Under Sea.

This program has been specially prepared for old and young and will be an unusual performance. It is being sponsored by the Pastor's Aid Society of the Lutheran Church.

Knights of Pythias To Observe Crellin Night at Meeting

Crellin night will be observed at the regular meeting of the Knights of Pythias lodge tomorrow evenii g in Castle Hall, Oakland. A special program has ben arranged and refreshments will be served. The membership is urged to be present.

Prisoners Are Recaptured

Ernest Coddington, of Friendsville, and Paul Hardin, of Cumberland, who escaped from the Garrett County Jail on Sunday evening, were apprehended on Monday night about 9:30 at the home of John Wiiburn, Jennings, by county officers.

The escape of the men was effected by sawing the bars of one of the windows with a small saw which had been smuggled into the prisoners in some manner.

Both youths are being heid on the charges of robbery.

These two prisoners are the same ones who walked away from the Jail two or three wecks ago after the sheriff had set them to clearing up the basement of the building.

PITTSBURGH C. OF C. IS FAVORABLE TO TABLELAND

Board of Directors Approve Plan of Allegheny Association to Exploit This Region

EXPECTED TO AID FARMER

The board of directors of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce on April 17 approved the plan of the Allegheny Tableland association. This plan was drawn up by officers of the Tableland association and officials of the agricultural extension division of Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, and before belng adopted by the board of directors it was studied by three separate committees.

"This action in Pittsburgh is the consumation of nine months' endeavor of the tableland association," according to Bushrod Grimes, secretary, "and the potential value of the cooperation of the Pittsburgh institution can mean much to the plateau region, and will undoubtedly result in many tourists this summer. Many of the wealthiest men of Pittsburgh are taking an active interest in this area.

"We have quite a job ahead of us," Mr. Grimes continued, "in preparing for the tourist trade with golf links, tennis courts, fishing grounds, boats on Deep Creek Lake, hotel accommodations, marked trails, etc.

"For the farmers it means definite contact with the Pittsburgh markets, not only one of the greatest consuming centers in the country but also a great distribution point. With this hook-up with the Chamber of Commerce farmers of the Tableland region will find a helpful contact, giving them opportunity to market farm commodities.

"President James Rae of the Chamber of Commerce has been authorized by his bosrd of directors to appoint a special committee made up of reprerentatives of city organizations, the purpose of which shall be to study ways and means of cooperating with the Tableland association in the recreational and agricultural development of this mountain area."

Winchester Band Presents Program To Large Audience

An outstanding musical event was the concert given by the Handley High School band of Winchester, Va., last Friday evening under the auspices of the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland. Under the direction of Prof. W. H. McIlwee, a former instructor of the Oaklsnd band, the Handley Band rendered a difficult program of concert music including such compositions as the Overture, "Stradella", by Flotow; and the grand selection, "Maritana", by Wallace. The last two marches on the program featured the drum and bugle corps.

The program was diversified by two xylophone solos by Kenneth Windle, and a number of selcetions by the Handley quartet.

The concert was considered by the large number who heard it an artistic triumph as well as a business success. More than $60 will be cleared after all bills are paid. The total receipts were $173.43 from the afternoon and evening concerts, sixty percent of which goes to the local band.

The fifty-two members of the band were cared for by the citizens of the town during their stay here. On behalf of the local band Mr. Gilbert wishes to thank all those who attended and who gave their support and financial backing to the organization. He especially wishes to thank the faithful band auxiliary, the three Oakland schools, Mr. B. I. Gonder, Mayor G. C. Stemple, Dr. Henry McComas, and Mrs. W. J. Chambers. A bouquet of flowers was presented to Prof. McIlwee by Dr. McComas on behalf of the Boys' Band.

Given 113 Days In Frederick County Jail

L. O. Friend, Swanton, this county, was sentenced to 113 days in the Frederick county jail on April 18 by Justice J. Hollin Kefauver, Middletown, in default of a fine of $113 and costs, following his conviction on charges of operating an automobile while intoxicated and for reckless driving.

Friend was arrested by State policeman H. H. Hsines after the car he was driving crashed into the mschine operated by William Allertin west of Middletown. Both machines went over a steep embankment. The occupants of the cars escaped injury.

EVERY SECTION OF CITY ENTERS GARDEN CONTEST

Greater Number to Participate This Year Than in 1930—Mrs. Harold Harned Made Chairman

YOU WIN IF YOU LOSE

The rush to enter the second annual yard and garden contest, sponsored by the Oakland Civic Club, has effected every section of the city, according to members of the club, and although a few who were entered last year are not continuing their work, more new ones have joined in the movement, and it is fully expected that the number will exceed that of 1930, when more than 200 persons took part and became so interested in the work that the town was almost entirely changed in appearance.

Property owners along the highway approaches to town are almost 100 per cent in entering the contest and everybody seems to be taking more interest than last year, the president of the Civic Club stated.

You Win If You Lose

The steady stream of entries appears to be because the Garden Contest is the only competition ever held in this community in which one who enters can't lose. For every bit of yard improvement work done by an entrant will make his or her place just that much more attractve, and permanent planting always increases the valuc of property, it is a known fact.

The contest is rapidly developing into a big friendly competition with neighbor pitted against neighbor, and with public opinion focused on civic improvement and home grounds beautification, it is not surprising that there is an epidemic of planting all over town and along the various highways leading into it.

But while the planting work is getting under way throughout the city there is still time to join the contest. Mrs. Harold H. Harned is chairman of the contest this year and all entries should be addressed to her, a member of the Civic Club or to The Republican office. The judges will start on their first inspection trip on Monday of next week.

CRELLIN VICTORIOUS IN RETURN SHOOTING MATCH

Wins Over 2 Cumberland Teams By Margin of 80 Points

The return match between the American Legion Rifle team and Company G Rifle team, Cumberland, and the team of the Youghiogheny Rifle and Revolver Association, Crellin, staged at the indoor range of the latter on Monday evening, resulted in the Crellin team winning the match by a margin of 80 points.

The teams shot from a distance of 50 feet at a standard N. R. A. target, ten shots each in the off-hand, sitting and prone positions. Teams consisted of seven men each, the scores of the six highest to count.

A. Welch, R. Welch, G. Welch, Sisler, Yutzy, Holler and Ford fired for the Crellin team and the six scored 496 on off-hand, 554 on sitting and 557 on prone, a total of 1,607 points. American Legion was second with 1,527 points, and Company G last with 1,452 points.

Music was furnished by Cogley and Jordan and refreshments were served at the conclusion of the shoot.

Arrangements are now under consideration for an outdoor match this summer at 100 yard and 200 yard ranges.

Claflin Singers Appear Before Large Crowd At Maryland

The nationally known Claflin quartet, composed of colored students of Claflin college, Orangeburg, South Carolina, appeared Tuesday evening at the Maryland theatre, before a packed house, and presented a program of spirituals and other selections.

These singers have appeared before some of the leading organizations of the county, and have broadcast from radio stations in New York, Atlantic City, and Philadelphia.

They were welcomed by Mayor G. C. Stemple, and Sinclair Swan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Swan, of Oakland, the leader of the quartet, responded with a few words of appreciation for the large number present.

All is in readiness for Boys' Week which is to begin Sunday morning with all boys in Garrett county in church and Sunday school. In the afternoon in Oakland a parade will form in the Grammar School playlot at two o'clock. Bands and drum corps will lead the parade through the streets of Oakland and at the Maryland Theatre Judge Kums, of Elkins will be the speaker. Other numbers of an interesting afternoon program will be given. All the people of the county are invited to the theatre.

Monday and Tuesday are days at school when Rotarians will address the puplis there assembled.

Wednesday afternoon all Oakland boys will be the guests of the Rotary Club at a free movie at 2.15 o'clock. In the evening, the boys are expected to remain at home with their parents.

Thursday will be citizenship day in Oakland when the town will be governed by a boy mayor and boy members of the City Council.

Friday will be industrial day, when all are expected to visit industrial plants in the county. Saturday, hikes and outdoor parties will be the attraction.

Second Annual 4-H Club Rally Held Saturday, April 18

Nine communities with 12 4-H clubs were represented with a total attendance of 80 at the second 4-H club rally held Saturday, April 18, at the Court House, Oakland.

Following the program refreshwere served. Lois Ross and Frances Riley cut the ices and were assisted in serving by Beatrice Schnopp, Dorothy Gibson, Ruth Ream, Jane Rathbun, and Mary Evelyn Moon.

All 4-H club girls attending made an exhibit of handwork. The display table was in charge of Annabelle Stemple and Adaline Stuck.

The first County 4-H Council was organized with the following officers for 1931 and 1932:

President, Mildred Stemple, Oakland; first vice-president, Hasaleah Yutzy, Oakland; second vice-pesident, Blanche Colaw, Crellin; secretary, Annabelle Stemple, Oakland; assistant secretary, Velma DeWitt, Crellin; treasurer, Adaline Stuck, Oakland.

The officers will have charge of the meeting and program which will be held in April, 1932.

Lutheran Brotherhood Meets

St. Mark's Brotherhood held its April meeting on Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock with about twenty present. Prof. Bernard King, head of the Department of History of the local high school, gave a stirring message to "What price liberty of conscience and freedom of worship." Prof. Ervin Smith presided in the absence of the president, T. C. Bittinger. The next meeting will be held on May 19, which will be an outing if the weather permits.

"RECREATION" IS RAIDED BY PROHIBITION OFFICERS

Joseph Hinebaugh, Owner, and Paul Ott, Employe, Held—28 Bottles Home Brew Found

BOND FIXED AT $500 EACH

Joseph Hinebaugh, owner and manager of the Recreation bowling and billiard parlor, and Paul Ott, an employe, who had been working but a few days in the place, are being held under $500 bond each for their appearance before the Federal Court, in Cumberland, following a raid of prohibition officers and local deputies yesterday afternoon.

Twenty-eight bottles of alleged home brew, said to be intoxicating, were found on the second floor of the building, the liquid being stored in an ice box back of a counter. Two gaming machines (slot) were also found and these were confiscated by Clarence Spear, Garrett county deputy sheriff, who assisted the prohibition officers in making the raid. George T. Danforth, Cumberland Prohibition Enforcement officer, was in charge of the raiders.

Before Justice W. A. Gonder, Hinebaugh and Ott both waived preliminary hearings and bond was fixed in the sum of $500 each. Guy Hinebaugh furnished bond for Joe Hinebaugh and the two jointly furnished bond for Ott. The charge lodged against the alleged violator was manufacture and having possession for the purpose of sale. The evidence concerning the gaming devices will be presented to the June Grand Jury. Hinebaugh has been convicted before on the slot machine charge.

The officers, it is said, visited the place one day last week but found no evidence of violations.

A newel post on the stairway leading to the second story of the establishment was found to have a removable cap and was hollow, in which it is alleged, liquor was kept at times. No evidence of the presence of illicit intoxicants was found when the post was opened and examined yesterday, however.

Bradley T. Bray, of near Swanton, was also arrested on a charge of the sale of liquor and possession for the purpose of sale, on Tuesday evening, and he was also held under bond for his appearance when called. Bray was arrested once before—February 22—on the same charge.

Cars Wreck Sunday at Rainbow Inn—Several Injured

An automobile driver, who failed to notify those following him that he was about to stop, caused two cars to wreck Sunday afternoon at Rainbow Inn, eight miles north of Oakland, injuring four people. In the confusion the driver of the car made his escape without anyone learning his name or the license number of his car.

Mrs. J. C. Kendall, Oakland, and two children, who were following a short distance behind the "hit and run" driver, were crowded into the ditch, and Mr. and Mrs. George H. Moore, New Salem, Pa., crashed into the rear of Mrs. Kendall's car. Mrs. Kendall received a severe cut on her leg requiring several stitches, and her daughter received a badly bruised nose.

Mr. Moore received a serious bruise on the knee cap, and Mrs. Moore was badly bruised and shaken. The cars were both damaged considerably.

E. R. Jones Elected Head of Oakland Rotarians

Ernest Ray Jones, local attorney, was elected president of the Oakland Rotary club at its regular weekly meeting held last Friday evening in the William-James hotel. He will succeed Charles Ream, coal operator. Other officers elected included Paul Naylor, vice-president; W. O. Davis, secretary; and O. T. Graser, treasurer.

The club elected the Board of Directors, consisting of Charles Ream, Paul Naylor, Ralph Weber, E. R. Jones, Walter W. Dawson, Floyd Stahl, and O. T. Graser, and the board elected the officers.

Installation will take place the first part of July.

Add to Rotary Story

Rev. D. C. Trimble, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal church, will be the speaker at the regular meeting tomorrow evening, and the following week will be a celebration of Health Day, with Dr. H. W. McComas delivering the address.

HOW TO PRAY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 18:1-14.

GOLDEN TEXT—And it came to pass, that, as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one of his disciples said unto him, Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaches Us to Pray.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Teaches Us to Pray.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Is True Prayer?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Why Pray?

I. "Men Ought Always to Pray" (v. 1).

Prayer is absolutely necessary to the spiritual life. It is to the spiritual like what breathing is to the physical life. Men ought to pray under every variety of circumstances—in times of sorrow and burdens for strength to endure, in times of joy and success for grace to behave aright. Prayer ought to be persisted in even when the answer is not immediately seen. "All men pray at times." To the Christian alone belongs faith-filled and persistent prayer.

II. The Urgent Prayer of a Widow (vv. 2-8).

The picture here is of a helpless widow who was being cheated out of her property rights, coming to a godless judge for redress. Her only means of getting help was to prove the justice of her claim by her persistence. Even this did not gain access to his heart for he feared not God nor regarded man. He complied with her request to get rid of her. The point here is not that God is like this unjust judge, that he can be teased into compliance, but rather the teaching is by contrast. If such action can be secured on the part of a godless judge by persistence, how much surer will the help of God be given to his elect who cry unto him day and night. The helpless widow pictures the church in this age suffering the deprivation of her rights. It is not the church praying for vengeance upon her enemies, but suing for the possession of her rights by virtue of her covenant relation in Christ. The inheritance of the church will be actualized at the coming of Christ. This is why the truth concerning the coming of Christ is so vital to Christianity, and why so disastrous consequences follow the loss of this blessed hope. Every prayer offered by the church will surely be answered. The apparent delay in the vindication of the church may dishearten some and cause others to mock (II Peter 3:4). Jesus' question should be a solemn warning against allowing apparent delay of the coming of the Lord to crowd out our praying. Though many may give up, we should be assured that genuine faith will abide and that the divine promise concerning the coming of Christ shall be fulfilled.

III. The Prayer of the Proud Pharisee (vv. 9-12).

1. He took a striking attitude (v. 11).

The Jewish custom was to stand while praying, but the word "stood" implies the assumption of an ostentatious position. He was self-righteous and trusted in himself.

2. He prayed with himself (vv. 11, 12).

He used the name of God, but it was really a soliloquy. He pretended to be thanking God when he was really complimenting himself—rehearsing his own goodness. His whole thought centered in himself. He congratulated himself for his morality (v. 11). He thanked God that he was not as other men are, such as extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as the publican who was standing afar off. One who has been kept from these gross sins ought to be grateful to God but should not set himself above his fellow men because of it. He congratulated himself for his religious merits (v. 12). He fasted twice a week and gave tithes of all he possessed. He thus informed God that he did more than what was required, implying that God was under obligation to him.

IV. The Prayer of the Humble Publican (v. 13).

In contrast with this supposed saint stood the publican, whose shame kept him from even looking up to heaven, beating upon his breast as a sign of anguish of soul and crying out to God to be merciful to him, a sinner.

V. Christ's Testimony (v. 14).

Christ declared that the publican went away justified rather than the Pharisee. The one great and urgent need on the part of men is the confession of sin and a willingness to cry unto God for mercy.

The Ear of God

A friend of any kind and to any extent or degree is something in this cold and lonely world, but to have a friend who has the ear of God, and who fills God's ear from time to time with our name and our cause, Oh, who shall find such a friend in me!—Alexander Whyte.

Trusting in God

Surely it is a poor creed that will only allow us to trust in God for ourselves.—George Macdonald.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By SCOOP—HIMSELF

Two people told me my column last week was the best ever. Now if Bob Stewart just writes in to confirm that report, I'll be happy.

I'd like to see Roland Gilbert dressed up like McIlwee was last Friday night as leader of the Village Band.

Some day the Oakland Boys' band is going to have a reputation like the Handley band does now.

Is there anybody who didn't wish that the buss singer in the Claflin quartet would sing a solo? Boy, when he cocked his head to one side and opened that aperture of his, the audience knew that harmony was being emitted. How those Negroes could sing! Didn't you like the teeth of the first tenor? (or could you see them?)

What will be the people's attitude toward miniature golf this summer?

Jim Painter didn't get a fishing license until last week and the season has been open since April 1.

Archibaldson and I went out last Thursday evening after a strenuous day in getting out the weekly enlightenment. We caught the usual number of little tinch and the usual number of trout—20 to 0.

Every spring I try to believe I can stay young by high jumping, broad jumping, etc., along with my scouts, but the sore ligaments and muscles the next day and for three days thereafter tell me it's no use.

And if I was 10 years younger I would have been in swimming before this instead of telling the boys they are crazy for thinking about it.

I never really fought a forest fire until Sunday, and then two in one day. After the one at Crsytal Spring was under control, Annabel Stemple, member of the group of Virginia Fraley, Margaret Kochenderfer, Martha Engle, Edna Kraft, and Mary Thomas, remarked that "I had no idea there were going to be so many at our party." The supper was continued without coffee, and the matches were saturated with water and thrown away.

Di-di Jim, the office devil, is going to run the opposite way when the fire whistle blows. Saturday he went to the fire station to find out where the fire was, and he did. When he came back he was deeply impressed about fighting fire among thorns and underbrush. Just ask to see his impressions.

Were Helen Hinebaugh and Mary Louise Helbig mad when they found that the good looking man, whom Bob Stanton said was President Hoover's secretary, was only just an ordinary "telephone man?" After they had studied up on fishing possibilities in the county, just to tell the secretary about it.

Bob Moomaw, of the Park, after seeing in this column the communication from his brother in New Jersey calling for an electric milker on the lawn of the William-James hotel, stated that he wasn't interested in the least about milkers. What he wanted was an antomatic machine that would pull up those four-foot parsnips of his.

Andrew Gonder can carry over two hundred pounds. He does it every day—upstairs and down.

Mr. Tower, clerk of the Circuit Court, likes to be called "E. Z."

Hell's Angels is said to be an exertmely wonderful picture.

Archibaldson has become an expert quartetist.

If you want to see Mayor Stemple wield a shovel, watch him Friday afternoon as he plants the first tree at the High school. If he isn't scheduled for that ceremony, he ought to be.

I'd like to know a good remedy for onion breath. I could eat as many onion sandwiches as Jimmie Fazzalari probably does.

Archibaldson likes them on the 8th day of the week and the second Tuesday. Wasn't it Ben Franklin who said "In onion, there is strength?"

Firemen have been wearing stockings inside out these last two weeks saying it cools them off to turn the hose on their feet.

That box of Uneeda biscuits in Fraleys' store window is for a man's size lunch.

This column this week is dedicated to Archibaldson (otherwise known as Mose) without whose constant encouragement and heipful criticisms it would have been finished in just about half the time.

SEN. CAPPER DISCUSSES WASHINGTON'S PROBLEMS

As An Agriculturalist He Had Vexing Ones—A Comparison Made With To-day's Affairs

Senator Capper pushed back his chair from a desk heaped with papers and repeated the question asked him: "What does the American farmer of today owe to George Washington the farmer?"

Few members of the Senate are better qualified to answer a question that should interest every farmer in the country, for Senator Capper is acquainted first hand with farmers and their problems and has been deeply interested in the legislation of the past two years in the farmer's interest, according to a statement from the Division of Information and Publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

"Well, if you think of it," the farmer-legislator thought for a moment, "Washington did set the first example in American farming. The farmers of today, as I know them, are too everlastingly busy with current history to look back a century or two. I know that's the case with me. And yet," the Senator thought on, "they should do that.

"The American farmer of today," he settled back to say, "has every reason to feel toward Washington, the farmer, an almost filial respect and duty. In his occupation, at least, he's a lineal descendant of the foremost farmer of a century and more ago. If modern invention enables the farmer of today to improve on the methods of Washington's time, nevertheless Washington's example in experiment and pioneering remains the same. It could hardly be improved upon," the Senator smilingly asserted, "but the modern farmer has carried on that pioneering spirit unabated."

As his thought on the subject shaped itself, the Senator went on, "The modern farmer can feel a sympathy for Washington because Washington's problems as a farmer sound like the problems, the aims of every farmer of the present. If memory serves me, Washington's experiences with one of the great farms of his time was not an unbroken record of successes.

"To begin with, Washington's land was not the finest soil in the young country. Many a farmer of today has to face the same discouragement. And like Washington, he does struggle against the handicap. That is one bond of symathy between them.

"But perhaps the closest parallel between Washington and the modern American farmer is the fact that both knew the worries and vexations of declining prices as the result of a production above the capacity of the market to consume. It sounds very modern to read in Washington's diary his complaints at the falling returns from his tobacco. His problems and those of the present day farmer may differ in technical detail, but in essentials they are the same.

"After all, the farmer buys with his wheat or his corn what he wants and needs. He may first convert his grain into money; still, whatever the means of purchase, it's the farmer's product that supplies him with buying power. In Washington's day that was more directly the case. The nation was then undeveloped and without an efficient monetary system, and tobacco itself had to serve in place of cash. So Washington, as he himself complains, felt it when the value of his crops shrank in value, and he had to offer more of it for goods or for cash in return. If Washington were to return today, he and a hundred thousand of our farmers could talk in terms of perfect understanding.

"Yes," the Senator said, to emphasize the point, "Washington would understand our farmers perfectly. Thousands of them may never have had time to read Washington's farming experience, but they are going through the same experiences today. As I recall it, Washington was a tireless experimenter. He sent to Europe for the newest books on the science and practice of agriculture. He imported new and better seeds and cuttings. He read up on new and better formulas for fertilizer. He even mixed experimental varieties of compost with his own hands. In every sense of the word he was a dirt farmer.

"And today," the Senator brought out with conviction, "Washington would find his successors on the American farm just as progressive. The farmer of the present is just as eager and quick to adopt new and better methods. He no longer reads European authorities, because his own periodicals are good or better. But the point is, he reads them. He forever experiments with the means to produce better crops. And in one respect he has an advantage that Washington never knew—the advantages of time- and labor-saving machinery."

A new turn to his thinking amused the Senator. "Washigton's efforts at advanced farming were not unvaryingly successful. The fact is, he had to complain of a rather high percentage of disappointments. It was only natural, of course. In Washintgon's day agriculture was still somewhat primitive, in the light of modern practice it was without benefit of the accumulation of broad scientific knowledge and experience that we enjoy today. If Washington were to return today, the average American farmer could show him a thing or two—probably to Washington's mingled envy and delight. He might regret that he could not have profited by what we now know, but he would be the first to rejoice at the progress made.

"But the thing that would most please Washington," said Senator Capper, "would be our epic conquest of the great West and the reduction of its wonderful soil to production. To me," the Senator mused, "there is something infinitely touching in Washington's hunger for as much of that fertile Western soil as he could possess. The continental West as we know it, he never saw, but he had more than glimpsed the Ohio Valley, and sensed what lay beyond. He sent his agents to lay claim to as much as he could handle of the better land beyond the Alleghenies and throughout his correspondence during the Revolution he returns again and again to his anxiety to safeguard his holdings. His heart and his business sense both lured him in that direction, in the conviction that there the great development of the country would center.

"Today," the Senator observed with satisfaction, "the people of my section of the country would convince Washington that he was right! For every reason and in every sense of the word they would make him feel at home. He would be among people, too, who are after his own kind. As farmers, at least, they have had every experience that fell to Washington.

"You have only to glance through Washington's diaries to see how quickly they would understand each other, Out of those intimate jottings speaks the real George Washington, farmer, and what a modern language he speaks!"

The Senator referred to one of the volumes, priceless because so revealing, and read: "June 16, 1768. Begun to eut my Timothy Meadow at Doeg Run and did not finish it till the 8th July—the weather being rainy and bad—which almost spoiled 30,000 weight of Hay."

"On July 25th he records that he found rust in a 28-acre field of wheat, and adds this note, 'From the most accurate experiments I could make this year upon Wheat seized with the Rust before it is fully formd and beginning to Harden, it appears to be a matter of very little consequence whether it is cut down as soon as it is seized with this distemper (I mean the parts of the field that are so) or suffered to stand; for in either cuse the grain perishes and has little or no flower in it.' He meant flour," the Senator interpolated, with a smile for Washington's spelling, and finished the quotation, 'That indeed which is suffered to stand may gain a little, and but a little, in respect to the grain, and the other in respect to the straw; so that I think it is nearly equal which of the two methods is followed.'

"Many a farmer today is a close student," the Senator said, smiling as he leafed through the book. "And many a modern farmer will listen with sympathy to such a passage as this: 'Eliub Roberts, William Acres, Joseph Wilson and Azel Martin set into work today and I think worked but indifferently.' So Washington had his complaints against farmhands, too. But here, I think," Senator Capper exulted over his finds, "are two entries that reveal the man that Washington the farmer must have been—shrewd, observant, the instinctive business man, forever trying what would best serve his advantage.

"'Noted,'" Senator Capper quoted from the book, "'that when Pease are sown the ground should be rolled smooth so that the pods can be raked up, with time saved from picking them by hand.' There is the great man watchful of the minutest details. And here is another small detail in the inveterate experimenter. In an entry dated December 6, 1787, Washington records: 'Three plows at work. In one I put the she mule which worked very well. The horse mule is intended also for the plantation.'

"It's just such homely touches," the Senator leaned back to say in concluding, "that would make Washington a man among men if he could return today among the people of my section. When you think of it," Senator Capper lighted up with sudden feeling, "what better tribute could we pay the man than in saying so often to ourselves, 'If Washington could return today'? Isn't it a new measure of our respect and affection for the man that we wish so much he could come again, so that we might show him what we, as stewards, have done with the great trust he built up and placed in our hands.

"We may have made mistakes in judgment," the Senator finished, "we may not always wisely control the great economic forces we have unloosed with our modern science and inventin; but on the whole I believe Washington would approve what we have made of the country he fathered."

MAY DAY PROCLAIMED BY PRESIDENT AND GOVERNOR

Entire Nation To Observe May 1 As Child Health Day

A call for the nation-wide observance of May Day—the first day of May—as Child Health Day, has been made in a special proclamation by President Hoover.

Governor Ritchie, in a proclamation duly signed and carrying the Great Scal of the State of Maryland, has designated the day as Child Health Day throughout Maryland, and has directed that it be devoted to furthering the health and well-being of mothers and growing children throughout the State. A similar call for Baltimore City has been issued by Mayor Broening.

In all of the arrangements for Child Health Day, emphasis is placed upon community responsibility for securing for every child his right to health and happiness, and proper care and guidance—not for one day only, under the auspices of the State Committee for Child Health Day, to lnterest the fathers and mothers and other grown-ups in the need for regular medical supervision for all children; for protection against communicable diseases; for special care for those who are handicapped; for adequate recreational facilities and for protection against unfavorable surroundings.

In the counties the day will serve as the starting point for the annual series of child health conferences for the examination of children who will reach school age this year, in preparation for their admission to school in the fall. The schedules for these conferences are being arranged under the joint dlrection of the county superintendents of schools, the county health officers, the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health and the parent-teacher associations. The aim of the examinations will be to find out what the children may need in the way of dental or medical care, and to encourage the parents to have the corrections attended to, so that the children may enter school free from handicapping conditions.

There will also be special May Day exercises, athletic contests, games, plays and pageants, in which the children will take a leading part. The Maryland Committee for Child Health Day conslsts of the directors of State, City and county department of health and of education, with representatives of all organizations lnterested in the health and well-being of the children of the State. The chairman of the committee is Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health.

The Silver Creek Mystery

The robbery at Silver Creek remained a myster. Despite the substantial reward offered for thelr capture, the guilty parties were yet at large. The sheriff and his posse had failed to find the least clue which might identify the culprits.

The robbery had taken place ten miles south of Silver Creek. James Palmer, owner of the Bar X ranch, started home from the Silver Creek bank with a pay roll of three thousand dollars. Three miles from home he was held up by two men who relieved him of his money, bound him and left him beside the trail, where he was found by one of his riders about nightfall.

"Beats all how those fellows got away clear," James Palmer said as he stood conversing with his son about two weeks after the robbery. "Seems though the sheriff might find something."

Tracy, the strapping young lad of eighteen years, looked up with a smile on his face.

"Dad, they're looking in the wrong direction," he remarked.

"What do you mean?" inquired his father.

"Don't you think this was an inside job, rather than an outside one?"

His father laughed. "Pooh, son, you're crazy. Who have we in our employ that would rob me like that?"

"Dad, I am positive I can name the two men who did that job, yet I haven't the least evidence against them. Hammond, who left our employ three weeks before the robbery, is one of them. The other one I won't name at present."

"Hammond?" exclaimed the older Palmer. "He went to California."

"He said that was where he intended to go. I wired the destination he gave me and received word he hasn't been there."

"That doesn't mean anything," the father countered. "He probably changed his mind and went elsewhere."

"He went somewhere else, all right, but he didn't change his mind. He never intended to go there. If you will give me a month's leave from duties on the ranch I can find the guilty parties."

James Palmer laughed in a pleased fashion. "Son, I sure am glad to hear you express such confidence, even tho I doubt your ability to accomplish more than the sheriff and hls men. But just to encourage you, I will grant you the tlme you request. More than that, I will give you half of the money you recover."

"Terms accepted," Tracy declared, extending his hand. "Only don't breathe a single word of thls to any one."

Tracy based hls conclusions on two things: First, that Hammond had acted contrary to his word; in the second place, Hammond and a rider by the name of Knight had met for a long talk on the trall the day Hammond left the ranch. Tracy had watched them from the shelter of a wooded foothill and had forgotten the event until he associated it with the robbery.

Hammond and Knight were familiar with the customary payroll procedure. Having accomplished the robbery, Hammond could take the booty to some rendezvous while Knight returned to the ranch. There was plenty of time for this before the captive man was found. But wasn't it Knlght who had found his father? Tracy slapped his knee a resounding blow.

"If I watch Knight, I think the proposition is settled," he declared.

Two days later Tracy pulled his pony to a stop just below the tip of a foothill. Crawling to the ridge, he peered over to watch the coming rider. With quiet satlsfactlon he saw him pause where the trail met Cedar Valley. Pausing for several moments, the rider carefully scanned the surrounding country and deciding that the way was clear, he spurred his horses from the trail and disappeared down the canyon.

Satisfied that the trail was warm now, Tracy leaped upon his pony. H's one purpose was to reach the old deserted cabin in Cedar Valley before Knight got there. With swift strides the pony swept towards the ranch buildings. Tracy knew of a cut which would shorten the distance three miles.

The adventurer had a hunch that the mystery of the robbery would be cleared by night. What other business could Knight have in Cedar Valley? Hammond was undoubtedly there also, which made the odds two to one. Tracy felt for his holster, remembering to his dismay that he had left it at the ranch. He was unarmed. There was no time now to stop for a gun. Every moment was precious.

Cutting into the hills a mile from the ranch buildings Tracy rode straight west until he reached a break in the highlands. A quarter of a mile from the old cabin he left his pony and proceeding on foot, he approached the cabin from the rocky cliff which overlooked the valley, keeping his eyes open for Hammond. It was well that this care was taken for otherwise he would have run plumb into trouble.

Instead of staying ln the cabin, Hammond was watching the valley from the edge of the cliff above his abode. Tracy's keen eyes sighted the vigilant man through the thin shrubbery. That meant that Knight had not yet arrived. So much the better for the well-conceived plan which had formulated in Tracy's fertile brain.

With no more noise than a snake would make, he crept upon the unsuspecting man until but thirty feet intervened. Lying flat on the ground his lariat was prepared for use. A small pebble was thrown over the cliff near the cabin. Hammond rose to his knees, next instant he was jerked flat on his back as the lariat settled about his shoulders, pinning his arms tight to his side. His gun was wrenched from his hand as Tracy dragged him across the rocky ground. In three minutes he had securely bound and gagged his captive, leaving him on the cliff.

"That takes care of Number One," he muttered as he descended to the cabin. "Now to get Number Two. Thls will prove more difficult because I need the evidence with this man. If Knlght falls for my scheme all is well. If not I may be up agalnst something I can't handle. We'll try it anyway."

Scribbling a brief note on an old piece of paper, Tracy placed it on a chalr before the door and stepped into the open, concealing himself behind the cabin. Ten minutes elapsed ere hls keen ears caught the sound of hoof beats. Knight was coming. The nolse ceased and silence relgned. Knight was approaching on foot.

Five minutes passed ere a light squeak announced the opening of the door. Peering through a small crack, Tracy saw Knight enter, gun thrust forward. His eye caught slght of the paper and he grasped it, reading eagerly.

"Take money with you; meet me at Big Bend; danger." There was no signature. Knight didn't need any. Going immediately to the old fireplace he removed three stones and brought forth a package whlch he crowded inside his shirt. With quick nervous steps he turned to leave the cabin.

The light of satisfaction flooding his face, Tracy rose quietly to his feet. His man, with the evidence, was before him.

Knight paused for an instant on the threshold, then walked rapidly toward the horse. Swish! The lariat steeled over his shoulders. With an upward move, he freed his left arm before the lasso tightened. A quick jerk on the taut rope thew him flat on his back. Before he could use his gun Tracy had kicked if from his hand. With one arm free, Knight grappled with the stocky lad.

Fighting at a disadvantage, the rider was no match for the muscular youth. In a few minutes Tracy had him bound and helpless on the ground.

"I'm going to take you in just as you are," the victor told him. "I'll let my father examine that package in your shirt."

Two hours later James Palmer saw three horsemen approaching the ranch house. Two were bound, onc was free. Surprise was predominant on his expression as Tracy leaped from his pony and pointed at the prisoners.

"Dad, I wish you would examine that package ln Knight's shirt," he suggested, a broad grin on his face. "And don't forget that half of it belongs to me," he added.

Thieves Enter Smokehouse and Carry Off Meat

Thieves entered the smokehouse of Mr. Richard H. Friend, of Blooming Rose, on Wednesday night, April 15, and stole eight hams and one shoulder, four of the hams belonging to Mr. Friend, and the balance belonging to his son, Houston Friend.

Entrance to the house was gained by tearing off a board that was nailed over the door. No arrests have been made, and other farmers are warned to be on the lookout for the culprits.

FALSE ECONOMY--

A group of people of the county, in a headlong effort to have the taxes reduced, have caused to be cut off from the county two positions, the advantages of which are innumerable, the public health nurse and the home demonstration agent.

A thorough study of the records of accomplishments of these two offices would convince even the most critical, if he would but take the time to look.

Some of the records are listed in The Republican today in the hope that people might realize what is being taken away from them.

Only a group of people in favor of continuing these offices, larger than the group which has opposed them, could be effective in keepmg up the work.

If they are not continued, Garrett county is the loser.

A RARE TREAT—

Oakland citizens had the rare treat during the past week of listening to two rather famous musical organizations, the Handley High School Band of Winchester, Va., and the Claflin quartet, composed of colored students from Claflin college, Orangeburg, South Carolina.

The high school band is outstanding in its rendition of concert and parade music, having won many prizes at the Apple Blossom Festival at Winchester, and the achievement of Prof. W. H. Mcllwee in training boys of high school age to produce music such as was played last Friday evening, shows the possibilities of advancement along this line at Oakland, where the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band is growing by leaps under the direction of its leaders. The people of Oakland feel that they have in Mr. Gilbert, as capable a leader as can be found in many.

More harmony than was displayed at the Maryland Tuesday night when the Claflin colored quartet made its initial appearance in Oakland has never been heard. Those Negro boys brought out of their spirituals and other selections, what every lover of music delights to hear. Individually, each voice was just right, and collectively, they couldn't be surpassed.

At an audition at the Boston Consevatory of Music recently, the director pronounced them the "Best Quartet in America." After hearing them Tuesday night, there won't be many in the vicinity of Oakland to contradict that assertion, and even the most critical could say no less than "One of the best quartets in America".

THE ALLEGHENY TABLELAND

(Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, April 18)

The decision of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce to sponsor efforts in the final stage of the movement to link the Allegheny Tableland area with the Pittsburgh distrist economical, socially and culturally, draws attention not only to a mutually beneficial program, but to a most interesting story of an interstate character. It has elements that go much beyond those of the ordinary metropolitan area proposition.

From time to time the Post-Gazette has published accounts of the progress of the movement which originated in agricultural, social and educational extension activities in the sections of the three states, Pennsylvania, West Virginian and Maryland, that converge in this plateau of the Alleghenies. The area includes parts of Fayette and Somerset counties, Pennsylvania; Garrett county, Maryland, and Mineral, Grant, Tucker, Preston and Monongahela counties, West Virginia—about 3,000 square miles and having a population of 100,000, distributed among 50 towns and villages and 8,000 farms.

For many years the outside relationships of the Tableland folk were principally with Baltimore, some 200 miles away, on account of more direct railway facilities and due also to the fact that the mountain territory appealed in turn to many of the people of Baltimore and Washington for recreational purposes. Although Pittsburgh, in a straight line, was only from 80 to 100 miles distant, the railroad service to it was so roundabout as practically to equal the mileage to Baltimore. The automobile and hard roads have now changed that completely. Today the Tableland and Pittsburgh are but a few hours of travel apart, and the people of the former have rapidly been changing their affiliation from Baltimore to this city—the more readily because in the past quarter of a century Baltimoreans have been falling off in their patronage of the mountain resorts.

The most striking feature of the development, however, is the lightness with which state lines are now held in ordinary affairs. In the early period Pennsylvania and Maryland were several times on the verger of war over their boundary. Had the contention of Lord Baltimore prevailed, Philadelphia would have been a Maryland town; if Penn's limits had stood, Baltimore would have been in Pennsylvania. This wrangle was settled only with the drawing of the Mason and Dixon line. And at one time, of course, the Pittsburgh territory was claimed by Virginia.

But what are mere state lines to modern economic necessities and relationships? "Nothing that need interfere with our business and neighborliness," answer the spokesmen for the Tableland, and in this they are applauded for their good sense by the extension leaders of the three states.

Obviously, it is "good business" for both the Tableland and Pittsburgh. The Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce is to be commended for the promptness with which it has responded to the movement from the beginning. All concerned are entitled to congratulations on the progress of the effort.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

The taxable property, as shown by the assessment books of Garrett county, amounted to $4,381,818, and the tax rate for 1891 was fixed at 98 cents on each $100 valuation by the Board of County Commissioners. The State tax rate was 17¾ cents. The amount required to operate the county affairs was $42,941.82. The Commissioners appropriated an additional sum of $4,000 for the school fund, thereby extending the term to five months. The entire amount for school purposes was $13,000.

At the town election Dr. Henry W. McComas, James O. Cleveland and D. E. Bolden were selected councilmen over their Democratic opponents, Dr. E. H. Bartlett, Edward I. West and Joseph Helbig. Dr. McComas received the highest vote, the total being 95.

J. Alvin Friend caught a salmon trout measuring 21¾ inches and said to weigh 3½ pounds from the Yough River at Sang Run.

The building committee of the M. E. church of Oakland, of which Col. A. G. Sturgiss was the chairman, advertised for sealed proposals for the erection of the present St. Paul's M. E. church in Oakland.

Thomas Little went to Baltimore on business.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

A marriage license was issued to Charles U. Edwards, widower, Crellin, Md., and Miss Annie Meyers, of near Oakland.

Twenty-three men were killed by an explosion in Mine No. 20 of the Davis Coal and Coke Company, at Ott, near Kitzmiller. All the dead were native Americans but one and about half of them were married with dependent families.

The stork had been a welcome vistor to a number of homes in Oakland during the week, leaving at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Tower, a daughter; at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Helbig, a daughter; and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Gonder, a daughter.

Dr. N. I. Broadwater returned from Baltimore whence he had been called to assist in a surgical operation performed upon Mrs. C. F. Hammond, of Oakland. A letter from Mr. Hammond stated that Mrs. Hammond had rallied from the operation and was resting comfortably.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Sincell entertained fifty members of the flinch club at their home on Second street.

An Interesting Fact

THE NEGRO IN MARYLAND

While the first Negroes brought into the Colony of Virginia were indentured for a term of years and were freed after their terms of service had expired, historians generally accept the year 1619 when slavery or servitude for life was first introduced into Virginia.

It is uncertain when slavery was introduced into Maryland, but certainly before 1639, as a statute passed by the Assembly of that State in that year provides "that all the inhabitants of this Province being Christians (slaves excepted) shall have and enjoy all such rights," etc.

The first American slave ship was lauched at Marblehead, Massachusetts, in 1636, but it is not known that this vessel ever brought African slaves to Maryland, and while it is true that subsequently many Marylanders became owners of slaves, but few, if any, ever engaged in the reprehensible practice of seizing Negroes in their native land and transporting them to America.

An Act of the Assembly of Maryland of 1664 provided that all Negroes or other slaves already within the province, and all Negro and other slaves to be hereafter imported into the province shall serve "durante vita" (i. e., during life). Later, in 1671 (the impression becoming current that baptism freed a slave from bondage), the Assembly declared that baptism did not so free the Negro.

The humane treatment of the Negro in Maryland, even in the early days, is probably best shown by reference to Benjaminc Banneker, whose home was a humble cabin near Ellicott's Mills, who had acquired the rudiments of an education in a rural school and became the leader of his race of that period. Overcoming difficulties, he achieved national fame as an astronomer and was well versed in arithmetic, specializing in logarithms. His ability is illustrated by his successful construction of a wooden clock based solely upon his examination of a watch.

William Eddis, Royalist Proprietary of the Colony, in his comments on colonial life in Maryland, says in regard to the treatment of the Negro in this State: "They are better clothed, better fed and better treated than their unfortunate breathern * * * subjected to slavery in our West India Islands."

The history of the Negro and Negro slavery in Maryland could only be encompassed in a small volume. Suffice it to say that the various censuses from 1790 to 1860 show a steady increase in the number of free Negroes living within the bounds of Maryland. By 1810 the number had rapidly incrcased to 33,927, or one-third the number of Negroes in slavery, while in 1790 there were but 8,043 "free persons of color" in the State. After 1810, the increase was slower, still at the rate of about 10,000 a year, so that by 1860 the number of free Negroes in Maryland was nearly equal to the number in bondage.

The sentiment of the State was heartily in favor of emancipation, which was shown by the appropriation of the Assembly in 1831 of $260,000 for the transportation of freed Negroes to Africa.

In 1864, the Civil War not yet being over, a new State Constitution was adopted, which, among other provisions, abolished slavery in Maryland.

MT. LAKE PARK

Re-Incorporation of the Park

What is known locally as the Mountain Lake Park Charter Bill, being Chapter 507 of the Acts of 1931, and which repeals Chapters 430 of the Acts of 1888 and Chapter 315 of the Acts of 1896, contains the usual provisions regarding the incorporation of towns in Maryland, and in addition provides:

1. That a referendum election be held on the second Tuesday in July, 1931, between the hours of one and seven o'clock in the afternoon, at a place or places to be designated by the judges of election in a notice given five days before said election, to be posted at five places in the Park.

2. The judges of said election are W. L. Camden, E. E. Friend, J. S. Elliott, W. B. Brock and Britton Martin, as provided in the Act.

3. Those qualified to vote at said election shall be all persons who are qualified to vote for members of the General Assembly of Maryland and who have resided in Mountain Lake Park for six months next preceding said election, and all persons, citizens of the United States and bona fide owners of real estate in said town for twelve months preceding said election, and the wives and (or) husbands and children of such owners who are 21 years of age or over.

4. In the event this charter is adopted under said referendum, then the said committee or judges shall hold the election for town officers on the second Tuesday of August.

The Act provides that the officers shall be a Mayor to serve for two years; 3 Councilmen to serve for 3 years, and two councilmen to serve for one year.

5. Taxes are not to exceed sixty cents on the $100 and all real estate shall be assessed at its actual cash value.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Clayton are in Fairmont, where they went to participate in the celebration of the 99th birthday of Mrs. Margaret Jane Grove, the mother of Mrs. Clayton.

Mrs. Grove, although she has been frail physically during late months, still retains her keen mind. She was a staunch worker for the enfranchisement of women and many years ago was the first president of the Political Equality Club of Fairmont. She has greatly enjoyed the privigege of voting and went to the polls in recent elections, although it taxed her physically to do so.

Mrs. William Thompson Burch, of Washington, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Helen Burch, of New York City, arrived at the Park on Monday and are occupying the Burch home overlooking this valley.

HIGH SCHOOL GLEE CLUBS TO PRESENT PLAY MAY 1

"Sonia" Is Title of Comedy—Other School News

The date for the presentation of "Sonia", the musical comedy which is to be staged by the Oakland High School Glee Clubs, has been definitely set for May 1. Several rehearsals have been held already, and progress is being made.

Even though the production is, as Miss Bland asserts, still in a rough state, and still to be greatly developed and polished before its public presentation, every member of the cast is most enthusiastic as to the outcome, each expressing himself as delighted with his share in the work.

Tickets for "Sonia" are being offered to the public for the first time today.

Field Day

An attempt is being made for every girl and boy to have a period in which to place himself or herself for the field day meet. The school is strongly urging that every girl and boy take advantage of the opportunity to improve his health by adopting a health program.

The field meet should be a day when every school girl and boy as well as many of the parents look forward to, and plan to attend.

This field meet will be held on May 23.

Special attention is called to the fact that Ruth Ream's name was left off the list of those having perfect attendance for the past three months.

A strong appeal is being made by those sponsoring the conference that every church and Sunday school organization of young people be represented by one or more delegates. The program will prove interesting and will greatly benefit those attending.

Scouts Take First Overnight Hike of the Year

Sixteen scouts and their scoutmaster spent Saturday night and Sunday at the Boy Scout camp on Deep Creek Lake, nine miles north of Oakland, in the first overnight hike of the year. Each scout cooked his meals individually.

Those present included Lewis Jones, Walter Dawson, John McIntire, William Tiliett, George Stuck, George Browning, Kenneth Lawton, Charles Davis, Carroll Casteel, Irvin Broadwater, David Walter, Fred Peddicord, Richard Gonder, Joseph Sollars, Lindsay Gonder, Benard Gonder, assistant scout master; and George H. Hanst, scoutmaster.

The return trip was made Sunday afternoon.

This Saturday the troop will hike to Herrington Manor, the State forest, and plant an acre of trees on behalf of the Oakland Civic club's beautification program. Last year more than 1,200 trees were planted by the scouts.

The regular monthly meeting of the Court of Honor will be held Monday evening in the Masonic clubroom, according to Harland L. Jones, chairman. At this time a number of scouts will be examined in various merit badge requirements.

Mt. Lake and Loch Lynn to Observe "Better Homes Week"

"Better Homes Week" will be observed in Mt. Lake and Loch-Lynn April 26 to May 2. Four prizes are being offered in the yard improvement contest sponsored by the Mt. Lake-Loch Lynn Community Club, two for showing the most improvement in the home grounds and two for the most beautiful display of flowers and shrubs. Two prizes will go to Mt. Lake and two to Loch Lynn. Anyone desiring to enter the contest should send his name to Mrs. C. E. Hardesty. On Monday evening, April 27, at 7:30 the two communities are invited to gather at the Aid Hall, Loch Lynn, for Community Singing. There will also be several short talks on "Better Homes".

Every citizen is urged to be present.

Agriculturists Should Not Forget Birdlife

Fully realizing the scarcity of food and cover caused by the drought of 1930, we appeal to the agriculturists of this State not to forget their feathered friends when planting their crops at this time. The farmers of our State should realize that it is impossible for them to raise farm crops without the presence of birdlife and if they will plant grain sorghums, millet, black-eyed peas, cow peas, kaffir corn, rye, corn and buckwheat and permit it to stand to furnish cover and feed for fall and winter, they will find this method to prove very successful in attracting beneficial birds to their property.

Sorghums and kaffir corn can be easily grown on varying types of soil and hold their seed for winter. Millet also produces an abundant supply of grain and holds its seeds quite well.

The expense of planting a few rows of some of the seeds mentioned would be very slight to the farmer.

FORMER ALLEGANY COUNTY SHERIFF IS ON DRY FORCE

Has Had Long and Active Career as Law Enforcement Man

William R. Harvey, former sheriff of Allegany county has been recommissioned as an agent in the Prohibition Bureau of the Department of Justice and assigned to the Western Maryland force, with offices in Cumberland.

The former sheriff was assigned to the Cumberland office at the request of George T. Danforth, agent in charge, who will continue in command of the Western Maryland force. The appointment increases the personnel of the Cumberland office from five to six agents, as none of the men now stationed there will be re-assigned.

Started In 1922

Mr. Harvey's career as a law enforcement officer dates from 1922, when he became a constable-at-large, operating in and about Barton. He joined the Federal prohibition service July 1, 1923, and continued with the Government until December 1, 1926, when he took office as sheriff. He had previously defeated Fay Keiser, Democratic nominee, for the office after an intensive campaign. He also ran for the same office in 1923, when Ralph Young was elected.

As sheriff, Mr. Harvey was particularly aggressive in the prosecution of gambling violations and liquor sales. Though Maryland has no liquor enforcement act, many state cases were made by his office on sale of liquor without a license.

Commanded Flying Squad

Before becoming sheriff Mr. Harvey was agent-in-charge in Baltimore for two and one-half months until the re-organization of the department under the then Director of Prohibition, Edmund Bunditz. He was then returned to Cumberland as agent-in-charge. He was also at one time in charge of the Washington flying squad of twelve men attached to the Baltimore office of the bureau. His initial Federal service in this section was under George W. Hawkins, who was then agent-in-charge.

BETHLEHEM

There will be preaching service in the Bethlehem church on May 3 at 11 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Cuppett. Sunday school every Sunday at ten o'clock.

U. OF M. FIELD DAY PROGRAM ATTRACTIVE

Track Meets, Lacrosse, Baseball and Tennis on May 2 Card

FIVE SEPARATE EVENTS FOR COUNTY ATHLETES

University of Maryland's annual Spring Field Day at College Park, Saturday, May 2, offers the most pretentious card of the kind ever held in the State. Including two track meets, there will he six events as follows:

Track—Interscholastic meet, with 13 open events and five closed to county high schools of the State, and a trangular meet with Navy, Virginia and Maryland as the competing teams. The trangular meet will be run concurrently with the high and prep school games.

Baseball—West Virginia vs. Maryland.

Lacrosse—Penn State vs. Maryland; Virginia Freshmen vs. Maryland Freshmen.

Tennis—William and Mary vs. Maryland.

The track meets will get under way at 1 o'clock, the tennis match at 1.30, the hasehall game at 2 o'clock, and the lacrosse contest, the final feature, at 4.15. The freshman lacrosse game will be played at 10 o'clock in the morning.

The track meets and varsity lacrosse game will he staged in Byrd Stadium and the ball gamo and tennis match on tho diamond and courts that are adjacent. The hasehall field, espccially the diamond, is just as good as any in the South and one of the hest in the country. It has a stand that seats close to 2,000.

Tho open events in the interscholastic meet are: 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes, half-mile and mile runs, 120-yard high hurdles, 220-yard low hurdles, 12-pound shot put, discus and javelin throws, high and hroad jumps and pole vault.

Events closed to county high schools in Maryland are: 100 and 440-yard dashes, half-mile run, 12-pound shot put and hroad jump.

All entries must reach the University of Maryland at College Park on or before Monday, April 27, in order that the program may he properly compiled.

Entrants must be undergraduates who are under 21 years of age and who are competing for not more than their fourth year for their school.

Keen competition is promised in every one of the events on the program, although the Maryland Varsity track team, in the process of rehuilding after losing most of its 1930 stars by graduation, is not expected to cope with Navy and Virginia, those two tcams thought should atage a hattle royal for top honors.

Maryland has capable basehall and lacrosse teams and the contests with West Virginia and Penn State, hoth of which rank high, should provide fine attractions.

The competition in the opon scholastic evcnts should be better than ever, as there will be no rival meets as has been the case in past years. Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columhia douhtless will send their hest, while competitors from North Carolina, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and West Virginia are expected to take part as they have done in other Field Day carnivals.

A higger entry list than ever before is expected for the interscholastic meet, especially in the county high school section in which Hagerstown High was the victor last year.

Special invitations and arrangements are heing made to take care of the principals of the competing high schools. They will be the guests of the University for the day.

Specially designed gold medals will he given the winners in each event, silver ones will go to the runners-up and hronze ones to those finishing third. A silver cup will go to the team scoring the highest number of points in each class and the leading athlete in each division will be awarded a gold watch.

Committee's Sale

—OF—

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE

Situate in the Town of Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland.

Under and by virtue of the power vested in me as Committee of the person and estate of Idie T. Hayes by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, and by a decree of said Court passed on April 2nd, 1931, in a cause standing as No. 2826 Equity on the docket of said Court, I hereby give notice that on at the hour of two o'clock P. M., in front of the Court House in the Town of Oakland, Maryland, I will offer and sell at public auction to the highest bidders all of those lots, pieces or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the said Town of Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland, as follows, to-wit:

1. All that parcel of land known as the HAYES HOME PROPERTY, and being No. 65 Green Street, in the said town of Oakland, and being the same which was conveyed to Idie T. Hayes by two deeds, the first from Mary W. Brown, conveying two acres and forty-one perches, bearing date August 26, 1908, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 58, folio 140, etc., one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and the second from James D. Hamill and wife conveying a lot 284¼ feet by 153 feet, bearing date May 1, 1920, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 77, folio 410, one of said Land Records of Garrett County.

This property is improved by a two story frame dwelling containing eleven rooms and basement, garage and small shed. This is a very excellent residence property, well situated and adapted either as a summer or all-year home.

2. All that property known as the "BULLARD PROPERTY," No. 25 High Street, in said town, containing one acre and thirty-three perches of land, and being the same which was conveyed unto Sara H. Hayes, Trustee, for the benefit of Idie T. Hayes, by deed from Agnes W. Willetts and husband datcd June 22, 1924, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 95, folio 455, one of said Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

This property is improved by a large frame dwelling, garage and other outbuildings.

3. All that lot of ground known as FAIRVIEW CEMETERY in said town of Oakland, and being the same which was conveyed unto said Idie T. Hayes by deed from D. Lindley Sloan and wife bearing date September 15, 1920, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 79, folio 155, etc., one of said Land Records of Garrett County.

This lot originally contained 3 7-8 acres, but approximately one-third of the same has been sold off in cemetery lots, as will appear by reference to the conveyances recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, which said lots will be excepted in this sale.

4. LOT NO. 46 on the plat of HIGHLAND PARK in said town of Oakland, and being the same which was conveyed unto said Idie T. Hayes by deed from Webster Ravenscroft et al. dated May 17, 1920, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 77, folio 531, one of said Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

TERMS OF SALE—One-third cash on day of sale, one-third in six months and the remaining third in twelve months, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser or purchasers, the credit portions to bear interest from day of sale and to be secured to the satisfaction of the Committee. Conveyancing at the cost of the purchasers.

SARA H. HAYES,
Committee of the Person and Estate of Idie T. Hayes.

My Experiences in the World War

By General John J. Pershing

W. N. U. Service

CHAPTER IV.

My first and my only meeting with President Wilson until after the armistice occurred May 24, 1917, when I called on him with Secretary of War Baker. After some conversation with Mr. Baker on shipping, Mr. Wilson turned to me.

"General, we are giving you some difficult tasks these days," said the President.

"Perhaps so," I replied, "but that is what we are trained to expect, Mr. President."

The President then mentioned my experience in Mexico and inquired about my acquaintance with France. I had expected him to say something about the part our army should play in the war, but he said nothing.

Promised Full Support.

Upon leaving, I said: "Mr. President, I appreciate the honor you have conferred upon me by the assignment you have given me, and I realize the responsibilities it entails, but you can count upon the best that is in me."

To this the President replied:

"General, you were chosen entirely upon your record, and I have every confidence that you will succeed; you shall have my full support."

The President then asked me to convey to the King of Great Britain and to the President of France his greetings and best wishes. His manner was cordial with [illegible] poise and his air of determination.

His assurance of confidence in me was gratifying, but in the difficult situations that arose later regarding the manner of using the allies, he was inclined to favor the persistent importunities of the allied [illegible] in Washington.

In the actual conduct of operations I was given entire freedom, and in this respect was to enjoy an experience unique in the history of American wars.

Letter Making Him Chief.

May 27, 1917, the day before I was to sail from New York, Secretary Baker sent me a letter of instructions concerning the command, authorities and duties [illegible] in full:

"The President directs me to communicate to you the following:

"1. The President designates you to command all the land forces of the United States operating in continental Europe and in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, including any part of the marine corps which may be detached for service therewith by the Navy. From your command are excepted the military attaches and others of the army who may be on duty directly with our several governments.

"2. You will proceed with your staff to Europe. Upon arrival in Great Britain, France or any other of the countries at war with the Imperial German government, you will at once place yourself in communication with the American embassy through its agency with the authorities of any country to which the forces of the United States may be sent.

"3. You are invested with the authority and duties devolved by the laws, regulations, orders and customs of war upon the United States upon the command of an army in the field in time of war and with the authority and duties in like manner devolved upon department commander in peace and war, including the special authorities and duties assigned to the commander in chief.

"4. You will establish, after consultation with the French war office, all necessary bases, lines of communication, depots, etc., and make all the [illegible] arrangements essential to active participation in the front.

"5. In military operations against the Imperial German government you are directed to cooperate with forces of the other countries employed against that enemy; but in so doing the underlying idea must be kept in view that the forces of the United States are a separate and distinct component of the combined forces, the identity of which must be preserved. This fundamental rule is subject to such minor exceptions in particular circumstances as your judgment may approve. The decision as to when your command, or any of its parts, is ready for action is confided to you, and you will exercise full discretion in determining the manner of co-operation. But, until the forces of the United States are, in your judgment, sufficiently strong to warrant operations as an independent command, it is understood that you will cooperate with the forces of the allies as may be assigned to by the French government.

"6. You will keep the department now fully advised of all that concerns your command and will communicate your recommendations to me and directly to the department. And in general you are charged with all necessary authority to carry on the war vigorously in harmony with the spirit of these instructions and toward a victorious conclusion.

(Signed) "NEWTON D. BAKER."

Party Sails in Secrecy.

On the date of my sailing, May 28, the [illegible] party assembled at Governors island, New York. All had been directed to proceed with the utmost secrecy, not even wearing civilian clothes [illegible] Secretary Baker [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

ONE TEACHER SCHOOLS OF COUNTYHEADATTENDANCE

All Elementary Schools in Garrett Stand Second in State

Garrett county's one-teacher schools led in attendance among all other one-teacher schools of the State for the month of February, according to a report received from the State Department of Education. Garrett had a percentage of 91.8.

All percentages among the elementary schools stood high, being fourth among the two-teacher schools with 91.9, and second aomng the graded schools with 92.6. In all elementary schools Garrett county had a percentage of 92.1, and stood second among all the other counties in the State.

High schools of the county stood seventeenth in the State with a percentage of 91.9.

February marks the third time in succession that the elementary schools have stood second, and the second time in three months that the one-teacher schools have led their department.

Garrett county's 2-teacher schools, which were fourth in the State for February, have stood at the head for one month and were second in two periods.

War Authorities Laud "Hell's Angels" For Accuracy

Authorities on war-time aviation who have seen "Hell's Angels" which comes to the Maryland Theatre on April 24 and 25, agree that it is not only the most authentic air film to date, but is one of the greatest in the history of aeronautics as well.

Colonel P. J. Brady and Major Wm. Ord Ryan, of the U. S. Army Air Corps, who flew to the Pacific Coast recently to observe the army air maneuvers at Sacramento, San Francisco and Los Angeles, were astounded at the realism of the air sequence. Both declared it was beyond belief that such shots could be made.

"The scene in which 50 planes go into combat simultaneously is little less than marvelous," declared Colonel Brady.

The army officers explained that all of their maneuvering was done in formation, as they considered it far too dangerous to even break formation with half that number of ships flying as closely together.

The air-sequences were also praised by the Overseas Aviators Club, a national organization of World War pilots and observers. After witnessing the picture this organization passed resolutions commending Hughes and his flyers for the "superb realism" of "Hell's Angels" and stating, without reservation, that this was the most remarkable and authentic reproduction to date of the World War in the Air.—Advertisement 10-1t.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our husband and father, Silas Carl Lytle, who died one year ago, April 26, 1931:

Do not ask if we miss him;
Oh, there's such a vacant place;
Oft I think I hear his footsteps,
Oft I see his smiling face.

No one knows my longings,
No one sees me weep—
I shed my tears from a broken heart
When others are fast asleep.

I always sit and think of him
When I am all alone;
The blow was great, the shock severe,
But memory always keeps him near.

Friends may think we have forgotten him
When at times they see us smile,
But they little know the heartaches
That the smile hides all the while.

Lonely is the home without him,
Sadly do we feel our loss;
He had time to say good-bye to none:
God opened the heavenly gates and said, "Come!"

1 The famous Goodyear All-Weather Tread is superior in traction. Note how the deep-cut tight-gripping blocks are placed in the center of the tread, where they belong. Press the palm of your hand upon this tread and feel how the blocks grip and pinch the flesh. This illustrates the All-Weather Tread's holdfast action on pavement or road.

2 The patented Goodyear Supertwist Cord Carcass is superior in vitality and long life. Under continued flexing or sudden road-shock, where ordinary cords fatigue or snap, the extra-elastic Supertwist cords stretch and recover, like rubber bands. Ask us to show you on our cord-testing machine the extra stretch—enormously greater—of Supertwist cord over the best standard cord.

HERE'S PROOF WHY GOODYEAR IS THE LEADING TIRE . . . . .

See these demonstrations of superiority. Then consider the fact, true for 16 years, that more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind. The public has made Goodyear THE leading tire! The public buys millions more Goodyears annually and enables Goodyear to give the greatest value. We have the latest types . . . all sizes . . . all prices. Trade in your old tires!

BOYS TO HAVE CHARGE OF CITY'S AFFAIRS TONIGHT

Local Hi School Students Elect Mayor and Six Councilmen in Celebration of Boys' Week

PARADE THIS SUNDAY

A new mayor and town council of Oakland, composed of High school boys, will be confronted with civic problems that usually confront the older citizens, when they meet in regular session at the council chamber this evening from 7 until 9 o'clock, in accordance with the Boys' Week program sponsored by the local Rotary club.

Harley Dawson was elected mayor of the city at an election held in the High school yesterday afternoon by the student body. Councilmen elected included Richard Glotfelty, Joseph Sollars, Elvin Iman, Carroll Casteel, Lloyd Bowman, Harland Ridder. Other offices will be filled by appointment.

These officers will be in charge of the town and its affairs for two hours this evening and will be called on to make their usual reports and decide on a number of civic questions brought before them by citizens of the community.

Parade on Sunday

The annual Boys' Week parade, which was postponed last Supnday on account of the cold and rain, will be held this Sunday afternoon, it has been announced. The parade will assemble at the Grammar school grounds, and march to the Maryland theatre where Rev. Bernard Gibbs, of Terra Alto, W. Va., will address the gathering. All are invited.

The principal schools of the county were addressed Monday and Tuesday by some member of the Rotary club. Wednesday afternoon the boys of Oakland were guests of the Rotary club in the Maryland theatre to a free movie, "Rango".

New Potato Regulation Of Advantage to Garrett County

Experiments with medium late potatoes in Pennsylvania have shown that the yield is reduced when seed is grown in warm climates more than one year. Since it is the policy of the Maryland Seed Certification Board to certify only high yielding disease-free seed, fields of Rural Russet, Smooth Rural, Green Mountain, Gold Coin and other medium late varieties grown at an elevation below 2,000 feet in Maryland will not be eligible for certification unless they are grown from certified seed produced in parts of Maryland above 2,000 feet elevation or in Michigan, New York or other northern states acceptable to the Seed Certification Board. Garrett county is the only portion of Maryland above 2,000 feet elevation. Certified seed tags from the packages containing the seed to be planted will be acceptable as evidence that the fields have been grown from such seed.

This regulation does not apply to early varieties such as Cobbler nor to very late varieties, such as Jersey Redskin and McCormick.

Mt. Lake-Loch Lynn Launch "Better Homes Week."

A meeting was held at the Aid Hall, Loch Lynn Heights, Monday night, under the direction of Mrs. C. E. Hardesty, to launch the "Better Homes Week" campaign. Residents of both Loch Lynn Heights and Mountain Lake Park participated in the singing, which was led by Mr. G. M. Brown. Mayor C. E. Hardesty made the address of welcome. Interesting talks were made by Mrs. Sally Burch, Miss Elsie Benthien, Rev. I. S. Middaugh and Rev. S. A. Jessee.

The mixed quartet composed of Betty Hardesty, Kathleen Jessee, R. E. Bittinger and Bobby Groves sang "I love my Mountain Home," while the male quartet composed of Messrs. Bittinger, Simms, Brown and Grove rendered "My Old Cottage Home."

Pupils of Loch Lynn school added several interesting numbers to the program.

A campaign with the slogan "Clean Up and Beautify," has been begun in both communities.

Twenty-five property owners have entered the Yard Improvement Contests. The judges are Misses O. V. Dunham and Elsie Benthien and Mr. E. R. O'Donnell, all of Oakland.

FIFTY-TWO APPLICATIONS FOR FARM LOANS FILED

Final Meeting of Local Committee Held Yesterday Morning

Fifteen applications for drought relief loans from the Government were approved by the local committee yesterday and were sent to headquarters in Washigton, D. C., for action, according to John H. Carter, County Agent. Today is the closing date for securing the loans from the Federal Government.

Fifty-two applications have been filled out and forwarded to the Farmers' Seed Loan office, Washington, from this county, Mr. Carter stated.

Those who filed their applications at an early date have had replies from the loan office and several have received the money applied for, it was also stated by the official.

There is no record at the County Agent's office as to who receives the money or how much is received in the county. When the local committee approves the application and sends it to Washington the only way members of the committe ascertain whether or not the loan has been granted is from the applicants themselves.

Messrs. Paul Friend, D. Edward Offutt and Henry P. Miller compose the local committee.

"SONIA", AN OPERETTA, TO BE PRESENTED FRIDAY

Cast of Characters and Chorus Are Members of O. H. S. Glee Clubs

"Sonia", a comic operetta, will be presented tomorrow in the Oakland High school auditorium by members of the High school glee club, under the direction of Miss Monna Bland, music instructor.

The cast of characters includes Lloyd Bowers, Adeline Stuck, Helen Shaffer, Mary Welling, Joseph Glotfelty, Virginia Paulie, Maxine Martin, Reginald Ford, Kenneth Graves, William Friend. The choruses are as follows: Student chorus—Clara Bell Hamill, Ethel Stier, Anna Mae Sowers, Martha Miller, Alice Mellott, June Sembower, Buryldine Sanders, Maxine DeWitt, Genevieve Uphold, Mary Lambert, Evelyn Dixon, Anna Belle Stemple, Helen Hinebaugh, Josephine Sollars, Eddie Hinebaugh, Harold Hinebaugh, Robert Bowen.

Bolsheviki chorus—Anna Mae Sowers, Ethel Stier, Helen Hinebaugh, Maxine DeWitt, Bernice DeWitt, Adeline Stuck, Joseph Sollars, Eddie Hinebaugh, William Friend, Kenneth Graves, Harold Hinebaugh, Robert Bowen.

Sailors—Eddie Hinebaugh, Joseph Sollars, Harold Hinebaugh, William Friend, Robert Bowen, sergeant.

Gardcn of Glorious Girls chorus—Anna Belle Stemple, Mary Lambert, Buryldine Sanders, Clara Bell Hamill, Genevieve Uphold, Mary Sollars.

Those in charge include Mary Frances Yutzy, business manager; Miss Martha Engle, costume director; Miss Margaret Kochenderfer, stage and scenery; Miss Mary Thomas, director of intermission acts; Reginald Ford and Bernard Gonder, electricians; Hazel Walter, prompter.

This is the first musical comedy production of the year and it is hoped that both students and friends of the High school will attend. A performance especially for students will be given on Friday morning, while the regular performance will be presented Friday night.

The theme of the story is centered around a group of college students led by "Sonia" Markova, daughter of a Russian nobleman, who go to Russia to search for her father who was last heard of in a Siberian prison camp. While at the ancient home of the Markova's the students decide to stage a musical comedy. During the presentation the mystery is unraveled.

Have Narrow Escape When Tree Falls on Car

Wesley White, two daughters, and Russell Beckman, miraculously escaped serious injury Sunday afternoon returning to Oakland from Red House, when a tree fell across the highway and struck the front of their automobile.

The sudden impact caused all to be badly shaken up and Miss Elinor White received a deep gash in her forehead. The tree, in falling, tore off the two front headlights and bumper. Had the car been a half-second earlier it is said the tree would have caught the car in the middle, seriously injuring if not killing the occupants.

ADJOINING COUNTY TO GET PLANT FOR WASHING COAL

Contract Is Signed For One Million Tons of Coal Annually

Final agreement on a cooperative coal enterprise that will mean the expenditure of approximately $350,000, steady employment of 2,000 miners, and sale of one million tons of coal annually, was reached in Kingwood, W. Va., last Friday night by representatives of about 20 Preston county coal companies, with F. M. Wattles, New York, reprcsenting a group of eastern capitalists.

The agreement calls for the erection of a central coal cleaning plant, probably at M. and K. Junction, 20 miles west of Oakland, by the eastern group, the participating coal companies to furnish a million tons of coal annually to this plant.

The plant will mean an investment of approximately $250,000, while the B. and O. railroad will have to spend about $100,000 in providing a yard and siding facilities for the plant sufficient to accommodate about 300 railroad cars daily. The type of plant to be erected has not been decided.

Actual construction will not begin for two or three months. When completed the plant will be equipped to clean, prepare and ship 5,000 tons of coal daily. Twenty-five men will be required to operate the plant, while about 2,500 miners will be employed in mining and shipping the one million tons of coal annually. Houck-Reidler mine of Tunnelton, W. Va., operated by Raymond Houck, of Oakland, has agreed to produce one-fourth the amount of the total tonnage.

The central cleaning plant is a pioneer development in northern West Virginia, and is expected to stabilize the coal industry in Preston county.

Maryland Farms In 1930 Show Decrease

According to a bulletin recently issued by the Bureau of the Census, showing both state and county statistics, there was a decrease in the number of farms in Maryland from 47,903 in 1929 and 49,001 in 1925, to 43,203 in 1930. The total number includes 10,341 having from 100 to 174 acres, 9,521 from 50 to 99 acres, and 7,835 of from 20 to 49 acres. There were 459 farms having 500 acres and over.

Of the 43,203 farms in the state in 1930, as reported in the census, 30,823 were operated by owners, 939 by managers, and 11,441 by tenants. The land in farms decreased from 4,757,999 acres in 1920 and 4,443,398 acres in 1925, to 4,374,398 acres in 1930. The value of farm land and buildings decreased from $386,596,850 in 1920 to $341,361,453 in 1925, but increased to $356,170,168 in 1930. The value of farm implements and machinery in 1930 was $25,682,263 as compared with $22,885,470 in 1925 and $28,970,020 in 1920.

Puppet Show to be Presented This Evening

Oakland's first marionette or puppet show will be presented this afternoon and evening in the Maryland theatre, when Prof. Bernard Paul, an outstanding artist, Maryland Institute of Art, Baltimore, will be in charge.

He has selected an unusual program for both afternoon and evening presentations. In the evening he will present Cinderella, Jack and the Bean Stalk, The Butterfly that Stamped, and Underseas, with other sketches.

Potato Specialists Here May 7 For Meetings

Doctor R. A. Jehl, assistant plant patholgist, and Prof. C. E. Temple, State plant pathologist, University of Maryland Extension Service, will be in the county the week of May 4 to show slides on potato production and give short talks.

Meetings will be held in Oakland High School auditorium on Thursday, May 7, at 2:15 p. m., and at Friendsvilic High School on Thursday evening at eight o'clock. A meeting for Accident is being arranged.

Music Week Celebration

A program in celebration of music week will be presented in the Maryland theatre on Tuesday, May 7, at 4 o'clock. The pupils of Sr. Augustine's music class will play piano solos, the rhythm band will play and the children of St. Peter's school will sing several choruses. Everyone is invited to attend. There will be no admission.

WORK ON OAKLAND'S NEW PARK TO BEGIN MAY 12

H. R. Laughlin and Mrs. J. L. Alcock To Open Project Officially With Ceremony

EVERYBODY TO ASSIST

With H. R. Laughlin, Division Superintendent of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, lifting the first spade full of earth, and Mrs. John L. Alcock, of Towson, past president of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs, planting the first tree, the beautification of the old Oakland Hotel grounds will begin on Tuesday afternoon, May 12, Miss Lottie M. Loar, president of the Oakland Civic Club, has announced.

Following this ceremony work of improving the grounds will begin in earnest, the result of which is to make Oakland's first public park. Plans for the improvement of the plot of ground which the Baltimore and Ohio Railway Company turned over to the Civic Club, call for the restoration of the once beautiful Washington Spring, a spot visited in former years by thousands of people; the building of a baseball diamond, the excavation for a pond for ice skating in winter and the planting of many trees, shrubs and flowers.

Dr. T. E. Buliard will superintend the restoration of the spring and the planting of the shrubs and trees, and many citizens have volunteered their time and labor in making this area a beauty spot. The Civic Club is relying solely on volunteer work and all organizations of the town have promised assistance.

The banks of the Little Youghiogheny River, which stream runs thru the park, will be cleaned up and rustic bridges will be erected at one or two spots, it has been stated.

A tree will be planted by the Civic Club in honor of Mr. Laughlin, who has cooperated to a great extent in securing the ground for the public's use.

Scouts Plant 1500 Trees On State Forest Saturday

More than 1500 trees were planted Saturday on the State Forest reserve at Herrington Manor, five miles west of Oakland, by members of the Oakland troop of Boy Scouts, in furthering the beautification program of the Oakland Civic Club. This is the second annual tree planting project sponsored by the local civic club, over 1200 trees having been planted last year.

All of the 1500 trees were the Red Pine species and were two-year old seedlings from the State nursery. Those who participated in the tree planting included Scouts Elvin Iman, Joseph Sollars, Richard Glotfelty, Jack Treacy, Horace O'Donnell, Bob Utterback, Gerald Iman, Lewis Jones, William Tillett, James Treacy, Walter Dawson, Howard Naylor, Harry Stemple, George Kerins; Scoutmaster Geo. Hanst; Calvin S. Warner and Waller Hoye.

Four scouts were awarded five merit badges at the regular meeting of the Court of Honor held Monday evening, according to H. L. Jones, chairman. Members of the court present included Mr. Jones, H. A. Loraditch, vice-chairman; Dr. W. W. Grant, G. J. Altstetter, Joseph E. Harned, Donald R. Sincell, Walter W. Dawson, and George Hanst, scoutmaster.

Merit badges were awarded as follows: Schell Hoye, scholarship and public health; Robert Altstetter, handicraft; Lewis Jones and Carroll Casteel, cycling.

Mr. Harned presented to the scouts an autographed copy of his recent book, "Wild Flowers of the Alleghanies", and appreciation for this gift was expressed by Mr. Jones, chairman of the Court; Mr. Dawson, chairman of the troop committee, and Mr. Hanst, scoutmaster.

"The Third Alarm" to be Held For Firemen's Benefit

"The Third Alarm," a benefit picture for the Oakland Volunteer Fire department, will be presented in the Maryland theatre, Oakland, on Monday and Tuesday, May 18 and 19.

It is said to be one of the outstanding fire pictures of the present season and presents an all-star cast including Hobart Bosworth. The picture is all talking. Admission will be 25 and 50 cents.

Help clean up Oakland's new park.

TRAINMAN SCALDED ON LOCOMOTIVE AT BOND, MD.

Reported Defective Crownsheet Fills Engine Cab with Steam

Three Baltimore and Ohio trainmen were injured, one slightly, at 3 o'clock Saturday morning about two miles west of Bond, Garrett county, when it is said bolts on the crown-sheet of Engine 7202 pulled loose, filling the cab with scalding steam.

D. R. Pritt, 44, brakeman, Keyser, W. Va., and Thomas H. Williams, 45, Fairmont, W. Va., fireman, received burns and scalds. Engineman J. E. Keener, escaped with minor burns. Pritt and Williams were placed in a caboose and taken to Hoffman Hospital, Keyser, where their injuries were dressed. They were reported as not seriously scalded.

Inspectors of the Interstate Commerce Commission went to Keyser to make examination of the damaged engine, it was stated, as the reported defect to the engine boiler is regarded as unusual.

The locomotive at the time of the accident, was pulling an extra train of 80 empty steel coal cars from Keyser to Grafton.

Civic Club Members Discuss Spring and Garden Activities

The April meeting of the Oakland Civic club was held at the home of Miss Grace Jones Tuesday afternoon. The entire meeting was in keeping with spring and its gardening activities. Mrs. Harold H. Harned reported the second annual yard and garden contest, sponsored by the club, as being entered into with more responsiveness and appreciation than last year. To make Oakland more beautiful and attractive is the ultimate goal of the club.

Arrangements were made to observe National Music Week next week, and the program will be announced. The Boy Scouts reported planting about 1,500 trees on Herrington Manor, the State forest, for the Civic club.

The official opening of the work to be done at the Oakland hotel grounds will begin on May 12, with a tree planting ceremony.

Attend Brotherhood Meeting

Rev. C. A. Shilke and Messrs. T. C. Bittinger, James Hinebaugh and Prof. Ervin Smith, represented St. Mark's Lutheran Brotherhood at an inter-city conference at Clarksburg last Sunday afternoon and evening. About 200 were present from Clarksburg, Grafton, Fairmont, Morgantown, and Oakland.

Mr. Glen R. Edgar, Charleston, president of the Lutheran Brotherhood of the Synod of West Virginia, and general secretary of the National Lutheran Brotherhood, addressed the conference.

The inter-city group will be entertained by St. Mark's church of Oakland, when their mid-summer conference will be held at Mt. Lake Park in July. An outstanding man is being invited here to address the gathering at this time.

Legion Auxiliary To Hold Card Party May 4

A card party under the auspices of the American Legion auxiliary will be held in Fraley's hall on Monday evening, May 4, at 8 o'clock. Bridge, five hundred and other games will be played and prizes will be awarded.

At this time the Hot-point electric range will be awarded. Admission to the card party is 35 cents. Proceeds from the party and stove will be used for the local drum and bugle corps.

Sunday Service in St. Matthew's P. E. Church

Next Sunday morning, May 3, the choir of girls known as the Nightingales will sing at the eleven o'clock service in St. Matthew's Episcopal church. These girls have been trained under the direction of Mrs. Edward Offutt and Mrs. Donald R. Sincell. The girls of the choir are asked to be present for rehearsal at the church at three o'clock on Saturday afternoon.

The Rev. Mr. Trimble will continue his series of sermons on "Man's Relationship to Reality." The subject of his address next Sunday will be "God as Ethical."

On the afternoon of Wednesday, May 6th, at 4:30 o'clock there will be given in the church a lantern slide lecture for the Sunday school children. These slides will deal with the life of Jesus. It is hoped that other children of the community will come also at this time.

PUBLIC MEETING CALLED BY COMMISSIONERS MAY 11

Question of Continuing Health Nurse and Full Time Health Officer To Be Considered

MATTERS TO BE DISCUSSED

Whether or not Garrett County will have a full time health officer whose salary is to be paid by the State Department of Health, along with the expenses incident to the operation of the office will be determined at a public meeting called by the County Commissioners for May 11th, at one o'clock at the Board room in the Court House when representatives of the State Board will be present and at which representative citizens from all parts of the county are invited to attend.

At this meeting also the question of continuing the services of a public health nurse will be taken up, discussed and disposed of.

At the recent meeting of the Board of County Commissioners no provision was made in the annual levy for the payment of the salary of the nurse. Following the publication of the levy in last week's edition of The Republican and a news item in the same edition calling attention to this fact The Republican has been commended by many and rather severely criticized by others.

Junior Drum and Bugle Corps Makes First Appearance

The Junior Drum and Bugle corps, under the direction of Byron Besse, made its first public appearance last Sunday afternoon. The corps was headed by Byron Besse, Jr., drum major.

High School Tree Planting Program Scheduled for Friday

The special program for the tree planting ceremony at the High school grounds, which was to have been held last Friday afternoon, and which was postponed on account of cold weather, will be held tomorrow afternoon. The ceremony is being sponsored by the Oakland Civic club.

Following the program a number of trees and shrubs, which have been supplied by organizations and individuals of the city, will be planted. The Boys' Band will play and other entertainment has been provided. J. H. Carter, county agent; and H. A. Loraditch, member of the school board, will give short talks.

Bids Asked For Construction of 2.56 Miles On Bittinger-Grantsville Road

Sealed proposals for building one section of State macadam highway along the Bittinger-Grantsville road from a point 2.56 miles south of Grantsville to Grantsville, will be received by the State Roads Commission on May 12, at noon, according to an advertisement authorized by the State Roads Commission appearing in The Republican today.

This will be the first step in building a State highway through practically the center of the county and the highway, when completed will shorten the traveling distance between Grantsville and Oakland.

Urged to Enter Yard and Garden Contest

Anyone desiring to enter the Yard and Garden contest, who has not been seen by a member of the Civic club, may get entry blanks by calling Mrs. Harold H. Harned, 84-J.

A large number have already entered the contest, Mrs. Harned stated, but it is hoped that more will take part. The idea of this contest is to clean up our back yards and beautify our town, she stated.

Lesson for May 3

JESUS IN THE HOME OF ZACCHAEUS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:1-10.

GOLDEN TEXT—For the Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Makes a Bad Man Good.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Makes Zacchaeus Want to Do Right.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Beginning a New Life.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Repentance and Restitution.

I. Jesus Passing Through Jericho (v. 1).

Jericho is noted as a stronghold of the Canaanites which was miraculously delivered into the hands of Israel in response to their faith, Joshua 6, and also for the faith of Rahab which saved her from destruction with the city Heb. (11:31). Two notorious sinners, Rahab and Zacchaeus, were saved nt Jericho.

II. Zacchaeus Seeking Jesus (vv. 2-4).

1. His object (v. 3).

He sougbt to see who Jesns was. He doubtless had heard of Jesus' kind treatment of publicans, so was prompted to see what kind of a man he was.

2. His difficulties (vv. 2, 3).

(1) His infamous business (v. 2).

He was a tax collector of the Roman government. The very fact that a Jew held such an office under the hated Romans would make him extremely unpopular. Then, since he was rich, it was evident thst he hsd practiced extortion in collecting taxes. By virtue of his traitorous sct in accepting such an office from the Romsns snd his extortion in collecting taxes, he was ostracized from society. Many men have a hard time in coming to Christ because of their unpopular business relations.

(2) His shortness of stature (v. 3).

He was too small to crowd his way through to Jesus, and being hated by the peopic, they had thrust him aside, no doubt, with taunts and jeers.

3. His persistence (v. 4).

He ran before the multitude and climbed up into a tree. What he lacked in stature he was determined shonld be madc up by the height of the tree. Zacchaeus seems to have been of that temperament which knows no defest. The obstacles placed before him he brushed sside; those he could not brush aside he climbed over, his heart set npon the goal.

III. Jesus Finding Zacchaeus (vv. 5, 6).

While Zacchaeus was trying to see Jesus, Jesus was looking for him. This is always the case, when desire is stirred up in a heart to see Jesus, Jesus is seeking thst one. When Jesus saw him he commanded him to come down from the tree and declared his intention to go home with him. Jesns called him by name, but did not utter a word which would humiliate Zscchaeus. Jesus knew his heart's desire and dealt with him accordingly. All souls who earnestly seck Jesus shall be found of him. Zacchaeus quickly responded. He came down, and with joy received Jesus. He acted wisely in that he did not hesitate. A moment's indecision and waiting wonld have kept Zacchaeus from Jesns —from Jcsus and salvation.

IV. Zacchaeus' Conversion (vv. 7-10).

His conversion was sudden snd thorough. He was converted before he reached the ground.

1. What the crowd said (v. 7).

They said just what they ssy today when sinners come to Christ. They call to mind the man's former sins. They also reproached Christ saying that he bad gone to be a guest with this notorions extortioner, the tax collector. That for which they reproached Jesus was his glory. His supreme mission was to save sinners (v. 10).

2. What Zacchaeus said (v. 8).

His conversion was thorough. It took hold upon his heart. His new life was begun with resolution and restitution. He dedicated half of his goods to the poor. The man who a little while ago was a grafter was now a generous giver. His conversion got hold of his pockethook. His determination to make restitution wherein he had wrongly exacted taxes shows the genuineness of his conversion. While God forgets the psst of the sinner when he comes to Christ, the sinner who is converted will scek to make right all wrongs, be they unkind words or unrighteous deeds. Sorrow for sin is not enough when restitution is possible.

3. What Jesus said (vv. 9, 10).

"Today is salvation come to thy house." The publican was now a child of God, a son of Abraham. Salvstion is a present reality to those who rcceive Jesus Christ.

Col. Bell drew a blank this morning when I went to call on him. I haven't been to see him for three weeks in hopes that he might collect a few thoughts worthy of appearance here, but his lack of ideas is preposterous, and incidentally highly contagious. His honor mare Stemple was there when I called, but he couldn't furnish any clues as to where I might find an idea.

He said I might give the merchants of town a calling down for hauling their paper and trash to the Dead Pond and not taking the time to burn it, leaving it to scatter to all parts of the city, but I told him why shove this responsibility on mc. He got real congenial then and said he'd tell those merchants if they didn't take care of their papers he would consign them to solitary confinement in Mike Maroney's dump cart for three days. What say we keep this town a little cleaner?

The Park editor says there is a rumor that voting machines will be purchascd for the Park and that booths will be erected for this summer. Extra police will be detailed at each booth to prevent an outbreak of Alcaponieitis, during the election hours.

Nels Miller, also of the Park, is plastering a nail hole, according to his own statement, but according to Col. Bell the nail hole is just the size and shape of a man's foot. It never was safe to try and walk on the heaven side of a ceiling when there was nothing between you and the first floor but plastering.

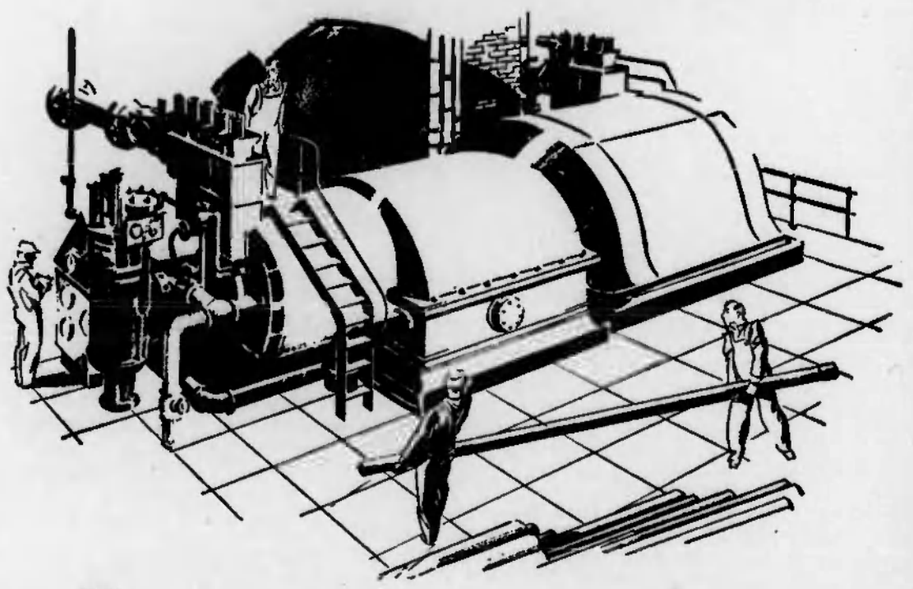
100% SERVICE . . . . .
. . . . DESPITE THE DROUGHT



The year of the Great Drought will long be remembered in West Virginia. Adversity more than prosperity makes us realize how closely our interests are bound together.

A disaster which parched the fields and dried up the watercourses not only injured agriculture but commerce and industry as well. It created serious problems affecting our ability to furnish our seventy thousand customers with uninterrupted electric service, for a plentiful supply of water is one of the essentials of such service.

It required not only increased expense of operation but the constant experience and vigilance of the men and women responsible for good service.

It may never occur to you . . . as you enjoy the conveniences of a steady flow of electricity . . . how much that service owes to these people who take pride in doing their jobs well. It is this spirit among electric utility men and women that keeps your service normal even under conditions that try men and machinery to their utmost.

In your town . . . perhaps on your street . . . there are Monongahela people . . . your friends and neighbors. They are proud of their part in providing dependable electric service to the community and are always willing to do their part in making this service mean more to you.

BITTINGER

On Wednesday of last week a snow storm swept over this community rather suddenly and throughout the afternoon snow continued to fall until the ground was covered to a depth of nearly five inches. A high wind, accompanying the storm, blew the snow into deep drifts along the public highways and travel was blocked for two or three days. The temperature fell to a point below freezing and for two days the weather was more like winter than mid-April.

Francis Bittinger, accompanied by his son and daughter, from the Meadow Mountain section of the county, were business callers in Bittinger last Saturday.

Deputy Sheriff Spear and State's Attorney W. W. Dawson, of Oakland, passed through Bittinger on Monday morning on a business mission.

Deep snow drifts prevented the Accident school bus from making its regular daily trips between this village and Accident on Thursday and Friday of last week.

Howard Metz, of near New Germany, was in this neighborhood a few days ago on business.

County Commissioner James Fitzwater, of North Glade, passed through here early this week, being called to this section on public business.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Wiley visited at the home of Mrs. Wiley's parents at North Glade last Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas C. Beachy entertained some friends from Pittsburgh at their home near here last week.

Miss Benthien, County Demonstration Agent, of Oakland, was a pleasant caller in this village last Monday.

W. E. Buckle, who has been employed by the Kelly-Springfield Rubber Company at their plant in Cumberland, had the misfortune of being laid off indefinitely a few days ago, and he is now at his home in this village.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hetrick are rejoicing over the stork's recent donation of a new member of their family, the visit being made on last Sunday morning.

Rev. E. E. Campbell, pastor of the local Lutheran church, who has been confined to his bed for a couple of weeks, is sufficiently improved so as to be able to be about his room.

Ornamental Gardening Notes
By
W. R. Ballard, Extension Horticulturist

Preparing for the Perennial Border

The need of careful preparation of the soil where perennials are to be planted can not be too strongly emphasized. After the plants are once established it is difficult and unwise to dig up deeply around the plants. Many perennials are lost during the winter from water standing on the roots because of poor drainage. Then, too, in dry seasons such as that of 1930, soils lacking in humus do not readily retain the moisture, even when artificially watered.

Notwithstanding the fast that it involves considerable labor, more satisfactory results will be secured if the beds can be dug out from 1½ to 3 feet in depth and refilled with a special soil mixture. The ideal condition will be attained if the soil approaches a sandy loam. Sharp sand, coal ashes and organic matter in the form of well rotted manure, leaf mold, compost or pulverized peat, added to clay soils will greatly improve their physical condition. Clay and organic matter will modify sandy soils. If soil is acid enough lime should be added to counteract this condition. In addition to such treatment fertility must be kept up. If well rotted manure is available, this will do very well provided it is supplemented with superphosphate or bone meal since the manures are generally lacking in phosphoric acid. Where manure is not available a mixed fertilizer such as a 5-8-5 may be used. From 4 to 5 pounds per 100 square feet may be applied if mixed thoroughly with the soil to a depth of a foot or more. To secure the best returns from commercial fertilizers keep up the supply of organic matter.

Many perennials are better for being divided every few years. A plan that can sometimes be adopted is to alternate annuals and perennials, ie. after growing annuals in a bed for 3 or 4 years, fertilize the bed well and then transfer the perennials. The old perennial bed then can be used for annuals until time to ehange back to perennials. This plan makes it easier to build up the soil texture and fertility.

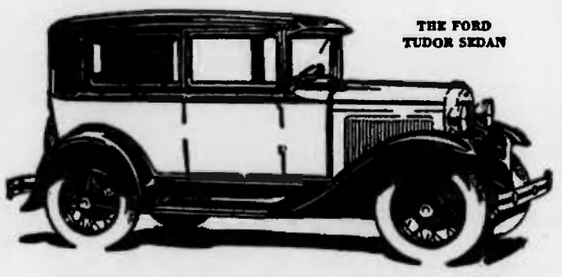
FORD RELIABILITY



Long, hard use shows the value of good materials and simplicity of design

EVERYWHERE you go you hear reports of the good performance and reliability of the Ford.

One owner writes—"The Ford Tudor Sedan I am driving has covered 59,300 miles through all kinds of weather. It is still giving perfect satisfaction."

Another owner describes a trip of 3217 miles in 95 hours over bad roads and through heavy rain and sleet in the mountains. "Throughout the entire trip," he writes, "the Ford performed excellently and no mechanical trouble of any kind was experienced. The shatter-proof glass undoubtedly saved us from serious injury when a prairie chicken struck the windshield while we were traveling at 65 miles an hour."

See the nearest dealer and have him give you a demonstration ride in the Ford. Then, from your own personal experience, you will know that it brings you everything you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.

STATESMANSHIP

Witn the gradual passing of the emergencies which assailed the country most acutely during the past winter, the quality of President Hoover's statesmanship in the face of a frenzied clamor for quack remedies can plainly be traced. Had he consented to the adoption of the "dole" it would doubtless have become more or less permanent in operation, thus producing a situation which is gradually being cured by natural means. Had he permitted Congress to force upon the Red Cross a vast appropriation of government money, that magnificent organization would now be unable to appeal further to the generosity of the public, but must look forward to the whim of Congress for its support. Had he permitted the government to provide unlimited funds for food and clothing for the drought sufferers, he would have deprived the public of one of its ennobling opportunities to extend, individually, some core of help to others in their hour of need.

What President Hoover accomplished, in those trying hours, was to preserve that line which marks the prooper and the improper activities of government, and to preserve to the people the great duty and privilege of helping each other. Except for the steadfast vision of President Hoover, the United States might today, through the hysteria of the moment, be a nation supported through every difficulty by excessive taxation rather than through the free-will help of the people which has never in the history of the country failed of the most liberal expression. The public will fully understand this, some day, and will give to Mr. Hoover a full appreciation of his staunch determination to provide wise solutions for the emergencies which confronted the Nation.

When The Revolution Ended

The cessation of hostilities between the United States and Great Britain was proclaimed April 19, 1783, to the soldiers of the Continental army by order of General George Washington in headquarters at Newburgh. Congress had issued, a few days before, the officiel notification that the Revolutionary War was at an end.

The 148th anniversary of Washington's proclamation is noted by the Division of Information and Publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission in a statement recalling the event.

The Revolution had practically ended with the surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown in October, 1781. It was generally realized throughout the two countries that there would be no more extensive campaigns, but both armies were retained under arms. A few skirmishes took place in 1782, occurring for the most part between foraging or scouting parties.

In one of these minor fights in August some British soldiers at Saint James Island, South Carolina, were defeated by Captain Wilmott. At Fort Wheeling, Virginia, in the following month, the last skirmish of the war was fought. It also was a victory for the Americans.

While there was little to be gained by either side from this kind of fighting it was an inevitable result of the proximity of armed men representing the two nations. It was unavoidable as long as Britain and the United States were officially at war.

Despite this fact, Washington vigorously opposed any reduction in the army until the conclusion of peace. No one realized the cost of victory better than the man who had led America's armies throughout the war. He was unwilling that the fruits of victory should be lost by a relaxation of vigilance which might encourage the British ministry to continue the conflict.

Washington's feelings on receiving official notice that hostilities were at an end may be seen in his proclamation at Newburgh. Preliminary articles of peace had been signed at Paris in November and January, and it was beginning to be apparent that the permanent treaty would be based on these stipulations. With considerable relief, therefore, General Washington issued the following order:

"The Commander-in-chief orders the cessation of hostilities between the United States of America and the King of Great Britain to be publicly proclaimed tomorrow at twelve at the New Building; and that the proclamation, which will be communicated herewith, be read tomorrow morning at the head of every regiment and corps of the army; after which, the Chaplains with the several brigades, will render thanks to Almighty God for all his mercies, particularly for his overruling the wrath of man to His own glory, and causing the rage of war to cease among the nations * * * *

"On such a happy day, which is the harbinger of peace, a day which completes the eighth year of the war, it would be ingratitude not to rejoice, it would be insensibility not to participate, in the general felicity * * * * *.

"Happy, thrice happy, shall they be pronounced hereafter, who have contributed anything, who have performed the meanest office in erecting this stupendous fabric of freedom and empire on the broad basis of independency, who have assisted in protecting the rights of human nature, and establishing an asylum for the poor and oppressed of all nations and religions."

A lamb, born on the Abraham Spiker farm, two miles south of Oakland, had three perfectly formed front feet.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

A notice of the death of Hiram P. Tasker, founder of the Garrett County Herald, published at Oakland for many years, appeared in The Republican. Mr. Tasker was a Democrat and prominent in Garrett county politics for many years. It was he also who conceived the idea of impounding the water of the Big Youghiogheny and creating electric current for transmission to large cities—at that time an entirely new project.

An article copied from the Wheeling Intelligencer told of the first contract for the construction of the old National Road, which was signed at Cumberland one hundred years ago, and which was built from that city to St. Louis in the years following.

A. S. Teats, Justice of the Peace, broke the record in collecting fines from offenders. A report showed that he had turned over $500 to the State above the amount due him for fees for services rendered. A large part of the amount was from fines collected from violators of the law against the sale of spirituous liquors.

Automobiles delivered by the Naylor and Hoffman Garage included those to J. A. Kelly, Dr. M. C. Hinebaugh, Lieut. E. S. West and Dr. L. Carr, at Mt. Lake Park. Harry Loar was building a garage for the storing of a car which he expected to arrive in a few days.

An Interesting Fact

District of Columbia Once Owned By Maryland.

Realizing the disadvantages of carrying on business in what was recognized as a temporary location during the latter years of the Confederation of States and during the first years of the Federal Union, a permanent location for the capital of the United States was seriously considered.

In 1783, a resolution was introduced in Congress providing that buildings for the use of the government should be constructed on the Delaware or the Potomac, if either location should prove suitable. For four years following the matter remained undecided. But during that time three resolutions were introduced, the first one favoring a site on the Delaware was passed by a majority vote, but was not carried into effect. The other two favoring the Potomac failed of passage. Thus it appears that the Delaware held the favored position in the selection. However, on December 23 of that year, the General Assembly of Maryland passed an "Act to cede to Congress a district of ten miles square in this State, for the seat of Government of the United States."

But this generous resolution carrying with it a valuable gift, seems to have had little effect, for in September, 1789, the United States House of Representatives passed a resolution before the adjournment of Conseat of the government of the United States ought to be at some convenient place on the banks of the Susquehannah, in the State of Pennsylvania.

Subsequently, Germantown was favored by a majority of the House, but the Senate did not act on the motion before the adjournment of Congress. It was at this time that Virginia and Maryland began to realize that unless some decisive action was taken by the two States, those in favor of the more northerly location controlled enough votes to win. Then it was that the Maryland Assembly passed a resolution to pay to the order of the President the sum of $72,000 in three yearly equal payments and to insure the prompt advancement of the money, ordered the sale of the "reserved lands to the westward of Fort Cumberland." The merchants of Baltimore added $100,000 to this sum.

After considerable debate in Congress, President Washington visited the prospective locations and finally selected the present site as the seat of the Federal Government. The territory proposed to be ceded by Virginia is not now included in the District.

For the most part the Maryland property was owned by Daniel Carroll, David Burns, Samuel Davidson and Notley Young. The price paid, as reported by Jefferson, was 25 pounds Sterling per acre, but the streets were not to be counted. So excluding these the cost was reduced to about 19 pounds per acre.

The tract of land was laid off by Mr. Andrew Elliott, selected by the President for that purpose, who was "attended by Benjamin Benneker, an Ethiopian," mentioned in the Interesting Fact "The Negro in Maryland."

MAY 9 IS DATE SET FOR VOCATIONAL FIELD DAY

Public Speaking and Poultry Judging Contests Will Feature Events At U. of M.

May 9 has been set as the date for the annual Maryland Vocational Field Day at the University of Maryland, it is announced by Dr. J. H. Patterson, director of the University Experiment Station. The program will follow closely that of former years with the exception that there will be no student fitting and judging contest by members of the student Livestock Club of the University.

The morning hours will be given over, as in the past, to poultry judging and public speaking contests, winners of which will receive $10.00, $7.50, and $5.00 in gold. The public speaking contests are open to all vocational agricultural boys in all-day classes who are successfully carrying at least three units of regular school work and who are actually members of chartered chapters of the Future Farmers Association. A meeting is being held Saturday evening at Accident to determine Garrett county's representatives in public speaking.

Likewise the poultry judging contests are open to any boy under 21 years of age and who has not participated in any poultry judging contest of inter-state or national character. In addition, he must not have had more than four years of training in any approved vocational course in agriculture of less than college grade. He must be, at the time the team is selected for the contest, a bona fide high school student enrolled in an all-day class in vocational agriculture.

The poultry judging contest will be held at the University Poultry Plant at 9:30 a. m., and will be in charge of Professor R. H. Waite; the public speaking contest will be staged in the Chemistry Building at the same hour. Both contests will last approximately two hours, at the end of which time an inspection will be made of the various experiments being conducted by the University Experiment Station. From 1:15 to 3:00 p. m. in the afternoon a luncheon will be held in the College Dining Hall at which time a number of prominent individuals will make addresses and the Maryland Farmer Degree Certificate will be awarded.

DIRECT PRIMARY, CHEAPER MEN

The direct primary is in growing disrepute and the Massachusetts committee of the General Court on election laws is considering substitute measures, one of which provides for convention nominations outright. The old axiom that the office should seek the man is repudiated by the direct primary system. The man must seek the office and sign a paper that he will take it before his name can appear on the ballot.

For one thing, voters at large shirk their responsibility and do not participate in the primaries. People do not begin to become serious, politically, until the nominations are made. A small, but active minority of a party makes the nomination. Many able and qualified men who might be drafted by a convention, out of a spirit of patriotism, will not ballyhoo and make a fight for the office. Unfit men, who would not be considered in a party convention, secure nomination for the high office of United States senator. The nominee is under obligation to small minorities. Party responsibility is weakened.

The convention system does not interfere with the principle of government by the pople. The voters always held control of the business in the choice of delegates to the convention. Representative government is maintained.

There is nothing in a system or device that will afford a perfect candidate, but under the direct primary there has been a deterioration in the quality of the men who represent us in the legislature, in Congress and high places.—New Bedford Mercury.

Some economists tell us that out of this depression will come a cure to end all future depressions. Didn't we hear something a few years ago about a war that was to end all wars?

DIED.

CHARLES WALTER JANOSKE

Funeral services for Charles Walter Janoske, 40 years old, garage owner, of Oakland, who died at 1:00 o'clock Friday afternoon, April 24, at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where he had been a patient for nearly two weeks, were held Sunday afternoon from St. John's Lutheran church, Red House, Md., Rev. W. E. Waybright, officiating, Rev. W. B. Brock, pastor of the Garrett Memorial Presbyterian church, Oakland, assisting.

The deceased had been suffering for an undetermined length of time with ulcers of the stomach, which ruptured as he was engaged in repairing a car. An abscess formed on his lungs following an operation performed at the hospital and in his weakened condition he was unable to withstand the attack.

He was born at Red House, August 27, 1891, the son of Mrs. Caroline S. Janoske and the late Charles Janoske. During the World War he was attached to a machine gun battalion and was a member of the local post of the American Legion. The Legion had charge of the burial service at Red House cemetery where interment was made. He was also a member of the local lodge Knights of Pythias.

He was married to Mrs. Beulah Fraley-Hill, who survives him, shortly after the War. He is also survived by his mother, Mrs. Caroline Janoske, and three brothers, Greeley Janoske, Red House; William Janoske, Clinton, N. C., and Albert Janoske, Akron, O.

MRS. ANNIE DORSEY GETTY

Mrs. Annie Dorsey Getty, widow of the late John O. Getty, Grantsville, died very suddenly at her home in Grantsville early Monday morning. Mrs. Getty had been a semi-invalid for the past four years, suffering from attacks of the heart and partial paralysis. Her death at this time came as a shock to her family and friends, as she was much improved in health the past few weeks.

Mrs. Getty was the daughter of the late Patrick and Sarah Dorsey, well known residents of Garrett county. She was born at Johnstown, Pa., 65 years ago last November and moved with her parents when a child to a farm near Avilton, this county.

On May 17, 1894, she married the late John O. Getty, and with her husband established a home in Grantsville where she continued to reside until her death. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. James K. Smart, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Joseph F. Fahey, of Grantsville, county health nurse, and by two sons, Frank W. Getty, teacher in the Grantsville High school, and William D. Getty, assistant cashier in the First State Bank at Grantsville.

Mr. Getty died May 1, 1925, and a son died in infancy.

Mrs. Getty is also survived by the following brothers and sisters: Dr. F. P. Dorsey, Hoedlington, Neb.; Jas. P. Dorsey, Everett, Wash.; Dr. J. H. Dorsey and Daniel W. Dorsey, of Grantsville; Sister Luca (Holy Cross) Notre Dame, Ind.; Misses Margaret and Mary Dorsey, Casselman Hotel, Grantsville. Mrs. Getty is also survived by many friends in all walks of life, for she was a true Christian and her generosity endeared her to everyone with whom she came in contact. She was a member of St. Stephen's Catholic church. Funeral services occurred from the church with a low requiem mass, sung by the Rev. Father Charles, pastor, yesterday morning. The celebrant priest was assisted by Rev. Father Brady, of Meyersdale, Pa. Interment was made in the family lot in Grantsville cemetery.

MRS. SUSAN WELCH

Mrs. Susan Welch, widow of the late Bryson Welch, who for a number of years made her home at Akron, O., died last Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Howard Brenneman. The funeral was held in the U. B. church at McHenry, with Rev. C. W. Fraker in charge. Interment was made in the Flat Woods cemetery. Mr. Welch at one time served Garrett county as a member of the Board of County Commissioners The body was accompanied by Mr. S. H. Welch, her son, and other relatives.

MRS. FRANK WESTLAKE

Mrs. Fronie Westlake, wife of Mr. Frank Westlake, of East Oakland, died at her home Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock after a lingering illness which had confined her to her bed more or less regularly for more than a year.

She was aged 52 years and had lived in the vicinity of Oakland since birth. She is survived by her husband.

Funeral services were conducted from her home this morning at 10 o'clock, Rev. C. A. Shilke, officiating. Interment was in Oakland cemetery.

SINES

Mr. and Mrs. Bliss Reams and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reams and family, Misses Holice Reams and Nina Foster, and Mr. Samuel Lewis were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Reams.

STATE DEATH RATE GOES UP WHILE BIRTHS DECLINE

Statistics For First Quarter of The Year Issued by State Department of Health

There were fewer births and more deaths in the first three months of this year than in the corresponding period of 1930, according to a report issued Saturday by the State Department of Health.

The number of birth srecorded in the first quarter of this year was 7,458, as against 7,813 for the corresponding period in 1930.

Deaths Total 6,437

The number of births recorded in contrasted with 5,794 for 1930. The birth rate per 1000 population was 18.3, compared with 19.4 for the first three months of last year, while the death rate was 15.8, compared with 14.4. The number of deaths of persons under 1 year old was 638, compared with 540 for the corresponding period last year.

There were 3,687 births and 3,536 deaths in Baltimore in the first three months of this year. In the same period last year there were 3,823 births and 3,130 deaths.

Infant Mortality Rates Given

The infant mortality rates were higher for all parts of the State, except Caroline, Carroll, Cecil, Harford, Howard, Prince George's, Somerset and Talbot counties. Worcester county had the highest infant mortality rate, 184.8 per 1000 live births, and Howard county had the lowest, 16.3. The infant mortality rate for the State has increased since December, 1930, and the rate for March was 99.8, the highest of any month since January, 1929, which was 107.1, it was reported.

The infant mortality rate from influenza and pneumonia in the counties was 34.9 for the first quarter of the year, compared with 18 for the corresponding period of 1930. Deaths from these two diseases have shown a marked increase, especially among Negroes and in Baltimore city in the first quarter of this year.

15 Deaths Laid to Measles

There were fifteen deaths from measles in Baltimore in March, compared with one death in the entire year of 1930. The measles death rate per 100,000 for Baltimore in the first quarter of this year was 9. There were fewer deaths from typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria, whooping cough and tuberculosis than there were in the same period of 1930.

The heads of health departments of every State in the country have been invited to attend the Maryland Health Department's thirteenth annual conference, May 8 and 9, at the departmental building, 1411 North Charles street. Governor Ritchie is scheduled to speak at the close of the morning session on the first day. Other speakers will be representatives of the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health and of the United States Public Health Service. Dr. Robert H. Riley, director of the Maryland Department of Health, will preside.

State Forest Acquisition

A new state forest was recently acquired in Garrett by the Forestry Department, comprising over 6,000 acres of land, extending from Wallman to Schell on the Potomac River and up the slopes of Backbone Mountain. This tract was purchased from the Manor Mining and Manufacturing company and constitutes about half of the acreage that this company owns.

The new forest has been placed under administration with Mr. Mike Tasker as resident warden. Mr. Tasker has been a forest warden for more than fifteen years, and has a splendid record of efficient service. Through his efforts and influence in his community and the cooperation he has secured from the people generally, forest protection in that section of the county has been very much improved. Mr. Tasker undertakes his new duties as a full-time employee, and with a thorough knowledge of the conditions in his district. The Department feels that its interests are in good hands.

The State now owns, in addition to the 6,000 acres on the Potomac-Backbone area, 17,000 acres in the Savage River section, and about 4,000 acres in the Swallow Falls area, or approximately 27,000 acres in Garrett county. With the smaller arcas of state forests in six other counties, the present state forest area is, approximately, 33,000 acres. In addition, several other small tracts arc under option, which if acquired will bring the total state forest area up to about 40,000 acres by October 1 of this year.

Committee's Sale

—OF—

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE

Situate in the Town of Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland.

Under and by virtue of the powers vested in me as Committee of the person and estate of Idie T. Hayes by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, and by a decree of said Court passed on April 2nd, 1931, in a cause standing as No. 2826 Equity on the docket of said Court, I hereby give notice that on at the hour of two o'clock P. M., in front of the Court House in the Town of Oakland, Maryland, I will offer and sell at public auction to the highest bidders all of those lots, pieces or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the said Town of Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland, as follows, to-wit:

SATURDAY, MAY 2nd, 1931

1. All that parcel of land known as the HAYES HOME PROPERTY, and being No. 65 Green Street, in the said town of Oakland, and being the same which was conveyed to Idie T. Hayes by two deeds, the first from Mary W. Brown, conveying two acres and forty-one perches, bearing date August 26, 1908, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 58, folio 140, etc., one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and the second from James D. Hamill and wife conveying a lot 284¼ feet by 153 feet, bearing date May 1, 1920, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 77, folio 410, one of said Land Records of Garrett County.

This property is improved by a two story frame dwelling containing eleven rooms and basement, garage and small shed. This is a very excellent residence property, well situated and adapted either as a summer or all-year home.

2. All that property known as the "BULLARD PROPERTY," No. 25 High Street, in said town, containing one acre and thirty-three perches of land, and being the same which was conveyed unto Sara H. Hayes, Trustee, for the benefit of Idie T. Hayes, by deed from Agnes W. Willetts and husband dated June 22, 1924, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 95, folio 455, onc of said Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

This property is improved by a large frame dwelling, garage and other outbuildings.

3. All that lot of ground known as FAIRVIEW CEMETERY in said town of Oakland, and being the same which was conveyed unto said Idie T. Hayes by deed from D. Lindley Sloan and wife bearing date September 15, 1920, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 79, folio 155, etc., one of said Land Records of Garrett County.

This lot originally contained 3 7-8 acres, but approximately one-third of the same has been sold off in cemetery lots, as will appear by reference to the conveyances recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, which said lots will be excepted in this sale.

4. LOT NO. 46 on the plat of HIGHLAND PARK in said town of Oakland, and being the same which was conveyed unto said Idie T. Hayes by deed from Webster Ravenscroft et al. dated May 17, 1920, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 77, folio 531, one of said Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

TERMS OF SALE—One-third cash on day of sale, one-third in six months and the remaining third in twelve months, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser or purchasers, the credit portions to bear interest from day of sale and to be secured to the satisfaction of the Committee. Conveyancing at the cost of the purchasers.

CHAPTER VII

As the French authorities wished to honor our national holiday they requested that some of our troops parade in Paris July 4, 1917. We were not prepared to make much of a military impression, as our men were largely recruits. But to stimulate morale the French wanted to demonstrate that the Americans were actually coming, so a battalion of the Sixteenth Infantry was brought up from Saint Nazaire.

The untrained, awkward appearance of this unit, which was accepted as the cream of our regular army by the French officials, no doubt tended to confirm their belief that it would be some time before we should be able to organize an effective army.

If they could have foreseen the triumph of this same battalion at the peak of the great counter-offensive on the field of Soissons just one year later we might have been spared many delays and difficulties in carrying out our plans.

Troops Bring Joy to French.

Nevertheless, the first appearance of American combat troops in Paris brought joyful acclaim from the people. On the march the battalion was accompanied by a great crowd, many women forcing their way into the ranks and swinging along arm in arm with the men. With wreaths about their necks and flowers in their hats and on their rifles, the column had the appearance of a moving flower garden.

With only a semblance of military formation the animated throng pushed its way through avenues of people to the martial strains of the French band and the still more thrilling music of cheering voices. Many dropped on their knees in reverence as the column went by.

The battalion marched to the cemetery where the tomb of Lafayette is located. The ceremony there consisted of a few speeches, the principal speaker being Brand Whitlock, our ambassador to Belgium. I had been asked to deliver an address but had designated Col. C. E. Stanton of my staff, an old army friend and something of an orator, to speak in my place. However, I was prevailed upon to speak extemporaneously.

"Lafayette, We Are Here!"

It was on this occasion that utterance was given to an expression that could be born only of inspiration, one that will live long in history: "Lafayette, we are here!"

Many have attributed this striking utterance to me, and I have often wished it could have been mine. But I have no recollection of saying anything so splendid. I am sure those words were spoken by Colonel Stanton, and to him must go the credit for so happy and felicitous a phrase.

The parade of our troops through Paris doubtless fortified the morale of the people to a certain extent, but we all knew that eventually something very much more effective would have to be done.

The real question was whether the allies could hold out until we were ready. It was clear that no halfway measures on our part would answer and that allied hopes lay in American military assistance on a vast scale at the earliest moment.

Cables for 1,000,000 Men.

The allies thought an American force of 500,000 men the maximum that we could have in France in 1918, but in my opinion that would not be enough to meet the situation. If we could have had half a million fighting men in France in the early spring it would have been a different matter.

But looking ahead it was necessary to allow from 35 to 40 per cent for the services of supply, which would leave out of this number only approximately 300,000 fighting troops. Although this would aid, we could not be content merely to lend a helping hand but must prepare to strike a decisive blow.

While the appearance on the front of any American force was still months away, yet there was little doubt that if we could induce allied co-operation we should be able to give much greater assistance than they believed possible. Our study having confirmed the correctness of my tentative estimate made on the Baltic, I therefore called Washington, July 6, as follows:

"Plans should contemplate sending over at least 1,000,000 men by next May. . . . This estimate would give practically half million men for trenches. Inasmuch as question affects all allies whose common interests demand that we exert maximum military power consistent with transport problem, suggest early agreement be reached among allies which would provide requisite transportation . . . and limit sea transportation to food and military supplies and the exclusion of every kind of luxury as well as other supplies in excess of immediate needs of countries dependent upon oversea supplies."

Question of Transportation.

The question was, therefore, one of sea transportation, but so far all efforts to get the allies, especially the British, to consider giving help to bring over men and supplies had been futile. They did not seem to realize that America would be practically negligible from a military standpoint unless they could provide some shipping. Nor did they seem to appreciate that time was a vital factor.

But the spirit of full co-operation among the allies did not then exist. They seemed to regard the transportation of an American army overseas as no concern of theirs. This apparent indifference also gave further color to the suspicion that perhaps after all an American army as such was not wanted. The situation from our standpoint was grave and embarrassing, for it looked as though it might not be necessary for us to save either the allies or ourselves.

An entry in my diary notes: "Two of the Roosevelt boys, Theodore, Jr., and Archie, reported. Unable to participate himself, their father's fine spirit is represented by his sons."

CHAPTER VIII

As the details of our mission abroad developed it soon became evident that in all that pertained to the maintenance and supply of our armies us distinguished from the purely military task, men with expert knowledge and broad experience in business, industry and transportation would be needed.

In the technical branches of the army there were many officers with theoretical training in special lines, but with some notable exceptions they generally lacked broad constructive or administrative experience. From the very start I determined to obtain the best talent available, and was fortunate in practically every field to find able men who were anxious to do their part.

The earliest application of the principle was in connection with timber and lumber procurement. The call for lumber would be enormous, and since it would be impossible with our limited tonnage to bring a great quantity across the Atlantic, most of it would have to be obtained in Europe.

A cable to the War department early in July, 1917, recommended the immediate organization of a forestry service, consisting of sawmill units, to be composed of experienced lumbermen and 8,000 to 10,000 unskilled laborers to build roads and transport lumber. Special request was made for the appointment of Prof. Henry Graves, chief of the United States forestry service, who was then on the ground, as the man to take charge of this service. A number of other specially qualified men were requested as we entered the task of building up the supply service, but as this was the first intimation given to the War department that such a force would be needed naturally it was some time before it was actually at work.

Heavy Work for the Staff.

During the first two months in France the work imposed upon the few staff officers who had accompanied me was very heavy. After urgent and repeated requests I was fortunate in having at my disposal later in the summer a small group of men which included some of the most brilliant and highly educated officers in the army.

In addition to those already with me, the officers included in the following cable I regarded as especially fitted for the duties for which they were desired:

"Request Robert C. Davis, adjutant general, be sent these headquarters earliest date. Request Frank Moorman or J. O. Mauhorgne he sent these headquarters earliest date for duty as code expert. Request Samuel T. Hubbard, Jr., signal corps, now here, be called to active service and ordered to report to me. Request ten of following named officers be sent to report to me by second convoy for general staff duty: Frank R. McCoy, George Van Horn Moseley, Malin Craig, Alfred W. Bjornstadt, H. B. Fiske, Allen J. Grear, Paul B. Malone, Edgar T. Collins, Samuel R. Gleaves, Laurence Halstead, Nicholas W. Campanole, A. R. Moreno, Preston Brown, LeRoy R. Eltinge, W. B. Burtt, Frank T. Hines, Edward L. King, J. P. McAdams, W. C. Sweeney, J. B. Barnes, Kerr T. Riggs, W. H. Winters, Walt C. Johnson, Stuart Heintzelman, Upton Birnie, Kirby Walker, Berkeley Enochs. . . ."

Having this nucleus and selecting the best features of the French and British systems, a general staff organization was created, which efficiently met every demand made upon it throughout the war and which remains today as a model for present and future guidance.

Source of Guns a Problem.

The question of artillery procurement caused me much concern. The almost negligible amount on hand when we went to war consisted mostly of field guns of the three-inch type, then largely in the hands of troops in the Philippine Islands and elsewhere and unavailable for issue. Moreover, for calibers heavier than the three-inch type our ordnance department had adopted nothing which was really up to date.

The enormous proportion of both light and heavy guns used by both sides, the knowledge of our deficiency and the realization of the length of time that must elapse before we could manufacture and deliver them made it imperative that we seek other sources than our own to help equip our armies.

Following up an intimation it was learned definitely that, although not fully supplied themselves, the French could increase the output of their factories provided they could get steel from the United States. As it seemed probable that we should operate in proximity to their armies we adopted the French types for the usual calibers and sought their assistance in obtaining the guns needed, at least for the first two years. We secured an agreement that our troops as they came along would be provided with French guns and ammunition, including not only the 75s and 155s but 37 mm. guns and 58 mm. trench mortars as well.

It was most fortunate that we were able to get these guns from the French, as up to the end of the war no guns of American manufacture of the types used, except twenty-four 8-inch mortars and six 14-inch naval guns, were fired in battle.

Trench guns of the three-inch and six-inch mortar types, with ammunition, were purchased from the British, as they were considered superior to those used by the French.

Progress of Red Cross.

The Red Cross reported excellent progress at this time, especially in its first effort to assist the French as agreed upon with General Petain. Its organization by Maj. Grayson M. P. Murphy for war work with our own armies was now about completed. The establishment of canteens and huts at the ports and other important points had already begun and the numbers increased as fast as needed.

These centers of service later maintained dispensaries and provided beds and bathing facilities for men traveling under orders or on leave. When the necessity arose the Red Cross actively co-operated with the medical corps in the field, contributing large quantities of supplies and often additional nurses. The work of the society, directed from a central office in Paris, eventually embraced practically every endeavor touching the health of the armies.

This visit to British headquarters was most instructive, as every opportunity was given us to study intimately the details of their wartime organization. After similar studies of the French system we selected from each those features best suited to perfect a well-balanced staff for our own army.

The cordial relations and good understanding established between Sir Douglas Haig and myself and between the corresponding members of our staffs and with a number of the leading British officers with whom we were later to have official dealings proved very advantageous. In London, long after the armistice, Sir Douglas, in an after-dinner speech, referred to this visit, which happened during a period of depression, and said that our timely appearance at his headquarters had aroused in them a strong feeling of hopefulness for the future.

Meets Other Leaders.

My diary at this time notes the following:

Paris, Thursday, July 26, 1917.—Had breakfast yesterday at the Crillon with Lloyd George. He is alert and energetic and has a clear conception of allied problems. Took lunch with Mr. Balfour, who thinks we have reason to feel easier regarding submarines. Representatives of the various allies met for conference on general situation. In the evening M. Ribot, the prime minister, gave a state dinner to officials attending conference.

Today attended luncheon to allied representatives given by the President and Mme. Poincare at the Elysee palace.

In conference this afternoon with Petain, Cadorna, Robertson and Foch at latter's office. Discussed military plans, talked about tonnage possibilities and shortage of personnel. All pessimistic and reserved.

James Stillman, just returned from a tour of France, confirms reports of serious depression.

CHAPTER IX

I left Paris July 20, 1917, for a visit with Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, the British commander in chief, whose headquarters were in an old chateau half hidden away in a magnificent grove at Beldiques. I was accompanied by Colonels Harbord and Alvord and Captain Patton of my staff.

At dinner the subject of conversation naturally turned on the military situation of the allied armies, our own in particular. They were keen to know about our army, its organization and size, and the prospects of our putting troops in the field. As our active participation depended on many factors, such as training, equipment and shipping, my replies, of course, were indefinite and no doubt disappointing.

In turn we asked many questions, and it was especially interesting to hear the importance of artillery emphasized by its chief, Major General Birch, who spoke of the difficulties they had experienced in supplying themselves with guns that matched the enemy's.

Referring to their lack of artillery in the beginning, General Birch said there was reason to believe that they had finally attained a superiority over the Germans.

Real Teamwork Lacking.

Sir Douglas told me some of the details of Nivelle's unsuccessful attack in the spring, how it was known far and wide, beforehand and spoke particularly of the consequent serious disaffection among the French troops. Although he had placed himself under Nivelle's command for these operations, he had, he said, little confidence in the outcome from the start. He also commented on the failure of the French to co-operate fully on various occasions. His remarks entirely confirmed the belief that I had long since held that real teamwork between the two armies was almost totally absent.

Scarcely anything more strikingly impressed upon me our unpreparedness than what I saw during a few hours spent with General Trenchard at the British flying field, where we witnessed flyers doing every imaginable stunt, and saw planes of all classes, bombing, pursuit and observation, motors of different types and the thoroughly equipped repair shops.

The outstanding thing, however, which it was gratifying to note later on in our own aviation personnel, was the incomparable spirit and alertness of the young officers and the enlisted personnel. Every man seemed to be disappointed when a flight of planes departed for the front without him.

Situation Not Hopeful.

The meeting of the allied military leaders July 26, which was my first, brought out little that was hopeful. The political relations of the allies were touched upon in a general way, but only so far as they might affect the military situation. The most significant recent event, of course, had been the crisis in Russia.

With reference to American assistance, I gave in detail the situation as to our man power, immediate and prospect, especially in the light of the latest plans of the department, and laid particular emphasis on the necessity of additional shipping. A cablegram had just been received in response to mine of July 6 in which I had requested that at least a million men reach France by the following spring.

This message, indicating that the War department foresaw small chance of securing the necessary tonnage, was read to the conference in part as follows:

"By using all shipping which is now in sight for the purpose and which will be available after month of November, the plan proposes to transport to France by June 15, 1918, twenty-one divisions, comprising about 420,000 men, together with auxiliary troops and replacement troops, line of communication troops, and others, amounting to 214,970 men, making a total of 634,975 men."

More Tonnage Needed.

Although short of my recommendations, even this schedule could be carried out only by a very large increase of tonnage. The other members of the conference were of the opinion that if new adjustments could be made there might be shipping for nine or ten of our divisions before spring. So for the moment there did not seem to be the slightest chance of transporting a million men to France by the following June.

After canvassing the whole situation, the conference expressed the unanimous opinion that a defensive role should be adopted on all secondary fronts. The British and French representatives hoped that the surplus troops resulting from this course might be available to strengthen their armies in France and General Cadorna, of course, thought the Italian armies should have their share.

CHAPTER X

About this time (July, 1917) disturbing reports were submitted to me confidentially by one of our naval officers sent by Admiral Sims from London. Calculations based upon tonnage losses for May, June and July seemed to confirm the conclusions of a month previous that there would soon be insufficient allied shipping left to bring over an American army of required strength, and that the allies would find it difficult to keep up their food supply from overseas.

The data presented by the naval officer proved that if this rate of destruction could not be reduced the war would be lost before we could fire a shot.

This report was certainly most pessimistic, but it did not dispel my confidence in the success of the plan that had been tested and was about to be inaugurated of sending ships over in convoys under the protection of naval vessels. Additional destroyers requested by Admiral Sims had by this time largely increased such craft in European waters, and as a result the activities of submarines had been somewhat diminished for July as compared with April.

Need of Speed Evident.

Yet for the time being ship construction in British yards continued below losses and our shipping board at home had scarcely stopped wrangling over materials and types. All these facts caused everybody to realize the extreme urgency of speed, and that in turn gave some hope that the prospects might soon become brighter.

It was my belief, even in the face of the heavy losses, that with complete co-operation under expert management and distribution, the shipping would be ample for all purposes. This would require, of course, that it be placed under some central authority, but the governments, especially the British, that controlled most of it, while apparently desirous of helping, did not seem inclined to think they could make any concessions. They had entered into arrangements to assist each other with shipping for foodstuffs, but there was no such thing as pooling of allied tonnage for general purposes.

However, the discouraging reports on the situation did make such an impression on the military leaders that they suggested the possibility of pooling all available shipping and accordingly recommended a commission to consider the question, with especial reference to the transportation of the American army.

Spies Get Sailing Dates.

The success of submarine warfare had been largely dependent upon advance knowledge concerning movements of vessels. As there was no doubt that the sailing dates of much of our shipping reached Germany through spies, one way to reduce the danger would be to close such sources of information.

In the beginning the practice by our War department of transmitting secret information was extremely loose. The data regarding sailing was, of course, sent to my headquarters, but at the same time, or often before, it was also given to both French and British military and naval attaches and missions in Washington. They immediately transmitted the information by cable to their respective governments, with the result that it usually became almost common knowledge.

But there were other sources of information possessed by the enemy. One message intercepted by the French, sent from some wireless station in Spain to the German general staff, announced the arrival of several American vessels at Nantes and of 10,000 American soldiers at St. Nazaire, and also gave the routes taken by our transports.

Another, evidently intended for submarines, reported the departure of a convoy of transports from New York. These and similar facts were cabled at once to Admiral Sims and to Washington.

Leadership Big Problem.

Probably the most important factor in building up an aggressive army is the selection of leaders. Without sufficient leadership the finest of troops may suffer defeat by inferior forces skillfully led.

The following was my recommendation to Secretary of War Baker:

"My observation of British and French armies and most exacting arduous service conditions at the front fully convince me that only officers in full mental and physical vigor should be sent here. Contrary course means certain inefficiency in our service and possible later humiliation of officers concerned. General officers must undergo extreme effort in personal supervision of operations in trenches. Very few British or French division commanders over forty-five or brigadiers over forty.

"We have too much at stake to risk inefficiency through mental or physical defects. Strongly recommend conditions be fully considered in making high appointments and suggest that no officer of whatever rank be sent here for active service who is not strong and robust in every particular. Officers selected for appointment general officer of line should be those with experience in actively commanding troops. Officers not fulfilling above conditions can be usefully employed at home training troops."

Little Effort at Selection.

These recommendations were not altogether followed at home. In fact very little effort seems to have been made at selection, so that some officers without ambition or initiative, whose inefficiency should have been well known, and others whose age and physical condition were such as to disqualify them for strenuous service, were given important assignments.

Most of them were known to me and not a few who, under the rule of seniority, were commanders of regiments and departments, had lacked the energy even to train their commands or themselves in battle exercises, here favorable opportunity had been offered.

The policy of the War department from beginning to end seemed to be to appoint officers to the higher grade, according to seniority, with the intention of weeding out the inefficient later on. This appears to have been the department's idea of selection and the result was practically no selection at all. After the appointment of such officers it was a slow process to eliminate them.

In the Training Area.

The First division was now well settled in its training area in the region of Goudrecourt, south of Bar-le-Duc. The troops of the division had already established friendly relations with the French peasantry and had quickly adapted themselves to their new mode of life.

As the natural consequence of the financial condition of the frugal French provincial, he was wont to profit by the presence of the British and ourselves, and the open-handed payday habits of the Americans served to give some encouragement to this inclination. As a result some coolness grew up later between our men and their early friends.

In all history I do not believe there has ever been an army on foreign soil so considerate and observant of the rights and interests of the people. The peasant class made a strong appeal to every man in the army. Their simplicity, their love of the soil and the long hours of work in the fields by the old men and women and young boys and girls remained the constant admiration of our soldiers.

I am inclined to think, however, that the excellent behavior of the men in the first contingent, their rather unmilitary appearance in ill-fitting uniforms and their apparent lack of formal discipline created the impression in the minds of the French officials that they were too kind-hearted to become aggressive fighting troops.

At the conclusion of my inspection of various places Chaumont was selected as the best site for our general headquarters. It was on our line of communications to the front and centrally placed as to probable sectors of our operations. The fine stone regimental barracks became our headquarters and we were able to obtain ample billeting accommodations in houses for all except the enlisted men, who were provided with temporary barracks.

MT. LAKE PARK

Train Service Improved

It is still true that what at first seems an ill wind, turns out to be a blessing in disguise. When it was first announced that the morning and evening accommodation trains would be discontinued; much complaint was heard and it was thought that the Park would be only a whistle stop. But now the disappointment has disappeared, for all through trains, except No. 3, due here at 5:23 in the morning, and, of course, the crack National Limited, stop to discharge and receive passengers and mail. So, as it now stands, No. 30 east, due at 9:30 a. m., and No. 56, due at 2:38 and No. 21 west, due at 3:18 all stop, week days and Sundays. The train service at the Park is thus improved.

Quarterly Conference Friday

The U. B. quarterly conference of the Deer Park Circuit will be held at Paradise church Friday night with Rev. Fred. Slaughter, assistant superintendent, in charge. The conference will be followed by special revival meetings in charge of Rev. E. C. Cuppett, of Mountain Lake Park, who is now assisting Rev. DeWitt in a series of meetings at Freeport.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Ream are in Washington in attendance on the W. O. W. convention, to which Mr. Ream is a delegate from this section.

Mrs. Charles V. Harvey is at present in Richmond, Va., visiting her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Humbertson.

April 27 to May 2, inclusive, has been designated in Loch Loch Heights as "Clean-Up" days. Every householder is being urged to assist in this important and sanitary undertaking.

Mrs. Charles Alexander and Mrs. Holmes Moss, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Hunter Moss, of Parkersburg, West Va., were week-end guests of Mrs. M. A. Bussell and Miss Myrtie Finnell, at Allenhurst.

Mr. Tusca Morris and Mr. Victor Shaw, prominent attorneys of Fairmont, were business visitors at the Park on Monday. Mr. Shaw was accompanied by Mrs. Shaw.

Having had the pleasure of reading critically "Wild Flowers of the Alleganies" by Mr. Joseph E. Harned, of Oakland, your correspondent feels as though he has failed to discharge a duty did he not recommend it to every lover of wild flowers. It is complete, learned and very entertaining. The letter press work is superb, the product of the Sincell Publishing Co., of Oakland.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Comerford, Miss Rachel Virginia Comerford and Mrs. Allie Haymond motored to Fairmont last Saturday where they called on Mr. Curtis B. Fleming, who was with his son in the Park for several months, and who is now quite ill Cook's Hospital in that city.

There seems to be a dearth of mountain trout in the streams this season as well as good fishing weather, but the fishermen are having a modified sport by catching some very fine strings of suckers.

Mrs. Ida M. Lee and daughter, Miss Nell Lee, who spent the winter in Virginia, have opened their cottage here for the season.

Mrs. Etta Sanders and Miss Dessie Rodeheaver, who spent the winter in Uniontown, have returned to the Park.

An examination of the report of the Clerk of Loch Lynn shows that the total receipts of the village, May 17, 193Q, to March 3, 1931, were $2,-257.90, and that the expenditures for the same period amounted to $2,206.71. It is noted that the larger payments were for street improvements, sewer lines, light service and a contribution of $100 to the Oakland Fire Department.

Card of Thanks

We wish in this manner to thank onr many friends for their expressions of sympathy and for the floral tributes and the use of automobiles at the funeral of our husband and father.

Treasurer's Tax Sale

—OF—

Valuable Real Estate

IN GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND.

Under and by virtue of the power vested in the Treasurer of Garrett County, Maryland, by Section 52 of Chapted 566 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland for the year 1890, title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Treasurer," and the several amendments thereto, the undersigned Treasurer of said County will, on at the hour of ten o'clock A. M., at the front door of the Court House, in the Town of Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland, offer and sell at public auction to the highest bidder, all of the following described pieces and parcels of land, situate, lying and being in Garrett County aforesaid, to-wit:

SATURDAY, THE 23D DAY OF MAY, 1931,

No. 1. All that piece or parcel of land situate in Election District No. 3, Garrett County, Maryland, described in a deed from John T. Blocher and wife to Harvey G. Custer, dated June 24, 1904, and recorded in Liber No. 47, folio 183, except that part thereof that was conveyed by the said Harvey G. Custer and wife to Henry Yommer by deed dated June 24, 1904, and recorded in Liber No. 47, folio 279, Garrett County Records. The part to be sold contains 123 acres, more or less, and will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrear thereon for the years 1928, 1929 and 1930, as assessed on the Assessment Books of Garrett County in the name of Harvey G. Custer.

No. 2. About 15 acres of land, more or less, situate, lying and being in Election District No. 2, Garrett County, Maryland, and described in a deed from Oliver C. Friend and wife to William Harvey Fike, dated December 2, 1919, and recorded in Liber No. 77, folio 99, Garrett County Records, save and except the coal underlying 5 acres thereof, which was sold to Speelman, Black and Frazee and conveyed to them by deed dated August 17, 1925, and recorded in Liber No. 91, folio 45, Garrett County Records. Said land will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrear thereon for the years 1928, 1929 and 1930, as assessed on the Assessment Books of Garrett County in the name of William Harvey Fike.

No. 3. One hundred and one acres, more or less, of a tract of land called "Dunwoody," situate in Election District No. 1, Garrett County, Maryland, the same being the residue of the land conveyed by C. M. Miller and wife to H. W. Friend by deed dated November 18, 1913, and recorded in Liber No. 66, folio 202, after deducting three acres sold by H. W. Friend to B. E. The appointments for the office of Supervisors of Elections have not yet been announced. A vacancy yet to be filled is that of a member of the Board of Education, caused by the death of the late John W. McCullough. The probabilities are that Norval A. Speelman, of Friendsville, will be appointed as a member of the School Board.

Legion Auxiliary Card Party Is Well Attended

Twenty-three tables of bridge and five hundred were in play at the card party held Monday evening in Fraley's hall under the auspices of the American Legion auxiliary. The electric stove which was awarded at the conclusion of the party was won by Robert Hoffman.

Those winning high honors in bridge included Miss Helen Townshend, Mrs. E. W. Helbig, Miss Stella Hart, Mrs. George D. Sprague, Bernard I. Gonder, and E. W. Helbig. High honors in five hundred were won by Mrs. Harry Helbig, C. F. White, Mrs. Dan Smouse, Mrs. T. C. Hinebaugh, A. S. Ours, and S. D. Whipkey.

The Legion Auxiliary wishes to thank all those who helped in any way in making the party a success. The proceeds will be turned over to the American Legion drum corps, to be used in purchasing uniforms.

Remains of a Large Deer Found

The horns, heavy bones and other remains of a large buck deer were found at a point along Salt Block Creek, west of Sang Run, last Friday by C. M. Railey, of McHenry, who was engaged in fishing in the stream. The antlers of the animal were twenty pointed and had a spread of 22 inches, beautifully and perfectly formed. The deer, as evidenced by its broken lower jaw, had been shot, evidently during the hunting season of last December, which caused its death. The antlers have been scnt to a taxidermist for mounting by Mr. Ralley.

Mrs. Lohm Honored on Birthday

A pleasant evening was enjoyed by the friends of Mrs. Ella Lohm at her home in Sebring, Florida, in honor of her birthday.

Mrs. Lohm was the recipient of many gifts. Games and contests provided a fund of entertainment for all present, and many stories related by the guests. Mrs. Lohm recited a number of humerous pocms. Later in the evening refreshments were served. Mrs. Lohm and son, George L. Lohm, will be In Oakland by May 30, to spend the summer at their home here.

The Garrett Young People's conference, under the auspices of the county council of religious education, will be held in the M. E. church, Kitzmiller, on Friday afternoon and evening, May 8. There will be a banquet in the High school at 6:00 between the afternoon and evening sessions.

All superintendents of Sunday schools with as many delegates from each school as can possibly go, are expected. A registration fee of 50 cents will be charged and 35 cents for the banquet. Dr. Robert Davids, Prof. O. P. Jones will be the afternoon speakers, and Rev. W. B. Brock and Robert Davids the evening speakers. The afternoon session will start at 1:30.

BOYS' WEEK CLOSES WITH BIG PARADE AND PROGRAM

Rev. Bernard Gibbs, Terra Alta, Delivers Main Address

With a parade along the streets of Oakland followed by a program in the Maryland theatre, the Boys' Week activities, sponsored by the Oakland Rotary club, was brought to a close.

The parade formed at the Grammar school and included the Crellin Band, the Oakland troop of Boy Scouts, the Legion Drum and Bugle corps, a number of boys, the Oakland Rotary club, and the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland.

Rev. Bernard Gibbs, Terra Alta, W. Va., delivered the address in the Maryland theatre on the story of Daniel, and stressed the qualities of the Biblical character as still having a place in modern life. Selections were rendered by the Crellin Band and the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band.

Mayor and Council Meet

Problems usually confronting the older citizens of the town confronted a new mayor and town council of High school boys last Thursday night when they met in regular session at the council chamber.

The council was composed as follows: Harley Dawson, mayor; Richard Glotfelty, Joseph Sollars, Carroll Casteel, Cheston Browning, Harland Ridder and Elvin Iman, councilmen; William Tillett, clerk; Robert Lohr, police; David Walter, magistrate; Edward Hinebaugh, attorney; Bill Glotfelty, water superintendent; Bud Hamill, treasurer; Maurice Butler, tax collector.

Complaints on broken sewers, high water bills, over assessments, etc., were brought before the council by H. C. Sincell, Grover Stemple and Lawrence Fraley; H. P. Stuck requested a permit to build a filling station on lot in residental section of town, which was tabled until next meeting; R. R. Gilbert wanted permission to put larger tap in residence on Oak street, but council decided State had jurisdiction over Third street and Oak street, and therefore could not give permission.

DIED.

EACH ORGANIZATION WILL BE ASKED TO PLANT TREE

Official Ceremonies Marking Opening of Washington Spring Park Will Occur May 12

PROGRAM IS ARRANGED

Each organization of the town of Oakland is being asked to plant a tree which will be presented them by the Oakland Civic club at the official opening of the new Washington Spring Park, formerly the Oakland hotel grounds, on Tuesday, May 12.

Mrs. John L. Alcock, past president of the Federation of Women's clubs, Towson, a former resident of Mt. Lake Park, will plant the first tree and Mr. H. R. Laughlin, Division superintendent of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, will lift the soil.

A program has been arranged for Tuesday afternoon, May 12, at 3:30 o'clock to which every one is urged to come.

Preliminary work has already been started on the new park and organizations are planning to spend evenings in raking, cleaning, planting and beautifying the banks of the Little Youghiogheny river. Members of the Oakland Scout troop spent Monday evening in raking and cleaning up dead brush and trash along the banks of the river, and a squad of B. and O. workmen have blasted a number of stumps and cleaned up the small tract on the east bank of the Little Yough.

The restoration of Washington spring has been taken over by Oakland Lodge No. 192, A., F. and A. M., and a memorial is planned for that part of the park, which will be dedicated during the George Washington Bi-centennial celebration next year.

Work will begin shortly on the baseball diamond, excavation for a pond for ice skating in winter, tennis courts, and flower gardens.

Following the conclusion of the program on the afternoon of Tuesday, May 12, a tea will be held at the William-James hotel.

NEW YORK TIMES WRITER ON ALLEGANY TABLELAND

Article Said To Be Best Exposition of Project Yet Made

The attention being given by people regarding the Allegany Tableland Association in its regional project which includes parts of three states, is emphasized in a recent article in the New York Times. The writer of the article made an intensive study of the plans as set forth in a prospectus to the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, and interviewed several individuals with the result that his article in the New York Times is the best exposition of the project that has yet been published, according to Bushrod Grimes, secretary of the Tableland Association.

With the wide publicity being given the idea it now becomes a challenge to the Allegany Tableland to forge ahead in its efforts, Mr. Grimes said. The winter months having been given to the promotional work in Pittsburgh the work now returns to the tableland.

A meeting of the Association is to be called for the latter part of May, probably at Mountain Lake Park on May 23, it was stated, when various matters will be discussed. Two major topics will be presented, both looking forward to 1932, and including events that will receive the backing of national organizations. One of the conventions which the Tableland Association has been offered is being held this year in Los Angeles, Cal., and the other, more in the way of a national celebration, will attract thousands of people. Tentative plans have been formulated for one or two events of the coming summer that await the initiative and cooperation of the people living in the Tableland region.

Mrs. Mason Glotfelty entertained Saturday evening at her home on Third street in honor of Mr. Glotfelty's birthday anniversary. Five hundred was the diversion. Those present included Mr. and Mrs. Ray Teets, Misses Mildred Casteel, Virginia Casteel, Rose Rice, Esperance Ashby and Sara Hayes; Messrs. Calvin Warner, W. K. Whitcraft, William McRobie and George Sanders. High honors for men were won by Mr. Warner with Mr. Sanders, consolation, and for the women, Miss Rice, high, with Mrs. Teets, consolation.

JOINT CELEBRATION IS PLANNED FOR JULY 3 AND 4

Legionaires and Volunteer Firemen Arranging for Second Annual Event in Oakland

TO AWARD CASH PRIZES

Decision to award a number of cash prizes to scout troops, drum corps and fire departments, and to hold the mammoth parade of the joint Legion and fire department celebration at 6 o'clock on Saturday, July 4, were made at a meeting of the joint committees on Tuesday evening.

The joint celebration is being planned by Proctor Kildow Post, American Legion, and the Oakland Volunteer Fire department, and will be held in Oakland on Friday and Saturday, July 3 and 4.

Drum corps, fire departments, and scout troops from towns and villages for miles around Oakland are being invited to attend the festivities during these two days, and attempts are to be made to make this a bigger fourth of July celebration than was held here last year.

Amusements will consist of carnival attractions, merry-go-round, Ferris wheel, dances, mammoth parade and a number of free acts. Attempts are also being made to bring an air circus here, according to Neil Fraley, a members of the committee. There will be a fireworks display on the evening of July 4.

George R. Henderson, State commander of the American Legion, in a telephone message yesterday morning stated he would be in attendance on July 4, and Hon. Millard E. Tydings, U. S. Senator from Maryland, an exservice man, has been invited to be present.

At least twelve drum and bugle corps are expected and twelve or fifteen fire companies. It is reasonably certain that Frostburg, Salisbury, Grafton, Kingwood, and Cumberland will send their drum corps, according to Mr. Neil Fraley, who has received favorable replies from legion organizations in those cities.

Cash prizes are being awarded to drum corps and fire departments and $10 in gold will be given to the scout troop making the best appearance. A number of bands will be in Oakland to take part in the parade on the evening of July 4.

Other plans for this celebration are being made by the joint committees at their weekly meetings. The committees are as follows: Firemen: Lawrence Fraley, Ernest Townshend, Arthur Hinebaugh, James Hart, Ted Mason, and Grover Stemple. Legion: Neil Fraley, Alex Hesen, Ernest Liller, Edward Kahl, Harold Dawson, and Townshend Naylor.

Extension Workers To Be Present at Meeting on May 11

Dr. T. B. Symons, director of Extension Work, University of Maryland, and a number of citizens of the county interested in Extension Work, will meet with the County Commissioners on Monday, May 11, to discuss the advisability of continuing the work of the home demonstration agent in Garrett county.

This will be in connection with a meeting called by the County Commissioners to determine whether or not Garrett county would have a full-time health officer and whether or not they would continue the services of a public health nurse.

At a recent meeting of the County Commissioners no provision was made in the annual levy for the payment of the salary of the nurse and home demonstration agent.

Delegations from all parts of the county will discuss these questions with the Commissioners on May 11 at one o'clock.

Recreation Is Broken Into

The Recreation billiard parlor was broken into on Monday night and a "punch board" with two wrist watches, two pocket watches, a camera and other prizes attached, was stolen.

The robbery was not discovered until the next morning. The thief or thieves gained entrance by smashing the window in the front door. Approximately $20 was in the cash registers, but this was not disturbed.

In the District of Columbia, estimates for public school system expenditures for 1931, total the sum of $14,681,000, over $800,000 of this sum being for school lands.

Waingold Appeals Decision Of Justice of Peace

Louis Waingold was arrested Monday afternoon by State patrolman Arthur W. Plummer, charged with a violation of the motor vehicle laws. The charge was preferred by W. C. Sowers who is said to have purchased a car from Waingold without having the title turned over to him.

The charge is as follows: "Owner of titled motor vehicle failing to endorse and assign title to purchaser or transfer and deliver same at time of delivery of motor vehicle."

Justice W. A. Gonder declared Waingold guilty and fined him $200 and costs. Waingold appealed the decision.

VO-AG PUBLIC SPEAKING CONTEST HELD ON FRIDAY

Wayne Fitzwater, of Oakland, Is Given First Plase By Judges

Wayne Fitzwater, of Oakland High school, won the vocational public speaking contest which was held at Accident High school Friday evening. He spoke on "What the F. F. A. department may mean to American Agriculture."

Clarence Murphy, Grantsville, and Elbert Buckel, Accident, both spoke on "Cooperative Marketing a solution to the Farm Problem." Elbert Buckel was given second place.

Messrs. H. A. Loraditch and Walter W. Dawson, Oakland; Henry M. Speicher, Accident; Miss Kate Bannatyne, Grantsville; and Rev. Parham, of Friendsville, were judges in the contest.

Because of the large number of departments in the county it was decided to send two instead of onc delegate to College Park to participate in the vocational public speaking contest on Saturday, May 9. Wayne Fitzwater and Elbert Buckel will represent the county.

Other delegates will be chosen to participate in the State poultry judging contest on the same day. Musical enertainment for the contest last Friday was furnished by Kight Brothers of Oakland, and Carl Fratz and Kenneth Keller, of Accident.

All four departments of vocational agriculture in the county will be represented at the poultry judging contest on Saturday. Oakland will be represented by Hagan Frazee, James Sebold, and Lenwood Bittinger, alternate.

Changes Are Made in Keyser Ridge-Oakland Schedule

Important changes in the Oakland-Keyser Ridge bus schedule were announced by Richard West, of Dotson and West, bus operators. The new schedule went into effect on May 5 and calls for busses to leave Oakland for the Ridge at 6:45 a. m. and 1:25 p. m., where connections are made with Uniontown, Pittsburgh, Baltimore and Washington busses.

The bus line is now known as the Mountaineer Bus Line. For further information regarding the schedule Mr. West can be reached by calling 97-J.

CITY COUNCIL REDUCES TAX RATE TO 90 CENTS

Is First Reduction in Number of Years—Will Save Citizens Approximately $1,600

TO RESURFACE STREETS

A reduction of ten cents in the city tax rate, or from $1.00 to 90 cents on each $100 valuation of property, was declared at the regular monthly meeting of the Mayor and Town Council of Oakland, held Monday night, was the information imparted to The Republican by Mayor Grover Stemple Tuesday morning.

This is the first reduction in the tax rate for Oakland residents in a number of years, it was stated, and will save the taxpayers of the town approxlmately $1,600 during the year. It was felt by members of Council and Mayor Stemple that by careful and economical management on the part of the officials that the amount sought to be collected in taxes for the year will be sufficient to bear the operating expenses of the city. No positions will be elimlnated and there will be no cuts in salaries of the officers. A reduction of wages paid for street labor was discussed by members of Council, but it was felt that hardship would result if this proposltion were carried into effect.

To Oil Streets of Town

A contract was signed for the oiling and screening of a number of the streets in town, the work to be completed during the present month of May. The streets that will be improved by this process include Pennington, from Center to Wilson; Center street for its entire length; two blocks on Alder street. Shoulders will be placed on Crook street between Second and Third streets, thus making it a full-width street. It is also likely that a block on Water street and another square on Pennington street will be hard surfaced, Mayor Stemple said.

To Proclaim Clean-Up Week

It was the sense of Council that a Clean-Up Week be observed as in years gone by and to this end Mayor Stemple will issue a proclamation next week setting aside the third week in May as the time.

It is the desire of Council that the town be clean for May 30, and trucks for hauling away the trash and accumulated dirt of the winter will be furnished by the governing body of the municipality.

Garrett County Low in Number of Illiterates

Garrett county stands third from the lowest in the number of illiterates among the counties of the State according to statistics for 1930 recently published. Howard county had the lowest number with 447. Garrett county had 604, which is approximately 3 percent of the population.

Charles county, with a population of 16,166, had 1,683 illiterates, or 10 percent of the population. One and one-half percent of Allegany county's population was illiterate. St. Mary's county had nine percent illiterates, Worcester 8 percent, and Anne Arundel over 4 percent.

The total number of persons 10 years of age and over unable to read and write was 49,910, but only 13,202 were native white illiterates. Foreign-born white illiterates totaled 11,539, while negro illiterates numbered 25,073.

The percentage of native white illiterates was reduced from 1.8 percent in 1920 to 1.3 in 1930.

MARRIED

Sprague-Iden—Miss Ethel Louise Iden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Iden, Bluemont, Va., and Mrs. Howard D. Sprague, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. D. Sprague, Oakland, were married at the home of the bride's parents on Saturday, April 25. The ceremony was performed by Rev. I. G. Michael, the ring ceremony being used. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white satin and carried white roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Earl Virts, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Following the wedding a reception was held, after which Mr. and Mrs. Sprague left for a trip to New York City and Niagara Falls. Upon their return they will reside in Purcellville, Va., where the groom is employed in dairy work.

Lesson for May 10

THE PARABLE OF THE POUNDS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:11-26.

GOLDEN TEXT—Moreover it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaches Us to Do Our Best.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Teaches Us to Do Our Best.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Partners With Jesus.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Stewardship of Money.

The purpose of this parable was to correct the misapprehension of the disciples as to the immediate establishment of the kingdom. They were on the way to Jerusalem, and the disciples thought that immediately upon their arrival there Jesus would begin the exercise of his kingdom rule. Christ taught the disciples the reality of his coming and the setting up of a real kingdom, but indicated that there would be a long delay after his ascension before he would return.

I. The Absent Nobleman (v. 12).

Going away to receive a kingdom was a common occurrence among the Jews. Members of the Herodian family had gone to Rome and secured their appointment to rule over Palestine. This pictures Jesus going back to God to receive his kingdom. Jesus ascended on high to receive from God the Father a kingdom. He will return when the fullness of the Gentiles be come in. Though the time of his return be unknown, and even delayed, let no one mistake the certainty of his coming.

II. The Distribution of the Pounds (v. 13).

These pounds represent Christ's gifts to his servants. When Christ ascended he gave gifts to men (Ephesians 4:7-12). To each servant was given the same amount, showing that to all a certain gift had been given and therefore all will be held responsible for its use. The distribution was made by the sovereign. The servants did not choose as to whether they would have a gift at all, or even its amount. It was also a purposeful distribution. They were to put their gifts to use during his absence. What the nobleman demanded was faithfulness.

III. The Rebellious Citizens (v. 14).

They hated him and sent messengers after him, notifying him of their refusal to be subject to him. This pictures the unbelief of the Jews after Christ's ascension, and their repudiation of his rule. It also pictures the unbelieving world in its hatred and rejection of Christ.

IV. The Accounting (vv. 15-27).

1. Its certainty (v. 15).

Christ will surely bring every one to account for the use made of his gifts. Men may go on in proud unbelief and rebellion, but God never forgets. He has appointed a day in which he will judge the world (Acts 17:31).

2. The time (v. 15)

It will take place when Jesus comes back to the earth. His return will take place when he has received his kingdom. He will receive his kingdom when he asks the Father (Ps. 2:8). His delay in asking the Father for his kingdom is because of his long suffering mercy, extending grace to as many as will receive him as Savior.

3. Rewards given for faithfulness (vv. 16-19).

(1) The first report (vv. 16, 17).

He did not say, "I have made ten pounds," but "Thy pound hath gained ten pounds." He recognized the Lord's ownership. To this the Lord replied by commendation. He praised him and promoted him, making him ruler over ten cities.

(2) The second report (vv. 18, 19).

In this case the pound had gained five pounds. He did not get the Lord's commendation for he had not done so well, but was appointed to a place of rulership over five cities. The reward in each case was proportioned to faithfulness during the Lord's absence.

4. Judgment upon the unfaithful (vv. 20-27).

(1) His report (vv. 20, 21).

This report was entirely bad. He had not put the pound to use but laid it away, throwing the blame upon the Lord. He asserted that the character of the Lord was such as to produce fear.

(2) Condemnation (vv. 22, 23).

The wicked servant is judged out of his own mouth. His excuse increased his guilt. He is called wicked. To fail to use our opportunities to serve Christ is the basest wickedness.

(3) Stripped of the pound (vv. 24-26).

To fail to use one's gifts means to lose them. One of the losses of the next world will be the deprivation of what we now have.

Must Battle With Evil

PUBLIC LOCAL LAW.

Incorporating Mountain Lake Park, Maryland

CHAPTER 507

AN ACT to incorporate the town of Mountain Lake Park, in Garrett County, Maryland, and to repeal Chapter 430 of the Acts of 1888, entitled "An Act to incorporate The Community of Mountain Lake Park," and to repeal Chapters 315 of 1896, 688 of 1914, 176 of 1916 and 160 of 1927 amending said Act, and providing for a referendum thereon.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Chapter 430 of the Acts of 1888, entitled "An Act to incorporate the Community of Mountain Lake Park," and Chapters 315 of 1896, 688 of 1914, 176 of 1916 and 160 of 1927, amending said Act, be and they are hereby repealed.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the inhabitants of the town of Mountain Lake Park, Garrett County, Maryland, are hereby incorporated by the name of Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park with all the powers and privileges of a body politic and corporate, and by that name may have perpetual succession, may sue and be sued, may have and use a common seal, and may hold real, personal and mixed property and dispose of the same when the best interest of the town may demand.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the corporate limits of the said town of Mountain Lake Park are hereby described to be as follows:

Beginning at East side of railroad bridge West of Mountain Lake Park railroad station and running with the South limits of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, Northeast 2300 feet to a line of the Mountain Lake Park Association grounds, thence with said line Northeast 3200 feet to the end thereof, and with the lines of the Association, Northwest 1300 feet, thence Northeast 1650 feet, thence Northwest 3450 feet, thence Southwest 3350 feet to the Southwest corner of Lot No. 3049 of the Mountain Lake Park Plat. Thence Southeast 1200 feet, thence Southwest 1650 feet to the Southwest corner of Lot No. 3064, thence Northwest 1300 feet, thence Southwest 4000 feet to South limits of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, thence with the South limits of said railroad Southeast to the place of beginning.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the first election for Mayor and Council shall be held before W. L. Camden, E. E. Friend, J. S. Elliott, W. B. Brock and Britton Martin, who are hereby appointed judges for that purpose and for the time hereinafter named; provided, that in case any of said judges named herein, shall be unable to act on account of sickness, death, refusal to act or otherwise, then the remaining judge or judges shall fill the vacancy or vacancies by appointing a suitable perso or persons residing in said town who are qualified voters therein in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Sec. 5. And be it further enacted, That said corporation shall be governed by a Mayor and five Councilmen. There shall be an election on the second Tuesday in August each year between the hours of one o'clock P. M. and seven o'eloek P. M. and at said election on the second Tuesday of August, 1931, there shall be elected a Mayor to serve for two years, three councilmen to serve for two years and two councilmen to serve for one year and until their successors are elected and qualified; at the expiration of the term of the Mayor and the members of the Council, their successors shall be elected to serve for a term of two years and until the qualification of their successors. The Mayor and Councilmen shall be qualified voters and residents of said town.

Sec. 6. And be it further enacted, That all elections shall be by ballot, and all persons who are qualified to vote for members of the General Assembly of Maryland and who have resided in said town for six months next preceding any election and all persons, citizens of the United States and bona fide owners of real estate in said town for twelve months preceding any election, and the wives and or husbands and children of such owners who are 21 years of age or over, shall be entitled to vote at any town election. The Mayor and Council shall appoint at least three judges to hold all town elections held after the year 1931 and shall give at least ten days notice by hand bills posted in conspicuous places in said town naming the time and place when said election shall be held and the polls opened and closed. The Mayor and Council shall have power to pass such ordinances for conducting said town elections as may be deemed necessary and proper not in conflict with the provisions of this Act.

Sec. 7. And be it further enacted, That if at any election held under this Act two or more persons shall receive the same number of votes for Mayor or Councilmen of said town, the judges of said election shall, after having given five days' notice of the time and place, proceed to hold another election to fill said office or offices, and the person or persons receiving the highest number of votes at said election shall, with those previously ehosen, if any, constitute the Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park.

Sec. 8. And be it further enacted, That if any vacancy shall occur by death, resignation, removal or failure to act of the Mayor or one or more of the Councilmen elected as aforesaid, the remaining Councilmen, or a majority of them, shall elect a proper person to fill said vacancy.

Sec. 9. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and each Councilman, before he proceeds to act as such, shall make oath before some justice of the peace for Garrett County that he will diligently and faithfully, according to the best of his skill and judgment, perform the duties of his office without favor, partiality or prejudice, and a certificate of such qualification shall be returned by the said justice of the peace to the Mayor and Council, to be filed and recorded among their proceedings.

See. 10. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor shall preside at all meetings of the Council, unless prevented by sickness or reasonable cause, in which event the said Council may select a president pro tempore; he shall sign all ordinances of said town and shall countersign all orders and drafts drawn by the Clerk on the Treasurer of said town.

Sec. 11. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and Council shall appoint a clerk, who shall, before entering on his duties, make oath before the said Mayor or a justice of the peace, that he will well and faithfully perform the duties of his office as prescribed by this Act, or which may be prescribed by ordinance, to the best of his skill and judgment; he shall sign all drafts or orders for money appropriated or ordered by the Mayor and Council to be paid by the treasurer, and keep a record of the proceedings of said Mayor and Council in a book to be provided by them for that purpose, which shall at all times be open to the inspection of any person interested. The said Mayor and Council shall have power to fix his term of office and the amount of his compensation.

See. 12. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and Council shall have power to appoint a bailiff who, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall make oath before a justice of the peace for Garrett County that he will faithfully and impartially perform the duties imposed upon him by this Act and the ordinances of said town, and shall execute to the State of Maryland a bond with two good and sufficient securities to be approved by said Mayor and Council in such penalty as they may prescribe, conditioned that he shall well and faithfully perform the duties of said office in all things appertaining thereto according to law and the ordinances of said Mayor and Council, and shall well and truly collect and pay over to the treasurer of said corporation all taxes levied by the Mayor and Council and all other sums of money that may be received by him for the use of said corporation.

Sec. 13. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and Council shall have power to appoint a treasurer who shall be a resident of said town qualified to vote for Mayor and Councilmen, and before entering upon the duties of his office shall give bond to the State of Maryland with two good and sufficient securities to be approved by the said Mayor and Council in such penalty as the Mayor and Council shall prescribe, conditioned that he shall well and faithfully account for all money paid over to him by the bailiff of said corporation, or that may be received by him from any other person or persons for the use of said corporation, and shall well and truly pay over to his successor in office or to the order of said Mayor and Council, and perform all other duties of his office according to law and the ordinances of said Mayor and Council; he shall keep full and correct account of all moneys received by him, with the sources from which received and the dates of such receipts, and of the disbursements made by him with the time when the persons to whom and what account the same were made.

Sec. 14. And be it further enacted, That said Mayor and Council may from time to time cause an assessment to be made of all the property liable to the State and County taxes within the corporate limits, and to levy a tax thereon not exceeding sixty cents on the one hundred dollars in any one year and that said property shall be assessed at its actual cash value. And the said Mayor and Council may appoint an assessor and collector of taxes and fix his salary or compensation, and provide for a method of collecting the taxes by ordinance, and also the method of making assessments; and any person aggrieved by any assessment made under this provision shall have the right of an appeal to the said Mayor and Council of said town of Mountain Lake Park.

Sec. 15. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the said Mayor of the said town to see that the ordinances of the town are duly and faithfully executed, and he shall appoint, subject to the confirmation of the Council, all such persons as agents and servants of said corporation as may be necessary to carry out the objects and purposes of the corporation and enforce the ordinances to be passed thereby.

Sec. 16. And be it further enacted, That the said Council shall have power to pass such ordinances not contrary to the Constitution and laws of this State as it may deem necessary for the good government of the town, for the protection and preservation of the town's property, rights and privileges; for the preservation of peace and good order and securing persons and property from violence, danger and destruction; for the protection of health, comfort and convenience of the citizens of Mountain Lake Park and visitors thereto, or sojourners therein; for providing proper and suitable lights on the streets; for establishing maintaining and regulating an adequate police force; to regulate the management and location of livery stables, foundries, and all other establishments of which the business or trade may become obnoxious or injurious to public comfort and health; to prohibit the erection of such buildings, or the continuation of such noxious occupation therein, whenever the public health requires it; to prevent or regulate the use of fire-arms, fireworks, bonfires or other things or practices tending to endanger persons or property; to regulate or prohibit the running at large of cattle, horses, swine, fowls, sheep, goats, dogs, or other animals; to authorize the impounding, keeping, sale and redemption of such animals when found in violation of such ordinances, in such cases provided; to prevent the deposit of any unwholesome substance either on public or private property; to compel its removal to designated points, and to require slops, garbage, ashes and other waste or unwholesome material to be removed to designated points, or to require the occupants or residents on premises to place them conveniently for removal; to compel the occupants of any premises, buildings or outhouses, situated in said city, when the same have been filthy or unwholesome, to abate or clean the same; to authorize the same to be done by the proper officers and to assess the expense thereon against such property; to regulate or prevent the storage of gunpowder, tar, pitch, resin, coal oil, benzine, turpentine, hemp, cotton, nitro-glycerine, dynamite, giant powder, petroleum, gasoline or gas, or any product thereof, or any other explosive or combustible material or materials which may seem to be dangerous; to authorize the removal or confinement of such persons having infectious or pestilential diseases; to pass all ordinances and orders and to expend such sums of money as may be necessary within the limitations therein provided for the protection, maintenance and preservation of the water supply of the city and the prevention of the pollution thereof; to regulate the selling, weighing or measuring of hay, wood, coal, coke and all other articles sold by weight and measure, and to provide for their inspection and selling; to make all regulations which may be deemed expedient for the promotion of health or suppression of disease; to regulate the construction of chimneys, smoke stacks, hearths, ovens, and the erection of stoves and pipes, boilers and apparatus used in buildings and other places, and cause the same to be removed or made secure when considered dangerous; to suppress or restrain bawdy houses of ill fame and to prohibit the youth of said city from being on the streets, lanes or alleys at unseasonable hours of the night; to punish and suppress tramps and vagrants by imposing fines or both fines and imprisonment at hard labor, and to abate by appropriate ordinances all nuisances in said town which are so defined at common law, whether the same are herein specified or not; to regulate the use of sidewalks and all structures in, under or over the same; to regulate and prevent the throwing or depositing of sweepings, dust, ashes, offal, dirt, garbage, paper, hand bills, dirty liquors or any other materials into any street, alley or public place; to regulate and prevent the use of streets, sidewalks and public places for signs, sign posts, awning, awning posts, poles, horse troughs, steps, railroad entrances, racks, posting hand bills and advertisements and display of goods, wares and merchandise; to cause the streets, lanes and alleys, to be side walked, paved, graded, repaired, repaved, regraded, drained, or sewered, or to close streets or parts of streets, lanes or alleys; to regulate and license the use of coaches, hacks, drays, and all other vehicles for the transportation of passengers, freight or other articles to or from points within said city for hire or pay; to regulate, license, tax, restrain or prohibit theatrical and other exhibitions, shows or entertainments, for which money is demanded or received, provided that lectures on scientific, historic, benevolent, artistic, religious or literary subjects and appartus for the elucidation of the same and specimens of fine art shall not be deemed to be within these provisions; to regulate the sales of all kinds of property at auctions in the streets, stores, shops or elsewhere in the city; and to license auctioneers and all vendors of property on the streets or squares, or other public places in the said town, to license, tax, regulate, suppress or prohibit hawkers and itinerant dealers, peddlers and pawn brokers, and to revoke such license at pleasure; to license, tax, regulate and prohibit the keeping or harboring of dogs; to license, tax and regulate branch stores and all other concerns established in said town for temporary business only.

Sec. 17. And be it further enacted, That the said Mayor and Council shall have the power to compel the property owners building along any of said streets, lanes or alleys, so accepted by said corporation and recorded among its proceedings to construct and keep in repair sidewalks and footways of their property binding on said streets and roads not exceeding two hundred feet and may pass all such ordinances as may be necessary to compel the construction and repair of said sidewalks. And they shall have power to enforce the construction and repair of sidewalks by fines imposed upon the property owners for a failure to construct and repair after fifteen days' notice previously given, which said fines shall be collectible as other fines imposed for the violation of the ordinances of the town as hereinafter set forth and stated.

Sec. 18. And be it further enacted, That said Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park may establish and maintain a town lockup and may confine therein all persons convicted of violation of their ordinances, and in default of the payment of fines imposed for such violations or may, at their option, confine such persons in the county jail at the expense of said town or they may require such persons in default of payment of fine to work out such fines and costs upon the streets or other improvements of said town, such person to be allowed as a credit on such fines or costs the same wages as are paid other employes of said town for the same character of work.

Sec. 19. And be it further enacted, That all fines, penalties and forfeitures imposed for violating any ordinances passed by said Mayor and Council shall be recoverable by the Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park before any justice of the peace of the State of Maryland, residing in Election District No. 7, in Garrett County, as may be elected police justice for said town by said Mayor and Council and no other, as small debts and shall be paid to the Mayor and Council for the use of said town. And anyone feeling aggrieved by any judgment rendered by said police justice shall have the right of appeal to the Circuit Court for Garrett County at the next term of said court, but no judgment, fine or penalty imposed shall be stayed unless the party taking the appeal shall file a bond to be approved by the said justice in double the amount of the fine and costs to the Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park, conditioned upon the successful prosecution of said appeal.

Sec. 20. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park shall have full power to provide for the introduction of water, electric light or gas into said town, and to effectuate such object may contract with or grant unto any other body, public or private, or to any individual or partnership the right or franchise within the limits of said town for the purpose of operating a passenger railway, water works or electric light plant, the granting of such franchises to be regulated by the ordinances of the said Mayor ond Council; and also may grant the right to lay conduits or water mains through the streets, alleys or highways of said town; and authority is hereby given said Mayor and Council to condemn private property, if the same should become necessary for the operation of the aforesaid franchise; said condemnation proceedings to be in accordance with the general laws of the State of Maryland as are in such cases applicable thereto; and also to construct, purchase and operate an electric light plant or water works for the benefit of the town whenever, in their judgment, the interest of said town demands the same; and to contract or provide for the furnishing or supplying of water, electric light or gas in sufficient quantities for the needs of the town and the inhabitants thereof by any other body corporate, public or private, or by any individual or individuals; and in order to carry out and effectuate such object it shall have full power to erect, maintain and equip electric light poles and to lay water mains and conduits, erect fire plugs and generally do all things that may be necessary to provide water for said town in such quantity and at such places as may be necessary to protect it at all times against fire; and they shall have power to pass all such ordinances as may be necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this section.

Sec. 21. And be it further enacted, That in event the Mayor and Council shall provide for the purchasing or supplying of water, electric light or gas to said town by some other body corporate, public or private, or any individual or partnership, and shall deem it expedient or necessary that said town erect, maintain and lay its own electric light poles and equipments, water mains, conduits and fire plugs, the said Mayor and Council, to defray the necessary cost thereof may issue bonds or certificates of indebtedness in sums of one hundred dollars, to be signed by the Mayor and countersigned by the clerk of said Council of Mountain Lake Park, not exceeding in the aggregate the sum of five thousand dollars, bearing interest not exceeding six per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, said bonds to be payable fifteen years from the date of their issue, said bonds to be exempt from State, county and municipal taxation; and the Mayor and Council in making their annual levy of municipal taxes after said bonds are issued shall fix the rate sufficient to provide for the payment of the interest on said bonds and create a sinking fund for their redemption.

Sec. 22. And be it further enacted, That all Acts and parts of Acts inconsistent with any provision of this Act are hereby repealed.

Sec. 23. And be it further enacted, That for the purpose of determining whether the citizens of said Mountain Lake Park desire to incorporate, there shall be held an election on the second Tuesday of July, 1931, between the hours of 1 o'clock P. M. and 7 o'clock P. M. under the supervision of the committee named in Section 4 of this Act. The qualifications of voters at this special election shall be the same as those hereinbefore set forth in regard to regular town elections.

The said committee shall, not less than five days before said referendum election, post in five conspicuous places in said town a written or printed notice notifying all the residents of said town who are qualified to vote under this Act that an election will be held on the date fixed in this Act at a certain place and between certain hours, which notice shall contain the said date, the hours that the polls will remain open and the location of the polling place or places, and a statement that the election is to be held for the purpose of deciding whether or not to adopt this charter and form an incorporated town.

The said committee shall provide and furnish the place or places where such election shall be held, the booths, ballot boxes and sufficient number of printed ballots, upon which on one line the words "For Incorporation," shall be printed, and on another line the words "Against Incorporation," with squares opposite each.

Said election shall be conducted as nearly as practicable as an election for county offices is conducted in all points not specially provided for in this Act, and on the closing of the polls the said committee shall canvass said votes and publicly announce the result of said canvass. In the event that a majority of the votes cast are for incorporation, this Act shall immediately become effective, and in the event that a majority of said votes are against incorporation, it shall become null and void.

Sec. 24. And be it further enacted, That in the event that this charter is adopted by the citizens of said Mountain Lake Park under the provisions of the referendum above set forth, then the committee named in Section 4 of this Act shall hold the election for town officials as provided for in Section 5 of this Act and in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

See. 25. And be it further enacted, That if any section or part of a section, or any provision of this Act shall be held invalid, such invalidity shall not affect any other provision of this Act.

See. 26. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1931.

Approved April 17, 1931.

16 MARRIAGE LICENSES ISSUED THE PAST WEEK

Total For Month of April Is 89, 23 Less Than In April, 1930

Only sixteen marriage licenses were issued during the week ending at noon on Monday at the office of the Clerk of the Circut Court in Oakland. The total for the month of April was 89, as against 112 for the same month last year.

A greater number of licenses were issued on Tuesday, April 28, than on Saturday, which is unusual. More licenses were also issued on April 30 and May 1 than were issued on Saturday, which is the busy day generally for the clerk in this department. For the first four months of the year the total number was just 15 less than for the same period last year, 299 having been issued.

Two licenses issued were marked "don't publish."

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By SCOOP—HIMSELF

A lot of green things are coming out, new sap is rising in old arteries, middle aged men have started practicing girth control, kids have taken off their itchlng underwear and the Boss editor decided on his bi-centennial cleaning. Even minus the calendar and mud I know that spring is here.

With Harold Yutzy, renovator deluxe, extraordinary, in charge, the walls and ceilings were again discovered underneath about 2 inches of dirt, and it was left to the Boss editor himself to discover the floor via the mop bucket route. Scoop assisted in the work at times, but not very enthusiastically.

My biggest clean-up job was Thursday afternoon from 1:30 to 3:30. Didi Jim, the office devil, caught his hlgh school toe in his collegiate pants at the head of the back stairway and the crash on the eighth step was enough to sink the heart of the stoutest editor, for there lay page four between the first and the nineteenth steps, an entire wreck, the first in the office since it was established. The proverbial printer's pie was very much in evidence, but no one seemed in the mood for eating. Don't look on that page of last week's issue for errors, for we have been afrald to look ourselves.

The other night Archibaldson and I were cornered by a professional bore in an eating establishment. After a long-winded solo about nothing in partlcular Archibaldson finally got a word in sideways and said, "Not so loud. The people at the next table are yawning."

If Ches Browning had his way the City council would make all roads and shoulders on roads lead to the corner of Third and Green streets, and have signs erected at all street corners. If the other councilmen thought in a simllar vein Cot McComas would have a lot sale at the city's expense, George Kerlns would use the city hall for his garage, Ralph Thayer could use the street appropriation for a macadam road to Freeport, Howard Stuck could erect his own water-works, and Bill Whorton could get a donation from the council, enough to erect a garage for his cement mixers.

Since Happy and Andalusia, the twins of Harned's drug store, had to use a fire extinguisher on their trash pile and telephone pole last Thursday, they have decided to burn trash in the wire basket out in front of their store.

After receiving plans from the Forestry department on erecting fire towers, Charlie Bosley followed directions, and as a result has a water tower back of his garages, in preparation for this year's drought which may or may not arrive. It holds anyway, fifty gallons. It can also be used for an observation tower, to watch the progress of his corn and other grains.

BITTINGER

The citizens of this part of the county were greatly gratified last week when they read in The Republican that the State Roads Commission proposed to begin the construction of a State road between Grantsville and Bittinger this season. Such a road will supply a long-felt need and the folks of this community wish to thank the Commission for its generous consideration.

On Sunday, May 17, at 2:30 p. m., Holy Communion services will be conducted in the Bittinger Lutheran church, at which time Rev. Charles A. Shilke, of Oakland, and Rev. A. B. Harper, of Accident, will assist in the communion service and in the confirmation of the class of catechetics.

Richard S. Browning, of Oakland, a district game warden, was a pleasant caller in this village last Saturday afternoon and while here Mr. Browning told of his recent experience in catching three fish at one time with one hook and at one cast. Editor's Note—We nominate Dick for membership in Lowell Thomas' Tall Story Club.

Samuel D. Brenneman unloaded and distributed among his patrons a car load of fertilizer on Monday of last week.

John Swauger, of Jennings, was a business caller in this village one day early last week.

Noah Stark, of Kitzmiller, spent Sunday and Monday, April 27 and 28, with relatives here.

Frederick M. Bittinger was called to Frostburg on Monday of last week by the serious illness of his daughter, Miss Ethel, who is a student in the Frostburg State Normal School at that place.

Ralph Buckle, a student at the Frostburg State Normal School, spent the week-end here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver C. Buckel.

Merchant O. C. Buckel had a new gas tank installed at his place of business in this village last week and is now prepared to furnish high test gas to his customers.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Beachy are greatly elated with the arrival at their home, on April 23, of their first baby daughter.

Harvey Durst, of Negro Mountain, was a caller in this village one day last week.

Mrs. Silas C. Beachy and son Homer spent the week-end with friends and relatives in Huntingdon, Pa.

Former County Commissioner Harvey Gortner, of Grantsville, was a business caller in this village on last Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Walter Krause, with her little son, of near Grantsville, spent last week with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Brenneman, at their home here.

Mrs. Charles Fadley, of Somerset, Pa., is spending some time with her daughter, Mrs. Oscar Hetrick, at her home here.

Melvin, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Brenneman, of this village, was taken to a hospital in Cumberland for treatment and a possible operation following an attack of pneumonia.

Deputy Sheriff Speer and Constable Andrew Shartzer, of Oakland, passed through here Thursday of last week on their way to Jennings and Grantsville.

William Winterburg, of Grantsville, stopped in this village last Friday en route to Oakland. He was accompanied to the county seat by Merchant C. E. Ellithorp, of this village.

A parent-teachers' meeting was held in the village school house on last Thursday evening, which was well attended by the patrons of the school.

A number of people from this community attended the sale held by Merchant Arthur Resh at his store at Casselman, near Grantsville, recently.

Rev. E. E. Campbell, who has been ill for some weeks at the Lutheran parsonage here, is reported as recovering but is not yet able to be out of the house.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Buckel motored to Grantsville last Friday evening, being accompanied by Carl Bittinger.

The following named pupils in the primary department of the Bittinger public school were neither absent nor tardy during the last school period: Gladys Resh, Grace Detrick, Ruby Buckel, Evelyn Oester, Edison Beachy.

From Washington it is announced that a total of $971,000,000 had been loaned at the end of last week on World War veterans' adjusted compensation certificates.

1400 MILES IN FIFTEEN MINUTES

Make station-to-station calls and you can talk about 25 miles for 25 cents; 50 miles for 45 cents; 100 miles for 60 cents. The greater the distance the less the cost per mile.

A LARGE book publishing company recently sent a sales representative on a journey of 1400 miles, which he completed in fifteen minutes, and at a total cost of only $8.00. How did he accomplish this miracle? By the only possible means—the telephone!

In New York, Chicago, and Boston, he reached people he wanted and sold them 26,000 books! He did this by telephone just as easily as if he had actually traveled all that distance at a cost of much time and money.

In ever-increasing numbers, business men are coming to the use of the telephone for making sales to out-of-town customers. Certainly nothing can beat it for speed, effectiveness and low cost.

Chevrolet
has struck a popular new note
in motor-car styling

Chevrolet's front-end ensemble is a fine example of the latest trend in modern design

Many factors have contributed to the remarkably widespread popularity of the new Chevrolet Six. Among these are smooth performance, low price, matchless economy, exceptional riding ease and driving comfort. But no feature has been more strikingly evident in the enthusiastic public reception of the car than its smart new style.

Fisher Body craftsmen, with their background of fine-car designing, have made this new Chevrolet an exceptionally attractive automobile. Study it from any angle and you find it extremely pleasing. Look at it from the front and you are impressed by the modish ensemble of deep radiator, large headlamps and arched tie bar—all gleaming in rich chromium plate. Viewed from the side, the long hood, low-swung body lines, sweeping fenders and massive wire wheels strikingly suggest the car's fleetness and power. And the appeal of Chevrolet's beauty is made more pronounced by the fact that all models are available in a variety of colors.

An important factor in Chevrolet's smart appearance is the de luxe wire wheels with forty steel spokes and massive chrome-plated hub caps

Interiors, too, are unusual in every way. The upholstery is carefully tailored. Seats are roomy, deeply cushioned and invitingly soft. And the interiors are tastefully appointed.

This emblem—Body by Fisher—is a symbol of superior body craftsmanship—exclusive with Chevrolet in the low-price field

In fact, the new Chevrolet Six is such a thoroughly fine-looking automobile that it has become a very popular choice with every type of buyer. You find it not only the smart family car, but the smart personal car as well—a worthy companion to the expensive automobiles of the two- and three-car household.

THURSDAY, MAY 7, 1931.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

There was a fall of snow on May 6th.

At a meeting of the town council the Mayor recommended the opening of Third street from Center street to the Deer Park road.

Mahlon C. Hinebaugh, at home for the summer vacation, secured a position as assistant agent at the Baltimore and Ohio station.

A party from Oakland, including Ed. Offutt, Fred. Felty and F. G. Hyde, saw the elephant in Forepaugh's circus at Piedmont.

Ex-Sheriff M. R. Hamill narrowly escaped serious injury when the horse he was driving along the Altamont road became frightened and ran up a steep embankment causing the buggy in which he was riding to topple over upon the driver.

Henry Weber, Sr., proprietor of the Weber greenhouses and market gardens, installed telephone service from the Western Union telegraph office in Oakland for the transmission of messages received by telegraph at the local office to his farm. The rental charge for the use of the telephones was approximately $150 annually.

Forest fires were raging in every direction. The extremely dry weather made it difficult to check the flames and farmers were kept busy day and night fighting the fire away from their fences and buildings.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

James O. Cleveland suffered a fracture of his skull when he fell from a scaffold at the old Oakland Hotel.

A lodge of the Woodmen of the World was instituted in Oakland by D. W. Thayer, of Washington, D. C., assisted by W. L. Loomis, of Crellin, and a number of the members of the Crellin lodge. Albert Ashby was chosen presiding officer and W. L. Thomas, secretary, of the new organization.

Dr. Henry W. McComas suffered a painful injury to his wrist when he attempted to crank his automobile when the machine backfired.

Judson Loar was quite ill for several days.

D. M. Dixon moved his family into their new home on Second street.

A. D. Naylor was in Cumberland to attend the examination of master plumbers.

Others mentioned in local items included George Warnick, John L. Englehart, Peter H. Yost and G. A. Fraley.

An Interesting Fact

Had it not been for the lurid stories of a conspiracy in Baltimore against President Lincoln, the blundering orders of Col. Edward F. Jones, the commanding officer, would probably not have been issued and a regretable incident might have been avoided.

When Col. Jones received information that his regiment (the Sixth Massachusetts Infantry) would likely meet with opposition on its march through Baltimore, his orders were that ammunition should be issued and arms loaded and that the regiment was to march through the mile or more of Baltimore streets from station to station in a body. Such a move seemed to invite attack, if indeed any attack were intended.

However, as was then the custom, the troops, having landed at the President Street station of the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad on April 19, 1861, were being transferred to the Baltimore and Ohio Camden Street station in coaches drawn through the streets by horses. Seven companies of the regiment had thus been transferred without unusual incident. The news of their arrival spread, the casual number of people along the route increased and measures were taken by a small group to obstruct the street against the passage of the remainder of the regiment. Near the corner of Gay and Pratt streets, a load of sand was dumped on the tracks of the street car and anchors from a near-by dock and cobble stones from the street were piled thereon. The next car was stopped by these obstructions and the driver, hitching the horses to the rear of the vehicle retreated to the point of starting. It was then determined to march the four companies of soldiers, aggregating 220 men in number, in a body through the streets to the Baltimore and Ohio station.

Some ardent but ill-advised partisan, produced a Confederate flag and displayed it at the head of the marching Union soldiers, thus obliging them to march behind it for about two squares. This aroused opposition on the part of the crowd of residents and after two attempts the flag was destroyed. This brought a counter attack, and whether by accident or design the soldiers were stoned and one of them was knocked down. Two blocks further on two more were knocked down by flying stones.

The firing by the soldiers began at the Pratt street bridge. The stories differ. Some say that the muskets of the soldiers were accidentally discharged by the men stumbling over obstructions thrown in their path, while others contended that it was by command of the officers. Whatever the cause of the firing, the fact remains that at the corner of South and Pratt streets several citizens were killed and wounded and at the corner of Light street a soldier fell mortally wounded. A boy on a vessel at the dock was killed and the head of the advancing column fired into an apparently unoffending group on the sidewalk with fatal results. Mayor Brown did his utmost to quell the disturbance, but to no avail. Altogether four soldiers had been killed and thirty-six wounded, eleven citizens killed and an indefinite number more or less seriously wounded.

With only a third of the distance to Camden Station covered, the citizens being aroused, the situation was critical. At this point there arrived on the scene about forty blue-coats and Marshall Kane, with revolvers drawn. They were placed in the rear of the soldiers and in front of the pursuing citizens. The fighting was over.

Thus on April 19, 1861, witnessed the first bloodshed of the great conflict which gripped the country for four years.

On the fifth of March, 1862, the Maryland General Assembly appropriated the sum of $70,000 "for the relief of the families of those belonging to the Sixth Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteers who were killed or disabled by wounds received in the riot of the 19th of April, 1861, in Baltimore."

GORTNER

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Spoerlein were at Winchester, Va., where they witnessed the Apple Blossom Festival.

Walter Schlossnagle and family were visiting Mrs. Nora Swiers at Loch Lynn on Sunday evening.

Clarence Conneway, of Canton, O., was here visiting his aunt, Mrs. P. P. Gortner, on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Schrock and family, of Grantsville, visited Mrs. Schrock's sister, Mrs. Dan Lichty, on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel Gnegy, of Red House, visited relatives in this community on Sunday.

Mrs. Harvey Swartzentruber and son and Mrs. Leroy White were dinner guests of Mrs. I. L. Beckman at Lynndale on Tuesday.

Facing Facts on Mother's Day

© Maternity Center Ass'n., N. Y. C.

UNCLE SAM is troubled—sixteen thousand mothers every year fail to answer roll call on Mother's Day. They lost their lives performing woman's greatest duty, maternity. Of these sixteen thousand, two-thirds could be saved by adequate maternity care, according to leading health authorities. The Maternity Center Association, a philanthropic organization supported by voluntary private contributions, located in New York City, supplies information without cost on the subject of maternity care. Public spirited citizens are trying to make Mother's Day mean a better chance for expectant mothers everywhere.

Maryland-Delaware Council of Religious Education

Rev. Morris A. Hamm, assistant General Secretary of the Maryland-Delaware Council of Religious Education, Baltimore, and Rev. C. A. Shilke, Oakland, canvassed the members and friends of the County Sunday School Association last week in the interest of raising the county and State budget for religious education. They desire to thank the many people of the county for their generous response to this worthy cause which makes it possible to further the program of the training schools and better organized effort in the way of general Sunday school work in Garrett county. During recent years successful standard training schools were conducted at Oakland, Grantsville and Kitzmiller, and daily vacation Bible schools at Oakland, Grantsville Kitzmiller and Friendsville. For this year standard training schools are planned for these same places with one member of the State staff as dean of each school. A large county convention is planned for the fall, when it is hoped to put under better organization the work of the Sunday schools of the county.

Early Poultry Culling Pays Well In Two Ways

The typical hen usually lays the greatest number of eggs in the first or pullet year, says Prof. L. M. Hurd, of the New York College of Agriculture. High-producing hens may be profitably kept as layers for two or three years, and as breeders even longer. But every flock, no matter how well bred it is, has some hens in it that do not pay for their keep.

On the typical farm 40 per cent of the birds stop laying between June 15 and September 1. If the culls are removed during this period rather than after October 1, about one and a half tons of feed will be saved on a flock of 1000 birds, or about 10 cents on the average for each bird in the flock.

In addition, early culling pays because more money is received to the pound, according to Professor Hurd. The price of Leghorn fowls is usually higher during July and August than it is after the first of October. The average top price for the eight years, 1922 to 1929, was June, 25.9 cents; August, 24.1c.; September, 23.8c.; October 22c.

Homemakers' Column

Bridge Luncheon

Clear tomato soup, individual spinach ring, egg and mushrooms in cheese sauce, lyonnaise potatoes, biscuits, fruit ice cream.

Family Dinner

Hamburg and lima bean loaf, tomato sauce, Swiss chard, baked potatoes, pickled beets, fruit sponge, custard sauce.

Spinach Ring

Three cups chopped canned spinach, 2 tablespoons fat, 2 eggs, salt, pepper, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon flour.

Melt butter, add flour, blended well. Add spinach, remove from fire and add well beaten eggs and seasonings. Place in greased ring molds, set on a rack in a pan of hot water and bake until firm. Serve hot with hard cooked eggs and mushrooms in cheese sauce. Temperature 350 degrees. Time 25 minutes.

Hamburg and Lima Bean Loaf

Two cups canned lima beans, ½ pound hamburg steak, 1 egg, 1 medium sized onion, 1 green sweet pepper, 2 tablespoons Chili sauce, 2 tablespoons bacon fat, salt and pepper.

Drain liquid from lima beans, chop and add to hamburg. Add slightly beaten egg, chopped onion and green pepper, salt, pepper and Chili sauce. If mixture seems too dry, add some of the liquid strained from the beans. Pack into a greased loaf pan, dot top with fat, and bake until firm and brown. Serve hot with tomato sauce.

Both the Senior and Junior Leagues will celebrate Luther League night at the local church Sunday evening, May 17, when they will present a pageant, "Follow the Gleam," with a short address and exercise setting forth life service among the youth of the church.

On Monday of this week thirty or more residents and taxpayers of the Savage River section of Garrett county were in Oakland where they met the Board of County Commissioners and filed a petition requesting the relocation of the Savage River road from the cement bridge at Bond Station to Bloomington. They complainants stated that the road as now located is of no material benefit to the people of the community and that at certain periods of the year it is almost impassable, being built along the side of the mountain with grades very abrupt and curves so sharp that an automobile or other vehicle of ordinary length cannot negotiate the bends. In the party was Mr. Jesse Broadwater, who called at The Republican office.

A SQUARE DEAL FOR THE NATION'S MOTHERS-TO-BE

Attention To This Subject Suggested By N. Y. Association

Better care for mothers-to-be as well as honor and reverence for all mothers, is urged this year in connection with the nation-wide observance of Mother's Day.

The suggestion that attention be focused on the needs of the mother-to-be comes from the Maternity Center Association of New York City, an organization that has carried thousands of mothers from the congested sections of New York City through the ordeal of child-birth, safeguarding the lives of both mothers and the babies.

"Partly because of the rush and hurry of modern life, and partly because mothers-to-be do not realize the need for medical supervision during all of the waiting period, the risks in child-bearing in this country are greater than they are in other lands, among them Denmark, Holland and England," Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health said in stressing the reasons for making Mother's Day a starting point for better care of expectant mothers.

"Throughout the United States," he continued, "for every thousand children born, six mothers lose their lives. In Holland and Denmark the risk is only half as great. Last year, 31,063 children were born in Maryland and 164 mothers lost their lives in child-birth—one mother in every two hundred births, five in every thousand births—showing that conditions in Maryland are a little more favorable than they are throughout this country as a whole.

"Baltimore City was one of the first of the larger cities in this country to provide special care for expectant mothers of limited means, either thru private organizations or in connection with hospitals. We are looking forward to the development of similar service throughout the counties. A beginning was made in 1928, with the establishment of a clinic in Harford county. Cecil and Allegany counties have established clinics during the past year.

"When we speak of 'adequate' care for the mother-to-be, we mean regular medical supervision before, during and after the baby's birth. The mother who has had such care has three times the chance of coming thru safely than the mother who simply drifts along without medical supervision.

Physicians are glad to give such care to the expectant mothers in their own practice, but very often the mother neglects to secure it. Centers or clinics to which the mother of limited means in the counties may go are few in number, but more will be established as soon as it is realized that only by such care will we be giving the mother-to-be the square deal to which she is entitled. Mother's Day is a good starting point for such service."

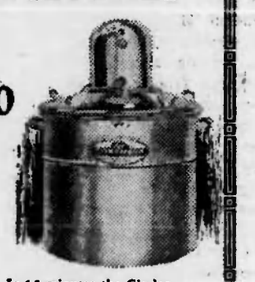
SAVES | MONEY SPACE CLOTHES
Cinderella ELECTRIC CLOTHES WASHER $37.50



IT'S the "savingest" washer you ever saw. Washes by an amazing "Bubble-Action" vacuum principle. No moving parts to rip, tear or wear delicate fabrics. Nothing to break or pull off buttons. Only the gentle action of air bubbles, soap suds and warm water traveling through every thread of the clothes, fifty times a minute. Saves space because it's only 18 inches high (weighs only 19 lbs.). Saves money because it does the washing for less than one cent an hour. See it demonstrated here today.

In 15 minutes the Cinderella washes 14 diapers, or 10 pieces of lingerie, or equivalent. Beautifully finished in jade green enamel.

My Experiences in the World War

CHAPTER XI

In the organization of our armies for the World war it was evident that if any considerable numbers were to be sent abroad an additional force would be needed over and above the regular army and the National Guard.

The War department therefore established what was called the national army, to be composed principally of men who were to come into service through the draft. Most of the divisions of the national army were organized in August and September, 1917.

As the time approached to begin the training of the smaller units it was found that after equipping the special troops urgently needed in France there was little equipment left even for the additional men required to fill up the National Guard.

Unfortunately, this made it necessary to delay calling out men for the units of the national army. However, considerable numbers were called into service and proceeded with preliminary instruction, but the lack of equipment seriously delayed their progress.

Visiting Billeting Areas.

My diary notes the following:

Paris, Tuesday, August 21, 1917. —Visited billeting areas of Forty-seventh French and our First division with General Petain on Sunday.

Inspected St. Dizier regulating station and witnessed attack near Verdun yesterday. Visited French hospital at Souilly.

Returned this morning with M. Painleve, minister of war, on his train.

As I had accepted General Petain's invitation to see the French offensive that was to take place August 20, I motored to French general headquarters on the 18th, accompanied by Colonel Palmer and Captain Boyd, and after dinner left with General Petain and two or three members of his staff on his train for an inspection of French and American troops the following day. We reached Gondrecourt the next morning and began the day with a review of the French Forty-seventh infantry division, which was paraded on a prominent platform near Hondelaincourt.

This division had been in every serious engagement of the war and its losses had been very heavy, as could be easily surmised from the youthful appearance of the officers, most of whom had risen from the ranks to replace casualties among their seniors. General Petain told them that because of its fine record the division had been given the special honor of assisting in the instruction of the American First division.

Visit Our Troops in Training.

Accompanied by Brigadier General Bundy, Colonel Craikshank and others, I took General Petain to see some of our troops being trained in throwing grenades and in the use of the French automatic rifle. An amusing story was told us in connection with grenade instruction. One of the men insisted on throwing his grenade immediately after setting the fuse instead of waiting till he slowly counted seven, which was necessary so the explosion would occur as the grenade reached its destination.

After being cautioned several times by his officer the man said: "Captain, I just can't hold these grenades any longer because I can feel them swelling in my hand."

We visited several villages occupied by French and American troops. As we passed through our billets and inspected the kitchens, Petain particularly inquired about the components of our ration and the manner of cooking and serving meals. The French soldiers were furnished wine in place of coffee provided for our men and the allowances differed in other respects, ours containing a larger meat component. But when it came to cooking the French were ahead of us, although our men preferred our own food to either the French or British ration.

Wounded Nurse Decorated.

Motoring to Souilly, the headquarters of the French Second army, we met Major General Fayolle, commanding the group of armies of the center, and Major General Guillaumat, commander of the Second army, whose chief of staff explained in detail the plan of the battle that was to take place next day. We had luncheon with General Fayolle, whom later I came to regard as one of the ablest of the French generals. In appearance he was rather frail, no longer young, but active and alert.

On our visit to the military hospital at Souilly General Petain decorated Mdlle. de Baye, a nurse, with the croix de guerre, as she lay on a cot suffering from a severe wound inflicted by a piece of shell two days before. When he told her who I was she said: "I am glad you are here, general, to see how a French woman can suffer for her country." She was so happy, however, that I am sure that for the moment she had entirely forgotten her pain.

Sees French Attack.

The attack of the Second French army, although made astride the Meuse river, was directed principally against Hill 304 and Hill 304, both famous in the struggle of 1916. To destroy the wire entanglements and demolish trenches, as a precaution against heavy losses, the infantry assault was preceded by four days' continuous bombardment, and relatively the amount of artillery ammunition expended exceeded that of any previous engagement, its value being, as I remember it, some $75,000,000.

The proportion of the artillery force as compared to the infantry in this battle was as eleven to ten. The firing attained such precision and volume that the German troops in the forward positions were submerged and the attacking infantry reached most of its objectives by nightfall the first day, making an advance of five kilometers and capturing 6,000 prisoners.

The sector where the French attack took place was to have a peculiar interest for me before the end of the war. My headquarters as commander of the first army one year later occupied the building in Souilly, then used by Major General Guillaumat, and the line reached by Corvisart's troops in the battle became our jump-off line in the Meuse-Argonne battle. In fact, every foot of the ground covered in this inspection with General Petain became associated later with America's greatest effort in the war.

Petain's Contact Valuable.

After visiting the French installations and the manifold activities carried on behind this front with the shifting masses of combat troops and the thousands engaged in the services of supply and transportation, it seemed quite improbable that we should be able to marshal a sufficient army in time to replace the French on this front before 1919.

I found it most agreeable as well as instructive to be with Petain in this intimate way and have an opportunity to hear something of his experience. His discussion of the defense of Verdun, in which he played an important part, being second in command, was especially entertaining. As we drove about he spoke of the courage of his troops and of the tremendous losses they had sustained. He pointed out the vast amount of road work, including the Voie Sacree from Bar-le-Duc to Verdun, rebuilt under his direction for the constant movements of large bodies of troops and supplies necessary to maintain the defense.

In lighter vein his comments on French politicians during this trip were amusing, if not always complimentary, and he congratulated me many times on being so far removed from political interference. One afternoon the conversation drifted to painting and he asked me how many times I had sat for my portrait. "Several times already," I said. "The last one, which was very good, was done by a distinguished artist by the name of Jonas (English Jonah) for l'Illustration."

Immediately he said: "Don't let them publish it! Don't do it! Every officer whose portrait by Jonas has appeared in that journal has been relieved from his command."

Not that I am superstitious, quite the contrary, but I immediately forbade the publication of the portrait and to this day it has never appeared.

Builds Up French Morale.

From the time of Nivelle's failure in April the depression in the French armies had been so great that Petain, who succeeded him, had been content simply to hold the trenches, and no French offensive operation of consequence had been attempted until this one. From the moment of his assignment Petain began to build up the shattered morale of his armies and probably no other officer in France could have performed the task so well.

Petain's immense success in the defense of Verdun had won for him the confidence of the army and the country, and yet he remained the same modest, unassuming character, consistent and conservative. He, perhaps better than any other, understood the temperament of the French soldier, whom he handled with infinite patience and tact.

CHAPTER XII

In view of the gravity of our tonnage situation, it was highly important that it be brought forcibly to the attention of the allies. Apropos the approaching inter-allied conference on shipping, I cabled Washington August 23, 1917, in part as follows: " . . . The British and, especially, the French have reached absolute limit of man power and any augmentation their military force cannot be expected. Imperative hasten our organization and training so that we will have the troops contemplated your project in Europe for active service by May or June.

"Military activities of allies on land should be strongly reinforced by combined navies and destruction U-boat bases accomplished if possible. High British army officers confidentially condemn waiting policy British admiralty. . . . In view of gravity of shipping question recommend our government insist upon aggressive policy by combined British and American navies.

" . . . Our position in this war very strong. . . . Allies now fully recognize dependence upon our co-operation and we need not hesitate demand both aggressive naval policy and full share commercial shipping. Recommend American representative shipping conference be instructed accordingly."

Members of officers of all armies felt very strongly that to check the losses by submarines the two navies should take some risk and attempt to destroy the bases from which these boats operated. It is not known whether any steps were ever taken to convey this suggestion to the combined navies.

U. S. Advised on Powder Needs.

Meanwhile, a study by a joint French and American commission of the question of production of powders and explosives in France showed that the greater part of the raw materials must be imported and that, due to the shipping situation, France in December would produce only about half of the current output. It was apparent, therefore, that to avoid calamity the United States must not only furnish powder and explosives for all of its own forces, but must supply about half the French requirements, and the War department was so advised.

By this arrangement a large saving of tonnage would be effected, as the weight of raw materials was ten to twenty times that of the finished product. As nitrates for the manufacture of powder and explosives had to be imported from Chili, the hazard to shipping would be reduced by avoiding the long haul to France. Millions of dollars were expended in the construction of plants at home in an attempt to produce nitrates, but none had been turned out before the end of the war.

Dawes Made Supply Chief.

In view of the uncertainty of obtaining more than a limited amount of ocean tonnage it was natural that we should procure abroad as large a proportion of supplies as possible, and our supply department began at once to make inquiries to meet the demands for construction material, subsistence stores and engineering equipment. Many sources of general supply had been developed by the French and we soon found ourselves not only in competition with them and the British but our different departments also began to bid against each other.

To my mind the solution seemed to be merely a matter of co-ordination. Therefore, I established a purchasing board to consist of one or more representatives of each service making purchases of any sort, including the Red Cross and Y. M. C. A.

Lieut. Col. Charles G. Dawes, Seventeenth engineers, well known as a man of large business experience, was appointed as the head of this board, the members of which were to meet together and make known their respective needs and then agree among themselves as to where and by which department such purchase was to be made, thus mutually assisting instead of competing with each other. Under the arrangement co-operation with the French was established and the agency became increasingly effective in handling our procurement activities.

Couldn't Depend on French R. R.'s.

The use of railways for the movement of troops and supplies had never before attained any such proportions as in the World war and there was no service except sea transportation upon which we placed greater dependence for our success.

It was apparent that we could not depend on the French without great risk of failure at a critical moment and it was evident that if we expected the maximum efficiency in this service we must provide our own personnel as well as additional locomotives and cars, all to be as far as practicable under American management.

With this plan in view commendable progress had been made toward both procurement and organization by Colonel Taylor, and complete estimates for rolling stock and construction at ports, terminals and yards, including an accurate survey of building and equipment requirements, had been made under his direction by Maj. W. J. Wilgus, formerly vice president of the New York Central, afterward a colonel, who had been a member of the Parsons board. These estimates without change served as a permanent guide for railway construction plans and material.

Creation of Transportation Corps.

As co-ordinate with the procurement and maintenance of material and equipment we were confronted with the vital question of organization for operation and management, but we had no officers in the regular service of sufficient experience in railway management to insure success. Therefore the evident course to pursue, to which the precedent of both British and French pointed the way, was to create a transportation corps immediately under the direction of some man of outstanding reputation in the railroad world. In accordance with the principle of obtaining the most competent men for important positions the following cable was sent July 29:

"Have made thorough study of railroad situation and am convinced that operation of railroads must be under man with large experience in managing railroads at home. Sucessful handling our railroad lines so important that ablest men in country should be selected. After almost disastrous results with inexperienced military men running railroads British selected ablest man could find to have charge transportation.

"Question here mainly one of physical operation and management in intimate relation with French, who retain general control, which is necessary to handle ordinary commercial traffic. Question of railroad transportation of course involves equipment, maintenance and new construction at front as army advances, and should be practically independent department, although nominally under engineers. Railman chosen should be sent here without delay, together with three or four able assistants of his own selection. Later on it is believed these men should be given appropriate military rank."

In reply, the War department recommended W. W. Atterbury, then general manager and now president of the Pennsylvania railroad, for the place, and I immediately requested that he be sent to France.

GEORGE WASHINGTON A COMMERCIAL FISHERMAN

As Such He Was Successful—Methods Then and Now.

In one of his business-like ledgers, George Washington records an entry for August 11, 1772: "Went with those Gentlemn. (naming certain guests at Mount Vernon) a fishing, and dined under the bank at Colo. Fairfax's near his White House."

Near that White House formerly owned and occupied by "Colo." Fairfax now stands one of the important hatcheries of the United States Fish Commission, restocking the Potomac with the shad that formed a staple of George Washington's business of selling the product of his "seins." And perhaps nothing would please Washington more, could he return today, than this visible evidence of the development of the nation's fishery industry since his day.

The business that Washington did in the sale of fish caught from his several landings will surprise those who carefully read his published ledgers and diaries, says the Division of Information and Publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission. He made every inch of his extensive property yield its due, and he turned to the Potomac River, which edged his lands, for all that it had to give up in saleable products. Thus during the latter part of April and the beginning of May, in 1772, he sold over 11,000 fish, mainly herring. One page of his diary, that of July 10, 1772, records that the sale to James Tilghman of thirty barrels of shad, for which Washington received forty pounds and ten shillings.

By 1758 he seems to have developed the trade so that we find an entry for April sixth, that year: "Sent my Shad Sein and Hands to the Ferry to commence Fishing for Messrs. Douglas and Smith, who had engaged to take all the Shad and Herring I can catch in Season, the first at fifteen shillings a hundred and the other at four shillings a thousand."

Interested as he was in the industry of fishing, Washington would be the first to take pride in the growth of American fisheries to the point where the annual catch for the United States and Alaska is now three billion pounds or a value of $116,000,000 to the fishermen.

Commissioner of Fisheries, Henry O'Malley, took great pride in laying before a representative of the Washington Bicentennial Commission some of the totals marking the contrast between fishing in Washington's day and the vast industry that now has been built up under private enterprise and with scientific Government help in coservation and replacement.

For example, the Chesapeake crab, in Washington's day ignored, but now a prized delicacy and article of diet, was caught, sold and eaten to the tune of 60,000,000 in 1929. More recently still there has come into being the brine freezeing process which has enormously expanded even the fishery industry of the past few years. This brine freezing process has made possible a package trade of 85,000,000 pounds annually. For not only has the annual sale of fish grown steadily, but the trade has taken on refinements unthought of even a few years ago.

One such development is the filleting of haddock which began on a broad scale in 1921. The larger fish, such as cod and salmon, are steaked. Wrapped in treated paper, and subject to the rapid brine freezing, these fillets and steaks can now be kept in perfect condition indefinitely, and so can be shipped to points where salt water fish have never been used before.

A man of Washington's prudence might be alarmed as well as pleased by the rise of fisheries to be one of our major industries. Our streams of coastal waters cannot be farmed on any such scale unless fish are sown to furnish new crops. One of the chief activities of the Bureau of Fisheries is this very business of conservation. In 1930 this Bureau stocked our streams with more than seven and a half billion fish and eggs, including both food and game species. At the Fort Humphreys hatchery, on the spot where George Washington once dined after fishing, 70,000,000 young shad have been bred and released in the river.

"All in all," says Commissioner O'Malley, "I think Washington would approve what we are doing to broaden and enrich an industry in which he himself was so much interested."

SWANTON

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Harvey gave a surprise birthday party Saturday, May 2, in honor of their daughter, Glenna. Their guests were Mrs. Noah Sweitzer, Miss Amanda Rexroad, Freda and Edgar Rhodes, Mabel, Junior, Wilmer and Mary Sweitzer, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Harvey, Amy, Freda, Jack, and Glen Harvey and the honor guest. Refreshments were served.

The Sunday school will have a Mother's Day program Sunday morning. All are welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rhodes announce the birth of a son on April 27.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Sweitzer announce the birth of a son on April 28.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Clark and children left Sunday for his home at Berkeley Springs.

The guests of Miss Molly Friend on Saturday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Sweitzer and daughters, Mary and Marie, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Grandstaff and son Donald.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Sweitzer on Sunday were Miss Mary Bright, Oliver Hershman, and Homer Ash.

FAIRVIEW

The Sand Run school has been progressing very nicely all winter with Miss Lola Bennett as the teacher.

Miss Nellie Harvey was visiting friends in this community last Tuesday.

W. H. Cosner was at Grantsville on Thursday evening.

E. G. Nine, Herbert Ritchie, Paul Cullers, Willie Cullers and Gorman Cullers were at Bayard Wednesday night, where they met with the musical organization of that place.

Elmer Nine and Miss Gladys Nine were visiting Miss Hazel Nine at Grantsville Wednesday night.

The Public Judges By Appearances

THE MOST WIDELY READ NEWSPAPER WRITER IN U.S.

Rev. P. B. Fitzwater, D. D., Holds This Distinction

The most widely read newspaper writer in the country is not a short story writer. He is not an editorial writer, nor a columnist, nor an essayist, nor a "personal guidance" specialist. He is a minister of the gospel.

REV. P. B. FITZWATER. D. D.

He is Rev. P. B. Fitzwater, D. D., the man who prepares the International Sunday School Lesson which appears regularly in The Republican. For the International Sunday School Lesson, based upon the Bible, the "best seller" of all books in history, appears in more newspapers than any other single newspaper feature that has ever been printed, and is read by more American newspaper readers than any other feature. More than that, as the name "international" implies, these lessons are printed in other languages and used in all parts of the world as aids to the study of the Bible.

Doctor Fitzwater, who is one of the foremost Bible students in the country, and whose name is known to millions through his exposition of the Bible in these Sunday School lessons, is a native of West Virginia, where he was born in 1871. After being graduated from Bridgewater College in Virginia, he continued in special studies in that institution for more than a year, then became a teacher and principal in the public schools. In 1898 he became a student at the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago. Next he entered the Xenia Theological Seminary and after being graduated in 1905, became dean of the Bible department of Manchester College in Indiana.

Doctor Fitzwater continued at Manchester until 1911. In the meantime he was ordained into the ministry and Muskingum College conferred the degree of D.D. upon him in 1909. After taking post-graduate work in Princeton Theological Seminary, he returned to the Moody Bible Institute as a member of the faculty, where he has been since 1913. He was dean of the evening school of the institute from 1923 to 1926 and dean of both day and evening schools from 1926 to 1929. Since the latter year he has been director of the general course at the institute.

Doctor Fitzwater is the author of several books of Bible study, including "God's Code of Morals" and "The Church and Modern Problems," and it has been noted that his writings clearly reflect the wisdom of the broad student, combined with the affability of the Christian man. Altho affiliated with the Presbyterian church he is heartily interdenominational in his views.

Great authority and ability are combined in the preparation of these lessons, and the publisher of The Republican feels confindent that he could give his readers no more worthwhile feature than this one, which provides the basis for discussion of the weekly Sunday school lesson among the people of Garrett county.

NEW GERMANY

Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Otto and Mrs. Forest Beachy attended the funeral of Roy Kamp at Accident on Sunday afternoon.

Miss Alcie Jenkins, who spent the winter months at the home of her sister, Mrs. Leonard Wampler, Cresaptown, has returned to her home here.

Elijah Winters, Cresaptown, visited relatives and friends in this community on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Crowe and Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Broadwater, Avilton, were guests on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Durst.

Mrs. P. J. Stephens and Mrs. James Stephens and family motored to Addison Sunday where they visited relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wampler spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Wampler.

Mr. Willie Warnick and family visited at the home of Mrs. Olin Warnick, Jennings, recently.

"KEEP THE EYESIGHT TO A RIPE OLD AGE" ADVISED

Weekly Educational Article by Dr. J. Fred Andeae.

The person who wishes to keep his or her functions to a ripe old age must avoid excesses of every description and must endeavor to employ the higher faculties of the mind somewhat more energetically than is now always customary. A time comes to everyone when the physical powers begin to decay and then, unless the brain is kept active and recipient, there is nothing left to live for and the person persishes. We say that one dies of gout, or of overeating or of heart disease, or of kidney disease or of the failure of the particular organ which was the first to exhibit symptoms of the approaching end. In reality, they die of stupidity, artificially produced by the neglect of the talents with which they were endowed.

That which is true of the organism as a whole is true of the eyes and they are best treated by an amount of systematic, sensible and regular use which preserves the tone of their muscles and regularity of their blood supply. The keenness of sight is in a great degree dependent upon the mental attention habitually paid to visual impresslons. Idleness of the eyes, if we may use that expression, is in every way hurtful to them and proper and varied employment is eminently conducive to their preservation in beauty and efficiency. Regular and periodic attention to eye defect is necessary if the greatest efficiency in seeing is desired.

MT. LAKE PARK

On Wednesday arrangements were made to locate a ticket office at the store of C. P. Martin and Son for the Blue Ridge Transportation Company by Mr. Bailey Hupp, general manager. The Blue Ridge is a part of the West Penn Transportation System and is the name under which the company formed by the merger of the White Star and other transportation lines operate. The busses will leave the B. and O. station at 1:00, 3:10 and 6:00 p. m., making a regular stop at Martin's store.

While the wrecking of the old Briarbend Seminary became a necessity on account of its dilapidated condition, yet the old-timers will recall with pleasure as well as regret, the days when a girls' seminary was operated in the building under the direction of Miss Swann. Then it was that Mountain Lake Park and Oakland enjoyed their days of prosperity and real pleasure. Hundreds of visitors were here, the cottages were filled with gay parties in tallyho and carryall could be seen visiting the beauty spots of the surrounding countryside. Every one was happy, busy, carefree and prosperous. The genial Dr. Davidson, the prince of program makers, conducted the Chautauqua, and the large amphitheatre was filled with happy audiences night after night. Backward, turn backward—but what's the use!

Among those visiting the Apple Blossom Festival from the Park at Winchester were Mrs. Isobel Hill, Mrs. Cora Bishop, Mrs. Allie Haymond, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Frame, Mrs. Utterback and son Bobbie and Mr. and Mrs. Mac Clayton.

Mr. Joseph White and family, recently of Pittsburgh, have moved into the Upton Cuppett property. Mr. and Mrs. Cuppett have moved into the Richardson property, which they recently purchased and which has been extensively repaired.

Mrs.. J. W. Laughlin, who spent the winter in Morgantown, W. Va., and at Fairmont, is occupying her property here. Mr. Jack Grimes and family will arrive within a short time and remain during the summer.

Mrs. Harry Showalter and son Paul have been guests of Mrs. Harry Clayton, mother of Mrs. Showalter, for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hutchinson, Mrs. C. E. Hardesty and daughter and Miss Beatrice Clary, Loch Lynn, were visitors at Winchester this week.

Mrs. James C. Willison is visiting her daughters, Miss Mary Virginia Willison, in Baltimore, and Mrs. H. C. Keister, New York City.

The U. B. quarterly conference at Paradise this past week was very largely attended. Revs. Anderson, Jessee and Johnson were present as well as the superintendent, Rev. Dr. Slaughter. Special meetings are now in progress in the U. B. church there, conducted by Rev. Cuppett, assisted by Rev. J. E. Johnson.

SELBYSPORT

A revival meeting is in progress here at the present time.

Several persons from the Blooming Rose community attended church services here Sunday night.

Fred. Humberson, Paul Fisher, Albert Frazee and Oden Frazee were in Oakland last Thursday on business.

Harvey and James Umbel were business callers in Oakland last Saturday.

J. E. Bowser is among the ill in our community. We all hope for a speedy recovery.

Mrs. A. M. Frazee recently made a business trip to Pittsburgh.

Cecil Frazee has returned to his home here from a visit with relatives in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

Wallace Bowser, of near Oakland, visited his father, J. E. Bowser, recently.

Alex. Grove and family, of Friendsville, spent Sunday at Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Groves' at this place.

Howard Pritts and family, of Uniontown, Pa., was a week-end visitor at the home of Martin Friend.

The Baltimore and Ohio train is running but three times a week. The mail is being carried by a star route from Confluence to Friendsville.

DEER PARK

Church News.

Those accredited with perfect attendance in Mrs. E. E. Sollars Sunday school class in the M. E. church during the month of April include Genevieve Hinebaugh, Corline George and Elizabeth Wagner. New members during April were Pauline Kimmell, Velma Comp and Helen Woods.

Rev. J. B. Rupert delivered a Mother's Day sermon in the M. E. church here on Sunday evening. There will be preaching service here this Sunday.

Prayer meeting is on Wednesday evening. All invited to attend.

Personal Mention

Miss Frances Thrasher, of Frostburg, spent the week-end here with her home folks.

Mrs. A. C. George recently had as guests Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Bittinger and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Paul George and children and Mrs. A. E. Holtschneider and children.

Mrs. F. N. Reis and daughter Miss Pleasant Reis and Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Rodeheaver and son Glenn were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Lipscomb at Pierce, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wright, Bloomington, visited Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Tasker on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul George, of Bobtown, Pa., and Mr. John Holtschneider visited in Cresaptown, Md., a day or two ago, where Mrs. Holtschneider is quite ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher and daughter, of Bridgeport, Ohio, visited in this community on Sunday.

Mr. Joseph Taylor, of New Kensington, Pa., visited Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Reis on Monday.

Mrs. E. S. Bittinger and son are spending a week here with the former's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Burns Flanigan announce the birth of a son.

June Grove, No. 38, of the Woodmen of the World, will hold its monthly meeting at the lodge hall on Thursday, May 14. At this meeting Miss Anna Thrasher, delegate of the local grove to the W. O. W. convention, which was recently held in Washington, D. C., will give a report of the convention.

Group No. 1 of the Flower Garden Club will meet Friday, May 8, at 4:00 for their regular monthly meeting.

Mrs. Jennie Freeland, who has been visiting relatives at Gormania, West Va., during the winter months, has returned to her home here.

Mrs. Ellen Friend and daughter Ida Belle, who have been visiting relatives at Crellin, returned home on Tuesday.

Miss Bessie Keyes, Barton, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Wilson.

GLADES

S. D. Brenneman and son, Ernest, were shopping in Grantsville Thursday.

Mr. Daugherty was calling on S. C. Beachy Thursday.

Freeda Beachy spent a week with relatives and returned to Springs, Pa., on Saturday.

Quite a few of the Glades people attended the sale of Arthur Resh at Carmel Saturday.

James Knox and daughters, Verna and Gladys, and Oma Kelso were visiting at the home of Jonas Knox Sunday.

William Glotfelty was shopping in Oakland Saturday.

Mrs. Alfred Ringer and son Ray, and Mrs. R. E. Alexander and Mrs. Mahlon Bender were visiting at the home of Joseph Ash Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Clarence Orendorf and daughter Freeda were visiting at the home of Solomon Orendorf Sunday night.

Mahlon Bender made a business trip to Accident Monday.

D. L. Beitzel and son, Mrs. Solomon Orendorf and Mrs. Clarence Orendorf were shopping in Oakland Monday.

Mr. Samuel Handwerk, Rockwood, Pa., is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Mahlon Bender.

Herman Opel was shopping in Oakland Monday.

Those at the William Glotfelty home Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Elliott, Oakland, Howard and Wilfred Alexander, and Webster Yoder.

Rev. M. B. Miller preached at Glades Sunday morning.

Beyond the County

From Rome the Italian Air Minister announces that the sale of stamps to collectors financed the late group air flight to Brazil, $160,000, and provided a surplus for future flights.

At Washington, word has been received that Chinese bandits who are holding captive Rev. B. N. Nelson, American Missionary, having heretofore demanded for tennis balls, golf balls and other sporting goods, now promise his release for thirty cans of gasoline.

In Georgia the sheriff of a county being absent on business, his 21-year old son, thinking it was a good time, got drunk; when his father got home he took the young man into a room and administered a good spanking.

In Baltimore a man accosted a sailor on the street and sold him a bottle containing alleged liquor "right off the boat", which on being sampled was found to be colored water. The bootlegger was arrested, but as yet no charge has been found to fit the case.

At Washington, the U. S. Treasurer's diary statement showed that as of April 30, the government had collected $2,790,935,111 and has spent $3,558,906,240, leaving a deficit of over $778,000,000, for the first ten months of the year.

At Reno, Nev., where only six week's residence is required in divorce matters, on the first day, a suit was filed every two minutes of the working day.

At Miami, Fla., Mrs. Abbie Overton, 93, once a member of Abraham Lincoln's household as a companion of Mrs. Lincoln, died May 2.

Near Chestertown, Md., for rescuing Rayfield Reed, aged 13, from drowning, James T. Anthony III, aged 17, has been awarded a hero medal by the Carnegie Foundation.

George F. Baker, aged 91, for many years a leading financier, at the time of his death rated the third richest man in the United States, died a few days ago at his home in New York.

At Ottawa, Ill., Mrs. Margaret Burk, 38, the mother of 8 children, has been elected county highway commissioner, to fill the unexpired term of her husband, the first woman of record to hold a similar position.

At Washington, Dick Douglas, a Georgetown college student, who spent his sixteenth birthday as a Boy Scout hunting lions in the heart of Africa, plans to spend his nineteenth birthday this summer camping in the crater of an Alascan volcano.

At Cleveland, Ralph Thurber, shell-shocked World War veteran was found, under x-ray examination, to have a normal pair of kidneys on his right side and another pair on his left.

Near Pittsburgh, a driver, after motoring for 25 miles, heard his engine "bark", and lifting up the hood, found there a fox terior pup.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our gratitude and sincere thanks to our neighbors and friends for their kindness during the illness and after the death of our beloved wife and mother, Glenna E. Rexroad. We thank our friends for their floral tributes and services of their cars.

ARGUMENTS FAVORING 2 COUNTY POSITIONS HEARD

Resolutions Adopted Asking Commissioners To Retain Nurse And Demonstration Agent

MANY CITIZENS PRESENT

Arguments favoring the retention of a public health nurse and home demonstration agent for Garrett county were heard Monday afternoon at a public meeting called by the Board of County Commissioners, and delegations favoring both positions adopted resolutions requesting the commissioners to provide funds for their continuance.

At a recent meeting of the County Commissioners when the 1931 levy was made and the tax rate of $1.77 established, no provision was made for the county's part in the payment of the salary and expenses of the public health nurse and home demonstration agent.

At the public hearing Monday before George D. Browning, George W. Harvey and James A. Fitzwater, commissioners, organizations from the entire county were represented, all in favor of retaining the two positions. Only three individuals opposed.

Dr. R. H. Riley, director of the State Health department, and Walter N. Kirkman, chief of the personel division, suggested a retention of the health nursing program and the acquisition of a full time public health officer for Garrett county whose expenses would be paid by the State. Former senator A. D. Naylor, Dr. Joseph Franklin, deputy state health officer; W. J. Glenn, principal of the Friendsville High school; Miss Kate Bannatyne, Grantsville; Rev. Kupfer, Kitzmiller; H. V. Leighton, Loch Lynn; Dr. Ralph Kercheval, Dr. N. I. Broadwater, E. R. Jones, Oakland; Prof. F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools; Prof. H. A. Loraditch, school board member; Prof. B. O. Aiken, Accident, and others testified to the worthiness of the health program in the county.

Mr. Glenn: "The health nurse has done a wonderful work in health activities in getting those afflicted into elemosynary institutions."

Miss Bannatyne: "The work of the health nurse has been invaluable. Cases of communicable diseases have been discovered and moved from the schools. She is a value to the public and the community."

Rev. Kupfer: "Only those people unacquainted with the work of the health nurse urged the commissioners to withdraw the necessary financial aid in an effort to reduce taxes. The coal companies and citizens of the Kitzmiller section join in the petition to retain the healh nurses and inaugurate a full time health program including the health officer."

Mr. H. V. Leighton, Loch Lynn, expressed himself as being fully cognizant of the importance of health nurse work, and that it was a matter of economy to continue the position.

Dr. Kercheval: "It is the only means dental and medical professions can come in touch with the pre-school children.

Dr. Broadwater: "We need the health nurses."

Health Before Education

Mr. Rathbun: "The school system needs the services of the nurses. Health comes before education, for without health it is almost impossible to educate children successfully. Health is of more value than houses and land. A greater service is demanded in caring for individuals now than in time of prosperity."

Mr. Loraditch: "Communicable diseases have been discovered and checked thru the health nurses."

Mr. Aiken: "Garrett county health nurse has accomplished more than the three nurses of the county in which I formerly lived."

Dr. Riley made a general statement and urged the continuance of the program from an economical standpoint as one epidemic of disease will cost much more than the annual salary of health nurses.

Mr. Kirkman: "We are not only suggesting the retention of the health nurses in the county but suggesting a full time health officer. The state will appropriate more than twice the amount that the county appropriates. For $3,200 the State will give to the county for a full time health program, $7,700."

Mr. Jones: "The Rotary club of

ALLEGANY TABLELAND TO MEET IN OAKLAND JUNE 4

Will Discuss Possibility of Music Festival During August

The meeting of May 23 sponsored by the Allegheny Tableland Association is postponed to Thursday, June 4, because an important personage desired for the meeting is now in Europe and will not return until June 1. This meeting, June 4th, will be at 7:30 p. m. in Oakland, and since it is a public meeting permission has been asked to have it in the Oakland Court house.

The purpose of this public conference is to discuss and decide the possibility of putting on a musical festival at some point in the tableland, about the last week in August. This festival to be purely a volunteer proposition, no admission charged and commercialized in no way. An experienced musical director is available whose services can be had for June, July and August, and who will visit various communities in the tableland helping to organize and train local groups for the final joint festival in August, Bushrod Grimes, secretary, has announced.

Expenses and cost for this have been provided and the meeting June 4 is not to attempt to raise money but to find out if the people of the tableland think a musical festival is desirable.

Music lovers everywhere are invited to attend the meeting on June 4 at 7:30 and to discuss with officers of the Allegheny Tableland Association the prospects of this venture. This means all kinds of music, vocal, instrumental, bands, orchestras, stringed instruments, individuals and in groups. No one will be paid for performing but if this becomes an annual event people will be attracted to it from long distances, Mr. Grimes said.

Seventy-six Pennsylvania cars were counted passing thru Kitzmiller the past Sunday and the Allegheny Tableland Assiciation has not yet started advertising.

Mayor Proclaims Cleanup Week For Oakland

The mayor has proclaimed clean-up week for next week, May 18 to 23, and is asking all citizens of Oakland to clean up and paint up their properties, so that the city may be in good shape for Memorial Day.

All trash will be carried away in trucks hired by the city council, and must be placed in a convenient place for the drivers on Tuesday morning, May 19. Hauling will continue thru the week until all trash is carried away. No ashes will be hauled, Mayor Stemple stated.

Treasurer Ashby Qualifies

Jesse J. Ashby, who was elected last fall to succeed A. L. Lee as County Treasurer, qualified for the office last Friday evening when the oath was administered by Clerk E. Z. Tower. Mr. Ashby is now at work on the tax books of the county and will likely begin sending out tax bills the early part of June.

Lutheran Synod to Convene in Wheeling Tuesday

Rev. C. A. Shilke and Mr. T. C. Hinebaugh will represent St. Mark's Lutheran church at the annual meeting of the Synod of St. Mark's Lutheran church of West Virginia, which will meet in Edgewood Lutheran church, Wheeling, beginning Tuesday morning, May 19, at 10:30 o'clock.

A number of men of the local Lutheran Brotherhood will attend the convention of the Brotherhood, which will meet Wednesday afternoon and evening in connection with the session of the Synod.

Ralph Turney, a young man of St. Mark's, and a senior in the local high school, will appear before the examining committee of the Synod as an applicant to enter the ministry of the church. Should he pass the examination satisfactorily and is accepted by the committee, he will enter Wittenberg College as a student in the fall.

Among the speakers of note to address the Synod during its meeting are Dr. J. W. Kapp, general secretary of the Brotherhoods of the Lutheran church; Dr. J. Elmer Bittle, former missionary secretary of Pittsburgh Synod, and Rev. Paul S. Keyser, middle western field secretary of the Parish and Church School Board.

Keystone Attractions Engaged For July Fourth Celebration

The Keystone Attraction company, of Shamokin, Pa., the same carnival which operated here during the Fourth of July celebration last year, has been engaged again for this year, according to Neil Fraley, chairman of the committee, and will bring its features here the week of June 29.

A Merry-go-round, Ferris Wheel, swing, and a number of shows and concessions will be offered by this company, and in addition there will be a parade of drum corps and fire departments at 6 o'clock on July 4, a fireworks display in the evening, and many other amusements.

Acceptances are being received from a number of fire departments and drum corps, and the committee is promising a larger celebration than was held last year. The joint celebration is being planned by Proctor Kildow Post, American Legion, and the Oakland Volunter Fire department, and will be held in Oakland on Friday and Saturdayl, July 3 and 4.

Traveling Men's Association To Meet In Oakland

The United Traveling Men's Association, which is composed of traveling men in the cities and towns from Clarksburg on the west to Cumberland on the east, will banquet in the Knights of Pythias Hall, Oakland, on Saturday evening of this week. Carl Fischer, of Morgantown, and a committee of local traveling men are in charge of the arrangements. Mr. Fischer will also be toastmaster.

Blue and gold, the colors of the association, will be carried out in decorating the hall and tables.

About eighty men with their families, are expected. The women of the Lutheran church will serve.

GARRETT COUNTY YOUTHS WIN IN STATE CONTESTS

Elbert Buckel, Bittinger, and Glenn Fike, Friendsville, Take Two First Places at U. of M.

CASH PRIZES ALSO WON

In the public speaking contest for vocational agricultural boys in the State of Maryland, held at the University of Maryland on May 9, Elbert Buckel, of Bittinger, a student in the Accident high school, won first place and is entitled as a result to represent Maryland in the National contest.

Boys from the vocatonal agricultural departments of the high schools of the State who had been successful in the county elimination contests, met at the University at College Park on Saturday for the purpose of selecting the best speaker in the State.

The Garrett county elimination contest was held in the Accident high school on May 1 and at that time Wayne Fitzwater, student in Oakland high school, and Elbert Buckel were selected to represent the county in the State contest.

In the State contest at the University those who won prizes were Elbert Buckel of Accident high school, first; Willard Easterday, Boonsboro high school, second, and Tolbert Lawyer, Thurmont high school, third.

In the poultry judging contest for vocational agricultural boys in the State, Glenn Fike, of Friendsville high school, won first place. In this contest fifty-two boys took part.

Besides winning in the public speaking and poultry judging contests each of these boys was awarded a ten dollar gold piece.

It should be very gratifying to the people of Garrett county to know that both State contests were won by Garrett county youths. There are approximately 1200 vocational agricultural students in the various high schools in the State of Maryland and each one of these was eligible for the preliminary contests in their respective counties.

Buckel will represent Maryland in the regional F. F. A. public speaking contest at Springfield, Mass., this fall in connection with the Eastern States exposition.

The following from Garrett county were awarded the Maryland Farmer degree certificate, which is an advanced degrec in the F. F. A., and given only to a few each year: Carl Everly, Everett Weitzell, Accident; Merle Garletts, Friendsville, and Harland Ridder, Oakland.

The vocational day program was under the direction of Dr. H. F. Cotterman, University of Maryland; Woodrow Wills, president of the Maryland Association of F. F. A., and Dr. J. D. Blackwell, State director of vocational agriculture.

Large Trout Caught

A rainbow trout, measuring 28 inches and weighing 5¾ pounds, was caught in Deep Creek Lake, near Red Run Saturday evening about 6 o'clock by Carlin Helms, Sines. The fish was 14½ inches around its middle and had a tail spread of 7½ inches.

It was purchased by Carlton McComas, who had it packed in ice and sent to Dr. Hawkins, in Cumberland.

DECORATION DAY PLANS ARE MADE BY LEGION

Services to be Conducted on Sunday, May 31, at 2 o'clock

That Memorial day services would be conducted in Oakland on Sunday, May 31, at 2 o'clock, was decided at a meeting of Proctor Kildow Post, American Legion, held last night.

A parade will be held composed of members of the G. A. R., members of the American Legion, ex-service men, Legion Auxiliary, veterans of other wars, the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band, Boy Scouts, Knights of Pythias, Rotary club and other organizations.

Following the parade the graves of veterans will be decorated and an address will be delivered near the tomb of the unknown soldier.

The drum and bugle corps will go to Grafton on Saturday, May 30, and take part in the celebration there. Julius Littman was named assistant drum major at the meeting last night.

Sixty In Attendance At Young People's Conference

About sixty young people, representing the churches of almost every section of Garrett county, were registered at the young people's conference held in the M. E. church at Kitzmiller last Friday afternoon and evening.

The addresses were made by Dr. Robert Davids, general secretary of the Maryland and Delaware Council of Religious Education, Baltimore; Prof. O. P. Jones, principal of the Kltzmiller high school; Rev. W. B. Brock, of Oakland. Miss Lucy Trickett, superintendent of the young peoples' division, presided at the afternoon meeting in the absence of Rev. Waybright, and Rev. C. A. Shilke, of Oakland, presided during the evening session.

A banquet, prepared by the students of the high school at Kitzmiller, and supervised by Miss Trickett, was served.

Oakland was represented by eleven delegates—five from the Methodist church, five from the Lutheran and one from the Presbyterian. Crellin was represented by five delegates.

Three Inches of Rainfall Recorded During Week

Over three inches of rainfall has descended since last Thursday, according to the reading at the government weather station at Weber's, one mile south of Oakland. The largest amount was recorded from 7 o'clock, evening of the 12th, to 7 o'clock, evening of the 13th, when 1.24 inches fell. From 6 o'clock, evening of the 7th, to noon on the 8th, 1.23 inches fell.

Dam Is 83 Percent Full

Three inches was recorded during the past week at the Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric power house, which caused Deep Creek Lake to raise 1.1 feet, an increase of 165 million cubic feet of water, according to C. E. MacMurry, in charge. The level of the dam is now 4¼ feet below the spillway, and 3½ feet below the high level of two years ago. The dam at present is 83 percent full.

The rainfall records of the Weber station are as follows: Thursday, .12; Friday, 1.23; Sunday, .02; Monday, .06; Tuesday, .63; Wednesday, 1.24; Thursday, .12—total 3.42 inches.

WASHINGTON SPRING PARK CEREMONY HELD TUESDAY

Representatives of 24 Oakland Organizations Plant Trees—Notables Are Present

WASHINGTON TREE GIVEN

The beautification of Washington Spring Park was officially begun Tuesday afternoon when H. R. Laughlin, division superintendent of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad lifted the soil, and Mrs. John L. Alcock, of Towson, past president of the Maryland Federation of Women's clubs, planted the first tree, during a program which began at 3:30 o'clock.

Representatives from twenty-four organizations of Oakland, and other interested citizens were present to plant the trees which were presented them by the Oakland Civic club. These trees were obtained Tuesday morning when Bernard Moon and Beldin Ramsey, two boys of Oakland vicinity went to McHenry and dug 34 native maple trees and got them ready for transplanting. The trees were then hauled to the park by Mr. Cecil Ramsey and planted by organization representatives along the edge of the park next to the Oakland-Terra Alta highway.

Program Carried Out

A program was arranged and carried out in spite of the downpour of rain which descended after the ceremonies had started. The program was as follows: selection by Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland; invocation by Rev. J. W. Dawson; welcome by Dr. H. W. McComas; scripture reading by Rev. C. A. Shilke; recitation, "What do we plant when we plant a tree?" by Joseph Sollars; explanation of organizations tree planting, by Dr. H. W. McComas; presentation of trees of the different organizations to the Civic club by Mayor Grover Stemple; planting of trees by Mrs. John Alcock and Mr. H. R. Laughlin; recitations, "Shade" and "Salute to the Trees", by Rev. W. B. Brock; acceptance of trees by president of Civic club; planting of all other trees by the organizations.

Washington Tree Presented

One of the features of the program was a surprise presentation by Mrs. Alcock to Miss Lottie Loar, Civic club president. She brought to Oakland with her a grandchild tree of the Washington elm at Cambridge, Mass., which she presented to Miss Loar with the idea that it be planted in her garden this year and transplanted near Washington spring next year during the George Washington bi-centennial celebration.

A tree was planted by the Civic club in honor of Mr. Laughlin, who was instrumental in securing the ground for the public's use from the railroad company. A tree was also planted by the members of the Civic club in honor of Miss Lottie Loar, its president.

Last Friday evening twenty-nine members of the scout troop of Oakland raked the plot of ground on the east bank of the Little Youghiogheny river, and burned all brush, and is expected to begin shortly on the baseball diamond, tennis courts, ice skating pond and flower gardens. A memorial will be made of Washington spring and the work of restoring this to its original state has been taken over by Oakland Lodge No. 192, A., F., and A. M. This will be dedicated next year during the bi-centennial celebration.

Organizations which were represented at the ceremony on Tuesday include the following: Rotary club, Knights of Pythias, Masonic lodge, American Legion, Volunteer Firemen, Knights of Columbus, Parent-Teacher association, Legion Auxiliary, Eastern Star, Pythian Sisters, Boys' Band, Oakland Troop No. 1 Boy Scouts, Mothers' Circle, Parochial school, High school, Grammar school, Junior Drum and Bugle corps, Girl scouts, Nightingales, Girls' 4-H club, Bar association, School Board, County Commissioners, Boys' 4-H club.

Following the program a tea was held for members of the Civic club, organization representatives and guests, at the William-James hotel. The decorations and refreshments were suggestive of trees and tree planting.

Men and boys are asked to be at the park Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock. Dr. Bullard will be in charge. The landscape gardner of the B. and O. railroad will be in Oakland soon.

OFFSPRING OF FAMOUS OLD ELM TO BE PLANTED HERE

Was Presented To Miss Lottie Loar, Civic Club President, During Tuesday's Program

A grandchild tree, the offspring of the famous Washington Elm at Cambridge, Mass., was presented to Miss Lottie M. Loar, president of the Oakland Civic Club, by Mrs. John Alcock, of Towson, at the tree planting activities in Oakland on Tuesday afternoon.

The children of the famous tree under which Washington took command of the American Army at Cambridge, Mass., on July 3, 1775, have quite a history, as has the parent tree itself.

Several elm saplings, fifteen feet high, "grandchildren" trees of the Washington Elm, and grown in the yard of Mrs. James Hooper Dorsey, Baltimore, will occupy important niches in the plan of patriotic organizations throughout the country for the planting of 10,000,000 memorial trees in 1932 in honor of the bicentennial of the birth of George Washington.

One of the trees will be planted at Fort McHenry, Baltimore, this spring. Another will be planted along the boulevard being built near the Lincoln Memorial at Arlington, Va., while two others will be planted at Valley Forge and at Yorktown, Va., where Washington accepted Cornwallis' unconditional surrender. One will be sent to Sulgrave Manor, England, the ancestral home of General Washington. The trees were given to Mrs. Dorsey by a relative.

Thirty-five or forty years ago a famous Washington attorney, then a law student at Harvard, scooped up a handful of the seedling and took them home. Of the seedlings that grew, only three are still alive. One is planted in the garden of the Executive mansion at Annapolis and the others are at Washington's home at Mount Vernon. All are full grown trees now.

The tree which was presented to Miss Loar was given to Mrs. Alcock by Mrs. Dorsey, who has grown a number of seedlings from the "children" trees of the famous elm. It is to be dedicated next year when it is transplanted near the Washington spring in Oakland's new public park.

PUBLIC LOCAL LAW.

Incorporating Mountain Lake Park, Maryland

CHAPTER 507

AN ACT to incorporate the town of Mountain Lake Park, in Garrett County, Maryland, and to repeal Chapter 430 of the Acts of 1888, entitled "An Act to incorporate The Community of Mountain Lake Park," and to repeal Chapters 315 of 1896, 688 of 1914, 176 of 1916 and 160 of 1927 amending said Act, and providing for a referendum thereon.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Chapter 430 of the Acts of 1888, entitled "An Act to incorporate the Community of Mountain Lake Park," and Chapters 315 of 1896, 688 of 1914, 176 of 1916 and 160 of 1927, amending said Act, be and they are hereby repealed.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the inhabitants of the town of Mountain Lake Park, Garrett County, Maryland, are hereby incorporated by the name of Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park with all the powers and privileges of a body politic and corporate, and by that name may have perpetual succession, may sue and be sued, may have and use a common seal, and may hold real, personal and mixed property and dispose of the same when the best interest of the town may demand.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the corporate limits of the said town of Mountain Lake Park are hereby described to be as follows:

Beginning at East side of railroad bridge West of Mountain Lake Park railroad station and running with the South limits of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, Northeast 2300 feet to a line of the Mountain Lake Park Association grounds, thence with said line Northeast 2200 feet to the end thereof, and with the lines of the Association, Northwest 1300 feet, thence Northeast 1650 feet, thence Northwest 3450 feet, thence Southwest 3350 feet to the Southwest corner of Lot No. 3049 of the Mountain Lake Park Plat. Thence Southeast 1200 feet, thence Southwest 1650 feet to the Southwest corner of Lot No. 3064, thence Northwest 1300 feet, thence Southwest 4000 feet to South limits of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, thence with the South limits of said railroad Southeast to the place of beginning.

Sec. 4. And be it further enacted, That the first election for Mayor and Council shall be held before W. L. Camden, E. E. Friend, J. S. Elliott, W. B. Brock and Britton Martin, who are hereby appointed judges for that purpose and for the time hereinafter named; provided, that in case any of said judges named herein, shall be unable to act on account of sickness, death, refusal to act or otherwise, then the remaining judge or judges shall fill the vacancy or vacancies by appointing a suitable perso or persons residing in said town who are qualified voters therein in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Sec. 5. And be it further enacted, That said corporation shall be governed by a Mayor and five Councilmen. There shall be an election on the second Tuesday in August each year between the hours of one o'clock P. M. and seven o'clock P. M. and at said election on the second Tuesday of August, 1931, there shall be elected a Mayor to serve for two years, three councilmen to serve for two years and two councilmen to serve for one year and until their successors are elected and qualified; at the expiration of the term of the Mayor and the members of the Council, their successors shall be elected to serve for a term of two years and until the qualification of their successors. The Mayor and Councilmen shall be qualified voters and residents of said town.

Sec. 6. And be it further enacted, That all elections shall be by ballot, and all persons who are qualified to vote for members of the General Assembly of Maryland and who have resided in said town for six months next preceding any election and all persons, citizens of the United States and bona fide owners of real estate in said town for twelve months preceding any election, and the wives and or husbands and children of such owners who are 21 years of age or over, shall be entitled to vote at any town election. The Mayor and Council shall appoint at least three judges to hold all town elections held after the year 1931 and shall give at least ten days notice by hand bills posted in conspicuous places in said town naming the time and place when said election shall be held and the polls opened and closed. The Mayor and Council shall have power to pass such ordinances for conducting said town elections as may be deemed necessary and proper not in conflict with the provisions of this Act.

Sec. 7. And be it further enacted, That if at any election held under this Act two or more persons shall receive the same number of votes for Mayor or Councilmen of said town, the Judges of said election shall, after having given five days' notice of the time and place, proceed to hold another election to fill said office or offices, and the person or persons receiving the highest number of votes at said election shall, with those previously chosen, if any, constitute the Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park.

Sec. 8. And be it further enacted, That if any vacancy shall occur by death, resignation, removal or failure to act of the Mayor or one or more of the Councilmen elected as aforesaid, the remaining Councilmen, or a majority of them, shall elect a proper person to fill said vacancy.

Sec. 9. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and each Councilman, before he proceeds to act as such, shall make oath before some justice of the peace for Garrett County that he will diligently and faithfully, according to the best of his skill and judgment, perform the duties of his office without favor, partiality or prejudice, and a certificate of such qualification shall be returned by the said justice of the peace to the Mayor and Council, to be filed and recorded among their proceedings.

Sec. 10. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor shall preside at all meetings of the Council, unless prevented by sickness or reasonable cause, in which event the said Council may select a president pro tempore; he shall sign all ordinances of said town and shall countersign all orders and drafts drawn by the Clerk on the Treasurer of said town.

Sec. 11. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and Council shall appoint a clerk, who shall, before entering on his duties, make oath before the said Mayor or a justice of the peace, that he will well and faithfully perform the duties of his office as prescribed by this Act, or which may be prescribed by ordinance, to the best of his skill and judgment; he shall sign all drafts or orders for money appropriated or ordered by the Mayor and Council to be paid by the treasurer, and keep a record of the proceedings of said Mayor and Council in a book to be provided by them for that purpose, which shall at all times be open to the inspection of any person interested. The said Mayor and Council shall have power to fix his term of office and the amount of his compensation.

Sec. 12. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and Council shall have power to appoint a bailiff who, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall make oath before a justice of the peace for Garrett County that he will faithfully and impartially perform the duties imposed upon him by this Act and the ordinances of said town, and shall execute to the State of Maryland a bond with two good and sufficient securities to be approved by said Mayor and Council in such penalty as they may prescribe, conditioned that he shall well and faithfully perform the duties of said office in all things appertain thereto according to law and the ordinances of said Mayor and Council, and shall well and truly collect and pay over to the treasurer of said corporation all taxes levied by the Mayor and Council and all other sums of money that may be received by him for the use of said corporation.

Sec. 13. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and Council shall have power to appoint a treasurer who shall be a resident of said town qualified to vote for Mayor and Councilmen, and before entering upon the duties of his office shall give bond to the State of Maryland with two good and sufficient securities to be approved by the said Mayor and Council in such penalty as the Mayor and Council shall prescribe, conditioned that he shall well and faithfully account for all money paid over to him by the bailiff of said corporation, or that may be received by him from any other person or persons for the use of said corporation, and shall well and truly pay over to his successor in office or to the order of said Mayor and Council, and perform all other duties of his office according to law and the ordinances of said Mayor and Council; he shall keep full and correct account of all moneys received by him, with the sources from which received and the dates of such receipts, and of the disbursements made by him with the time when the persons to whom and what account the same were made.

Sec. 14. And be it further enacted, That said Mayor and Council may from time to time cause an assessment to be made of all the property liable to the State and County taxes within the corporate limits, and to levy a tax thereon not exceeding sixty cents on the one hundred dollars in any one year and that said property shall be assessed at its actual cash value. And the said Mayor and Council may appoint an assessor and collector of taxes and fix his salary or compensation, and provide for method of collecting the taxes by ordinance, and also the method of making assessments; and any person aggrieved by any assessment made under this provision shall have the right of an appeal to the said Mayor and Council of said town of Mountain Lake Park.

Sec. 15. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the said Mayor of the said town to see that the ordinances of the town are duly and faithfully executed, and he shall appoint, subject to the confirmation of the Council, all such persons as agents and servants of said corporation as may be necessary to carry out the objects and purposes of the corporation and enforce the ordinances to be passed thereby.

Sec. 16. And be it further enacted, That the said Council shall have power to pass such ordinances not contrary to the Constitution and laws of this State as it may deem necessary for the good government of the town, for the protection and preservation of the town's property, rights and privileges; for the preservation of peace and good order and securing persons and property from violence, danger and destruction; for the protection of health, comfort and convenience of the citizens of Mountain Lake Park and visitors thereto, or sojourners therein; for providing proper and suitable lights on the streets; for establishing maintaining and regulating an adequate police force; to regulate the management and location of livery stables, foundries, and all other establishments of which the business or trade may become obnoxious or injurious to public comfort and health; to prohibit the erection of such buildings, or the continuation of such noxious occupation therein, whenever the public health requires it; to prevent or regulate the use of fire-arms, fireworks, bonfires or other things or practices tending to endanger persons or property; to regulate or prohibit the running at large of cattle, horses, swine, fowls, sheep, goats, dogs, or other animals; to authorize the impounding, keeping, sale and redemption of such animals when found in violation of such ordinances, in such cases provided; to prevent the deposit of any unwholesome substance either on public or private property; to compel its removal to designated points, and to require slops, garbage, ashes and other waste or unwholesome material to be removed to designated points, or to require the occupants or residents on premises to place them conveniently for removal; to compel the occupants of any premises, buildings or outhouses, situated in said city, when the same have been filthy or unwholesome, to abate or clean the same; to authorize the same to be done by the proper officers and to assess the expense thereon against such property; to regulate or prevent the storage of gunpowder, tar, pitch, resin, coal oil, benzine, turpentine, hemp, cotton, nitro-glycerine, dynamite, giant powder, petroleum, gasoline or gas, or any product thereof, or any other explosive or combustible material or materials which may seem to be dangerous; to authorize the removal or confinement of such persons having infectious or pestilential diseases; to pass all ordinances and orders and to expend such sums of money as may be necessary within the limitations therein provided for the protection, maintenance and preservation of the water supply of the city and the prevention of the pollution thereof; to regulate the selling, weighing or measuring of hay, wood, coal, coke and all other articles sold by weight and measure, and to provide for their inspection and selling; to make all regulations which may be deemed expedient for the promotion of health or suppression of disease; to regulate the construction of chimneys, smoke stacks, hearths, ovens, and the erection of stoves and pipes, boilers and apparatus used in buildings and other places; and cause the same to be removed or made secure when considered dangerous; to suppress or restrain bawdy houses of ill fame and to prohibit the youth of said city from being on the streets, lanes or alleys at unseasonable hours of the night; to punish and suppress tramps and vagrants by imposing fines or both fines and imprisonment at hard labor, and to abate by appropriate ordinances all nuisances in said town which are so defined at common law, whether the same are herein specified or not; to regulate the use of sidewalks and all structures in, under or over the same; to regulate and prevent the throwing or depositing of sweepings, dust, ashes, offal, dirt, garbage, paper, hand bills, dirty liquors or any other materials into any street, alley or public place; to regulate and prevent the use of streets, sidewalks and public places for signs, sign posts, awning, awning posts, poles, horse troughs, steps, railroad entrances, racks, posting hand bills and advertisements and display of goods, wares and merchandise; to cause the streets, lanes and alleys, to be side walked, paved, graded, repaired, repaved, regraded, drained, or sewered, or to close streets or parts of streets, lanes or alleys; to regulate and license the use of coaches, hacks, drays, and all other vehicles for the transportation of passengers, freight or other articles to or from points within said city for hire or pay; to regulate, license, tax, restrain or prohibit theatrical and other exhibitions, shows or entertainments, for which money is demanded or received, provided that lectures on scientific, historic, benevolent, artistic, religious or literary subjects and appartus for the elucidation of the same and specimens of fine art shall not be deemed to be within these provisions; to regulate the sales of all kinds of property at auctions in the streets, stores, shops or elsewhere in the city; and to license auctioneers and all vendors of property on the streets or squares, or other public places in the said town, to license, tax, regulate, suppress or prohibit hawkers and itinerant dealers, peddlers and pawn brokers, and to revoke such license at pleasure; to license, tax, regulate and prohibit the keeping or harboring of dogs; to license, tax and regulate branch stores and all other concerns established in said town for temporary business only.

Sec. 17. And be it further enacted, That the said Mayor and Council shall have the power to compel the property owners building along any of said streets, lanes or alleys, so accepted by said corporation and recorded among its proceedings to construct and keep in repair sidewalks and footways of their property binding on said streets and roads not exceeding two hundred feet and may pass all such ordinances as may be necessary to compel the construction and repair of said sidewalks. And they shall have power to enforce the construction and repair of sidewalks by fines imposed upon the property owners for a failure to construct and repair after fifteen days' notice previously given, which said fines shall be collectible as other fines imposed for the violation of the ordinances of the town as hereinafter set forth and stated.

Sec. 18. And be it further enacted, That said Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park may establish and maintain a town lockup and may confine therein all persons convicted of violation of their ordinances, and in default of the payment of fines imposed for such violations or may, at their option, confine such persons in the county jail at the expense of said town or they may require such persons in default of payment of fine to work out such fines and costs upon the streets or other improvements of said town, such person to be allowed as a credit on such fines or costs the same wages as are paid other employes of said town for the same character of work.

Sec. 19. And be it further enacted, That all fines, penalties and forfeitures imposed for violating any ordinances passed by said Mayor and Council shall be recoverable by the Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park before any justice of the peace of the State of Maryland, residing in Election District No. 7, in Garrett County, as may be elected police justice for said town by said Mayor and Council and no other, as small debts and shall be paid to the Mayor and Council for the use of said town. And anyone feeling aggrieved by any judgment rendered by said police justice shall have the right of appeal to the Circuit Court for Garrett County at the next term of said court, but no judgment, fine or penalty imposed shall be stayed unless the party taking the appeal shall file a bond to be approved by the said justice in double the amount of the fine and costs to the Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park, conditioned upon the successful prosecution of said appeal.

Sec. 20. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park shall have full power to provide for the introduction of water, electric light or gas into said town, and to effectuate such object may contract with or grant unto any other body, public or private, or to any individual or partnership the right or franchise within the limits of said town for the purpose of operating a passenger railway, water works or electric light plant, the granting of such franchises to be regulated by the ordinances of the said Mayor and Council; and also may grant the right to lay conduits or water mains through the streets, alleys or highways of said town; and authority is hereby given said Mayor and Council to condemn private property, if the same should become necessary for the operation of the aforesaid franchise; said condemnation proceedings to be in accordance with the general laws of the State of Maryland as are in such cases applicable thereto; and also to construct, purchase and operate an electric light plant or water works for the benefit of the town whenever, in their judgment, the interest of said town demands the same; and to contract or provide for the furnishing or supplying of water, electric light or gas in sufficient quantities for the needs of the town and the inhabitants thereof by any other body corporate, public or private, or by any individual or individuals, and to that end to enter upon and effectuate such object it shall have full power to erect, maintain and equip electric light poles and to lay water mains and conduits, erect fire plugs and generally do all things that may be necessary to provide water for said town in such quantity and at such places as may be necessary to protect it at all times against fire; and they shall have power to pass all such ordinances as may be necessary to carry into effect provisions of this section.

Sec. 21. And be it further enacted, That in event the Mayor and Council shall provide for the purchasing or supplying of water, electric light or gas to said town by some other body corporate, public or private, or any individual or partnership, and shall deem it expedient or necessary that said town erect, maintain and equip its own electric light poles and equipments, water mains, conduits and fire plugs, the said Mayor and Council, to defray the necessary cost and municipal taxation; and the Mayor and Council in making their annual levy of municipal taxes after said bonds are issued shall fix the rate sufficient to provide for the payment of the interest on said bonds and create a sinking fund for their redemption.

Sec. 22. And be it further enacted, That all Acts and parts of Acts inconsistent with any provision of this Act are hereby repealed.

Sec. 23. And be it further enacted, That for the purpose of determining whether the citizens of said Mountain Lake Park desire to incorporate, there shall be held an election on the second Tuesday of July, 1931, between the hours of 1 o'clock P. M. and 7 o'clock P. M. under the supervision of the committee named in Section 4 of this Act. The qualifications of voters at this special election shall be the same as those hereinbefore set forth in regard to regular town elections.

The said committee shall, not less than five days before said referendum election, post in five conspicuous places in said town a written or printed notice notifying all the residents of said town who are qualified to vote under this Act that an election will be held on the date fixed in this Act at a certain place and between certain hours, which notice shall contain the said date, the hours that the polls will remain open and the location of the polling place or places, and a statement that the election is to be held for the purpose of deciding whether or not to adopt this charter and form an incorporated town.

The said committee shall provide and furnish the place or places at each such election shall be held, the booths, ballot boxes and sufficient number of printed ballots, which ballots shall contain the words "For Incorporation," shall be printed, and on another line the words "Against Incorporation," with squares opposite each.

Said election shall be conducted as nearly as practicable as an election for county offices is conducted in all points not specially provided for in it at all times against fire; and they shall have power to pass all such ordinances as may be necessary to carry into effect provisions of this section.

Sec. 24. And be it further enacted, That in the event that this charter is adopted by the citizens of said Mountain Lake Park under the provisions of the referendum above set forth, then the committee named in Sec. 4 of this Act shall hold the election for town officials as provided for in Section 5 of this Act and in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Sec. 25. And be it further enacted, That if any section or part of a section, or any provision of this Act shall be held invalid, such invalidity shall not affect any other provision of this Act.

Sec. 26. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1931.

Approved April 17, 1931.

JESUS ENTERS JERUSALEM AS KING

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:29-48.

GOLDEN TEXT—These shall make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them: for he is Lord of lords, and King of kings: and they that are with him are called, and chosen, and faithful.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaches the People That He Is King.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Teaches the People That He Is King.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loyalty to the King.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Supremacy of Jesus.

This event is frequently designated as the "triumphal entry" which is somewhat misleading. While it was his official entry into Jerusalem, it was far from being a triumphal entry. In fulfillment of prophecy the Messiah officially presented himself to the Jewish nation. It seems that back of the cry "Hosanna" was taking form the awful word "crucify." It is possible that the word "crucify" was uttered by some of the same persons who had cried "Hosanna." Though they were utterly blind to the fact, God was about to carry out his plan of Hosanna which means "save now" through the crucifixion of his son.

I. The Preparation (vv. 29-34).

1. Sending the disciples for the ass (vv. 29-30).

He told them just where to go to find it, and how to answer the inquiry of the one who owned it. This shows how perfectly the Lord knows all our ways.

2. The fulfillment of prophecy (Zech. 9: 9, Cf. Matt. 21: 4, 5).

Some five hundred years before, Zechariah had predicted this event. Christ's entry into Jerusalem was an exact fulfillment of this prediction. This is highly instructive to those who would understand the as yet unfulfilled prophecies. Since the predictions of his first coming were literally fulfilled, we can expect the second to be literally fulfilled also. The first is established beyond a doubt. The second we should as heartily believe. The prediction of Zechariah 14: 3-11 will be just as literally fulfilled as that of Zechariah 9: 9.

3. Obedience of the disciples (vv. 32-34).

The request may have seemed strange and even unreasonable, yet they fully obeyed. The true disciple will render glad obedience to the Lord, no matter how strange his commands may seem. Obedience to that only which seems reasonable is not obedience at all. May we prove that we are really his disciples by obeying him.

II. The Entry of the King (vv. 35-38).

1. The disciples set Jesus upon the ass (v. 35).

This act of putting the garments upon the ass and setting Jesus upon it showed that they recognized him as their king (II Kings 9:13).

2. Acclaimed as king by the disciples (vv. 36-38).

Some spread their garments in the way, others perhaps having no garments to spare cut down branches of trees and strewed them in his way. This, no doubt, was just as acceptable to him. They praised God for all the mighty works which they had seen.

III. The Critical Pharisees (vv. 39, 40).

Although swept along by the demonstrations of the multitude, the Pharisees deemed it prudent to ask the Lord to rebuke the disciples, as such behaviour might be interpreted by the Roman government as an insurrection. To their demand Jesus replied that such homage was not only fitting but necessary. He declared that if the multitude were silent, the very stones would cry out.

IV.—The King Rejected (vv. 41-44).

Christ knew what awaited him in Jerusalem. Though surrounded by loyal hearts, he knew that the rulers of the nation had no heart for him. His coming trial and death loomed before him so that he wept over Jerusalem. He knew what awful days awaited it and that loyal hearts would gladly welcome him if they only knew. He showed them that their inability to see him as their King and Saviour would result in bringing upon them the destruction of their city.

V. The King Taking Possession of His Own House (vv. 45-48).

Upon entering the city he rebuked the rulers for allowing the house of God to become degraded by carrying on traffic therein for gain. The cleansing of the temple only increased their hatred and opposition to him. The chief priests and scribes even sought his destruction.

Christian Service

There is something deadly in Christian service, where "the excellency of the power" is of us and not of God—The tragedy in so many lives is here; they have no adequate power house, and when they are confronted with a supremely difficult task they fail to cope with it and are disastrously overwhelmed.—Jowett.

TWENTY-SEVEN WEDDINGS OCCURRED DURING WEEK

Total For The Month of May to Date Is Thirty-three

Twenty-seven marriage licenses were issued during the week ending at noon on Monday from the office of the Circuit Court for Garrett County, making the total for the month of May up to that time 33.

Saturday gave way to Wednesday in the greatest number of licenses issued for any one day, nine being issued on May 5. Five licenses issued were marked "don't publish," while the applications of two couples for licenses were refused by the clerk on legal grounds.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By SCOOP—HIMSELF

Now that we have received more than a bountiful rain during the week the farmers won't have another thing to talk about except farm relief, high taxes, lengthy school terms, low prices, too many eggs, attendance officer, no money, long hours, and "how you gonna keep 'em down on the farm."

The rain affected all some way. For myself it has recalled to my mind that I need a new pair of shoes; that the top of my Ford needs painting; that the whole car needs washing; that I need a new raincoat; that my old hat is still good enough; that the roof of The Republican building needs a coat of paint; that I can still get soaked and not take cold (provided I attend a tree planting); that the streets of Oakland are cleaner; that I didn't allow for shrinkage when I bought my socks and therefore have no "s. a." (sox appeal); that there is nothing quite so wet as water.

The rain it falleth every day
Upon the just and unjust fellow;
It's usually upon the just because
The unjust hath the just's umbrella.

The rain is bad for the advance straw hat sale, but Coffman-Fisher has a hat advertising idea that is attracting a lot of attention. Too bad they had to break the window like that. Oh, all right; if you say so; I guess it's not broken.

* * *

The heighth of extravagance: Francis E. "Dub" Gonder let his electric lights burn all thru the night and then some at his store last Saturday night. And if it hadn't been for early mass he probably wouldn't have found it out before noon on Sunday. The electric company should order more thunder storms around the Howesville substation about 11 o'clock in the evening. "Dub" made it from Hinebaugh's corner to his store in six seconds flat e. s. t., when someone told him about the money he was allowing to be burned up.

Through some of Scoop's back alley reporters it has been discovered that Teecee Bi Tinger became moonstruck during the daytime last week-end. Probably trying out that old musical memory, "Get out and get under the Moon." Page the Hatfields and McCoys of Southern West Virginia.

The rain and cool weather did another good thing. It held off the fly season another few days. I chased a beautiful, squzzy green one all around the front office on Monday and finally cornered him under the window shade where I pounded on the window so hard that people down on the street looked up and returned frantic waves and swats. Probably thought I was an old college chum or long lost buddy. Anyway I began to feel guilty and let the darn thing escape. Now that makes an extra million one for all of you to swat this summer.

Ikey Sincell evidently is trying a new way this year to kill the pests. He got hold of the wrong bottle in Harned's drug store the other day and filled up his cigar lighter with one of flit's relatives. Probably planning to burn off their wings.

Coming down the court house steps after the meeting on Monday regarding healthy nurses and home demons, three gentlemen (we'll give them the benefit of the doubt) remarked that the entire thing was cut and dried, that it wasn't any use to open one's mouth against the two offices. Mr. Browning must have asked ten times that if there was anyone present who was against the continuance of the two positions, that the commissioners would be glad to listen to them.

Now these "gentlemen" will probably have plenty to say about a lot of things behind the backs of those who have come out in the open.

The Democratic State Central committee members seemingly are walking along the banks of a stream, trying to make up their minds whether or not they are going to get their foot in it.

* * *

In trying to keep up with all tree plantings, lodge aniversary celebrations and numerous other incidents, Scoop was unable to interview his various reporters stationed throughout the town and county this week. Anyway the boss editor needs this space.

THURSDAY, MAY 14, 1931.

THE POPULATION OF MARYLAND

A bulletin just issued by the Census Bureau supplements the information previously given concerning the population of Maryland with some very interesting details not included in the earlier bulletins.

The Bureau includes in the urban population all residents of incorporated cities and towns having as many as 2,500 inhabitants. This population, it states, formed 59.8 per cent of the total population in 1930, as compared with 60 per cent in 1920.

The number of persons living on farms has decreased 41,484, or 14.9 per cent in the past decade, while the rural population not engaged in farming has increased 117,902, or 39 per cent.

The number of children under one year of age was 10.7 per cent less than in 1920, and under five years of age, 1.6 per cent less, while there was an increase of 23.1 per cent in the age groups above fifty-four years.

Illiteracy in the poulation over ter. years of age has dropped from 5.6 to 3.8 per cent, and the proportion of the population between seven and thirteen attending school has mounted from 92.6 to 96.4 per cent.

The male workers in gainful occupations constituted 62,7 per cent of the whole male population, and the female workers constituted 19.5 per cent of the female population.

The percentages of white and colored in the population of the State shows little change. Only 5.8 per cent are of foreign birth, only 13.4 per cent of foreign or mixed parentage, and more than half of the foreign-born have been naturalized.

These figures throw light on several modern trends, and are worthy of careful consideration, says the Baltimore News.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

The residence of John T. Mitchell, on Second street, was discovered to be on fire Wednesday evening, but the flames were subdued in a few minutes. Fire in the home of F. Stansberry on Oak street was also extinguished with little resultant damage to the property.

William Trenton, Maysville, W. Va., came to Oakland and assumed the position of head weaver in the Oakland Woolen Mills, then owned by the late Arnold Scherr.

Capt. Newman, an Episcopal clergyman, organized a company of boys into a military unit and was engaged quite frequently in teaching them the manual of arms and in marching.

As Philip Davis was driving down Third street with a load of hay he permitted his horses to walk into the glass front of O. Hart & Son's store, breaking one of the large windows.

The building committee of the M. E. church of Oakland awarded a contract for the erection of the present St. Paul's church to Spedden & Bolden, Oakland contractors, for $5,140. There were three bids submitted for the work, the difference in all three being but $57.00.

"Uncle" John Peters papered his tailoring shop.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Through a notice printed in The Republican, Crook Post, No. 35, Grand Army of the Republic, requested a general turnout of citizens, school children and organizations for Memorial Day observance.

Fires in timberlands of the county burned much valuable property, including fencing and several hundred sugar maple trees in the orchards of Albert Brenneman and Thomas B. Wiley, near Bittinger.

Marriage licenses were issued to Grover Lininger and Grace Fox, both of near Accident; Ira Glotfelty, McHenry, and Tillie Miner, Deer Park; Asa Callis, Mt. Lake Park, and Mary Lloyd, New Market, Va.; Oscar Turney, Oakland, and Ethel Casteel, Deer Park; Truman Nethkin and Ida M. Moats, both of Clerrin.

The fourth annual commencement of the Oakland high school was held in the Empire Theatre. Those receiving diplomas of graduation included Misses Mary Harsch, Marguerite Hart, Ruth McRobie, Mary Porter, Mary Salzman, Bertie Turney, Ella Cleveland, Veronica Rasche; Thomas Little, A. Milton Turney, Gilderoy Whorton, Patrick E. Murphy.

An Interesting Fact

MARYLAND'S HAND-PICKED COLONISTS

For ages there has been a tendency on the part of the world population to move westward. After the population of a certain country rises above a certain density, there is always a certain portion of the people who are ready to set out to seek new homes. This percentage is always the most energetic and adventurous.

In addition to the class indicated and the refugees from religious persecution, there was another element that entered largely into the settlement of Maryland and the other Colonies. As to this last class of immigrants, "convicts" and indentured servants, much has been made by early writers unfriendly to or perhaps prejudiced against the Colonies on the Chesapeake. But no unfavorable conclusion can be drawn from the importation of this class of settlers when we understand the harsh laws of the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries. It must be remembered that under King James I and George I those guilty of minor offenses and entitled to "benefit of clergy," might be deported to America as redemptioners under bond for services. Thus it will be seen that a very large element of the persons thus deported were made up of all kinds of classes, from high class political offenders to minor law breakers and even actual criminals. It was from this class—redemptioners, debtors and "convicts"—that sprang the kind of men that conquered the wilderness and secured the blessings of self-government.

But the practice of sending this class of persons to our shores was objectionable to the high-class Colonists, and as early as 1676 Maryland passed an "Act against the importation of convicted persons into this Province." The Crown lawyers objected to this Act on the ground that every law of the Colonial legislature passed to restrain a measure that was allowed and encouraged by acts of Parliament was void. The Colonists, finding that the laws passed by their legislatures were ineffectual to stop the practice, the Lower House of the Assembly, during the French and Indian War, passed a law imposing a tax upon imported convicts.

Nevertheless, the mother country, as in the case of slavery and other institutions and practices which she established and sought to fasten upon the American Colonies, persisted in her efforts to override our objections to deporting undesirables to these shores. In 1697 the Council of Plantations and Trades were advised that there were "about fifty women convicts" awaiting transportation to America and the Lords Justice of England desired to know where it was best to send them. It would seem that the New England Colonies had attempted to create the impression that they, as well as other convicts, would be welcome in Maryland. But this was not true, for we find that our State had passed laws against the reception of convicts, but at the same time sought to discriminate between rogues and incorrigibles on the one hand and political prisoners, prisoners for conscience sake and unfortunates held for petty offenses on the other.

ARGUMENTS FAVORING 2 COUNTY POSITIONS HEARD

Oakland stands very much in favor of continuing the health program in the county."

C. B. Sines, of Swallow Falls, stated that the health nurse was of no benefit to the community. Two others expressed themselves against the nursing program.

Chairman Browning gave everyone an opportunity to express their views on the matter and at the conclusion of the remarks of the various speakers, the following resolution was presented and adopted with but three dissenting voices:

Be it resolved, By the residents of Garrett county in public meeting assembled this 11th day of May, 1931, that the County Commissioners be, and they are hereby directed, to continue the present public health program in Garrett county.

Plea Made for H. D. Agent

Dr. T. B. Symons, director of Extension service, University of Maryland; and representatives of Homemakers clubs, granges, and other organizations, requested the commissioners to retain the home demonstration agent, pointing out the numerous advantages which have been received from this source.

Mrs. T. C. Bittinger, Oakland; Mrs. O. S. Ridder, Sunnyside; Mrs. C. C. Beachy, Accident; Mrs. Casteel, of Hoyes; Mrs. C. E. Hardesty, Loch Lynn; Mrs. James Elliott, Mt. Lake Park; Mrs. Duling, Kempton; Mr. D. M. Lower, former master of Sunnyside Grange; A. D. Naylor, James Towler, H. V. Leighton, and several others all spoke in favor of the work done by the home demonstration agent. Mr. Lower presented the resolution requesting the commissioners to provide for the position of home demonstration agent. There were no representatives of the opposition.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mr. Browning, president of the board of commissioners, stated that the demand of the taxpayers for lower taxes had caused the abolition of the two offices, but if the commissioners deemed that a majority of the people wanted them they would be retained. The decision of the commissioners will be announced within a few days, it was said.

The commissioners were thanked by the delegations present for the opportunity of expressing their views.

Beyond the County

At Chicago six men have been arrested for participating in a bank robbery totalling $2,800,000, America's largest bank robbery.

In Washington, Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury and his brother Richard B. Mellon, were awarded an honorary medal for aid given science research over the past twenty years.

At Rouen, France, the 500th anniversary of the martyrdom of Joan of Arc is being celebrated, the Maid of Orleans having been burned at the stake May 30, 1431.

At Fairmont, W. Va., Maj. Samuel D. Brady and Harry B. Clark, pioneer coal men of National acquaintance, died as a result of heart disease within a few days of each other.

At Quantico, Va., Miss Anna Jarvis, founder of Mother's Day, (formerly of Grafton, W. Va.,) is quoted as saying that a million dollars worth of flowers are sold on that day, and that she deplores that Mother's Day has been commercialized.

At Madrid, Spain, on Monday, mobs surged through the streets burning ten Catholic institutions, including the Carmelite Convent, near the former royal palace, attacking numerous others, in anti-church demonstrations, for which former King Alfonso is blamed.

In New York, lovers have been barred from "Lover's Leap Cliff", from which three persons have jumped to their death, the site having been acquired for the erection of a mausoleum.

At Purchase, N. Y., King Prajadhipok, of Siam, is recovering after a successful operation for the removal of a cataract from his left eye, he having traveled half way around the world in order to have the operation performed in this country.

At Philippi, W. Va., tobacco has been officially prescribed as a ration for prisoners by the County Court of Barbour county, while they are working on the roads.

In Chicago, the Presbyterian hospital has announced that coupon books have been placed on sale for prospective mothers, calling for the payment as low as five dollars a month, so that babies may now be paid for on the installment plan the same as radios.

In Washington the pastor of Calvert Baptist church declares there are 3,000 speakeasies in that city, blaming the condition on the churches, saying that three-fourth of the church people do not care whether the city is cleaned up or not.

In Texas, at a meeting of the postmasters of that state, Assistant Postmaster General Tilton, announced that the postal deficit at the end of this fiscal year would be 140 million dollars, partly due, he said, to the franking privilege.

At Manchester, England, the Prince of Wales, in a public address, advised British business men that they would have to copy American sales and advertising methods if they wanted a greater share in the South American trade.

In Kentucky, Federal Judge Cochran held that if a Federal prohibition agent smells malt, mash or other ingredients of illicit beverages emanating from a building not used as a residence, he has a legal right to search the place.

In Iowa, when a well digging machine penetrated to the depth of 225 feet in an effort to secure water, a windstorm issued from the bowels of the earth, drying up the well which had 60 feet of water when the air pocket was struck.

In Baltimore, Dr. Rowland, dean of U. of Maryland Medical school, declared his opposition to the so-called "death sleep" for imbeciles and incurables, declaring that such a law would be followed by tragic and terrible events.

Shrimp Aspic

One level tablespoon gelatine, ¾ cup cooked or canned shrimp, 2 cups tomatoes, ½ cup water, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 cloves, 1 teaspoon sugar, ¼ cup cold water, ¼ cup diced celery, 2 tablespoons diced green pepper, 1 bay leaf, 1 small onion, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, few grains pepper.

Cook tomatoes, water, salt, pepper, cloves, bay leaf, sugar, mustard and onion together twenty minutes. Soak gelatine in cold water five minutes. Strain tomato mixture into gelatine and stir until gelatine is dissolved. Cool and when it begins to thicken, add shrimps cut in halves, celery and green pepper. Pour into wet individual molds and chill until firm . When ready to serve, unmold on lettuce and garnish with mayonnaise.

Lettuce Rolls

One cup cottage cheese, ½ cup mayonnaise, lettuce, salt, pimento.

Mix cottage cheese with mayonnaise and season with salt. Spread on large lettuce leaves and roll each leaf as you would a jelly roll. Secure in place with a ring of pimento. Serve rolls on shredded lettuce.

Pineppale and Cucumber Salad

One level tablespoon gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, ½ cup chopped cucumber, ½ cup pineapple, ¼ cup boiling water, 2 tablespoons sugar, ¼ cup mild vinegar, ⅔ cup pineapple syrup, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, few grains salt.

Soak gelatine in cold water five minutes, then dissolve in boiling water. Add sugar, vinegar, pineapple syrup, lemon juice and salt, and stir until sugar is dissolved. Cool and when nearly set, stir in pineapple and cucumber and mold. When firm, unmold on bed of lettuce and garnish with mayonnaise that has been mixed with an equal amount of whipped cream. Sprinkle with chopped candide cherries.

GOT UNIFORM AT SOURCE, AIDED BY FIRE OFFICIAL

Fireman Anticipates Greater Entertainment in Third Alarm

James Hall, when engaged by Tiffany for the romantic masculine lead in "The Third Alarm," received a hurry call one day to the effect that production would start three days earlier than expected.

"Better get down to the costumer's, right away and get fitted into a fireman's uniform," he was told.

Hall had a better idea. He dropped into a fire station where he happened to know some of the men. The captain in charge, an old-timer in the business, learned that Hall wanted the uniform for "The Third Alarm" and promptly sent him to the source of regulation uniforms. Hall was thirty minutes getting perfectly fitted.

"You see, I went to that show when it was a silent picture," the captain explained to Hall. "It was one of the finest I ever saw. I can see how the talking picture of it could be greatly superior because of the many sounds connected with a fire and fire equipment. So I just naturally want to help out all I can, and I think you're the man for the part."

"The Third Alarm" is a Tiffany special production presenting a really remarkable cast which includes leading stars in the picture world.

"The Third Alarm" will be presented at the Maryland Theatre Monday and Tuesday nights, May 18 and 19, for the benefit of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department. See it!

Frank F. Goss Not Dead.

The Republican in its last issue printed a news item wherein the death of Frank F. Goss, formerly of Oakland, was announced. This error was caused by the misinterpretation of a telegrm received by a member of the family of Elmer Goss in which it was stated that Mr. Goss was in a Pittsburgh hospital and his death was momentarily expected. He suffered a stroke of paralysis several days ago and was taken to a Pittsburgh hospital. Following the dispatch of the telegram Mr. Goss rallied and is now at his home in Pittsburgh.

DIED.

JOHN WALTER LYTLE

John Walter Lytle, aged 16 years, 6 months and 29 days, died at his home at Selbysport on May 7. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Lytle, by whom, with two brothers, he is survived. Funeral services were held Sunday morning in the M. E. church at Selbysport, Rev. T. E. Shea officiating. Interment was made in the Friendsville cemetery. The pallbearers were his Sunday school classmates. His death was sudden and its announcement was a shock as he was young, trustworthy and loved by all who knew him.

JASPER GUARD

Jasper Guard, a life-long resident of the Friendsville community, where he was highly esteemed, died on May 9, 1931, following a brief illness. His funeral occurred on Monday afternoon. Mr. Guard was born at Guard, Garrett county, on October 21, 1851. He is survived by several children, among them being Mrs. Chas. Brown, of Kingwood; Earl Guard and Mrs. Stotler, of Friendsville. A son, C. V. Guard, recently died in Pittsburgh, Pa., where he had been a resident for a few years after leaving Friendsville. Mr. Guard was a justice of the peace of Friendsville, having recently been reappointed to that office by Governor Ritchie. He was an uncompromising Democrat of the old school; highly respected by all who knew him and a man everyone liked.

WALTER R. SELBY

Walter R. Selby died on Thursday, May 7, at Akron, Ohio, from injuries received in an automobile accident at Akron on New Year's Day when he suffered a fracture of the skull. He was a son of Mrs. Ethel Selby, daughter of the late Captain and Mrs. R. R. Sanner, who resided in Oakland a number of years preceding their deaths.

McIntire, trading and doing business as Oakland Hardware and Furniture Company, vs. The Emmons Coal Mining Company of West Virginia, a corporation, the same being No. 9 Judicials, June Term, 1931, in said Court, I, the undersigned Sheriff of Garrett County, Maryland, did seize, levy upon and take under execution by actual entry all of the hereinafter described real estate of said defendant corporation, and I hereby give notice that on at the hour of two o'clock P. M., in front of the property located in Garrett County, Maryland, opposite the Lovely Bridge on the Public Road leading from Oakland to Accident, I will offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder, said real estate, the same being described as follows, to-wit:

1. Beginning for the first parcel at a stake (to be substituted by a cut or corner stone or a concrete monument) which point is located on the North margin of the county road leading from Gorman to Bayard, and at the line dividing the Nugent property from that of Robert Guthrie and running thence North 30 minutes East, 374 feet to a stake; thence South 89 degrees and 30 minutes East, to another stake and stone pile, 306 feet; thence running South 30 minutes West, 396 feet to a stake on the North margin of the county road; thence with the North margin of the county road, North 86 degrees and 20 minutes West, 314 feet to the place of beginning containing the quantity of 2 75-100 acres of land.

This being the same property which was conveyed unto the said The Emmons Coal Mining Company of West Virginia by deed from Helen V. Nugent and husband, dated August 7th, 1920, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 79, folio 48, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

2. Beginning for the second parcel at a stake planted on the North margin of the county road leading from Gorman to Bayard, on the Maryland side, and running thence across said county road, South 30 degrees West, to the low water mark of the Potomac River, this beginning being at the Southeast corner of the land belonging to The Emmons Coal Mining Company of West Virginia, and thence running with the meanderings of the Potomac River to a point direct from the West line to the said South west corner across the county road, North 00 degrees 30 minutes East, 30 feet to the South boundary of the aforesaid lot; thence across the present North line of the said public county road to the place of beginning, containing more or less, the said county road being 30 feet wide; this embraces and intends to embrace all the property of the grantors between the South line of the aforesaid lot and the low water line of the Potomac River except the 30 feet occupied by public county road is not to be disturbed, but to be used as said public road as long as the public asks for it.

This being the same property which was conveyed unto the said The Emmons Coal Mining Company of West Virginia by deed from Helen V. Nugent and husband, dated August 18th, 1921, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 80, folio 392, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

The above property is improved by a large stone dwelling and has heretofore been used and occupied as the home of the Superintendent of the said The Emmons Coal Mining Company of West Virginia.

TERMS OF SALE—Cash on the day of sale. Conveyancing at cost of purchaser.

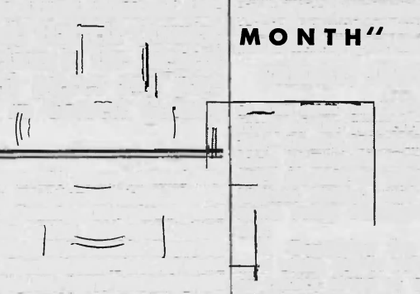
23 ROOMS IN OUR HOME—

Current Only —

MONTH"



IT takes a lot of electricity to keep a twenty-three room house adequately and attractively lighted—and to keep the domestic machinery running smoothly. Just the matter of operating the vacuum cleaner becomes an important item when there is so much floor space to cover.

Then too, five in the family means plenty of work not only for the electric washer and mangle and iron; but for a good big electric refrigerator as well. And in addition, an electric fan, waffle iron, hair curler and sewing machine are in frequent use.

Yet our electricity bill is only $6.76 an average month. Is there any wonder that we feel it is exceptionally satisfactory and economical? Mrs. E. A. B. (a Monongahela customer—Elkins).

ECONOMY IN ELECTRIC COOKING

Besides all this, Mrs. E. A. B. could enjoy the advantages of electric cooking by using only about 130 more kilowatt hours.

Since she is using 179 kilowatt hours, the additional 130 would cost her $2.27. In 1924, this total of 309 kilowatt hours which now cost $9.03 would have cost her $24.34.

It is our policy not only to decrease the cost of current, step by step, with increased consumption; but also to study constantly how to improve our service.

CHAPTER XIII

The most important question that confronted us in the preparation of our forces of citizen soldiery for efficient service was training. Except for the Spanish-American war nearly twenty years before, actual combat experience of the regular army had been limited to the independent action of minor commands in the Philippines and to two expeditions into Mexico, each with forces smaller than a modern American division.

The World war involved the handling of masses where even a division was relatively a small unit. It was one thing to call 1,000,000 or 2,000,000 men to the colors, and quite another thing to transform them into an organized, instructed army capable of meeting and holding its own in battle against the best trained force in Europe with three years' actual war experience to its credit.

A general scheme of schools for the A. E. F. was prepared by the operations and training section, but in order that this instruction should be as complete and uniform as possible and at the same time be co-ordinated with other activities, I declared that training should be handled by officers who could devote their entire time to it. An additional section of the headquarters staff therefore was established, called the training section, to function under my personal direction. As chief of this section Col. Paul B. Malone was chosen, with Col. H. B. Fiske as his assistant.

Appeal in British Methods.

The British methods of teaching trench warfare appealed to me very strongly. They taught their men to be aggressive and undertook to perfect them in hand-to-hand fighting with bayonet, grenade and dagger. A certain amount of this kind of training was necessary to stimulate the morale of troops by giving them confidence in their own personal prowess.

Through the kindness of Sir Douglas Haig we were fortunate early in our experience to have assigned to us Lieut. Gen. R. H. K. Butler and other officers of the British army to assist in this individual training.

Later on several French and British officers also came to lecture at a number of our schools.

Differ on War Principles.

We found difficulty, however, in using these allied instructors in that the French and, to a large extent, the British had practically settled down to the conviction that developments since 1914 had changed the principles of warfare. Both held that new conditions imposed by trench fighting had rendered previous conceptions of training more or less obsolete and that preparation for open warfare no longer was necessary. French publications and manuals were generally in accord with this theory.

If the French doctrine had prevailed our instruction would have been limited to a brief period of training for trench fighting. A new army brought up entirely on such principles would have been seriously handicapped without the protection of the trenches. It would probably have lacked the aggressiveness to break through the enemy's lines and the knowledge of how to carry on thereafter.

It was evident that the victory could not be won by the costly process of attrition, but that we should have to drive the enemy out into the open and engage him in a war of movement. Instruction in open warware was based upon individual and group initiative, resourcefulness and tactical judgment, which were of equal advantage in trench warfare.

Therefore, we took decided issue with the allies, and, without neglecting thorough preparations for trench warfare, undertook to train mainly for open warfare, with the object from the start of vigorously forcing the offensive.

Rifle Practice Urged.

Intimately connected with the question of training for open warfare was the matter of rifle practice. The earliest of my cablegrams on this subject was in August, in which it was urged that thorough instruction in rifle practice should be carried on at home because of the difficulty of giving it in France:

"Study here shows value and desirability of retaining our existing small arms target practice course. In view of great difficulty in securing range in France due to density of the population and cultivation, recommend as fast as practicable the complete course be given in the United States before troops embark. Special emphasis should be placed on rapid fire."

My view was that the rifle and bayonet still remained the essential weapons of infantry, and my cable stressing the fact that the basic principles of warfare had not changed, were sent in an endeavor to influence the courses of training at home. Unfortunately, however, no fixed policy of instruction in the various arms, under a single authority, ever was carried out there.

Insensible to advice, the inclination was to accept the views of French specialists and limit training to the narrow field of trench warfare. Therefore, in large measure, the fundamentals so thoroughly taught at West Point for a century were more or less neglected.

The responsibility for the failure of the War department to take positive action on my recommendations in such matters must fall upon the military head of the department, which was the general staff.

There were other causes, as we shall see later, that led to confusion and irregularity in training to such an extent that we often were compelled during the last stages of the war to send men into battle with little knowledge of warfare and often with no rifle practice at all.

Military Police Provided.

The maintenance of good order among our troops under the peculiar conditions of service in France was most important, and for this purpose a military police was essential. Such a force, under the control of provost marshal general, corresponded to the police department in a well-organized city, except that its jurisdiction included only those in the military service. The British, whose situation was similar to our own, gave us helpful information regarding their system, which, with a slight modification, was adopted for our armies.

In our previous wars, the provost guard, so called, usually consisted of troops of the line detailed for the purpose, but without any special training for such duty.

Col. Hanson Ely was selected to organize the police corps and made a good beginning in laying the foundation, but, at his own request, he was shortly relieved and sent to regimental duty. His successor, Col. W. H. Allaire, became provost marshal general until the following July, when he was relieved by Col. J. C. Groome.

Brig. Gen. H. H. Bandholtz, on account of his special fitness for such work from his experience as chief of constabulary in the Philippine Islands, became the permanent head of the corps in September, 1918.

Due credit must be given to each of these officers, but particularly to Bandholtz, for the smart appearance and the high efficiency of this force.

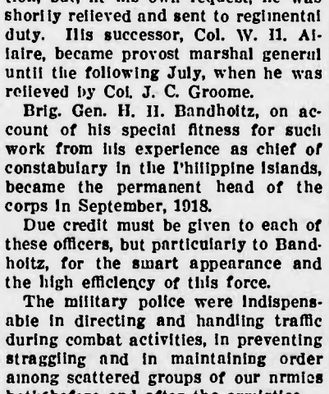
The military police were indispensable in directing and handling traffic during combat activities, in preventing straggling and in maintaining order among scattered groups of our armies both before and after the armistice.

The organization November 1, 1918, numbered 463 officers and 15,912 men, spread over the whole of France.

CHAPTER XIV

In response to my request to Washington for an experienced man to take charge of rail transportation, W. W. Atterbury, general manager of the Pennsylvania railroad, arrived in France and reported to me September 1, 1917.

At Atterbury's suggestion a cable was sent requesting certain men to fill important positions in the organization. The list included J. A. McRae, general manager of the Long Island railroad, for general manager, with C. M. Bunting as business manager, H. C.



Pershing and Joffre.

Booz as engineer for construction, and J. G. Rogers as deputy. The railway problem was far from easy, and many were the obstacles to be overcome, both in our own and in the French services. Successful management would have been very doubtful under a leader without Atterbury's patience, ability and force of character.

Visits to our training areas by the French, official and otherwise, had become rather frequent. One of the visitors, M. Georges Clemenceau, who always remained a power even when not in any official position (Clemenceau was not then prime minister), called at the headquarters of the First division, accompanied by General de Castelnau, the commander of the group of armies with which it was serving.

Clemenceau Urges Action.

In the course of the conversation with General Sibert, the division commander, M. Clemenceau, with considerable emphasis, urged that our troops be put into the line without delay. It was explained to him by General de Castelnau that as soon as they were sufficiently advanced the troops of the division were to be placed by brigades with the French in a quiet sector near Luneville.

M. Clemenceau went on to say that America had now been in the war several months and the French people were wondering when they expected to take an active part. He said that the French army was exhausted by the war and that its morale was poor. He insisted then, as he did with even greater vehemence later on in an official capacity, that it was not so much a question of troops being ready as it was of giving relief to the allies.

Although the division was only partially trained it could have been used in an emergency, but there was nothing threatening in the situation at that time and no suggestion had been made that it should go into the line for serious work.

The failure of our aviation bureau to keep abreast of airplane development in the contending armies cost us serious delay.

With a lack of data in the beginning, little progress had been made at home on our aviation program at the end of five months. Fruitless efforts to describe mechanical construction and give definite information concerning production and otherwise reach decisions by cable prompted Washington to send a special mission to France, of which Maj. R. C. Bolling was the head.

Through his ability and expert knowledge he rendered exceptional service in co-operating with those in control of allied aviation and in furnishing the necessary technical information upon which to base action at home. The investigation made by his mission confirmed the view that our manufacturers could not begin to furnish planes before the summer of 1918.

Pershing Orders Planes.

After inquiry as to French capacity to turn out planes, I made a contract with the air ministry late in August committing us to an expenditure of $60,000,000 for 5,000 planes and 8,500 engines, to be delivered as rapidly as possible at intervals before the first of June, 1918, on condition that we should provide certain tools and raw materials. To make a contract to pay such an amount appeared somewhat bold, but under the circumstances some one had to take the initiative in providing planes needed at once for the development of our air force.

As aviation was in no sense a logical branch of the signal corps the two were separated in the A. E. F. as soon as practicable and aviation was organized and maintained as a distinct force. To co-ordinate our training with that at home Brig. Gen. William L. Kenly was sent over the latter part of August and was appointed chief of aviation in the A. E. F. Colonel Mitchell, who had succeeded Major Dodd, the first chief of aviation, was given jurisdiction over aviation in the zone of advance. Major Bolling was placed in charge of aviation in the zone of the interior, and soon succeeded in securing a better co-operation through an interallied aircraft board.

The next essential step was the training of airplane pilots, and accordingly arrangements were made for our men to enter flying schools in England, France and Italy after they had passed their preliminary tests at home. Vacancies were held for us in the schools, but we were unable to take full advantage of this opportunity for training because of the delay in sending over flyers. However, we proceeded with the establishment of our own training centers, the first of which, located at Issoudun, was planned for a capacity of 900 pilots by spring.

Use of Gas New Problem.

The use of poisonous gases in warfare had been discussed at The Hague conference in 1899, with the result that several nations pledged themselves against the employment of projectiles the only object of which was to give forth suffocating or poisonous gases. This action had created a feeling of security regarding such a possibility.

Germany had subscribed to the agreement, and when her armies disregarded this pledge and became the first to use gas shells, the impression was that they had now thrown every consideration of humanity to the winds.

This action by the enemy forced the allies to adopt this weapon themselves as a matter of self-protection. From that time on the employment of gas became common to all combatants.

The use of gas in warfare presented an entirely new problem to us, and the organization of a service to handle it demanded immediate attention. The first plan of the War department provided that the engineers should devise and handle the mechanical features and the medical department the chemical, but this soon proved to be impractical and it became evident that, as we had maintained at the beginning, a separate service would be necessary. Meanwhile application was made for a complete chemical laboratory to be shipped to France for use mainly in investigation as supplementary to similar work in the states.

Gas Service Established.

Considerable information concerning gases and the organization of gas troops had been gathered by my staff, and on August 18 Lieut. Col. Amos A. Fries was designated as chief of the gas service. He made some further investigation of the subject in the British and French armies, and as a result an order issued September 3 established a department known at that time as the gas service.

Experiments were at once begun to discover new gases and devise improvements in gas masks. To save tonnage and avoid the dangers of explosion in transit, it was decided, after consultation with the allied services, to request the shipment from the States of the basic elements and manufacture the chemical products in Wartime Picture of Col. E. M. House.

France. After thorough tests of different types of gas masks we adopted the box respirator used by the British, and a preliminary purchase of 100,000 was made to meet immediate demands for training.

With the development of trench weapons and special tactical methods of defense, never had the offensive been more costly in human life than in this war. The ingenuity of the allies was put to the test to devise new engines of war that would make the attack possible without excessive losses.

While the tank, which was simply an armored caterpillar traction motor car, was favored by many officers as an aid to advancing infantry, this opinion was by no means unanimous. Our investigations, however, led to the conclusions that we should accept allied experience and also adopt the tank as a weapon.

FORD BRAKES ARE UNUSUALLY EFFECTIVE

Reliability and safety due to simple design and careful construction

ONE OF the first things you will notice when you drive the Ford is the quick, effective action of its four-wheel brakes.

They are unusually safe and reliable because they are mechanical, internal expanding, with all braking surfaces fully enclosed. This prevents mud, water, sand, etc., from getting between the band and drum and interfering with brake action.

Other outstanding features of the Ford are the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, aluminum pistons, torque-tube drive, more than twenty ball and roller bearings, Rustless Steel, reliability, economy, and long life.

You save when you buy the Ford and you save every mile you drive.

MUST INSPECT BEDDING & UPHOLSTERED FURNITURE

Accurate Statement of Contents Must Be Attached to Article

Delicate tests that have been worked out recently at the State Department of Health by the Bureau of Chemistry and the division in charge of the administration of the bedding law, enable the inspectors to distinguish between new cotton and old cotton that for some reason or other masquerades as new cotton when used in filling bedding or in upholstering furniture.

Just as the food and drug laws require that an accurate statement of the contents be listed on the container of food or drug products, so the bedding law requires that an accurate statement of the materials used in filling bedding or in upholstering furniture, appear on the label which must be attached to each article. For instance, articles with cotton must be labelled "all new cotton," or "all second hand cotton," or "partly second-hand cotton."

An inspector who has any reason for suspecting that things are not what they seem can take a bit of filling from the suspected pillow, mattress, comfort, or article of furniture, subject it to the proper test and in a very short time can say to the manufacturer or dealer "your article does" or "does not comply with the requirements of the Maryland bedding law." If the testing is carried a little further, the proportions of new and old material can be estimated and the inspector can say to the dealer, "your label calls for all new cotton and your sample contains forty per cent," or whatever it may be—"of old cotton." Any article that fails to measure up to the requirements of the Maryland law has to be withdrawn from sale.

The law which gives the State Department of Health supervision over articles of bedding manufactured or offered for sale in the State was introduced at the request of the manufacturers and was passed at the session of the Legislature in 1924. Certain changes were made at the session of 1927 and amendments adopted at the recent session of the Legislature bring upholstered furniture as well as bedding under the provisions of the law.

In addition to requiring that each article carry a tag containing an accurate statement of the materials used as filling, the law specifies that feathers and down, new or old, and that all second hand material of any sort, must be properly sterilized and disinfected before use. Articles that are misbranded or mislabelled are not permitted to be placed on sale.

In connection with the administration of the law, inspections are made of factories, warehouses and of retail and second-hand stores. The number of inspections made in 1930 reached a total of 2,533, an average of about six inspections, during the year, of each place engaged in making, renovating, sterilizing or selling articles of bedding.

Smoking After Meals Is Injurious To The Eyes

A good cigar after a hearty meal may promote digestion by increasing the flow of saliva but, on the other hand, it is hazardous to vision thru the irritating effect it shows upon the eye tissues and its poisoning effect upon the blood stream. The increased flow of saliva and gastric juices is accomplished by the irritating effect of the smoke upon the mucous membranes. An illustration of this may be obtained by allowing the eyes to be exposed to the smoke by blowing into them a cloud of cigarette smoke. The eyes will water profusely, smart, burn, and the effects of the experiment will not wear off for possibly several hours. Habitual smoking, by its accumulative nature, gives the same rusult but in a milder and more prolonged manner.

Toxemia from smoking is an increasing factor in eye trouble, especially in young women who have no natural resistance to the poison. Centuries of smoking by men seem to have brought about in males a somewhat natural resistance to the effects of tobacco and the increased ability of the body to eliminate its poisons.

It is difficult to state the number of "smokes" a person might have in a day without permanent injury. The number would vary widely with the different types of physiques. It is safe to say that any form of smoking should be engaged in with moderation and never to the degree that its effects become annoying or it becomes a hazard or injury to the body.

CHILD IS KILLED IN CAR COLLISION AT RED HOUSE

Eight Others Injured when Two Cars Meet At Intersection of Routes 37 and 50, Sunday

A child was killed and eight other persons injured, one seriously, when two automobiles collided at 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning at Red House crossroads, the intersection of Route 37 and Route 50, Northwestern Turnpike, eight miles south of Oakland.

Lois June Feather, three years old, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Feather, of Terra Alta, West Va., ten miles west of Oakland, and her five year old brother, Reed Feather, was seriously injured, having sustained three fractured ribs and numcrous cuts and bruises.

Mr. Feather, father of the children, accompanied by Mrs. Feather, was driving southward on Route 37, while Mrs. R. C. Montelius, of Charleston, West Va., was going westward on Route 50. Three other women and a small girl were in Mrs. Montelius' machine, which struck the Feather car head-on, hurling it a distance of fifty feet when it struck against a telephone pole and landed on its top. The Ford was practiaclly demolished and the little girl was dead when extricated from the wdeckage. Mrs. Feather was painfully bruised and cut by particles of glass, while Mr. Feather escaped with slight injuries. The occupants of the Montelius car were more fortunate, and while the machine was badly damaged the women escaped with only minor injuries and were able to resume their journey toward Charleston Monday by bus, their automobile having been brought to Oakland for repairs.

A. W. Plummer, of the Maryland State Police, who investigated the accident, sald he was told that Mr. Feather failed to heed the "stop" sign when entering the main highway and that Mrs. Montelius did not slow down when approaching the intersection of the highways.

The remalns of the little girl were taken to Terra Alta later in the day where the funeral of the llttle victim took place Tuesday.

Three Friendsville Men Held for Robbery; Constable Arrested

James Barnes, Charley Artis and Pat Doolan, three young men of the Friendsville community, are being held under bond of $300 each on the charge of stealing a quantity of flour from the Friendsville Milling Company last Thursday. Carl Friend, arrested with the three on the saine charge, was released.

The arrests were made Thursday by Constable James Cover. A short time after the arrests Cover was arrested by Deputy Sheriff C. W. Spear, on charges of disorderly conduct, with Don Frlend, Friendsville, and a hearing was held before Justice W. A. Gonder, Oakland. The three young men waived a hearing, Don Friend was fined $5 and costs for being drunk and disorderly, and Cover was fined $1 and costs for disorderly conduct and asked to resign as constable, which he did. The charge of being drunk was dropped against Cover.

TO DISCUSS POSSIBILITY OF MUSICAL FESTIVAL HERE

Public Meeting to be Held in Court House, Thursday, June 4

The County Commissioners of Garrett county, Maryland, have granted permission for a public meeting at the court house at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, June 4, to discuss the possibilities of a regional music festival at some point in the Allegheny Tableland area the latter part of August.

Mr. Nat T. Frame, Director of the Agricultural Extension Division of West Virginia Unlversity will be present with the Director of the Extension Musical Activities to explain the results of these musical festivals in other parts of the country. Arrangements have been made to have a paid director visit all sections helping to train and organize groups that will participate in the music fest and since it will be a voluntary movement thruout there will be no paid performers nor will admission be charged to hear the concerts.

The purpose of the undertaking, Mr. Bushrod Grimes, secretary, stated, is a project in regional cooperation costing nothing but a little time but providing pleasure and satisfaction to hundreds of people who will travel many miles to hear such an unusual and worthy event.

15TH ANNUAL FIELD MEET TO BE HELD ON TUESDAY

Garrett County School Athletes to Compete for Honors

The fifteenth annual County-wide field and track meet will be held at the Fair grounds, Oakland, on Tuesday, May 26, with more than 350 athletes from various schools in the county competing, Foster Speicher, chairman of the committee in charge, announced yesterday.

The meet is being held under the auspices of the Playground Athletic League of Baltimore, and under the authority of Mr. F. E. Rathbun, Superintendent of Schools of Garrett county.

A number of schools have already sent in their entries to the chairman of the committee, and a number of schools have held or will hold local field day meets in their respective communlties in preparation for the county-wide contest.

There will be various running events, relay races, broad jumps, high jump, shot put, etc., for the 80-lb., 95-lb., 115-lb., junior and senior unlimited classes, and speedball, volley ball and dodgeball contests and other games for all schools particlpating.

Kitzmiller won the meet last year and in 1928 and 1927, while Accident took first place in 1929. Last year Accident was second with Oakland High third, and Oakland Grammar fourth.

Arrested for Not Obeying Stop Highway Signs

Since the fatal accident at Red House crossroads on Sunday three have been arrested for failure to observe a boulevard "stop" sign. Alvey Smith, Deer Park; Ray O. Harvey, Gormania; and Gerald E. Patterson, Keyser, W. Va., were each fined $5 and costs for the offense.

Tony Sullivan, Kitzmiller, was fined $10 and costs on Saturday for displaying markers belonging to another car, and $1 and costs for having no registration cards.

Fred Carroll, Kingwood, was fined $1 and costs for reckless drivlng through Oakland. Arrests were made by A. W. Plummer, State policeman, and cases were tried before W. A. Gonder, justice.

Roy Lish Held for Assault With Intent to Murder

Following an altercation at a public sale Saturday near Bethlehem on Saturday, Roy Llsh is belng held in the county jail charged wlth assault with lntent to murder. He ls alleged to have struck John Harvey over the head with a pick handle.

Lish will be held pending the outcome of Harvey's injurles, when a hearing will be held. Harvey was given medical attention by Dr. Crittendon, of Kitzmiller.

Llsh is said to have threatened Harvey's life and was llfting the pick handle for a second blow when it was caught by Cheston Browning, of Oakland. Lish ls a brother-in-law of Harvey.

GREEN'S STORE ROBBED AT SWANTON ON FRIDAY

Robert Bray, Charged With Robbery, Is Being Held In Jail

Charged with robbing Green's store, of Swanton, on Friday night, Robert Bray is being held in the Garrett County jail at Oakland pending a hearing before a justice of the peace. Others are being sought as accomplices.

Entrance to the store was gained by smashing the rear door and it is charged that quite a bit of merchandise was taken. Officers investigating the robbery found sacks of flour at the Paugh home which they allege is part of the stolen goods, but Paugh denies any knowledge of the affair.

Bray was arrested and brought to Oakland by Clarence Spear and Cecil Ramsey, deputies.

Jake Ours and Rutherford Stottlemeyer, of near Mt. Lake Park, were arrested Sunday by deputies Ramsey and Spear when they objected to having their car searched by the deputies in following clues of the Swanton robbery. Ours was fined $15 and costs for being drunk and disorderly and for assaulting an officer, and Stottlemeyer was fined $1 and costs on the drunk and disorderly charge.

Prisoner Escapes From Hospital Following Appendix Operation

An appendicitis operation was the means of escape from the law used by a prisoner named Cool, of Tunnelton, W. Va., during the past week.

Cool was brought to the county jail several days ago by Constable Samuel Cole on a bad check charge, it being alleged that he had signed checks "J. T. Sidwell," and "J. W. Sidwell," and was being held under $1,000 bond. He became ill and was ordered to the hospital at Cumberland where he was operated upon for appendicitls.

Following the operation lt was discovered he was wanted by other authorities and fingerprints were taken to establish his identity. On the morning a guard was to be placed over him he was nowhere to be found. He is still missing.

Grammar School Holds Inter-Class Track Meet

An inter-class meet was held last Thursday afternoon at the Fair grounds between the Oakland Grammar school grades, in preparation for the county-wide field day on Tuesday, May 26. Grades seven and four were grouped and competed against grades five and six, with the former winning the meet. Wilbur Altstetter, of grade six, was high scorer with 13 points, and he was closely followed by Robert Lawton, Howard Naylor, and J. Billie Yutzy.

Richard Glotfelty and Joseph Sollars assisted the Garmmar School staff in handling the events. The events included dodge ball for girls and boys, run and catch relay, flag relay, speed ball, dodge ball throw, standing broad jump, 50 yard dash, 440 yard relay, 80-lb class 60 yard dash, 440 yard relay for the 95-lb class.

Oakland Grammar defeated Crellin on Monday 50 to 10. Oakland won the Boys' dodge ball, the Girls' dodge ball, flag relay, block relay, and the run and catch relay. Crelln won the speedball game 9 to 8.

JURORS FOR JUNE TERM, CIRCUIT COURT, DRAWN

Henry P. Miller, Former County Commissioner, Named Grand Jury Foreman by Court

Friday morning, Judge D. Lindley Sloan, in the presence of members of the local bar, court attaches and others, drew the members of the grand and petit jurors who are to serve at the June Term of the Circuit Court to convene in Oakland on Monday, June 1. Upon completing the work, Judge Sloan named former County Commissioner Henry P. Miller, of near Grantsville, foreman of the grand jury.

Members of the Grand Jury

In addition to Mr. Miller the grand jury will be composed of the following: George Hoover, Charles H. Bill, Donald J. Hinebaugh, Horace L. Coddington, Harry F. Hinebaugh, Elmer Harvey, Ernest N. Friend, Daniel T. O'Brien, Victor G. Pew, August F. Neil, J. Alvin Friend, Alexander B. Hardesty, David A. McNemar, Harmon Rolf, Joseph B. James, Joseph T. Wolf, Frederick L. Otto, Richard A. Frazee, Asa E. Glotfelty, Asa L. Bittinger, Philo T. Lipscomb, Herman Steiding.

Petit Jurors.

The following compose the petit jury: Lloyd C. Shaffer, Alphonzo T. Tasker, Asa Claude Stanton, Alvey B. Wilburn, J. W. Mahaffey, Enoch O. Robeson, Elmer W. Goehringer, Henry C. Sincell, Lewis H. Diefenbach, Harvey Gortner, Wade H. Hinebaugh, George O. Wiley, William Cecil Smith, James Frazee, Jamie S. Elliott, Albert A. Smouse, Harry I. Wilson, William W. Schlossnagel, Aubrey F. Bowers, James B. Steele, John R. Moon, Geo. W. Margraff, Charles E. Duckworth, Edgar A. Barnerd, George W. Finch.

The grand jury is called for service at the openig of court on Monday, June 1, at ten o'clock, while the petit jury will not be called until Thursday, June 4, at 9 o'clock.

The civil docket for the term is not greater than in former years, but from the number of crimes alleged to have been committed and the number of persons held for the grand jury, that body will be engaged several days in making investigations into matters to be brought before it by the State's officers.

Commercial Travelers Hold Banquet at Oakland

Sixty-three attended the banquet and dance held last Saturday by the Morgantown Council of the United Commercial Travelers, at the Knights of Pythias hall, Oakland. Members of the Cumberland, Fairmont and Morgantown councils with their wives, attended the affair

Carl Fischer, Morgantown, was toastmaster, and Rev. C. A. Shilke, Oakland, delivered the address of welcome. Other speakers included Charles T. Burton and Robert C. Bowers, Cumberland; E. S. Evans, of Terra Alta, W. Va.; and J. O. Falkenstine, of Fairmont, W. Va.

The banquet was served by the ladies of St. Mark's Lutheran church. The color scheme was blue and gold. Music for the dancing was furnished by Gene Williamson and his West Virginians, of Morgantown.

FARM LABORER WILL INHERIT PART OF $150,000,000 ESTATE; WANTS TO STAY IN GARRETT COUNTY ANYWAY

Walter Wendell, South of Oakland, Is Relative of Deceased "Richest New York Woman"

News that he was one of the heirs of an estate valued at $150,000,000 was recelved here thls week by Walter Wendell, who has been employed as a farm laborer by Alva R. Martln of Oakland for the past seven or eight years, when an attorney representing the estate came to Oakland to learn of the surviving relatives of Miss Ella V. Wendel, 80, the "richest woman in New York," who died ln March.

A year or so may elapse before all relatives are found and a settlement made of the estate, but lt is practically certaln that Mr. Wendell's share will be between $1,000,000 and $5,000,000.

Mr. Wendell, who ls 66 years of age, had very little to say about his share of the estate when interviewed by a member of The Republican, as he was uncertain of the amount, whether or not lt was ln bonds, real estate, or cash. "Anyway", he sald, "It won't do me much good now, but will benefit my children a great deal. I want to stay right here in Garrett county and Preston county, W. Va., the rest of my life. I might vlsit New York occasionally, but two weeks in that place is enough for me."

Mr. Wendell has five daughters and three sons living ln New York, Keyser, W. Va., Terra Alta, W. Va., and Florida, all grown, and he lives about three miles south of Oakland with Joseph Martin.

Hls great grandfather was a brother to the direct ancestor of the secluded spinster who died recently in New York leavlng the estate. His father, Jacob Wendell, had several brothers and slsters, all of whom must be found before any final disposition will be made of the estate. Mr. Wendell remembers his father telling him that if he lived long enough he would share in a wealthy estate someday.

John W. Davis, a former candidate for president of the Unlted States, ls one of the attorneys looklng after the settlement.

COUNTY-WIDE DEBATE TO BE HELD HERE JUNE 4TH

Representatives of Six High Schools to Discuss Wickersham Report

That the Fraley county-wide declamation contest, sponsored by the Garrett National Bank of Oakland, would be held in the Oakland Hlgh school auditorium on Thursday, June 4, at 8 o'clock, was announced yesterday by Prof. F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools.

Local debates are being held in the six high schools of the county to determine the individual school winners, and either boys or girls may represent their school. There will be one representative from each school, Kitzmiller, Friendsville, Grantsville, Accident, Kempton, and Oakland.

The topic for debate is "The Wickersham report advances the present policy of prohibition." There will be no charge for admission.

Judges for the debate will be chosen within the next few days, Mr. Rathbun stated. A prize will be awarded to the winner of the contest.

SENTENCE BRYAN JOHNSON TO FOUR MONTHS IN JAIL

Garrett Countian Pleads Guilty In U. S. Court At Cumberland

Judge W. Calvin Chestnut, Baltimore District Bench to succeed Judge Morris A Soper, presided at the opening of the spring term of the Federal Court at Cumberland Monday, it having been his first appearance. Among his first acts was to sentence Bryan Johnson, of Johnson's, Garrett county, to four months in jail.

Distinguished lineage was invoked in a plea for clemency by former State Senator William A Gunter, who said Johnson was a great-grandson of Thomas Johnson, first Governor of Maryland. Johnson had plead guilty to bootlegging in Garrett county. Mr. Gunter declared Johnson was not a "common" bootlegger, but the scion of a noble house who had made a mistake.

Johnson's excuse was that the dry weather of last year was bad on farmers and he neded the money. Thomas Bailey, Federal agent, who posed as a whisky buyer, told the court Johnson had whisky cached at various places about his farm, amounting to 300 gallons, and offered to supply Bailey at least 100 gallons a week.

The case against Harry and Earl Caton and William Knepp, of Finzel, this county, ended abruptly yesterday when a juror was withdrawn and the jury discharged. They changed their plea of gullty of transporting and possession of a truck loaded with 300 gallons of liquor. Each was fined $100 and costs and Earl Caton was given six months in jail additional.

Other sentences yesterday for violations were Allen L. Carey, this county, possession of a 400-gallon still, four months in jail; William S. "Western Bill" Harvey, $300 and costs.

Thirty-three prisoners, sentenced at Cumberland, were brought to Oakland last night to serve their time in jail.

Legion Poppy Sale To Begin Saturday, May 23

Proctor Kildow Post No. 71, American Legion, will sponsor its annual Poppy Sale throughout the county from May 23 to 30, inclusive, it has been announced. The poppies will be sold by post members and members of the Ladies Legion auxiliary.

Members of the Legion and the legion drum corps will hold a rally at Kitzmiller on Monday evening, May 25, and at Friendsville on Wednesday evening, May 27. They will be accompanied by members of the Ladies' Auxlliary who will sell the poppies.

Every person is being asked to buy and wear a poppy during the coming week in commemoration of the soldiers who died in France durlng the World War.

Rehearsals Begin for Senior Class Play of O. H. S.

DISCOVERED IN THE ACT OF SETTING FIRE TO HOME

John Kurtz, McHenry, Arrested Early Monday Morning by Officials And Charged with Arson

IS BEING HELD IN JAIL

John Kurtz, about 65 years of age, farmer and stockman residing on the Jonas Glotfelty farm at McHenry, which property he purchased some time ago, and reputed to be a man of more than ordinary means and intelligence, was arrested early Monday morning by Sheriff Walter H. Haenftling and State's Attorney W. W. Dawson, following an alleged attempt by Kurtz to set fire to the home of Everett Savage, at McHenry, and is being held in the Garrett County Jail pending a hearing on the charge of arson.

According to Mr. Savage, members of his household were awakened about two o'clock Monday morning by a noise outside the house and upon investigation Savage alleges that Kurtz was found lighting matches and setting fire to an empty flour sack wlth which he attempted to fire the house.

When ordered away from the premises he is said to have threatened Savage, who knocked Kurtz senseless by striking him on the head wlth a club. Neighbors were aroused and information of the occurrence was telephoned to the Sheriff's office and to the residence of State's Attorney Dawson, both of whom immediately went to McHenry and after making an investigation placed the man under arrest and brought him to Oakland. Kurtz is said to have been drinking heavily on Sunday and after he was discovered on the Savage premises.

Until about two months ago Savage was in the employ of Kurtz, who is his brother-in-law, and it is stated that there had never been any trouble between the two men at any time before.

Kurtz waived a hearing and furnished bond in the sum of $1,500 for his appearance at the June term of court.

The Savage home is located along the highway on the north shore of Deep Creek Lake and is occupied by Mr. Savage with members of his family and his grandmother, who ls past eighty years of age. The Kurtz home is opposite the Savage house on the south shore of the lake.

John Landis, 84, of Deer Park, Missing Since Before Easter

Citizens of Deer Park and other communities are searching for John Landis, 84, years of age, who left his home a week before Easter to visit relatives in the vicinity of Petersburg, W. Va., and who never arrived there.

Mr. Landis was known to be quite a walker and often took trips of this character, staying for weeks at a time. No one began to get uneasy about him until about two weeks ago when inquiry was made of his relatives near Petersburg, and they said he had never been to visit them. Search was immediately begun but no trace of him has been found. He was last seen at the top of the mountain near Gorman by the manager of a filling station there, and he was traveling eastward.

Everybody Asked to be at Washington Park This Afternoon

Every man, woman and child are requested to be at the Washington Spring Park grounds this afternoon and continue the cleanup program which was begun last week. All kinds of tools, saws, axes, hatchets, garden rakes, brush hooks, etc., should be brought by all who have them.

A number of stumps have been dynamited by Mr. William Turney, and these and the underbrush will be cleared off this afternoon, if the citizens will help in the work. The landscape gardner will be here within a few days to offer suggestions and make a plan of beautification.

Not From Oakland

Albert Kitzmiller, 22, arrested in Clinton, Ind., for the theft of an automobile, is from the vicinity of Elkins, W. Va., and not from Oakland as stated in an A. P. story in the Cumberland Evening Times of Sunday. Kltzmiller pleaded gullty and was sentenced to serve from one to five years in the reformatory.

PUBLIC LOCAL LAW.

Incorporating Mountain Lake Park, Maryland

CHAPTER 507

AN ACT to incorporate the town of Mountain Lake Park, in Garrett County, Maryland, and to repeal Chapter 430 of the Acts of 1888, entitled "An Act to incorporate The Community of Mountain Lake Park," and to repeal Chapters 315 of 1896, 688 of 1914, 176 of 1916 and 160 of 1927 amending said Act, and providing for a referendum thereon.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Chapter 430 of the Acts of 1888, entitled "An Act to incorporate the Community of Mountain Lake Park," and Chapters 315 of 1896, 688 of 1914, 176 of 1916 and 160 of 1927, amending said Act, be and they are hereby repealed.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the inhabitants of the town of Mountain Lake Park, Garrett County, Maryland, are hereby incorporated by the name of Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park with all the powers and privileges of a body politic and corporate, and by that name may have perpetual succession, may sue and be sued, may have and use a common seal, and may hold real, personal and mixed property and dispose of the same when the best interest of the town may demand.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the corporate limits of the said town of Mountain Lake Park are hereby described to be as follows:

Beginning at East side of railroad bridge West of Mountain Lake Park railroad station and running with the South limits of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, Northeast 2300 feet to a line of the Mountain Lake Park Association grounds, thence with said line Northeast 3200 feet to the end thereof, and with the lines of the Association, Northwest 1300 feet, thence Northeast 1650 feet, thence Northwest 3450 feet, thence Southwest 3350 feet to the Southwest corner of Lot No. 3049 of the Mountain Lake Park Plat. Thence Southeast 1200 feet, thence Southwest 1650 feet to the Southwest corner of Lot No. 3064, thence Northwest 1300 feet, thence Southwest 4000 feet to South limits of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, thence with the South limits of said railroad Southeast to the place of beginning.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the first election for Mayor and Council shall be held before W. L. Camden, E. E. Friend, J. S. Elliott, W. B. Brock and Britton Martin, who are hereby appointed judges for that purpose and for the time hereinafter named; provided, that in case any of said judges named herein, shall be unable to act on account of sickness, death, refusal to act or otherwise, then the remaining judge or judges shall fill the vacancy or vacancies by appointing a suitable perso or persons residing in said town who are qualified voters therein in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Sec. 5. And be it further enacted, That said corporation shall be governed by a Mayor and five Councilmen. There shall be an election on the second Tuesday in August each year between the hours of one o'clock P. M. and seven o'clock P. M. and at said election on the second Tuesday of August, 1931, there shall be elected a Mayor to serve for two years, three councilmen to serve for two years and two councilmen to serve for one year and until their successors are elected and qualified; at the expiration of the term of the Mayor and the members of the Council, their successors shall be elected to serve for a term of two years and until the qualification of their successors. The Mayor and Councilmen shall be qualified voters and residents of said town.

Sec. 6. And be it further enacted, That all elections shall be by ballot, and all persons who are qualified to vote for members of the General Assembly of Maryland and who have resided in said town for six months next preceding any election and all persons, citizens of the United States and bona fide owners of real estate in said town for twelve months preceding any election, and the wives and or husbands and children of such owners who are 21 years of age or over, shall be entitled to vote at any town election. The Mayor and Council shall appoint at least three judges to hold all town elections held after the year 1931 and shall give at least ten days notice by hand bills posted in conspicuous places in said town naming the time and place when said election shall be held and the polls opened and closed. The Mayor and Council shall have power to pass such ordinances for conducting said town elections as may be deemed necessary and proper not in conflict with the provisions of this Act.

Sec. 7. And be it further enacted, That if at any election held under this Act two or more persons shall receive the same number of votes for Mayor or Councilmen of said town, the judges of said election shall, after having given five days' notice of the time and place, proceed to hold another election to fill said office or offices, and the person or persons receiving the highest number of votes at said election shall, with those previously chosen, if any, constitute the Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park.

Sec. 8. And be it further enacted, That if any vacancy shall occur by death, resignation, removal or failure to act of the Mayor or one or more of the Councilmen elected as aforesaid, the remaining Councilmen, or a majority of them, shall elect a proper person to fill said vacancy.

Sec. 9. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and each Councilman, before he proceeds to act as such, shall make oath before some justice of the peace for Garrett County that he will diligentiy and faithfully, accordmg to the best of his skill and judgment, perform the duties of his office without favor, partiality or prejudice, and a certificate of such qualification shall be returned by the said justice of the peace to the Mayor and Council, to be filed and recorded among their proceedings.

Sec. 10. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor shall preside at all meetings of the Council, unless prevented by sickness or reasonable cause, in which event the said Council may select a president pro tempore; he shall sign all ordinances of said town and shall countersign all orders and drafts drawn by the Clerk on the Treasurer of said town.

Sec. 11. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and Council shall appoint a clerk, who shall, before entering on his duties, make oath before the said Mayor or a justice of the peace, that he will well and faithfully perform the duties of his office as prescribed by this Act, or which may be prescribed by ordinance, to the best of his skill and judgment; he shall sign all drafts or orders for money appropriated or ordered by the Mayor and Council to be paid by the treasurer, and keep a record of the proceedings of said Mayor and Council in a book to be provided by them for that purpose, which shall at all times be open to the inspection of any person interested. The said Mayor and Council shall have power to fix his term of office and the amount of his compensation.

Sec. 12. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and Council shall have power to appoint a bailiff who, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall make oath before a justice of the peace for Garrett County that he will faithfully and impartially perform the duties imposed upon him by this Act and the ordinances of said town, and shall execute to the State of Maryland a bond with two good and sufficient securities to be approved by said Mayor and Council in such penalty as they may prescribe, conditioned that he shall well and faithfully perform the duties of said office in all things appertaining thereto according to law and the ordinances of said Mayor and Council, and shall well and truly collect and pay over to the treasurer of said corporation all taxes levied by the Mayor and Council and all other sums of money that may be received by him for the use of said corporation.

Sec. 13. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and Council shall have power to appoint a treasurer who shall be a resident of said town qualified to vote for Mayor and Councilmen, and before entering upon the duties of his office shall give bond to the State of Maryland with two good and sufficient securities to be approved by the said Mayor and Council in such penalty as the Mayor and Council shall prescribe, conditioned that he shall well and faithfully account for all money paid over to him by the bailiff of said corporation, or that may be received by him from any other person or persons for the use of said corporation, and shall well and truly pay over to his successor in office or to the order of said Mayor and Council, and perform all other duties of his office according to law and the ordinances of said Mayor and Council; he shall keep full and correct account of all moneys received by him, with the sources from which received and the dates of such receipts, and of the disbursements made by him with the time when the persons to whom and what account the same were made.

Sec. 14. And be it further enacted, That said Mayor and Council may from time to time cause an assessment to be made of all the property liable to the State and County taxes within the corporate limits, and to levy a tax thereon not exceeding sixty cents on the one hundred dollars in any one year and that said property shall be assessed at its actual cash value. And the said Mayor and Council may appoint an assessor and collector of taxes and fix his salary or compensation, and provide for a method of collecting the taxes by ordinance, and also the method of making assessments; and any person aggrieved by any assessment made under this provision shall have the right of an appeal to the said Mayor and Council of said town of Mountain Lake Park.

Sec. 15. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the said Mayor of the said town to see that the ordinances of the town are duly and faithfully executed, and he shall appoint, subject to the confirmation of the Council, all such persons as agents and servants of said corporation as may be necessary to carry out the objects and purposes of the corporation and enforce the ordinances to be passed thereby.

Sec. 16. And be it further enacted, That the said Council shall have power to pass such ordinances not contrary to the Constitution and laws of this State as it may deem necessary for the good government of the town, for the protection and preservation of the town's property, rights and privileges; for the preservation of peace and good order and securing persons and property from violence, danger and destruction; for the protection of health, comfort and convenience of the citizens of Mountain Lake Park and visitors thereto, or sojourners therein; for providing proper and suitable lights on the streets; for establishing maintaining and regulating an adequate police force; to regulate the management and location of livery stables, foundries, and all other establishments of which the business or trade may become obnoxious or injurious to public comfort and health; to prohibit the erection of such buildings, or the continuation of such noxious occupation therein, whenever the public health requires it; to prevent or regulate the use of fire-arms, fireworks, bonfires or other things or practices tending to endanger persons or property; to regulate or prohibit the running at large of cattle, horses, swine, fowls, sheep, goats, dogs, or other animals; to authorize the impounding, keeping, sale and redemption of such animals when found in violation of such ordinances, in such cases provided; to prevent the deposit of any unwholesome substance either on public or private property; to compel its removal to designated points, and to require slops, garbage, ashes and other waste or unwholesome material to be removed to designated points, or to require the occupants or residents on premises to place them conveniently for removal; to compel the occupants of any premises, buildings or outhouses, situated in said city, when the same have been filthy or unwholesome, to abate or clean the same; to authorize the same to be done by the proper officers and to assess the expense thereon against such property; to regulate or prevent the storage of gunpowder, tar, pitch, resin, coal oil, benzine, turpentine, hemp, cotton, nitro-glycerine, dynamite, giant powder, petroleum, gasoline or gas, or any product thereof, or any other explosive or combustible material or materials which may seem to be dangerous; to authorize the removal or confinement of such persons having infectious or pestilential diseases; to pass all ordinances and orders and to expend such sums of money as may be necessary within the limitations therein provided for the protection, maintenance and preservation of the water supply of the city and the prevention of the pollution thereof; to regulate the selling, weighing or measuring of hay, wood, coal, coke and all other articles sold by weight and measure, and to provide for their inspection and selling; to make all regulations which may be deemed expedient for the promotion of health or suppression of disease; to regulate the construction of chimneys, smoke stacks, hearths, ovens, and the erection of stoves and pipes, boilers and apparatus used in buildings and other places, and cause the same to be removed or made secure when considered dangerous; to suppress or restrain bawdy houses of ill fame and to prohibit the youth of said city from being on the streets, lanes or alleys at unseasonable hours of the night; to punish and suppress tramps and vagrants by imposing fines or both fines and imprisonment at hard labor, and to abate by appropriate ordinances all nuisances in said town which are so defined at common law, whether the same are herein specified or not; to regulate the use of sidewalks and all structures in, under or over the same; to regulate and prevent the throwing or depositing of sweepings, dust, ashes, offal, dirt, garbage, paper, hand bills, dirty liquors or any other materials into any street, alley or public place; to regulate and prevent the use of streets, sidewalks and public places for signs, sign posts, awning, awning posts, poles, horse troughs, steps, railroad entrances, racks, posting hand bills and advertisements and display of goods, wares and merchandise; to cause the streets, lanes and alleys, to be side walked, paved, graded, repaired, repaved, regraded, drained, or sewered, or to close streets or parts of streets, lanes or alleys; to regulate and license the use of coaches, hacks, drays, and all other vehicles for the transportation of passengers, freight or other articles to or from points within said city for hire or pay; to regulate, license, tax, restrain or prohibit theatrical and other exhibitions, shows or entertainments, for which money is demanded or received, provided that lectures on scientific, historic, benevolent, artistic, religious or literary subjects and appartus for the elucidation of the same and specimens of fine art shall not be deemed to be within these provisions; to regulate the sales of all kinds of property at auctions in the streets, stores, shops or elsewhere in the city; and to license auctioneers and all vendors of property on the streets or squares, or other public places in the said town, to license, tax, regulate, suppress or prohibit hawkers and itinerant dealers, peddlers and pawn brokers, and to revoke such license at pleasure; to license, tax, regulate and prohibit the keeping or harboring of dogs; to license, tax and regulate branch stores and all other concerns established in said town for temporary business only.

Sec. 17. And be it further enacted, That the said Mayor and Council shall have the power to compel the property owners building along any of said streets, lanes or alleys, so accepted by said corporation and recorded among its proceedings to construct and keep in repair sidewalks and footways of their property binding on said streets and roads not exceeding two hundred feet and may pass all such ordinances as may be necessary to compel the construction and repair of said sidewalks. And they shall have power to enforce the construction and repair of sidewalks by fines imposed upon the property owners for a failure to construct and repair after fifteen days' notice previously given, which said fines shall be collectible as other fines imposed for the violation of the ordinances of the town as hereinafter set forth and stated.

Sec. 18. And be it further enacted, That said Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park may establish and maintain a town lockup and may confine therein all persons convicted of violation of their ordinances, and in default of the payment of fines imposed for such violations or may, at their option, confine such persons in the county jail at the expense of said town or they may require such persons in default of payment of fine to work out such fines and costs upon the streets or other improvements of said town, such person to be allowed as a credit on such fines or costs the same wages as are paid other employes of said town for the same character of work.

Sec. 19. And be it further enacted, That all fines, penalties and forfeitures imposed for violating any ordinances passed by said Mayor and Council shall be recoverable by the Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park before any justice of the peace of the State of Maryland, residing in Election District No. 7, in Garrett County, as may be elected police justice for said town by said Mayor and Council and no other, as small debts and shall be paid to the Mayor and Council for the use of said town. And anyone feeling aggrieved by any judgment rendered by said police justice shall have the right of appeal to the Circuit Court for Garrett County at the next term of said court, but no judgment, fine or penalty imposed shall be stayed unless the party taking the appeal shall file a bond to be approved by the said justice in double the amount of the fine and costs to the Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park, conditioned upon the successful prosecution of said appeal.

Sec. 20. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park shall have full power to provide for the introduction of water, electric light or gas into said town, and to effectuate such object may contract with or grant unto any other body, public or private, or to any individual or partnership the right or franchise within the limits of said town for the purpose of operating a passenger railway, water works or electric light plant, the granting of such franchises to be regulated by the ordinances of the said Mayor ond Council; and also may grant the right to lay conduits or water mains through the streets, alleys or highways of said town; and authority is hereby given said Mayor and Council to condemn private property, if the same should become necessary for the operation of the aforesaid franchise; said condemnation proceedings to be in accordance with the general laws of the State of Maryland as are in such cases applicable thereto; and also to construct, purchase and operate an electric light plant or water works for the benefit of the town whenever, in their judgment, the interest of said town demands the same; and to contract or provide for the furnishing or supplying of water, electric light or gas in sufficient quantities for the needs of the town and the inhabitants thereof by any other body corporate, public or private, or by any individual or individuals; and in order to carry out and effectuate such object it shall have full power to erect, maintain and equip electric light poles and to lay water mains and conduits, erect fire plugs and generally do all things that may be necessary to provide water for said town in such quantity and at such places as may be necessary to protect it at all times against fire; and they shall have power to pass all such ordinances as may be necessary to carry into effect provisions of this section.

Sec. 21. And be it further enacted, That in event the Mayor and Council shall provide for the purchasing or supplying of water, electric light or gas to said town by some other body corporate, public or private, or any individual or partnership, and shall deem it expedient or necessary that said town erect, maintain and lay its own electric light poles and equipments, water mains, conduits and fire plugs, the said Mayor and Council, to defray the necessary cost thereof may issue bonds or certificates of indebtedness in sums of one hundred dollars, to be signed by the Mayor and countersigned by the clerk of said Council of Mountain Lake Park, not exceeding in the aggregate the sum of five thousand dollars, bearing interest not exceeding six per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, said bonds to be payable fifteen years from the date of their issue, said bonds to be exempt from State, county and municipal taxation; and the Mayor and Council in making their annual levy of municipal taxes after said bonds are issued shall fix the rate sufficient to provide for the payment of the interest on said bonds and create a sinking fund for their redemption.

Sec. 22. And be it further enacted, That all Acts and parts of Acts inconsistent with any provision of this Act are hereby repealed.

Sec. 23. And be it further enacted, That for the purpose of determining whether the citizens of said Mountain Lake Park desire to incorporate, there shall be held an election on the second Tuesday of July, 1931, between the hours of 1 o'clock P. M. and 7 o'clock P. M. under the supervision of the committee named in Section 4 of this Act. The qualifications of voters at this special election shall be the same as those hereinbefore set forth in regard to regular town elections.

The said committee shall, not less than five days before said referendum election, post in five conspicuous places in said town a written or printed notice notifying all the residents of said town who are qualified to vote under this Act that an election will be held on the date fixed in this Act at a certain place and between certain hours, which notice shall contain the said date, the hours that the polls will remain open and the location of the polling place or places, and a statement that the election is to be held for the purpose of deciding whether or not to adopt this charter and form an incorporated town.

The said committee shall provide and furnish the place or placcs where such election shall be held, the booths, ballot boxes and sufficient number of printed ballots, upon which on one line the words "For Incorporation," shall be printed, and on another line the words "Against Incorporation," with squares opposite each.

Said election shall be conducted as nearly as practicable as an election for county offices is conducted in all points not specially provided for in this Act, and on the closing of the polls the said committee shall canvass said votes and publicly announce the result of said canvass. In the event that a majority of the votes cast are for incorporation, this Act shall immediately become effective, and in the event that a majority of said votes are against incorporation, it shall become null and void.

Sec. 24. And be it further enacted, That in the event that this charter is adopted by the citizens of said Mountain Lake Park under the provisions of the referendum above set forth, then the committee named in Sec. 4 of this Act shall hold the election for town officials as provided for in Section 5 of this Act and in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Sec. 25. And be it further enacted, That if any section or part of a section, or any provision of this Act shall be held invalid, such invalidity shall not affect any other provision of this Act.

Sec. 26. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1931.

Approved April 17, 1931.

BITTINGER

Rev. Charles A. Shilke, of Oakland, and Rev. A. B. Harper, of Accident, came to Bittinger Sunday afternoon where they conducted confirmation and communion services in the local Lutheran church in the absence of Rev. E. E. Campbell, who is confined to his home with a long-continued attack of illness. The confirmation class was composed of eight girls and ten boys and their youthful, bright countenances reflected their happiness in having taken a step forward in the Christian life by joining the church of their fathers. The children were surpliced and presented an inspiring sight to those who composed the immense congregation present, the edifice being filled to its capacity, many coming from distant points in order to attend. The enforced absence of the pastor, Rev. Campbell, was regretted by his class of boys and girls.

Miss Ercelle Giles and Miss Helen Folk, of Grantsville, accompanied by friends from Barton, Md., made a brief call in this village on Sunday evening.

Mrs. Lydia Wiley, of Grantsville, spent Sunday with relatives here.

Benj. H. Sincell, publisher of The Republican, was here Sunday afternoon as an interested attendant at the Lutheran church service.

Talmage Beachy, of Casselman, was a business caller in this village one day last week.

Edward Alexander, of the Glades settlement, was here Sunday morning for a short time.

Mrs. Silas C. Beachy and son Fred, who recently returned to his home in this community from Southern West Virginia, where he was employed by a corporation, spent the week-end visiting relatives in Hagerstown, Md.

William Brenneman, North Glade, was a business caller in this village one day last week.

Orval Glotfelty motored to Salisbury, Pa., on business Thursday of last week.

County Commissioner James Fitzwater, of Swanton, and John Herman, of the same section, were in this community a few days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Fortney and John Fortney, of Lumberport, West Va., spent a couple of hours at their old home near here one day last week.

Asa J. Orendorf made a business trip to Salisbury, Pa., one day recently.

We are glad to report much improvement in the condition of Miss Ethel Bittinger, who has been very seriously ill at the Miners Hospital, Frostburg, for several weeks.

John Beachy is making his annual sheep-shearing tour through this and adjacent sections of the county.

County Commissioner George D. Browning, of Oakland, was here one day last week enroute to Jennings on business.

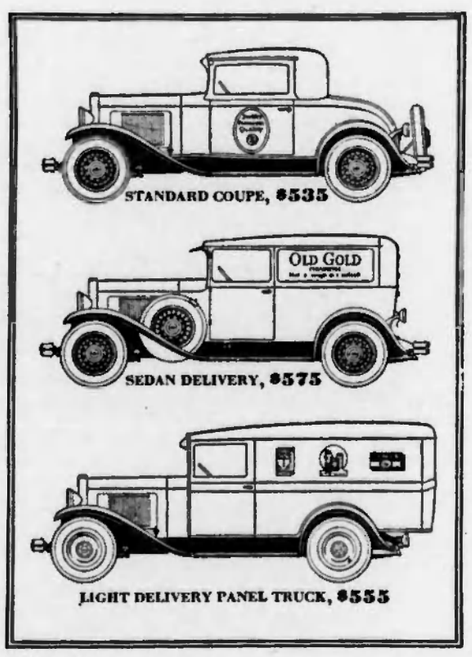
CHEVROLET

73 of America's leading business concerns have bought 27,605 Chevrolets



Prominent among the thousands of concerns using large fleets of Chevrolets are many of the leaders of American industry. In fact, 73 outstanding business firms have purchased a total of 27,605 Chevrolet cars and trucks.

The reason for this preference lies in the unexcelled economy of Chevrolet cars and trucks, as proved by official cost records. These records show that 20 miles to the gallon is a common occurrence among Chevrolet cars. That oil expense is extremely low. That Chevrolet cars and trucks require only a mir imum of service attention. That they give satisfactory low-cost service over exceptionally long periods of time.

Naturally, a car with such a fine record of economy represents an extremely wise investment for any buyer! Especially so, when you consider the many advantages that Chevrolet offers above and beyond economical operation. Come in and learn what these advantages are—what they mean in terms of style, comfort, safety, reliability and value.

Lesson for May 24

JESUS PREPARING FOR THE END

GOLDEN TEXT—And he took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, saying, This is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 22:7-30.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Wants Us to Remember Him.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How We Can Remember Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Meaning of the Lord's Supper.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Meaning of the Lord's Supper.

I. The Last Passover (vv. 7-18).

1. The Passover prepared (vv. 7-13).

a. Peter and John sent to prepare the Passover (v. 8). As the time had arrived for the killing of the Passover, Jesus commanded these disciples to make ready for it.

b. The disciples' inquiry (v. 9). They inquired of Jesus as to where they should prepare the Passover. The true disciple is not only ready to do the Lord's bidding, but anxious to know exactly his will.

c. The Master's strange directions (vv. 10-12). They were to go into the city where they would meet a man bearing a pitcher of water. The usual custom was for the women to carry the water. This unusual occurrence would make it easier for them to find the man. He assured them that they would then be shown a large upper room furnished.

d. The obedience of the disciples (v. 13). They did as Jesus directed them. They did not stop to question the sanity of the command but, as true disciples, obeyed.

2. The Passover eaten (vv. 14-18).

a. By whom (v. 14). Those who sat down to this last Passover Feast were the Master and the twelve apostles.

b. Jesus' words unto the disciples (vv. 15-18).

(1) "I have desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer" (v. 15). He greatly desired to show them the meaning of the passion through which he was to go.

(2) "I will not any more eat thereof until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God" (v. 16). His death was the antitypical fulfillment of the Passover.

(3) "Take this cup and divide it among yourselves" (vv. 17, 18). By the token of the cup the disciples were partaking of his shed blood. Drinking anew in the kingdom of God does not mean that in heaven this service will be renewed, but that it was symbolic of the heavenly reality.

II. The Feast of the New Covenant Instituted (vv. 19, 20).

This feast took place at the close of the paschal supper.

1. The bread a symbol of Christ's body (v. 19). As bread nourishes and strengthens our bodies, so Christ is food to our spiritual nature. Unless our souls feed upon Christ, we shall perish.

2. The cup a symbol of Christ's blood (v. 20). This was symbolic of the atonement which was made by the shedding of his blood on Calvary's cross. He said, "This cup is the new testament in my blood which was shed for you," indicating that each one must personally accept the atonement made by the shedding of his blood.

III. The Wicked Behavior at the Feast (vv. 21-27).

1. The treachery of Judas (vv. 21-23).

a. The time of its manifestation (v. 21). It was while they were eating the last Passover that Jesus made the announcement of the betrayal, perhaps that Judas might be given an opportunity at this last moment to repent.

b. The betrayal was by the determinate counsel of God (v. 22 Cf. Acts 2:23). Nothing takes place by chance. Even the sinful acts of wicked men come within the permissive province of God. This does not, however, lessen the guilt of sinners, for Jesus said, "Woe unto the man by whom he is betrayed."

c. The sorrowful question (v. 23). The disciples did not seem to suspect one another but made the question a personal one.

2. The selfish ambition of the disciples (vv. 24-27). In this tragic hour the disciples were so concerned with the thought of position that they were striving among themselves as to who should be the greatest.

IV. The Apostles' Place in the Kingdom (vv. 28-30).

Jesus assured them that those who continued with him in his trials would be appointed a place in the Kingdom which would entitle them to eat and drink at his table and sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

In the Redeemer's Debt

For us, who are deep in the Redeemer's debt, who have had much forgiven, who every day are bankrupt debtors to the measureless mercy of infinite love—for us no paltriness will suffice.—C. H. Spurgeon.

Great Things From God

We should expect great things from God. He is a great God; he is in the habit of doing great things. Let us expect the great things and we shall have them.—John R. Mott.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By SCOOP—HIMSELF

If this column is all upside down this week, don't blame me. Housecleaning time has appeared at the Archibaldson homestead, and I have been sleeping upside down since Monday. I've gotten my powder mixed with "cleanall", a pulverized substance for removing specks from windows and guaranteed to keep moths out of moth balls; I've combed my hair with the nail file and used the scrub brush to settle the curls; I've been unable to find my pajama coat since Tuesday but there's a dirty dust rag in the room of which I have my suspicions; my love letters have been rifled; I've stumbled over the misplaced chairs three times daily; I've cleaned my teeth with skin balm, and shaved with P. and G. soap; I've tried to find the electric cord to my lamp without success; I've slid to home plate twice over the waxed floor, and from the way things look a whole baseball game has been played there because last night I found in the room a pitcher and a catcher.

Underneath my basketball uniform in the bottom of the cloths press I found my most passionate pair of socks, lost since March 3, and which had caused me to point my finger accusingly at my brother-in-law, Archibaldson, as he also wears size 11. However I want it distinctly understood here and now that I get along better with my brother-in-law than Kurtz of McHenry, or Lish of Bethlehem get along with theirs. There are no pick handles or even garden tools around Archie's house.

I hope Mrs. Archibaldson soon gets the curtains up so I can dress in the evening without pulling down my blind. And I hope she picks on Archie's room next. He's had it coming to him for some time.

Society Note—Mary Ann Small, the girl in the back office, was absent from work on Monday morning due to sunburned tonsils received in looking at the Empire State building in New York, and other edifices of stately grandeur. She and about 15 others from Oakland were B. and O'ed all over New York on the excursion.

Social hint from Oakland's society matron—Never spit on the floor—it might leak.

I've been told a lot of times that I don't say anything in this column, and I admit it, and that ought to make it unanimous. If it doesn't the anonymous letter I received this week ought to—that is, if you can make it out.

In case the readers cannot, I will tell you that he meant to say I talked all the time and said nothing. After reading his letter I am convinced of the following: I admit that I write my column, and even if I don't say anything, people are able to understand the English language. Now here is the undersigned article, word for word:

"Mr. Coop, Did you ever hear a chip munk sitting on a log. I suppose I know you konw for sure What did he say? Talking all the time and saying nothing. When it comes and the real blue or it could be red, he takes for his hole he said, "He didn't said." Zig zag general nuisance, chipmunk. I thank you for wishing me good luck, the same to you."

Anyone deciphering the code will please call at my office next Monday and write next week's Scoop Column. If the fellow who wrote the letter will present himself in person he can have the honor himself.

At the Junior-Senior prom last Friday at Oakland High, during intermission a number of awards were made to the most studious, the best looking, etc. All came forward to receive their gifts except the most popular boy and the most popular girl. Those two were out looking for the moon. Such popularity must be deserved.

* * *

Bill Gibson's orchestra practices are getting to be very popular. An admission charge would probably eliminate this. When William "alias Joe Brown" Gibson laughs you can see his tonsils flap back and forth like gills on a fish. If he ever gets sick and the doctor wants to examine the contents of his stomach all he will need to do is to open his mouth and the doctor can see clear down into the transverse colon. Bill will never have need for a stomach pump.

Do You Know That—

The fellow who doesn't need a boss generally develops into one.

The Republican covers Garrett county like one of these May showers we have been having.

The County jail shows no signs of business depression. Customers have been steadily increasing this past week.

Everything is quiet along the Mt. Lake Park front.

You ought to help clean up Washington Spring Park if you expect to benefit from it.

You get more local news in The Republican than in any other newspaper in this section.

I'm going to lay off writing this stuff until next week.

THIRTY-THREE MARRIAGES PERFORMED DURING WEEK

Saturday Was Unusually Busy Day with Seventeen Applicants

With Saturday one of the busiest days in local history for issuing marriage licenses at the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court, the number issued during the week ending Monday at noon reached thirty-three, and was quite an increase over any week during the present year. The total for May to this time is 67, which is still 52 below the record for May, 1928, when 119 licenses were granted applicants.

Five licenses issued were marked "don't publish," while one applicant for a license was refused.

Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

Now! Please!—Actually put your finger on your Adam's Apple. Touch it—your Adam's Apple—Do you know you are actually touching your larynx? This is your voice box—it contains your vocal chords. When you consider your Adam's Apple, you are considering your throat—your vocal chords. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants—Reach for a LUCKY instead—Remember, LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette in America that through its exclusive "TOASTING" process expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE, and so we say "Consider your Adam's Apple."

CROSSROADS—STOP!——

Someone always has to pay the supreme price before hazards which are before us every day are realized and the public stirred to action.

The last to pay was Lois June Feather, a baby of three years, killed in the arms of her mother in an avoidable automobile collision at the Red House Crossroads last Sunday morning.

At a crossroads of two important crossroads, such as Routes 37 and 50, a yellow boulevard "stop" sign is not sufficient. It is too inconspicuous to the passing driver and often is not noticed. An electric flash signal, requiring even the one having the right of way, to slow down until the car is under perfect control, would go far in preventing fatal accidents, such as occurred at the point under discussion Sunday morning and at other crossroads throughout the county, State and nation. With a twenty-four hour electric service available right at the crossroads there is no reason why the State Highway Commission should not protect the lives of the traveling public by installing a proper safety device.

Although in a sense the hangar has been locked after the airplane has been stolen, yet the adoption of some method of safeguarding the lives of those in the future would in some measure make up for our thoughtlessness of the present.

BUY A POPPY—

In Arlington rests the Unknown soldier of America and on his Tomb are flowers, a token of remembrance not to the individual but to all the men who gave their lives during the World War.

Not every one can place flowers at this shrine, but all can wear a poppy during Poppy Week, sponsored by the American Legion, as our personal tribute to every man who died for his country.

In every community there are the widows and orphans of veterans, the dependent families of the disabled and the disabled men themselves to remind us that while the war may be over there are those who are still waging a battle to regain their lost health.

Let us not think of Poppy Day as just another "tag day" but as a day set apart on which to perform the sacred task of helping the thousands of men who are disabled because of their service in time of their country's need.

Beginning May 23 another opportunity presents itself to pay personal tribute to every man who gave his life for his country by wearing the emblem of sacrifice—the poppy.

As you pin the poppy on your coat and drop your coins in the little box, do it reverently, remembering that those little red petals symbolize the lives of the flowers of our country that were given that you and I might continue to enjoy its freedom.

HELPING YOURSELF—

Efforts are being made to have the Oakland hotel grounds as community park, at the disposal of the people of the town. With the B. and O practically donating the plot of ground, and the preliminary tree planting attended to, it remains for the people to continue the work.

There will be no paid laborers. Everyone who works will do so with the thought of building a permanent memorial. Thus far many citizens have offered their services but few have fulfilled their promises. Everyone will be proud of the park when completed and everyone will be glad to use it.

If the people were as enthusiastic in making the park presentable as they will be in making use of it after it is finished, Washington Spring park would be a spot of beauty in a comparatively short time.

From College Park, Md., it is announced by the Maryland Crip Reporting service that in this state, as elsewhere, the slump in farm real estate values range from 166 percent of the 1912-1914 level to 120 percent for 1930.

RATTLED SPEECHMAKERS

The other day when President Hoover visited a rural school at Porto Rico one of the boys was appointed to make a speech of welcome. He started in bravely, but after speaking about 20 words, he stumbled and paused. He could not think of the rest of his prepared address. That boy should not be discouraged or feel that he has disgraced himself. The great majority of Americans would do the same thing, not merely if they had to welcome the President of the United States, but if they were called on to speak at a meeting of the local grange or the town improvement society.

It is a peculiar thing that a great many people who can talk very volubly in private conversation, will become completely rattled if they are asked to say anything to a gathering of people. They may have plenty of good ideas, but their self-consciousness is too much for them. They are forced to close their remarks with a few stumbling words.

Many people who have no real and constructive ideas, can yet talk indefinitely without the slightest nervousness. While the people who have the best information and are capable of the most effective leadership, are often unable to express these ideas in any public address.

This is one reason why things so often go wrong in politics. The tonguey orators are apt not to have thorough information, while those who do have thorough information are apt to get rattled when they try to get their ideas over to the people in a public address.

We need more people who have thorough information, and who at the same time can put it into clear and logical form, and deliver it to the people in a brief address. Such persons have an amazing amount of influence and do untold good. The schools and colleges should do more to help their students acquire this gift.

Mountain Lake Park Is Again Agitated by Local People.

To the Editor of The Republican.

Legal voters in Mountain Lake Park, together with lot owners there and their wives and husbands and children over 21 years of age are to vote on adopting the new charter being published in The Republican, said election or vote to be held in the Park on July 14, 1931, in the afternoon.

All interested and eligible persons should very carefully read all features and parts of the bill; think, without bias, what is likely to be the result and effect upon the Park, Oakland and this part of Garrett county if the features of the Park are removed and an ordinary town, with a political government by a mayor and council are substituted and made like any other town in the county, then vote according to your best intelligence.

The Corporate Limits

Notice in the bill no courses are given more definitely than the quadrant they take;no reference is made to any survey or plat to locate the outlines and boundaries. Indefinite reference suggests "the grounds of Mountain Lake Park Association," and since the Association has sold the Dennett and several acres of border tracts, not indicated in their survey and plat, this bill can refer no more definitely than to "the grounds" and leaves the limits of the proposed corporation imperfectly and inadequately described.

The bill does not cross the border line of the "grounds of Mountain Lake Park Association," nor does it follow straight lines from point to point the Association "grounds." The distances do not appear to be accurate.

Officers, Etc., of Corporation

To the mayor and council (six in all) are added, by appointment, a town clerk, a treasurer, a bailiff, a tax collector, an assessor, with assistants, and compensation fixed by the mayor and council. Three or more judges, all persons, agents and servants of the mayor and council, thought necessary by them, can be appointed. All laws and ordinances the mayor and council want, they can pass and enforce by fines, imprisonment and even hard labor.

The mayor and council can assess as they please and tax at 60 cents on the assessment, which, if appealed, they decide for themselves. Mayor and council are given extraordinary powers to bond the town, to build electric plants, water works; condemn private property; provide gas supplies, street railway; enforce the building and maintaining of sidewalks, streets, alleys, lanes, etc., from the B. & O. R. R. to the Naylor farm, over a mile north.

The most extraordinary powers and authority are given the mayor and council, and it will require very remarkable executive and financial ability to save making a farce out of the whole affair while attempting to do everything from the above-mentioned to such unusual things as regulating sweepings, pitch, tar and turpentine.

The bill seems to provide a boss job for everybody connected with the mayor and council, whether he (or she) has great or small ability or inclination to do hard and many tasks. Indeed, it furnishes much interesting, if not melodramatic reading for the one who thinks as he reads. It will pay to thus read it before you vote on it July 14th next.

Possibly the most Tammany-like provision is that of making the judges out of the advocates. Somebody has exercised a strange lack of proprlety and practical jurisprudence in bringing about this arrangement. Most politicians at least pretend to be fair enough to avoid this condition with the temptation and result likely to follow in challenging and counting votes and possible litigation.

There seems to be plenty of oil provided for political machinery. New York City seems to have nothing on the Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park. How can the present Association or anyone to whom they can sell out function under the mayor and council? What wiseacre can tell them how or do it for them at less cost and more profit to us than in later times?

About all the complaint in the past and at present is about the fifth man on the Annual Committee. All this trouble would be saved by an arrangement to choose the fifth man by lot or some other fair method. For one, I suggest this as a better way to "carry on" the good old Park we love and have enjoyed so much, and I hope that troubling will cease and those weary of it may rest.

Sincerely yours,
N. B. NOTABENE.
Mt. Lake Park, Md., May 18, 1931.

Suppose!

To the Editor of The Republican.

Suppose that some of the rumors seeping down from the higher strata of the M. E. church in New York City actually materialize by a local vote to adopt the proposed new political charter for Mountain Lake Park and the almost certain result of the extinction of the Association by the transfer of all its property over to the direct ownership and use of the Methodist Episcopal church, together with the loss of local, State and county taxes on an assessment of over $52,000; and also the loss of a heavy deficit fund paid yearly for the benefit of the Park; and also the loss of quite a sum of money and outside business brought into the locality and county; and also the loss of very many social, religious and intellectual advantages now enjoyed, what plan or power will the political government by the local few have to take the place of and improve upon present conditions?

Who wants to assume such a task or undertake such a responsibility as to successfully finance and perform such an up-hill job, even if men having the ability to do so can be found here? Where are such men to be found here, and who have demonstrated their ability?

Suppose legal entanglements arise over those because we put our money into that property which we knew about and chose, we have nobody to blame but ourselves.

Suppose, after all, we find that the Legislature has not the power to abrogate contracts and take away property rights thereby, what kind of a mess will we get into if we get this thing thoroughly stirred up and have a regular Jewish uproar on our hands? What enmity will result and whom can we thank or blame for it?

The silence and inactivity of the Association is ominous and the hints are becoming stronger that they will accept a vote for the new charter as an invitation and an excuse to wash their hands (possibly yet this season) of their thankless task.

Suppose they do, whom will we blame and what will we do about it? Who will be the losers? Suppose!

T. D. RICHARDS.

Telegraph Man Balks Bandit; Suspect Held

—Courtesy the Washington Post

Traffic Officer R. Emerson Cross (left), formerly of Oakland, who captured a would-be bandit Tuesday night, May 12, whose attempt to hold up the Western Union Telegraph office at 708 Fourteenth street, Washington, D. C., was frustrated by Roy A. Barnes (right), a clerk.

Native of Oakland, Now Capital Policeman, Captures Robber

A clerk in the Western Union Telegraph office at 708 Fourteenth street, Washington, D. C., Roy A. Barnes, was sluged by a bandit last Tuesday night while frustrating a hold-up, but sounded an alarm which caused the arrest of the man as he fled from the office. Barnes was struck by the robber when he failed to obey a command to hand over the contents of the office cash box.

John L. Shipley, alias Simmons, 27, was arrested by Patrolman R. Emerson Cross, as he ran across G street at Fourteenth street. The man admitted the hold-up.

Mr. Barnes was alone in the office when the bandit entered. The would-be stick-up man walked to the counter with his hand in his pocket, as if holding a gun.

"Keep quiet; open the safe and hand me the money," he ordered.

"The safe is locked," Mr. Barnes answered as he placed his foot on a burglar alarm.

"Then hand me the money from the drawer."

"There it is; take it," said Barnes as he pointed toward the drawer.

As the man moved toward the drawer, Mr. Barnes darted past. The bandit slugged him with his fist. Mr. Barnes ran toward G street, shouting for police.

Patrolman Cross, on the southeast corner of the intersection, saw the two men running south, neck and neck, and ran across to intercept them.

Shipley, according to Cross, appeared to have a gun in his pocket. Cross drew his pistol and Shipley threw up his hands. In Shipley's pockets Cross found a roll of paper and the binding of a book, which had been used, Shipley admitted, to imitate the form of a gun.

Patrolman Cross is the son of Mrs. Charles E. Cross, of Oakland, and has been on the Washington police force two or three years.

An Interesting Fact

MARYLAND IN THE WORLD WAR

But the briefest outline of the part played by Maryland in the greatest of all conflicts in history may be made in an article of this length.

As was natural, owing to the diversity of nationalities making up the population of Maryland, as well as of the United States as a whole, before the declaration of war sympathies were somewhat divided. There was anti-British or anti-Allies sentiment among the Irish and German element, while antagonisms were aroused against Russia because of the persecution of the Jews under the Czarist regime. But with war definitely declared the criticism of President Wilson when, upon the sinking of theLusitania, he did not then and there call upon Congress to declare war against Germany, disappeared, and Maryland entered the fight with whole-hearted cooperation and more than filled the quota officially designated. Not only did her men enter the Army of the United States, but even prior to the final declaration Marylanders had already joined the forces of Canada, the British and the French. An outstanding figure in this respect, a typical soldier of fortune, John Prentiss Poe, Jr., who lost his life while serving with the British in Flanders, is cited.

Maryland men are credited with one Congressional Medal of Honor, 104 Distinguished Service Crosses and thirty-six Distinguished Service Medals, together with several score of Distinguished Service citations of the higher grades, and approximately 200 were awarded the Croix de Guerre and other foreign military decorations.

Many Marylanders were in the Seventy-ninth Division, a fighting unit, and in the Twenty-ninth, or the "Blue and Gray" Division.

According to the report of 1928 a total of more than 65,000 men in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps were registered from Maryland, exclusive of those who served with the Allies. Of those enlisted in the Army, totaling more than 55,000, more than 3,250 were killed or wounded in battle.

The One Hundred and Fifteenth Infantry of the Twenty-ninth Division (composed at first entirely of Marylanders), which sailed for France in June, 1918, was allotted one of the most difficult assignments of the war and achieved every task assigned to it. Of the three Congressional Medals of Honor awarded in the Twenty-ninth Division, two were won by members of this regiment.

Had we space, much could be said of the Three Hundred and Thirteenth Infantry, Seventy-ninth Division, and the One Hundred and Seventeenth Trench Mortar Battery, Rainbow Division, Maryland's First to Fight, which latter outfit is said to have fired approximately 50,000 bombs, or more than any other such battery in the Expeditionary Force.

In all departments of the fighting units, the Council of Defense, citizens and State officers, there is a record of patriotism, courage and efficiency of which we my well be proud.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Among those sick a-bed with attacks of measles were Mr. Joseph E. Harned.

Improvements noted were as follows: A new fence built by John Yelloly around his residence property on Alder street and a new platform laid in front of the D. E. Offutt store property on Second street.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Garrett County Bank the following were elected to the board of directors to serve one year: D. E. Offutt, G. S. Hamill, J. M. Davis, C. M. Bishop, G. W. Legge, Charles T. West and John P. Jones. Mr. Offutt was elected president and Mr. Hamill vice president by the board. S. T. Jones was retained as cashier.

Abraham Meeks, of Hutton, committed suicide by shooting himself in the chest. His wife, who discovered him in the act of taking his life, attempted to prevent the deed and had three of her fingers blown off when she grasped the muzzle of the gun.

Some person or persons unknown, took from the E. E. Sollars farm, near Oakland, some eggs which they stole from under a setting hen and was about to get away with a pan of milk but Mr. Sollars' dog interfered and forced them to drop it.

A son of Nelson Irvin caught a rainbow trout in Deep Creek which weighed two pounds and ten ounces when dressed.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

President William H. Taft accepted an invitation of the Mountain Lake Park Association to visit the place on June 25 and speak on "My experience with the Missions in the Philippines."

From the Gortner letter: Corn all planted; oats looking good notwithstanding the drought. Pasture is short.

Opel's saw mill on the Miller and Bender tract of timber in New Germany, was destroyed by fire on Tuesday night. The mill was rebuilt later. The loss was about $1200 with no insurance.

Ground was broken Tuesday for a proposed new hotel, corner Third and Alder streets, by the Oakland Construction Company. The building was planned to be three stories and basement.

Dr. W. Ravenscroft and Dr. N. I. Broadwater received new automobiles. At that time about thirty machines were owned by residents of Oakland.

Cheese and Bean Loaf With Tomato Sauce

One pound can kidney beans or 1 cup dried beans, cooked until tender; 1 cup grated cheese, 1 small onion, 1 cup bread crumbs, salt, pepper.

Put the beans and onion through a meat chopper. Add the cheese and seasonings and sufficient bread crumbs to make the mixture stiff enough to be formed into a roll. Bake in a moderate oven until delicately browned, basting with hot water combined with 2 tablespoons fat. Serve hot with tomato sauce.

Cottage Cheese Patties

Two tablespoons finely chopped onion, 2 tablespoons fat, 2 cups cottage cheese, 2 cups dry bread crumbs or 1 cup cooked rice and 1 cup bread crumbs; ¼ cup peanut butter, salt, pepper.

Cook the onion in the fat until tender, but not brown. Mix with other ingredients and salt, and pepper to season. Form into flat cakes and dust lightly with fine bread or cracker crumbs, or corn meal. Fry a delicate brown in a little fat in a hot frying pan. The mixture should be stiff since cheese tends to soften during the cooking.

Creamed Cauliflower With Ham

One head Cauliflower, 2 cups white sauce, 3 well beaten eggs, ¾ cup finely chopped ham.

Trim and boil cauliflower in salted boiling water until tender. Drain and run through sieve. Add eggs and white sauce (1 cup). Pour into buttered, heated, casserole. Bake until firm over low fire. Serve with remaining white sauce and sprinkle with ham.

Mr. C. C. Beachy, of near Bittinger, is in Oakland today on business.

Mrs. D. Edward Offutt entertained at her home on Second street last night with a bridge party at which fifteen guests were present.

Oakland High Holds Inter-Class Track Meet Last Friday

In preparation for the annual field day and track meet, to be held on Tuesday, Oakland High School students held an inter-class meet last Friday afternoon with the majority of students participating. The meet was held so that the faculty members could determine what each individual pupil was best fitted for in athletic events.

The freshmen in the tests scored 92 points; the sophomores, 80 points; the juniors, 54 points, and the seniors, 31 points. Events included 50, 60, 70, 80, 220, 440-yd. dashes, dodgeball throw for distance, speedball bat for distance, 440 yard relay, running high jump, 8-lb. shot put, run and catch relay, obstacle relay, hit ball, running broad jump, target pitch, touchdown pass ball, volleyball, hit and run bases, 880-yd. run.

A number of tests for events to be scheduled at the field day trials have not yet been held, including baseball throw for accuracy, 100-yd. dash, 660-yd. relay, soccer kick, running broad jump for senior unlimited and the medley relay. The scores of different classes will vary considerably from the above tabulation when the points yet to be made are calculated.

Miss Katharine Druse, instructor in elocution at Frostburg State Normal School, Frostburg, will be the speaker at the weekly luncheon of Oakland Rotary Club tomorrow evening at the William-James Hotel.

Mr. Henry Lauer, who went to Baltimore upwards of two weeks ago for medical treatment, has been detained in that city and is a patient in Johns Hopkins Hospital. The date of his return to Oakland cannot be stated at this time as his condition is considered rather precarious.

Dr. Fred. Anderson, District Superintendent of the M. E. church, of Parkersburg, W. Va., was in Oakland Sunday afternoon and evening. At the evening service in St. Paul's church Dr. Anderson preached a very able sermon, following which the third quarterly conference of the local church was held.

Announcement has been made of the approaching marriage of Miss Estelle Dennis to Dr. Edward Hann Watson, both of Baltimore, on June 9. Miss Dennis spent the summer in Oakland several years ago and conducted a class in dancing among the young people. Miss Mary Virginia Willison will be one of the bridesmaids.

Rev. C. A. Shilke, of Oakland, Rev. A. B. Harper, of Accident, T. C. Hinebaugh and Ralph Turney, of Oakland, and George J. Kolb, of Friendsville, went to Wheeling from Oakland Monday afternoon where they are attending the annual sessions of the West Virginia Synod of the United Lutheran church being held there this week. Messrs. Hinebaugh and Kolb are lay delegates from their respective congregations, while Ralph Turney is a candidate for the ministry.

A tarantula, measuring nearly or quite five inches, was captured at the Frank A. Smouse store in Oakland Friday morning when it dropped from a bunch of bananas being exposed for sale. The sting of a tarantula is said to be as deadly as that of a venomous reptile and much harder to treat by the medical profession. Friday was a cool, damp day, and hence the big spider was chilled and easy to capture. It was sent to the high school and is being studied by the biology class.

Sixteen scouts and their scoutmaster, accompanied by R. T. Hoffman and Richard Roy spent Saturday evening and Sunday morning at the Scout camp on Deep Creek Lake in the second over-night hike of the year. The scouts included Robert Altstetter, George Stuck, Harry Stemple, Howard Naylor, Horace O'Donnell, Geo. Kerlns, Robert Utterback, Bernard Gonder, Schell Hoyc, Eugene Nordeck, William Tillett, George Browning, Kenneth Lawton, James Nordeck, Arthur Lawton and Charles Davis.

DIED.

MRS. J. P. M'KEE

Mrs. J. P. McKee, aged 82, a summer resident of Mt. Lake Park, died at her home in Pittsburgh, on Sunday night. Death was due to infirmaties of old age.

Funeral services were held Wednesday from her home in Pittsburgh. She is survived by three children, Ira McKee, Myrtle McKee, and Faith McKee, all of Pittsburgh. Her husband, Rev. J. P. McKee, a retired minister, died 10 or 12 years ago.

The deceased had been coming to Mt. Lake Park during the summer months for the past 35 years.

JACOB EMERY BOWSER

Jacob Emery Bowser, aged 76 years, one month and 3 days, died at Selbysport on May 12, 1931. He was born on Hileman's Ridge, Garrett county, April 9, 1855. The following children survive: Katie, Dora, Annie, Sarah, Clara, the daughters, and four sons, Wallace, of near Oakland; Fred, Earl, and Henry; also one sister, Mrs. Mary Pysell, of near Deer Park. His wife, Susan Brown Bowser, and two daughters, Margaret and Alvira, preceded him in death. There are 36 grandchildren and 24 great-grandchildren. Following services in the Cove German Lutheran church, interment of the remains was made in the church yard.

The members of the family wish to thank all the friends and neighbors who assisted in their hour of bereavement.

JASPER GUARD

Funeral services for Jasper Guard, Friendsville, who died on May 9, 1931, were held Monday, May 11, Rev. Parham officiating. Interment was in the Friendsville cemetery.

The deceased was born near Friendsville October 21, 1851, the son of the late Jeremiah and Ophelia Guard. He was married to Ella Frantz, and to this union the following children were born: Clarence V. Guard, deceased; Mrs. Mildred Brown, Kingwood, W. Va.; Mrs. Daisy Crane, Clarksburg, W. Va. His second marriage was to Harriet Savage and to this union the following children were born: Mrs. May Carroll, Girard, O.; Mrs. Ethel Wolfus, Charleston, W. Va.; R. Earl Guard, Friendsville; Mrs. Jeanette Statler, Friendsville. He is also survived by sixteen grandchildren, two great grandchildren, and the following brothers: Jefferson, Watson, Hiram, Albert and Frank.

In his early life he spent thirteen years teaching schools of the county, and was tax collector in the county for a number of years. By trade he was a harness maker and was entered in the mercantile business in Friendsville for several years. He served as justice of the peace for seventeen years, and was otherwise active in serving the people of the county.

PUBLIC LOCAL LAW.

Providing For the Issuing and Sale of Bonds by the Mayor and Council of Grantsville.

CHAPTER NO. 282.

AN ACT providing for the issuing and sale of bonds by the Mayor and Council of Grantsville for constructing,erecting and maintaining water works in said town of Grantsville, condemn such land as may be necessary for the building of said works, and to levy taxes on the assessable property of said town to redeem said bonds and to pay the interest thereon.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That for the purpose of establishing, constructing and maintaining water works capable of furnishing the residents of said town with a good and sufficient supply of water for ordinary purposes and for fire protection, the Mayor and Council of Grantsville be and they are hereby authorized and empowered and directed to issue bonds in the name of the Mayor and Council of Grantsville to an amount not exceeding $25,000.00, or so much thereof as may be necessary for the purposes aforesaid. The said bonds shall be for sums not less than $500.00 each, nor more than $1,000.00 each, to be signed by the Mayor and President of the Council and countersigned by the clerk of the said Mayor and Council with the corporate seal of said town thereto affixed, bearing interest at not more than five per centum per annum, payable semi-annually in each and every year and dated on the first day of their issue. The said bonds shall be numbered serially. Bond No. 1 shall be due and payable three years from date of issue, and thereafter each bond shall mature and be payable each consecutive year from the maturity of Bond No. 1 in the order of their consecutive numbers; provided, however, the Mayor and Council of Grantsville are hereby given the option to redeem any or all bonds outstanding ten years from date of issue; that all of said bonds issued as aforesaid shall be due and payable within twenty-seven years from the date of their issue, and shall be forever exempt from all county and municipal taxation for any purpose, and shall have printed on them a reference to the Act of Assembly authorizing the issue thereof.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and Council of Grantsville are hereby authorized and empowered to construct and erect water works and sewerage from said town, and to contract for the purchase in fee simple or lease for a term of years, renewable at their pleasure, any land, real estate, springs, brooks, water courses, streams, and to use and occupy forever or for a term of years any land, real estate, springs, brooks, water courses or streams which they may deem expedient and necessary for the purpose of furnishing said town with water, and they are hereby invested with all the rights and powers necessary for the induction of water into said town. If for any cause the said Mayor and Council shall be unable to agree with any owner of real or leasehold property, springs, brooks, water streams or water courses or any other material which partakes of or is a necessary part of realty, or for any right of way which they may find necessary for the conduct of aaid water system in its entirety into or in aaid town, or if such owner is under any disability or incapacity to contract or absent out of the county or unknown, the said Mayor and Council of Grantsville is hereby clothed with the power of condemnation under the right of eminent domain as provided in the Public General Laws of Maryland as fully as if the provisions of said laws had been herein incorporated. The said Mayor and Council of Grantsville shall have full power to fix schedules of rates for furnishing water and aewerage to private residences and other buildings, and the said Mayor and Council shall have power to collect the saine as other taxes are collected and the income thereof shall be applied, first, for expenses and maintenance and afterwards for the payment of the interest on the bonds and a sinking fund to meet the bonds at maturity.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the title to said water works and all land, estates and water courses, waterways, conduits, pipes, machinery and all other parts thereto shall, when completed or acquired, vest in the Mayor and Council of Grantsville; and every person who shall knowingly or wilfully pollute any spring, streams, brooks, watercourse, reservoir or standpipe in connection with the said water works so built or constructed by throwing any impure or deleterious substance or thing into the same, or by swimming, bathing or washing themselves, or by washing clothes or any other thing therein, or by committing any nuisance in or near the sources of supply of the reservoir or atandpipe for aaid water works ao aa to pollute the same shall, upon convicition of such offense, be liable to a fine of not iess than twenty-five dollars, nor more than three hundred dollara for each offense, to be recovered by the Mayor and Conncil of Grantsville before a justice of the peace as other fines are recovered, or to imprisonment in the county jail or House of Correction for a term of not less than six months nor more than eighteen months, or both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the justicc of the peace, one-half of such fine to go to the informer and the balance to the Mayor and Council of Grantsville for the purposes of this act.

Sec. 4. And be it further enacted, That for the purpose of redeeming said bonds at their maturity and for securing the prompt payment of the interest thereon, the Mayor and Council of Grantaville shall for the year of the issue of said bonds and annually thereafter until the maturity of said bonds, levy a tax on the assessable property of said town not exceeding twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollara to pay the interest thereon, and the sum of one thousand dollars for the principal of said debt for the payment of the same at maturity. The said sum of one thousand dollars shall be held and invested by the Mayor and Council of Grantsville as a sinking fund for the redemption of said bonds at their maturity; and the said Mayor and Council of Grantsville shall from time to time deposit the money belonging to said sinking fund and the increment thereof in some safe depository which pays interest on deposits, or shall invest the same in State or other bonds satisfactory to the Mayor and Council of Grantsville as to them may seem best, or in the purchase or redemption of any of said bonds as may be offered for sale and redemption, and upon the purchase of any such bonds by the said Mayor and Council they shall be immediately cancelled by stamping across their face (Cancelled by the sinking fund), and no portion of said sinking fund so levied shall ever be diverted to any other purpose than to the purchase and liquidation of said bonds. The money collected each year by the treasurer or tax collector on account of taxes to the extent of said sum of one thousand dollars shall be set apart for said sinking fund, and a separate account shall be kept thereof and be deposited to the credit of said fund, and no part of which shall be chargeable to insolvencies on account of failure of assessments or collections.

Sec. 5. And be it further enacted, That the money arising from the sale of said bonds (which bonds shall be sold either at auction or by aealed bids or at private sale in the discretion of the Mayor and Council) shall be deposited in banks to the credit of said Mayor and Council of Grantsville and subject to their check, and the clerk of said town of Grantsville shall keep a book to be specially provided for the purpose of recording the names and addresses of the purchasers of the bonds sold and the amount realized on the sales, together with the serial number of the bonds.

Sec. 6. And be it further enacted, That in any prosecution before a Justice of the Peace under Section 3 of this Act, the accused and the Mayor and Council of Grantsville shall have the right to appeal to the Circuit Court for Garrett County within thirty days to a jury trial. Any person or persons convicted before a Justicc of the Peace under Section 3 of this Act who shall pray an appeal to the said Court, shall be held by recognizance or be committed to the county jail to appear before the next regular jury term of the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

Sec. 7. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and Council of Grantsville be and they are hereby authorized and empowered to negotiate, sell and dispose of said bonds as hereinbefore provided in Section 5 of this Act, or so many thereof as to the Mayor and Council may be deemed necessary for the purposes of this Act, and the said Mayor and Council are fully authorized to make all necessary rules and regulations and to pass all necessary ordinances, with penalties for their violation, and to do all other necessary acts for the proper managing, maintaining and repairing the said water works aystem and for the protection thereof.

Sec. 8. And be it further enacted, That the funds realized from the sale of said bonds shall be applied to the purposes of this Act and shall be paid by check signed by the Mayor and President of the Council, and the said Mayor and Council of Grantsville are hereby authorized and empowered to pass such orders for payment of money due for the construction of said water works or to the contractor or contractors for the construction of the same, as shall, from time to time be due or earned by the contractor or contractors in the prosecution of said works, and also from time to time to pass orders for the payment of property purchased or condemned, and for material furnished in pursuance of the provisions of this Act, and may in its discretion employ a competent hydrographical engineer to superintend the work of constructing such water works.

Sec. 9. And be it further enacted, That on the first Monday in April, in the year 1931, at the regular election held in the town of Grantsville, the question as to whether this Act shall take effect shall be aubmitted to the legal voters of said town, and all ballots at said election shall have printed on them the words "For Water Works," and the words "Against Water Works," and all voters desiring to vote for the provision of this Act shall mark his or her ballot with an (X) after the words "For Water Works," and all other voters desiring to vote against the provisions of this Act shall mark his or her ballot with an (X) after the words "Against Water Works." And if the judges of election shall decide that a majority of the votes cast "For Water Works," then this Act shall be in full force of law, otherwise to be of no effect. The judges of election shall, under their hands, immediately after said election, certify to the Mayor and Council of Grantsville the result of said election.

Sec. 10. And be it further enacted, That all acts and parts of Acts Inconsistent with the provisions of this Act be and the same are hereby repealed to the extent of their inconsistency, provided that nothing herein contained shall be taken as affecting Chapter 810 of the Acts of Assembly of 1914, nor as restricting any control which the State Board of Health of Maryland is empowered to exercise within the corporate limits of said town.

Sec. 11. And be it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety, and being passed upon a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the date of its passage.

CHAPTER XV

I received many reminders September 13 that another birthday had come, including a surprise party hy my staff that evening. As this was exnctly three months after I had reached Pnris, the time seemed to be passing very rapidly, with little npparent progress against the day when an American army should be on the front line.

The importnnce of shipping for America was beginning to be considered in nllied circles. I received a letter from General Robertson, British chief of staff, who spoke of their incrensing losses and of his nnxiety regarding the voyage of our troops across the Atlnntic. As to tonnage for us, he said, it wns entirely between Great Britain and ourselves, as none of the other allies could furnish any to speak of.

On top of this, in confereace a few days later with Lord Derby, the British minister of war, I was told that his government could not be counted on to furnish us with ships as transports.

The substance of General Robertson's letter was cabled to Washingtoa, suggesting the importance of taking advantage of the opportunity offered to obtain additional shipping. A few days later we were told that needful arrangements for transatlantic transports were being made by the shipping board.

Gloomy Time for Allies.

There was little in the general situation to give comfort to the allies. Losses by the British through continuing operations were still growing. There no longer remnined nny doubt as to Russia's fnte, and it was consequently certain that German troops on that front would be released for service in the west. Under the circumstances the tired allied pcople were easily influenced by rumors.

Tbe pope's proposal, issued in August, started some talk of peace, but as it failed to condemn Germany's violation of treatles and her inhuman submarine warfare, the note did not make a favorable impression on the allies. In fact, it was criticized in terms that were not at all moderate. The various repiies from the different governments did, however, arouse some hope, which was altogether unwarranted by the real attitude of the belligerent powers on either side.

The discussion wns unfortunate, because the French people, not realizing that peace was improbnble, lost some of their courage, and the depression from this and other factors caused uneasiness among both civil and military leaders.

From our sources of information, which included the intelligence bureaus of the allied armies, we got the impression tlnt Austria, Bulgaria and Turkey would mnke pence on any reasonable terms if they could do so.

Visits Artillery School.

The military post of Le Valdahon, near the Swiss border, used by us as a school for our field artillery, was one of several which had been kindly set apart for Americans in different parts of France. The others were at Costquidnn and Meucon, near St. Nazaire, and at Souge nnd La Corneau, near Bordenux, and also at Moatmorillon, Saumur and Angers, with a school for heavy artillery at Mailly, southenst of Rheims.

The school at Valdahon wns then under the direction of Brigadier General March, an energetic nnd nlert commander. At the time of my visit the Fiftb, Sixtb and Seventh regiments, comprising the field artillery brigade of the First division, were there for training.

As to tbe signal corps, and its progress, Colonel Russell, before leaving Washington, bad ordered a large consignment of material for both telegraph and telephone services, but so far none bad been received except what was sent with us on the Baltic. Finding it necessary to establish our own service in Paris, where the city system was almost useless, we were fortunately able at once to obtain enough material for the purpose in England and France.

Telephone Girls on the Job.

Tbe signal corps had, of course, to anticipate the communications necessary in battle. Therefore definite decisions were required some time in advance as to spheres of operations. Tons of material, most of which, except wire, was obtained in France, and any amount of labor was used in the actual installation. The main telephone and telegraph lines in proximity to the actual battle area were, when practicable, laid underground to prevent destruction.

One of the crying needs when we once began to use our own lines was for experienced operntors. Instead of trying to trnin men of the signal corps I requested tlnt a number of experienced telephone girls who could speak French be sent over, and eventually we had about 200 girls on this duty.

No civil telephone service that ever came under my observation excelled the perfection of our system after it was well established. The telephone girls in the A. E. F. took great pnins and pride in their work and did it with satisfaction to all.

The Hospital Problem.

The medicnl department's plnns constantly received my careful attention through frequent conferences with the chief surgeon, Colonel Bradley, and his assistant, Colonel Ireland. Our problem of handling the sick nnd wounded wns more difficult than that of any of the allies, as we had no civil hospitals of our own available. Full provision, therefore, had to be made for hospital accommodations in France, as only convalescents manifestly unfit for further service could be sent home. The early estimates submitted in August, based upon a sninll force of 300,000 men, called for 73,000 beds in permanent, semipermanent or temporary hospitals, nnd plans for expansion were in hand to keep pace with the expected requirements of our armies once they should become engaged. While this beginning appeared quite liberal, yet it was calculated to meet further demnnds of the immediate future.

All the facilities through France were available for the French, yet they had so many sick and wounded tlnt their hospitnl resources were pretty well exhausted. As there seemed to be only a few suitable buildings that could be assigned to us we had to plan considerable new construction. This required additional labor and material, both of which were scarce, and although there wns some delay we managed by persistent effort to keep pace with requirements.

Danger of Coal Shortage.

The destruction by the German army of the mines of northern France had forced the importation from England of a large proportion of the coal needed for various purposes in both France nnd Itnly. Lnck of cross-channel tonnage lind produced a serious situation, and the danger of coni shortage during the approncbing winter gave us much concern. Italy was even worse off, due to the greater distance from the source of supply.

The outcome of our efforts, with the very effective assistance of Admiral Mayo, wns that some coilers, one of which was already at Brest, were ordered into service for immedinte use, and these were supplemented later by vessels from the shipping board. An organized cross-channel service was completed under the control of our quartermaster department and later transferred to the transportation department. Although the coal question became more or less critical at various times, in the main we were fairly well supplied.

CHAPTER XVI

Having learned that, despite my recommendations, little or no attention was being given at home to the importance of teaching our men the use of the rifle, it seemed necessnry again to emphasize my views, especially after further knowledge of its neglect in allied armies.

The infantry soldier, well trained in stealthy approach and in the nrt of taking cover, makes a small target and, if an expert rifleman, there is nothing that can take his place on the battlefield.

"Specialties of trench warfare at home," I cabled Washington, September 24, 1917, "should not be allowed to interfere with rifle practice nor with intensive preliminary training in our schools of soldier, company and battalion."

Americans Retain Jurisdiction.

My diary notes the following:

Chaumont, Wednesday, Sept. 26, 1917.—The French agree that we should retnin exclusive jurisdiction over American soldiers in France.

Chief of ordnance at Washington delays storehouse construction by requesting views of French commissioner regarding our necessities.

Have again cabled relative to carelessness and delay in loading of transports.

The War department had brought up the question of civil jurisdiction over the members of our forces in France and had inquired regarding the attitude of the French.

My judge advocate, Col. W. A. Bethel, presented our opinion to the French authorities, which was that according to the principles of international law, and in view of the conditions under which the Americaa army was serving in France, its members should not be subject to criminal prosecution in Franch courts but should be answerable only to our own military tribunals. This view was readily accepted by the French, and very properly the jurisdiction over our forces, both civil aad military, remained in our hnnds.

"Great Confusion at Home."

There was nmple evidence of great confusion at home due to lack of efficient supervision, even in New York harbor, where experts should have been easy to find. Ships were seldom loaded to their full capacity; supplies greately needed were often left behind; nonessentinls were being sent over; mnny things were broken due to careless londing; troops were often shipped to one port and their equipment to nnother.

The Washington bureaus often followed blindly some out-of-dnte supply table perhaps drawn up under a former regime by an nntiquated desk soldier long since retired nnd forgotten. As nn illustratiou, I recall a bill of lading from one of our transports that was presented to me abont this time as a curiosity. It listed a number of articles quite useless to an army in the field nud provoked the following cable:

"For all departments. Recommend no further shipments be made of following articles . . . bnth bricks, bookcases, bnthtubs, cabinets for blanks, chairs except folding chnirs, cuspidors, office desks, floor wax, hose except fire hose, stepladders, lawn mowers, refrigerators, settees, sickles, stools, window shades. Further stop orders will follow soon."

We were short-handed, both at depots and along the line of commnnications, in all classes of labor that should have been sent over long before. The quartermaster corps in France was seriously hnndicapped in handling, curing for and issuing its stores and supplies.

The need for stevedores had become most urgent. Combat troops were still being used to unload cargo and much time was wasted by the use of labor that was entirely unsuitnble for this sort of work through lack of experience. Moreover, it was urgent tlnt the combat troops should be sent inland to receive their battle instruction. The French, although short themselves, had loaned us a few prisoners nnd nlso some women as laborers to help out, but neither class was satisfactory. Under the conditions there was danger that our ports would become hopelessly congested, although three weeks later, and after further urgent appeals, the War department promised to send stevedores at once.

Line Training for First Division.

My diary notes the following:

Chaumont, Thursday, Oct. 4, 1917.—Gen. de Castelnau called Tuesday to discuss entry of First division in the line.

Witnessed attack maneuver of the division yesterday and conducted critique.

Ambassador Sharp came today with Mr. Joseph Reinach for a visit and had lunch with us. Have cabled appeal for officers fitted for general staff.

The French, always solicitous regarding the progress of our training, were anxious that our most advanced American unit take its place in a quiet sector, for the experience. The main reason they advanced for suggesting front-line training at this time, with which I fully agreed, was that it would give new encouragement to their armies and through them to the people. The First division itself was keen to take a more active part and was soon to have the opportunity.

This division had been billeted in the training area since July 15 and had begun to show the excellent effects of the system of training we had prescribed. At the maneuver which I attended the officers handled their units with considerable skill, particularly Capt F. H. Burr, who conducted an attack with his battalion of the Twenty-eighth regiment, and Maj. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., who did a similar problem with his battalion of the Twenty-sixth regiment.

Pleased With Efficiency.

At the division school the bayonet exercises, special target practice, firing with trench mortars, bomb-throwing and other trench training were well carried out. I returned much pleased with the evidences of efficiency in this organization, which was later to become famous among the armies on the western front.

My diary says:

Paris, Wednesday, Oct. 10, 1917.—Spent Sunday at Gondlrecourt, First division field meet, with General Harbord, General Ragueneau and Representative Medill McCormick. We lunched with Bullard.

"Yesterday evening the officers at G. H. Q. called to extend congratulations on confirmation of my appointment as general. All heads of permnnent staff departments appointed to grade of brigadier general.

A group of major generals are over on tour of inspection.

The staff department heads who became brigadier generals at that time were: James G. Harbord, chief of staff; Benjamin Alvord, adjutant general; Harry L. Rogers, quartermaster general; W. A. Bethe, judge-advocate general; Edgar Rnssell, chief of signal corps; G. C. Williams, chief of ordnance, and A. E. Bradley, chief surgeon.

Officers Visit Battlefields.

In accordance with my recommendation, division commanders from the states were being sent over to visit the battlefields, armies and schools in order to become acquainted with conditions and to experience the atmosphere of war. It was important that they should appreciate the realities and become fully impressed with the urgency of thorough preparation of their commands. It was thought they would become impressed with the aggressive spirit that characterized our training in France by coming into close touch with our methods.

These officers were sent to visit the allied fronts and to see demonstrations at our own training fields and schools and were also taken along the line of communications. I took occasion to give them personally my conception of the course of training that should be followed at home, making an especial point of rigid discipline, rifle practice and the instruction of junior officers in open warfare.

A number of the officers sent over were either physically unfit or had reached the age when new ideas fail to make much of an impression, and consequently I recommended that those of both classes be left at home for other duty or to be retired.

MARYLAND ON HONOR ROLL IN REPORTING SICKNESS

Communicable Diseases Reported Completely and Accurately

Maryland is one of the twenty-five States that have recently been placed on an honor roll open only to those States that have passed certain requirements with regard to the accuracy and completeness with which sickness from communicable disease is reported. The tests were made by the U. S. Public Health Service and the sections covered by the States that have met all of the requirements will comprise what will be known officially as the U. S. Reporting Area for Sickness—or—Morbidity, to use the technical term.

Five widely prevalent diseases were used as "yardsticks" to measure the completeness with which sickness from all kinds of communicable diseases are reported—typhoid fever, diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and whooping cough. The test is to be repeated annually. Accordingly, a state that wishes to keep its high standing, or to attain a higher place on the honor roll, must literally keep up to the mark.

Asked whose duty it was to notify the health officer of the occurrence of a communicable disease, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the Maryland State Department of Health, said: "If a physician is in attendance, he is expected to report the case. Superintendents of institutions and householders are also held responsible for reporting such diseases and teachers are asked to notify the health officer when suspected cases of communicable diseases come under their observation in the schools.

"More and more, the prevention of disease has become a cooperative arrangement. Diseases know no boundaries. In these days of easy travel by land, sea and air, diseases spread very quickly. In order that the people under his care may be adequately safeguarded, it is necessary that the health officer be notified—and promptly—where there is sickness from diseases that spread from individual to individual, or in other ways.

"When the custom of reporting such diseases was started a quarter of a century ago, there were not more than ten or fifteen diseases on the 'notifiable' list. Now there are over fifty, including influenza, pneumonia. typhoid, tuberculosis, the so-called children's diseases—measles, diphtheria, scarlet fever and whooping cough and the rest of that group—other less prevalent diseases, such as septic sore throat, epidenmic jaundice, diarrhea, dysentery, with undulant fever and rabbit fever (tularemia) among the more recent additions.

"Since the first of the current year over 33,000 cases of communicable diseases, about one-third of which have occurred in the counties and the rest in Baltimore City, have been reported to the State Department of Health. In the total there were over 9,000 cases of influenza; over 2,000 of pneumonia; 10.000 measles; 1,400 of scarlet fever; 400 of whooping cough; 300 of diphtheria, and 800 of tuberculosis, with the rest distributed among less prevalent diseases, including typhoid, typhus and undulant fevers, erysipelas, meningitis, septic sore throat, pink eye and epidemic jaundice."

EYES OF OG NO LONGER SUFFICE FOR THIS AGE

Eyes Developed for Primitive Forest a Total Loss Today

The eyes of Og no longer suffice for the man of the street today. The visual apparatus designed and developed for peering into the primitive forest, is a total loss for the desk slave of the modern era.

The young business man may have the keen sight of the eagle, yet hopelessly hamper himself in the business world today, with its ceasless concentration at near point. Not on his ability to see the distant horizon, but his power to continue to absorb knowledge hour after hour from printed reports, is the criterion.

The keenest eyed youngster on the school yard, may be the dullard in class. not because of defective mental ability. but in that he has eyes splendidly adapted for the primitive use, but definitely detrimental after long hours at the desk.

The staggering cost of re-education of children in the United States today. estimated by two States alone as nine and seven and a half million respectively, tells the toll of cost to the taxpayers of this failure to understand Visual Inefficiency.

Industry, with a loss of two and a half billion yearly. From this failure to understand the difference between good sight and efficient vision, pays a staggering price for its heedlessness. It may literally be said that civilization is being halted in its stride by a blind devotion to good sight rather than efficient vision.

One fifth of the National payroll wasted from visual inefficiency four out of ten of the adolescenst in the reformatories from the same cause, the cost of re-education running a staggering total, immediate comprehension of this tremendous problem by the public is needed.

MT. LAKE PARK

To demonstrate that activity at the Park at this time of year is not so hot, and in proof of the theory of Prof. Einstein that time and space are the same, we have only to refer to last Sunday morning.

A lady of our acquaintance arose rather early and remembering that a garment needed repairing, proceeded with that task. Having finished, she noticed a porch blind that could stand some repairs. No sooner noticed than done. Then, finding time hanging heavy, she jotted down a number of articles she wished to purchase at the stores. Noting that her neighbors were not stirring about and thinking that she had gotten up earlier than she intended, she hunted up her snippers and proceeded to trim about twenty-five feet of her hedge. At that point she was accosted by a friend who inquired what she was thinking about doing such work on Sunday morning. She dropped her shears and fled. She thought it was Saturday.

It looks as though we would have something out of the routine to talk about during the pre-season activities, as the line-up is already taking place in the ranks of those in favor and those against the ratification of the Act creating a new charter for the Park, the referendum election being scheduled for July 21. Circulars are this (Wednesday) morning in the hands of a number of citizens setting forth the points of the Act which the writer evidently believes call for its defeat. The circular is signed under the name "N. B. Notabene", meaning "note well; take notice."

Dr. Eyler, of Cumberland, is the guest of Mrs. L. J. Campbell.

Mrs. L. M. Cunningham and son, of Fairmont, were the guests of friends in the Park on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Fleming, of Fairmont, are at their cottage here for a few days preparing to open it for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Fazenbaker and son Raymond, and Miss Mabel Fazenbaker, of Westernport, were visiting relatives at Loch Lynn on Sunday. Miss Fazenbaker is remaining there a week as a guest at the home of her aunt, Mrs. G. W. Sterling.

The Deaconess' Home is undergoing some repairs, the work being done by Messrs. Welling and Schooley.

A painful accident occurred to Mrs. Stella Sisler Tuesday when she attempted to drive a horse from one part of her lot to another. The horse, belonging to Mr. C. E. Hardesty, was being used to plow the garden of Mrs. Sisler and had been allowed to crop grass during the noon hour. When Mrs. Sisler attempted to move the animal, it kicked out with both feet, one striking her on the side of the face and the other on her shoulder. While her injuries are painful, they are not thought to be serious.

Mrs. J. O. Harvey was visiting Mrs. Sisler over Sunday.

Mrs. G. W. Sterling has returned from California, Pa., where she was visiting relatives and friends.

Mrs. Brent Maxwell, Clarksburg, is here arranging to open her summer home for the season, having motored to the Park on Monday.

The Mount Airy Canning Company is preparing for the season by making the usual spring repairs and alterations at the plant here.

Mr. P. T. Lipscomb reports the chances for a bumper crop of strawberries very encouraging. His strawberry bed is a riot of bloom.

Another portion of Roanoke Avenue, Loch Lynn, the street leading from the State road westward past the school building, will be improved at once.

Mrs. Elmer Murphy, of Washington, D. C., spent several days at the Park this week. She will return in a short time for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Procter, Crafton, Pa., motored to the Park Sunday. It is probable that they will take a cottage for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Traver and son William have returned to the Park after having spent a portion of the winter in Florida. Their cottage, Park View, will be open shortly for the reception of guests.

Misses Isabelle and Katherine Hardie, Washington, are guests for the summer at the Schrock Cottage.

Mrs. Frank Morgan has opened her cottage for the summer after having spent the winter in Baltimore and on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

Mrs. Julia Ruhl and daughter, Miss Mary Ruhl, of Clarksburg, were here this week arranging for the opening of their summer home.

Miss Harriet Oswell, Mrs. Louis Killius and Miss Killius motored to Cumberland Sunday where Mr. Killius is recovering from a recent surgical operation performed at Memorial Hospital.

John O. Morgan, at present engaged in lumber operations near Buckhannon, W. Va., spent Sunday here with his family.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fike have returned from a few days' visit with the mother of Mrs. Fike, at Amboy, West Va.

Mrs. E. L. Winchell, after spending the winter in Woodsfield, Ohio, has returned to her home, "Journey's End," in the Park.

YOU SAVE ON EACH KWH* BY USING MORE ELECTRICITY

Many customers pay only $5 to $6 a month to run all these appliances and for good lighting. Of course, lighting desires vary with individual families. But today's ideal is more and better illumination, the basis of which is shaded light. And the more current used, the less, step by step, each KWH* costs you.

*KWH—Kilowatt hour—the unit used to measure electrical energy.

MONONGAHELA SYSTEM

STARR FREEZE ELECTRIC REFRIGERATORS

Are advanced in conveniences, exceptional in economy, outstanding in quiet, efficient, dependable performance, the New Starr Electric Refrigerators are an achievement in the development of mechanical refrigeration. No matter what model you select—as especially suiting to the needs of your family and size of your kitchen—you may depend on it to meet every requirement. Here you will find everything modern science has contributed to the utmost efficiency of household refrigeration.

Each model is built to fine quality all the way through. Trim and beautiful in appearance, operating quietly, smoothly and efficiently producing an atmospheric condition in the food compartment and trays that assure proper preservation of all food and an abundance of ice cubes. Each is a household utility of practical and indispensable value.

Your refrigerator is too important a part of your household equipment to be selected without the most careful deliberation.

Thorough consideration and closest comparison of the many features of the Starr will convince you a Starr Freeze marks a definite milestone in mechanical refrigeration history.

Smooth white cabinets, with the rounded edges, highly enameled, splendidly designed and well constructed, with hardware of outstanding beauty and strength, reflect their high quality. Inside and outside the same painstaking care to detail is observed regardless of the model.

Height .....57⅜ inches
Width .....31½ inches
Depth .....23⅛ inches
Capacity .....7 cubic feet
Shelf area .....13 sq. feet
Ice cubes 112
Hardware—Chromium plated.

The mechanical units operate quietly and smoothly, creating and maintaining a steady, even condition of cold for keeping food safe and for ice making. The temperature control of varying speeds is a means of fast cooling and freezing—an indispensable convenience.

Food shelves are so placed to eliminate tiresome stooping and all food articles and dishes may be placed to be readily accessible. The food compartment is one-piece, durable, sanitary and very easy to clean. The ice tray compartment consists of several trays which provide for an ample supply of cubes at all times.

Every effort has been made to produce in the "Starr Freeze" an electric refrigerator of distinction, of unmatched value and one which will provide you the many conveniences and delights and health advantages of electric refrigeration with satisfactory service over a long life at a price within the reach of all. Investigate immediately.

Why buy a one-door refrigerator when you can buy a two-door for the same price? It is more beautiful, more economical, and will require less running time. As pictured—

$225.00

Small carrying charge will be added for time purchases.

THREE AND ONE-HALF YEARS GUARANTEE ON ALL ELECTRIC REFRIGERATORS.

POOR VISION HANDICAPS MANY HI SCHOOL PUPILS

Results of Examination Show 150 With Defective Vision Attending Advanced Schools

WORK IS NOT COMPLETED

Educational investigations and surveys during the past few years have shown that one of the most outstanding handicaps to the learning process in the elementary schools and high schools of today is that of defective vision," Mrs. Joseph F. Fahey, county health nurse, stated yesterday to a Republican reporter.

"Many pupils," continued Mrs. Fahey, "are not up to standard from their first entrance into school because of their poor eyesight, unable to see what is plainly visible to other children, and therefore unable to grasp the subject matter before them.

"Headaches, weak eye muscles, nervous irritability and many other symptoms are due to astigmatism and other eye defects.

"Recently a senior in one of the Garrett county high schools was thought to be threatened with a nervous breakdown. Examination by an eye specialist proved the child to be suffering from a bad case of astigmatism. Correct glasses were supplied and the child very soon returned to school in the best of health and ready to do successful work. This illustration shows the importance of arresting the evils of defective vision in the very beginning of school life.

"Results of an examination given in the high schools of this county have shown that more than an hundred and fifty children wih defective vision are now attending high school. Survey of the elementary schools has not been completed.

"During the past year," stated Mrs. Fahey, "more than one hundred children, including both elementary and high school pupils, have had their eyes examined and have been supplied with the correct glasses.

"For those unable to pay for this most necessary correction, Dr. George Sharrett, of Cumberland, who is a specialist in his profession, has made the examination free of charge and glasses have been purchased at cost and paid for by the Garrett County Chapter of the American Red Cross. In many instances the parents of the child were financially able to meet this expense themselves and the public health nurses assisted by making appointments and arranging transportation.

"Dr. Sharrett states," continued Mrs. Fahey, "that 'every child that has been referred to me from Garrett county by the public health nurses has been found to have a major defect of the eyes.'

"However," concluded the nurse who is rendering such invaluable aid to the children of the county, "only the most urgent cases have been taken care of to date. But with the cooperation of all concerned it is the goal of the Public Health Service to complete this survey and follow-up work that is necessary before all corrections in the vision of school students can be made."

Waingold Appeals Conviction on Automobile Case

Louis Waingold, automobile dealer, Oakland, has taken an appeal to the Circuit court over a decision rendered last Thursday afternoon by W. A. Gonder, Justice of the peace, when he was fined $300 on a violation of the automobile laws of Maryland.

Waingold was charged under the violation which follows: "causing the removal, defacing, altering, changing, destroying, obliterating of any trade mark or serial number from a motor vehicle." Waingold was alleged to have changed the motor number of a truck to suit the motor number on a title for a touring car.

Conviction under this charge carries a fine up to $1,000, imprisonment up to seven years, or both.

Cattle Killed and Injured

A herd of cattle being driven along the highway near McHenry last Wednesday morning by Lesla Rodeheaver, tenant on the Charles A. Ashby farm adjoining Deer Park, were run into by a heavily laden truck being operated by Elmer Bernard, of McHenry. Two cows were killed and four injured. The accident is said to have been unavoidable. Mr. Bernard settled the resultant loss with the owner of the animals killed.

PEERLESS SCHOOL LEADS IN COUNTY ATTENDANCE

Stands at Top With 100 Percent; County Average is 90.6

Peerless school, with an attendance of 100 percent, led all schools of the county for the month of April, according to John L. Fitzwater, attendance officer. Strawberry Hill, with 98.9 percent, led the two-teacher schools, Kempton with 96.7 led the graded schools, and Kempton, with 93.1, led the High schools. Oakland High was second with 92.9.

One-teacher schools having 95 percent or better included Peerless, M. Spring, Rock Lodge, Promised Land, Engle, Dorsey, Gauer, Wilson, Frankville, Gorman, Pine Swamp, Bond, Rich Hill, Short Run.

The county average for April was 90.6, divided as follows: one-teacher schools, 88.9; two-teacher schools, 90.2, graded schools, 92.2; high schools, 92.2.

FOURTH ANNUAL PROGRAM AND TEA WILL BE HELD

Dress Review and Dollar Dress Contest to be Featured

The Fourth annual county-wide program and tea will be held Wednesday, June 3, at the Lutheran church, Oakland, Miss Elsie Benthien, home demonstration agent, has announced. .

The meeting will open at 10:30 a. m. with the following tentative program: community singing, reports of the 10 homemakers clubs and groups, organization of a county council of homemakers, reports by home flower garden project leaders and delegates to rural women's short course at College Park.

A dress review, including children's clothes, made-over garments, and a one dollar dress contest, will be featured at 1:30 p. m. This will be followed by a food demonstration by Miss Eleanor Howe, director of home economics department, McCormick & Company, Inc., Baltimore. She will feature an afternoon tea.

The C. & A. Gas company and the Western Maryland Power company local offices will assist with equipment for this demonstration.

Every homemaker in the county is invited to attend. The extension service work is far-reaching, Miss Benthien stated, and includes farm or city home making and community development. The persons reached may include every status of age, nationality, standards, ideals, and experience, and every stage of social, economic and educational development.

Put Each Other Under Peace Bond

Following a conviction Monday before Justice W. A. Gonder for disorderly conduct and the use of profane and obscene language on a public highway, for which the defendant was fined $1 and costs, both plaintiff and defendant put each other under peace bonds.

Rev. E. C. Cuppett, Loch Lynn, preferred the disorderly conduct charge against Delph E. Callis, Loch Lynn. After the $1 and costs had been paid and the defendant had departed the plaintiff placed him under a peace bond. When Callis learned of his restraint, he immediately had Rev. Cuppett likewise placed under a peace bond.

Fourth of July Celebration To Feature Parade at 6 P. M.

All parade plans for the annual Fourth of July celebration to be held under the joint auspices of the American Legion post and the Oakland Volunteer Fire department, have been completed, according to Neil Fraley.

Although the celebration will be on July 3 and 4, there will be only one mammoth parade, and that will take place on July 4 at 6 o'clock. This is to include drum corps, fire departments, organizations, floats, bands, and other attractions, he stated.

Scouts Awarded Merit Badges At Court of Honor

Three scouts of Oakland Troop No. 1 were awarded merit badges at the regular meeting of the Court of Honor held Monday night in the Masonic clubroom, according to Harland L. Jones, chairman.

Those receiving merit badges were Carroll Casteel and Lewis Jones, leathercraft; and John McIntire, pathfinding.

OAKLAND HIGH SCHOOL WINS FIFTEENTH ANNUAL TRACK AND FIELD MEET; TWO COUNTY RECORDS SHATTERED

Kitzmiller High Places Second, Friendsville Third and Oakland Grammar Fourth

EVENT WINNERS LISTED

Oakland High school with 159 points, easily outdistanced all opponents to win the fifteenth annual track and field meet at the Fairgrounds, Oakland, on Tuesday. Two new county records were established and one record was tied. The meet was held by the authority of the Board of Education and under the direction of the Playground Athletic League of Maryland.

Kitzmiller High school, last year's winner, was second with 92 points.

Due to heavy rains during the past few days the track was exceedingly slow and no records were broken in the running events. W. Sharpless, Kitzmiller High, set a new record in the 8-lb. shot put with a heave of 43 ft. 9 inches, displacing the old record of 41 ft.. 10 inches, held by M. Butler, Oakland High.

Kermit Jessee, Oakland High, made a new record in the standing hop, step and jump in the 95-lb. class, with a distance of 20 ft. 6 inches, displacing the old record held by J. Burrell, Kitzmiller High.

J. Morgan, Oakland High, tied the record of 210 feet in the baseball throw for distance in the 95- lb class.

1.	Oakland High	159
2.	Kitzmiller High	92
3.	Friendsville	66
4.	Oakland Grammar	53
5.	Accident	52
6.	Kempton	50
7.	Kitzmiller Grammar	47
8.	Grantsville	35
9.	Crellin	17
10.	Deer Park	10
11.	Loch Lynn	2
12.	Jennings	1

The State-wide meet in Baltimore will occur on Friday, June 5, and all first place winners in the various events in the counties are entitled to partcipate. Last year forty or more Garrett county athletes went to Baltimore in a large bus.

A total of 827 boys and girls participated in the events for bronze, silver, gold and super-gold badges, while approximately 800 took part in the track, field and game events. Following is a record of the winners of the various events.

REV. DAWSON IS CHOSEN TO MAKE MEMORIAL TALK

Decoration Day to Be Observed Sunday, May 31, at 2 o'Clock

Rev. J. W. Dawson, local Methodist pastor, will make the address for the Memorial Day observance in Oakland on Sunday, May 31, according to Delbert Davis, member of the committee appointed by the American Legion, which organization has charge of the affair. All other arrangements for the memorial service have been completed, he said.

The parade will form at 2:00 o'clock p. m. in front of the City Hall and will proceed north on Third street, west on Crook street, south on Second street to Alder street, thence to the cemetery. The address will be delivered at the grave of the unknown soldier after ceremonies in charge of the local Legion have been concluded.

The parade will be composed of the members of the G. A. R., members of the American Legion, ex-service men, Legion auxiliary, veterans of other wars, the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band, Boy Scouts, Knights of Pythias, Junior Drum and Bugle Corps and other societies. Members of the Knights of Pythias, which organization contributes largely to these annual observances, are requested to meet at Castle Hall at 1:30 o'clock.

All ex-service men of the World War and veterans of other wars are urged to be in Oakland and participate in the observance of the day.

The ceremonies are being held on Sunday in order that the Legionaires may attend the Memorial Day celebration at Grafton on Saturday, when the local drum and bugle corps attached to the local Legion post, will attend and participate in the observance of the day in the West Virginia town.

NOT TO DECLARE WINNER IN COUNTY-WIDE FORUM

Representatives May Discuss Either Side of Question

That representatives in the county-wide Fraley declamation contest for High schools could discuss either side of the question and that no winner would be declared, was announced this morning by F. E. Rathbun, the county superintendent of schools. These were the only changes made in the method of conducting the county-wide contest.

There will be one representative from each high school in the county, who will debate for seven minutes or less on the subject, "Does the Wickersham Report advance or retard the present policy of Prohibition?".

The forum is scheduled to be held in the Oakland High school auditorium on Thursday, June 4, at 8 o'clock.

The prize money will be divided among the schools which participate.

LUTHERAN SYNOD CLOSES 19TH ANNUAL CONVENTION

An Increase in Sunday School Attendance is Reported

The nineteenth annual convention of the Lutheran Synod of West Virginia was held in Wheeling May 19, 20 and 21. Representatives from this section were Rev. C. A. Shilke and T. C. Hinebaugh, Oakland; Rev. A. B. Harper and George Kolb, Accident; Rev. W. E. Waybright and Elmer Shaffer, Eglon parish.

Dr. A. B. Leamer, Charleston, reported an increase in Sunday School attendance, and an increase in the number of training schools and daily vacation Bible schools. The synod raised 72 percent of its apportionment which was considered good in the face of the depression.

The annual convention of the Brotherhood was held with 65 present. Glen Edgar, Charleston, was re-elected president; Walter Kauffman, secretary; Mr. Loy, treasurer. Dr. J. W. Kapp, Cincinnati, addressed them.

The synod re-elected Rev. C. G. Aurand, Wheeling, president; Rev. C. A. Shilke, Oakland, vice-president; Rev. C. A. Portz, Wheeling, secretary; Mr. B. F. Becker, Huntington, treasurer; Rev. C. E. Butler, Huntington, statistical secretary; Rev. Simon Snyder, Wheeling, historian.

The synod will meet next year in Fairmont, when the 20th anniversary of the organization will be celebrated.

John Landis Still Missing—Report of Finding Him False

Rumors that John Landis, 84, Deer Park, who left his home a week before Easter to visit relatives near Petersburg, W. V. and who never arrived there, had been found dead along the railroad tracks between Grafton and Belington, were discovered to be false when two sons went to Grafton yesterday and were unable to identify their father in any way.

The man was discovered in a sort of cave by a section foreman and it appeared that he had been dead for six weeks.

A report in Deer Park this morning is to the effect that he has been discovered living in an almshouse at Petersburg, but no investigation has been made as yet.

Mr. Landis has five sons and one daughter, J. Hugh, Herman, William, Ebenezer, Clyde and Nora all at home.

To Dedicate Memorial for World War Dead at Baltimore

Members of the Garrett county committee appointed to represent the county at the dedicatory services of World War Memorial tablets in Baltimore on Saturday, May 30, will hear addresses by Lt. Col. Herbert L. Grymes, Col. Harry C. Jones, Governor Albert C. Ritchie and Howard W. Jackson, Mayor of Baltimore.

Besides the four principal speakers the representatives of the counties of Maryland will speak in memory of their county's war dead. Delbert Davis will represent Garrett county in this service.

Music will be furnished by the band of the Twelfth Infantry, U. S. A. The exercises will be held at eight o'clock p. m., in the War Memorial building, Baltimore, and the tablets with the names of those who died during the war inscribed thereon will be unveiled by the county representatives. Other members of the Garrett county committee are John A. Shores, Kitzmiller; Earl Guard, Friendsville; A. D. Naylor and H. L. Jones, of Oakland.

ACTIVITY OF RED CROSS IN COUNTY IS REVIEWED

158 Families Have Received Food, Clothing, Seed for Planting and Feed For Stock

FORTY-TWO TURN FARMERS

A recent report of the drought relief, carried on by the American Red Cross through its local chapter with Mrs. E. Z. Tower, chairman, and Mr. J. M. Jarboe, treasurer, shows that during the past two months a total of 158 families, comprising 517 individuals, have been aided by the donation of foodstuffs, clothing, seed for garden planting and feed for live stock, and that practically all of these families were in destitute circumstances.

In an interview yesterday with Mrs. Tower, who has the work of relief in charge, a closer insight into what the American Red Cross has been doing, was learned by The Republican reporter and is passed on to the readers of the paper.

Two or three months ago the sum of $1,500 was received from the National Red Cross for drought relief in Garrett county. The Red Cross fund was to take care of those not able to receive money through the farm relief program. It did not provide any funds for the unemployed, but only for those who did not have sufficient acreage or means of cultivation to come under the farm relief plan.

The 158 families who received help were in the Kitzmiller, Deer Park, Sines and Swallow Falls communities; at Bloomington and in the vicinity of Swanton, in the majority of cases. One case in particular was cited by Mrs. Tower. There was in one house thirteen persons. First, the mother; the oldest son was 31, a cripple as the result of a rheumatic condition; another son, 22, who had to do the farming. There were nine children altogether, the youngest 7. There were two grandchildren and the woman's mother, 78, a cripple. One of the boys was an invalid. The husband deserted his family last winter and nothing has been heard of him since that time. The crops on this farm falled last year; the children had to attend school, going to and coming from the school barefoot; there was nothing in the house to eat and nothing with which to feed the stock, which were practically dead from starvation. This is one instance. Others were not as horrible, but they were horrible enough.

"Many other cases listed were just as pitiful," Mrs. Tower stated. "In all worthy cases we helped to the extent that our funds would allow. Most of the clothing and shoes went to the children, but staple groceries, etc., were distributed to the entire family."

A total of 175 packages of garden seed were received from the National Red Cross and distributed, each package containing enough to plant a plot 100x100 feet. More than 125 bushels of seed potatoes have also been distributed and planted by those who were destitute.

Forty-Two Turn Farmers

In the Kitzmiller section many families had no vegetables and no place to raise them. Through Rev. Kupfer, of Kitzmiller, the County Commissioners of Garrett county donated the use of the ground of the Dodson Coal Mining Company, which recently reverted to the county by reason of the non-payment of taxes. The ground available for garden use was staked off in plots and numbered. Packages of seed were distributed and now there are forty-two men, the majority of whom are coal miners with families have turned to farming the plots of ground thus made available.

Besides the $1,500 received from National Headquarters, Mrs. Tower pointed out, the local chapter has expended all of its Roll Call money and has dipped into the reserve in order to help those in need, one section alone having received $250. Some of the local chapter funds have been received by the unemployed who are eager to work but can't find anything to do.

For every cent expended a report must be kept and sent to National Headquarters, some of the forms being in quadruplicate. The brunt of determining who should receive food, money, clothing, etc., and the filling out of these reports, is being done by Mrs. Tower after investigating the needs of those making application for help or upon reports sent her naming any that should be assisted.

Lesson for May 31

JESUS IN GETHSEMANE

GOLDEN TEXT—Saying, Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 22:39-54.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus in the Garden.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus in the Garden.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Obeying God at Any Cost.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Meaning of Gethsemane.

I. Jesus at the Mount of Olives (v. 39).

He went from the upper room under cover of the night to the Garden of Gethsemane, a favorite resort on the slope of the Mount of Olives, a short distance east of Jerusalem (Matt. 26:30). It is a place where the oil was crushed out of the olives. Gethsemane means "oil press." Olive oil was precious, being used both for food and lighting. The bruising and crushing of Christ in this Garden has yielded the largest blessings to the world.

II. His Companions (vv. 39, 40).

Peter, James and John, who had been with him on the Mount of Transfiguration, were permitted to go with him into the deep shadows of the Garden (Matt. 26:37). He took those who were best able to apprehend the meaning of the tragic hour to be his sympathizing companions. This was needed to prepare them as his witnesses. Knowing the peculiar trial through which they would soon pass when the Shepherd should be smitten, he needed to prepare them for it. They needed to taste the bitter cup of which he drank and of which they, too, later should drink.

III. Jesus Praying (vv. 41-44).

1. Withdrawal from the disciples (v. 41). Even these members of the inner circle could not now go with him. He tore himself away from them, for he must be alone in this darkest hour. He kneeled down and prayed.

2. What he said (v. 42). "If thou be willing, remove this cup from me." The cup did not mean primarily the physical sufferings of the cross, though they were exceeding great. He did not now desire to escape from the cross and thus to stop short of his redemptive work, for this was the supreme purpose of his coming into the world (Heb. 2:14). He was so completely identified with a sinning race that the judgment of a holy God which rightfully would have fallen upon it was about to strike him—the Father's face was actually turned from him. The cup, therefore, meant his death as the bearer of sin. He came to Gethsemane with the full knowledge of what it meant, and consciously brought his human will into accord with the divine will. He bowed in submission to the Father's will. So great was his agony that he sweat, as it were, great drops of blood. In this crucial hour an angel from heaven strengthened him. He won the victory in submission to his Father's will, and from henceforth went with unfaltering steps to the cross.

IV. The Disciples Sleeping (vv. 45, 46).

They had boasted of their fidelity (Matt. 26:35), but could not watch with him for an hour. He had issued a word of warning to them (Luke 22:34), but they were so benumbed with sorrow that they failed to keep awake. He gently reprimanded them and commanded that they should arise and pray lest they enter into temptation.

V. Jesus Betrayed (vv. 47, 48).

1. The betrayer (v. 47). It was Judas, one of the twelve. He had enjoyed the most intimate relations with the Lord: eating with him, listening to his teaching, witnessing his marvelous miracles, and enjoying his countenance. These privileges intensify the horror of the deed. He even guided the mob to arrest Jesus.

2. The sign of betrayal (v. 47). It was a kiss, the token of the most tender affection and friendship.

3. Jesus' tender words to him (v. 48). These words to the infamous disciple reveal the infinite tenderness of the Lord's heart. Many professing disciples today are proving their disloyalty to Jesus and even are betraying him. All who bear the name of Christ, and especially ministers and teachers, who deny the virgin birth, deity, and vicarious atonement of Jesus Christ, are following in the footsteps of Judas.

VI. Jesus Arrested (v. 54).

The multitude led by Judas invaded the sacred precincts of the Garden and arrested Jesus and brought him before the High Priest. Peter followed him afar off. Peter's downfall may be traced to his self-confidence.

Faith a Necessity

There is only one door into heaven; that door is faith. There is only one ship that sails for the skies; her name is Faith. There is only one weapon with which to contend with opposition; that weapon is faith.—Talmage.

A Great Mistake

There is no greater mistake than to suppose that Christians can impress the world by compromising with it.—Selected.

PUBLIC LOCAL LAWS

Authorizing the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett County to Pay the Sum of $200.00 Annually to the Kitzmillersville Volunteer Fire Department.

CHAPTER 40.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact, with amendments, Sections 182 and 184 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "Fire Departments," to authorize the County Commissioners of Garrett County to pay the sum of two hundred dollars ($200.00) annually to the Kitzmillersville Volunteer Fire Department.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Sections 182 and 184 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "Fire Departments," be and the same are hereby repealed and re-enacted, with amendments, to read as follows:

182. The County Commissioners of Garrett County are hereby authorized, empowered and directed to pay the sum of six hundred dollars ($600.00) annually to the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, the sum of two hundred dollars ($200.00) annually to the Kitzmillersville Volunteer Fire Department, and the sum of two hundred dollars ($200.00) annually to the GrantsvilleVolunteer Fire Department, so long as each of said fire departments remains an active fire fighting organization, for their benefit, said sums of money to be used by the said fire departments for the purchase, repair or maintenance of fire fighting equipment.

184. The County Commissioners of Garrett County are hereby authorized directed and empowered to levy the sum of ten hundred dollars ($1,000) annually for the above purposes on the assessable property of said County. Before the County Commissioners shall be required to pay the aforesaid sums of money, the said Commissioners shall have the power to require the officers of said fire departments to appear before them and show to the satisfaction of said Commissioners that any sums of money paid by the said Commissioners to the said fire departments under this Act have been expended for the purposes set forth in this Act, and also that said fire departments are active fire fighting organizations. In the event said fire departments hereinbefore mentioned cease to remain active fire fighting organizations or have not used the moneys appropriated to them for the sole purposes set forth in this Act, then this Act shall become null and void.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety, and having been passed upon a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the date of its passage.

Approved April 6, 1931.

Relating to Fences Between Improved Land and Timber or Unimproved Land in Garrett County.

CHAPTER 77.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact, with amendments, Section 173 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "Fences," relating to fences between improved land and timber or unimproved land.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 173 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "Fences," be and it is hereby repealed and re-enacted, with amendments, to read as follows:

173. Any owner of improved land in Garrett County, Maryland, desirous to build fence between him and his neighbor, he shall notify his neighbor in writing in the presence of one witness, and if the person so notified shall refuse or neglect to build one-half of such line fence within sixty days from the date of such notice, the other party may build all of the fence and charge one-half of the cost thereof to the person or persons owning the adjoining land, and the amount may be collected in the same way and manner as other debts. Provided, however, that nothing in this sub-title shall be construed to require the owner of timber land or unimproved land to pay any part of the cost of building a joint fence until such time as such timber or unimproved land shall be used by the owner, tenant or lessee of such land for cultivation, grazing or pasturing, in which case such owner shall be required to pay one-half of the value of the fence at the time such use is so made of such adjoining timber or unimproved land.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That all laws or parts of laws inconsistent with this Act be and they are hereby repealed to the extent of such inconsistency.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1931.

Approved April 17, 1931.

Relating to the Compensation to be Paid the State's Attorney of Garrett County to Cover Expenses of his Office.

CHAPTER 211.

for the preservation of peace and good order and securing persons and property from violence, danger or destruction; for the protection of health, comfort and convenience of the citizens of Grantsville and visitors thereto or sojourners therein; for providing proper and suitable lights upon the streets; to regulate the location and management of starch factories, glue factories, bone factories, soap factories, hide houses, tanneries, slaughter houses, breweries, distilleries, livery stables and all other establishments of which the business or trade may become noxious or injurious to public comfort or health; to prohibit the erection of such buildings or the continuance of such noxious, injurious occupations therein, wherever the public comfort or health requires it; to prevent or regulate the use and sale of firearms, fireworks, bonfires, or other things or practices tending to endanger persons or property; to regulate and prohibit the running at large of cattle, horses or swine, fowls, sheep, goats, dogs or other animals; to authorizing the impounding, keeping, sale and redemption of such animals when found in violation of the ordinance in such case provided; to prevent the deposit of any unwholesome substance either on private or public property; compel its removal to designated points, and to require slops, garbage, ashes and other wastes or unwholesome materials to be removed to designated points, or to require the occupants of premises to place them conveniently for removal; to compel the occupants of any premises, buildings or outhouses situated in said town when the same have become filthy or unwholesome, to abate or cleanse the same, and upon failure of the owners to abate such nuisance, then the Council shall authorize the same to be done by the proper public officers and to assess the expenses thereof against such property; to regulate or prevent the storage of gun powder, tar, pitch, coal oil, benzine, turpentine, hemp, cotton, nitroglycerine, dynamite, giant powder, petroleum or gasoline or any product thereof, or any other explosive or combustible materials, or any materials which may be dangerous; to authorize the removal or confinement of persons having infectious or pestilential diseases; to pass all ordinances and orders, and to expend such sums of money as may be necessary within the limitations herein provided for the protection, maintenance and preservation of the water supply of the town and the prevention of the pollution thereof; to make all regulation which may be deemed expedient for the promotion of health or suppression of disease; to regulate the construction of chimneys, smoke stacks, hearths, ovens, the erection of stoves and stove pipes, boilers and apparatus used in buildings or other places, and cause the same to be removed or made secure when considered dangerous; to suppress, restrain and regulate bawdy houses and houses of ill-fame, and to prohibit the youth of said town from being on the streets, lanes or alleys at unreasonable hours of the night; to punish and suppress tramps and vagrants by imposing fines or both fines and imprisonment at hard labor, and to abate by appropriate ordinances all nuisances in said town, which are so defined at common law, whether the same are herein specifically named or not; to regulate the use of sidewalks and all structures in, under or over the same; to require the owner or occupant of premises to keep the sidewalks in front of the same free from snow and other obstructions and prescribe hours for cleaning same; to regulate and prevent the throwing or depositing of sweepings, dust or ashes, offal or dirt, garbage, paper, hand-bills, dirty liquids or any other materials in any street, alley or public place; to regulate and prevent the use of streets, sidewalks and public places for signs, sign posts, awnings, awning posts, poles, horse troughs, steps, railings, entrances, racks, posting hand-bills and advertisements and display of goods, wares and merchandise; to cause the streets, lanes and alleys to be sidewalked, paved, graded, curbed, repaired, repaved, regraded, recurbed, grained or sewered, or to close streets or parts of streets, lanes or alleys; to assess and tax the expenses of paving, grading, curbing, or repairing, regrading, repaving or recurbing the sidewalks or streets of said town, in whole or in part, upon the respective owners of property fronting thereon, that the expense and cost of paving, grading, curbing or repairing regrading, repaving or recurbing or otherwise improving the sidewalks or streets in said town, incurred by the Council under its ordinances may be charged and recovered by said Council in the name of the corporation from the owners of the property fronting thereon, by suit or action at law against the owner or owners thereof, as other debts are collected, and the expense of the same shall be a lien upon the property chargeable therewith; to regulate and license the use of coaches, hacks, drays, automobiles and all other vehicles for the transportation of passengers, freight or other articles to or from points within said town for hire or pay; to regulate, license, tax, restrain or prohibit theatrical and all other exhibitions, shows or entertainments for which money is demanded or received; provided, that lectures on scientific, historic, benevolent, artistic, religous or literary subjects, and apparatus for the education of the same and specimens of fine art, shall not be deemed to be within this provision; to regulate the sale of all kinds of property at auction in the streets, stores, shops or elsewhere in the town, and to license auctioneers and all vendors of property on the streets or squares or other places in said town; to license, tax, regulate, suppress and prohibit hawkers and itinerant dealers, peddlers and pawnbrokers and to revoke such license at pleasure; to license, tax and regulate branch stores and all other concerns established in said town for temporary business only.

214. The said Mayor and Council may from time to time cause an assessment to be made of all the property liable to State and county taxes within the corporate limits of said town of Grantsville, and to levy a tax thereon not exceeding one dollar on the one hundred dollars in each year, and said property shall be assessed at its actual cash value and the said Mayor and Council may by ordinance provide methods and means for the collection of said taxes and for the enforcement of the payment thereof.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety, and being passed upon a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the date of its passage.

Approved April 17, 1931.

Authorizing and Directing the County Commissioners to pay $400 to the Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department.

CHAPTER 145.

AN ACT to authorize and direct the County Commissioners of Garrett County to pay four hundred dollars ($400.00) to the Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department for the purchase of equipment in the year 1931 and to levy the aforesaid sum upon the assessable property of said county.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That the County Commissioners of Garrett County be and they are hereby authorized and directed to pay to the Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department the sum of four hundred dollars ($400.00) for the purchase of equipment in the year 1931, and to levy the aforesaid sum upon the assessable property of said county.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety, and having been passed by a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the date of its passage.

Approved April 6, 1931.

Relating to Meetings of the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett County and the Compensation the Members Shall Receive.

CHAPTER 210.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact, with amendments, Sections 82 and 84 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," subtitle "County Commissioners," to change the time of meeting of said Commissioners and to increase their compensation.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Sections 82 and 84 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Commissioners," be and the same are hereby repealed and re-enacted, with amendments, so as to read as follows:

82. The County Commissioners of Garrett County shall meet in regular session on the first and third Mondays of each and every month, and remain in session so long as may be necessary to properly transact the business of the county.

84. The County Commissioners of Garrett County, now in office and those hereafter elected to said office, shall receive for their services as such Commissioners, an annual salary of one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars each, payable in monthly installments. Each of the said Commissioners shall also receive the sum of ten cents per mile for each mile traveled to and from their regular meetings; and when it is necessary for said Commissioners to leave the county for the proper transaction of the business of the county, they shall be entitled to receive as a body, their actual traveling expenses. The above salary and transportation allowances shall be in lieu of all other compensation and expenses.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That all Acts or parts of Acts inconsistent with this Act are hereby repealed.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1931.

Approved April 17, 1931.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

The laying of the cornerstone of the new Methodist Episcopal church, then under construction, was announced to take place on June 14. Dr. J. A. Fullerton, Wheeling, a fermer pastor of the church in Oakland, was named as being the speaker for the day and to have charge of the service.

At Keyser, West Va., hailstones as large as hickory nuts fell to the depth of two inches.

The Totten store building, corner Second and Alder strects, was undergoing repairs, including a fresh coat of paint.

A mammoth passenger locomotive, in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad shops at Piedmont, was to be put in service and was built with the expectation that it would draw twelve passenger coaches up the steep 17-Mile grade at a high rate of speed.

H. W. Kahl, Accident, purchased two acres of the Bishop farm near town upon which he intended erecting a fine residence.

The first serious disturbance following the rc-opening of saloons in Garrett county occurred at Oakland, Deer Park and Selbysport, when drunken brawls took place in each of the three towns on Saturday and again on Sunday.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Transportation facilities were more or less hampered on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad because of a serious shortage of water for the use of locomotives.

The Decoration Day parade formed in front of Sturgiss' Pharmacy and was led in the march through town by the Mountain City Band, followed by fourteen survivors of the Civil War, among them being an ex-Confederate soldier, the late Charles M. Miller, of Swanton, who assisted in decorating the graves of his one-time enemies.

Two extremely handsome touring cars were received in Oakland by residents of Garrett county. Mr. S. T. Jones received a Haynes and Senator H. J. Spelcher received a new Columbia.

Dwight Townshend, student at Peabody Conservatory of Music, Baltimore, returned home for the summer vacation.

A Year 'Round Resident of Mountain Lake Park Desires Same Rights as Residents of Other Municipalities.

To the Editor of The Republican.

Attention has been called to an article in The Republican under the caption, "Mountain Lake Park Is Again Agitated by Local People."

Something wrong there, because the agitators don't live in Mountain Lake Park. Some of them live in Oakland and some live in Loch Lynn Heights, but our quota is about down to the vanishing point. Judging from the sound of the article in question one would think that we were asking for the contents of the sub-treasury.

Is there anything fundamentally wrong in asking to be allowed to live under the same sort of civil government that the people have in Oakland? Do the laws of our country provide that only part of the people be allowed to vote, while others are denied that privilege, or are we all supposed to enjoy that right?

Would you be willing to move to Mountain Lake Park knowing that your vote would be null and void and not worth the paper on which it is printed?

In every movement to improve living conditions, we find dissenters. Not very many, but always a few. These are generally selfish persons who may be ejoying some special privilege at the expense of the rest of the people.

For instance, if you rented one of your buildings to a chain store and allowed it to come into Oakland and undersell the other merchants to such an extent that they were almost driven out of business, that would be extremely selfish on your part, and in all probability your brother business men would feel like decorating your bare neck with a garland of thorns and cactus—sort of a Croix de Barbed wire. That's a sample of rank selfishness at the expense of the other people.

The few who oppose the wish of the residents of Mountain Lake Park to be allowed to choose their own officers are just as selfish and generally have an axe to grind.

Oakland has a common corporation and progresses.

Mountain Lake Park has a private corporation and goes backward.

YEAR 'ROUND RESIDENT.

Study Is Made of Rural Newspapers by College Class

Since the local newspaper is one of the forces for rural education and culture the students of Rural Sociology in Blue Ridge College made a study of several country newspapers published in various parts of Maryland. The object was to find the amount of space given to things of special value to rural people. The subject matter was listed under general news, local news, agriculture, politics, legal notices, recreational, educational, health, religion, items on rural development and advertisements.

That there is a wide variation in the amount of space given to certain items, was revealed. In each case studied, local items of news had been given the larger amount of space in the news columns. In practically every paper studied the local items and events of town where the paper is published received the largest amount of space. Letters from rural sections had very little real news, most of them being little else than a list of personal calls in those parts but considered important by the publisher to those interested else they would not have been printed.

It was found that a comparatively small amount of space was given to agricultural news or to building up rural life. Some devoted considerable space to lawn and garden contests for the towns but did not challenge the rural folks to a like interest. The report stated that recreation was one of the things which needed study by rural leaders, and that rural newspapers could help by suggesting types of social events of interest to this class of people. It was found that over half of the paper was taken up with advertising, with most of the advertisements of good grade.

The report closed by stating that "although they must sometimes struggle and bear a lot of criticism, the local newspapers are filling a placc of need in the rural life of today, and it is hoped that usefulness may be much enlarged.

Thirteen newspapers were judged, among them being The Republican. The Republican stood high in local news content, and others were in proportion. In the particular issues studied, there was a small amount of agricultural news, which is usually not the case with The Republican, a survey over a general period shows.

EYESIGHT TESTS SHOULD TELL VISUAL EFFICIENCY

Normal Sight Should Not Be Based on Distance Reading

The child in school today is not using his eyes as did primitive man. This is a near-point world, whereas the world of yesterday was definitely a far-point world.

Optometrists the country over are showing school boards and educators that the so-called sight testing in schools may be definitely harmful if the child and parents are told that the child has normal eyes, simply because he can read certain letters on a wall chart.

The sight test is merely learning if the child has his heritage of normal, primitive vision. It tells nothing about his ability to continue concentrated effort at desk over long hours of the day.

The adult is familiar with what he calls "eye-strain," yet knows that he sees well. This "eye-strain" is the outward manifestation of what the optometrists call visual inefficiency, a fatigue from near-point concentration that results in a definite limiting of the absorbability of the human mind.

Tens of thousands of children are hampered in their work, millions of dollars are spent in re-educating these children, whose sole difficulty is this lack of visual efficiency. They have been given a "sight test" at school, have been told they were normal, yet they are totally unfit to cope with this modern world of print and near-point effort.

Every child who has advanced beyond the first few grades, who betrays the slightest difficulty in concentration or any signs of eye weariness or fatigue, should have the eyes examined for their effectiveness—not their sight.

BITTINGER

On Thursday morning of last week a slight frost was reported from the various lower sections of this community, but no damage to crops or fruit resulted.

A heavy and continuous rain fell in this neighborhood on Friday and Saturday, raising all the waters to the flood stage. The rain was mixed with snow on Saturday and unseasonably cool weather followed.

C. E. Ellithorp sold two milk cows to Walter Boose, of Meyersdale, Pa., one day last week.

Messrs. Asa Orendorf and R. L. Emory motored to Meyersdale, Pa., on business last Saturday.

Mrs. Homer Beachy and little daughter returned from a visit with relatives in Huntingdon, Pa., last Sunday evening.

The regular monthly meeting of the Homemakers Club was held at the residence of Mrs. C. C. Beachy on Thursday afternoon of last week. A goodly number of the members of the organization were present and a most delightful meeting resulted.

C. C. Beachy is having his farm house and barn repainted, adding much to the general appearance of the always well kept premises.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kissner, of Terra Alta, W. Va., visited Mrs. Kissner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Brenenman, here on Saturday.

RYAN'S GLADE

There will be a Memorial Day service held at White Church Sunday evening at six o'clock to which all are most cordially invited. The Epworth League meeting will take place at eight o'clock.

Russell Harvey has purchased a Ford coupe.

Miss Nellie Steyer, New York City, is visiting relatives in this community.

Miss Jessie Shillingburg, who has been employed in Washington, D. C., was visiting at her home in this community over the week-end.

Mrs. Gayle Alhiser and children, of Morgantown, W. Va., are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Sharkey, the parents of Mrs. Alhiser.

Mrs. J. D. Harvey was visiting Mrs. Boyd Steyer on Monday evening.

Arley Whetsell was visiting in this community Sunday evening.

Sunday school is held every Sunday morning at ten o'clock and the public worship occurs every two weeks.

Plans are being made to organize a band in this community.

The work of placing a wire fence about the cemetery of this community was completed one day last week.

Carl Nethkin, Jr., of Baltimore, was here visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Shockey, recently.

DIED.

LE ROY HORTON, SR.

LeRoy Horton, Sr., formerly of Cumberland, died suddenly at Oak Park, Ill., Monday night. He was about 60 years of age. Surviving are his widow and one son.

Mr. Horton was president and resident manager of the Tioga Tanning company, which operated a tannery at Hutton for a number of years. It was destroyed by fire in 1924 and was never rebuilt.

MRS. HARRIET STANTON.

Mrs. Harriet Stanton, widow of the late Eli Stanton, died at her home, Little Crossings, Monday night at 10:45 o'clock after an illness of three weeks from heart trouble.

She was the daughter of William and Jane Warnick Broadwater, pioneer settlers of Garrett county and was the second surviving member of a family of thirteen children, one brother, Gilead Broadwater, the youngest survives. She was born in the old home farm near Fair View, Md., on January 15, 1844, was 87 years, 3 months and 15 days old.

Mrs. Stanton is survived by the following children: Mrs. H. H. Maust, Salisbury, Pa.; W. Edward Stanton and J. Urban Stanton, Grantsville; 14 grandchildren and 6 great grandchildren, also a number of nieces and nephews.

She was married to Eli Stanton on February 28, 1865, and moved soon to Little Crossiings, where they have always resided and where Mr. Stanton conducted a grist mill until his death on June 20, 1910, which is now owned by his son, W. E. Stanton. Two sons, Charles Albert and Howard Milton Stanton died some years ago.

Mrs. Stanton was a faithful member of the Reformed church. She has been in good health during the past winter until May 4 when she suffered a heart attack which ultimately caused her death.

Funeral services were held at her home this morning at 10:30 o'clock. Rev. M. A. Keifer, her pastor officiated. Interment was made in the family lot in the Grantsville cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of our dear husband and father, Peter Franklin Mellinger, who departed this life one year ago today, May 25, 1930:

We loved him, yes, we loved him,
But angels loved him more;
And they have sweetly called him
To yonder shining shore.

The golden gates were opened,
A gentle voice said, "come"!
And with farewells unspoken
He calmly entered home.

His Wife, Sons and Daughters.
